KILLING THE GOOSE FOR THE EGGS.

Many centuries ago an uncultivated American continent awaited for years for the coming of white men to partake of its riches. It had coal and iron and many other minerals beneath the ground. It had miles and miles of forests, huge trees waiting to be used. It had plains and rolling lands waiting for cultivation. It was a storehouse of wealth to be utilized by those who came.

And then the white man arrived at last and put his hands and brains to the task. Cities grew. Waterfalls, then coal, turned mills and factories. The epic of America need not be related. Every school-child knows its history.

But, strangely enough, there seems to be a law of nature that whenever something is taken from the soil restitution must be made. And in the mad rush to make the most of this land, American people forgot the restitution for many years. Recently the national government has remembered.

That is where the soil erosion program enters the picture. The farm lands were being laid to waste by the waters that flowed from the rains. Floods were occurring. So were dust storms.

But the soil erosion program seems to conserve the soils of the nation. The farm must be protected from erosion or it loses its ability to produce. Of this H. H. Bennett, chief of the soil conservation service, said recently in Texas:

"Conservation of the soil and water is largely a matter of using the land in accordance with dictates of nature. Hitherto, in this country, we have sought unsuccessfully to repeal natural laws that interfered with our use of the land."

"We have stripped away the vegetative cover that protected the soil from wind and rain for countless centuries before white man came. We have farmed steeply sloping fields without thought of the law of gravity or the erosive power of the water. We have bared our plains and prairies with seldom a thought for the power of wind. Now we see the consequences of our wastefulness in vast acres of ruined and depleted land."

The federal government is attempting to make up with a very huffy Mother Nature.

ZIPPER FOR MEN.

The old order changeth. Do you remember way back in the over-all days, when the majority of the population tilled the soil, that members of the male sex depended on a type of snap or perhaps a two-lined fastener to hold up their clothes?

These were followed by more dressy apparel in which the fasteners and snaps were discarded in favor of buttons. This improvement showed the development of refinement and change in occupation of the population.

Buttons were staple furnishings of men's coats, vests, trousers, underwear until comparatively recently.

cently. Coats, vests and underwear still maintain this type of fasteners, and shoes after discarding the many-buttoned varieties have managed to stick to the ordinary shoestring, although of late a new-fangled buckle has appeared on the market.

Bathing suits no longer have buttons, in fact many no longer provide covering for the upper part of the body.

But the newest thing for men's apparel fastener is the zipper. There are many advantages to a zipper fastening. Time as well as energy are conserved through the use of a zipper, discomfort can be eliminated and even the most timid and shrinking person may remain nonchalant under the new mode.

Airplanes are now able to hold to their courses by means of the radio beam. Radio beams are invisible electric beams heard through the pilot's head phone. By a series of signals, the pilot can tell when he gets off the course. The signals are so designed that the pilot can tell whether he is to the right or left of the course, and when he is directly on it. The projectors which project these beams are located 200 miles apart. There are 140 of such stations operated by the Federal Department of Commerce along the 22,000 miles of lighted airways.

History was made in a Harrisonville, Missouri, prison recently when a prisoner's sweetheart opened the prison door with a stove poker. Heretofore all of these and kindred feats performed by women were handled with the aid of a hair pin. The event may be regarded as history since it discloses that the stove poker is destined to take the place of the now obsolete hairpin. We may be pardoned if we appear skeptical that the poker will ever take the full place of the hairpin as an all purpose utility.

Our idea of a well ordered household is one into which company can drop for several days stay, without disrupting a thing, and the high mark of hospitality is the ability to make that same company feel that nothing more unusual is being done for their entertainment beyond putting on another plate or two and changing the towel in the bathroom.

There may be an over production of some of the farm products, but as far as our experience goes we do not believe there was ever an over production of fried chicken gravy and mashed potatoes.

O Lord our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth! who has set the glory upon the heavens. —Psalm 8:1.

It is just as big a job to stay on top in the game for life as it is to get on top. Sometimes it is a bigger job.

TWO MINUTE SERMON.

THE SIN OF ACHAN: This nation finds itself today in the position of a nation that having once "put its hand to plow has turned back." I refer specifically to its situation in the matter of the liquor question. In all parts of the country may be found temperance groups bewailing the fact that this nation once having taken the stand has chosen to desert its position and surrender to the saloon and the brewer. I do not believe the temperance forces should direct their criticism for this condition against the liquor interests alone. I think that a full share of the blame lies with Christian people themselves. I am reminded in this of the instance when Joshua led the Israelites in the conquest of the promised land. One day the fortunes of war turned against Joshua. He discovered that Achan, contrary to instructions, had taken the spoils of war and hidden them under the floor of his tent. Achan was put to death and victory returned to Joshua and the Israelites. The Christian people who proclaimed themselves against liquor, in too many instances, lacked sincerity. Like Achan they hid within their own homes the secret sins that brought the fortunes of war against them. They have lost the battle. The only thing left to do is to begin all over again, but their efforts will be of no avail until they are prepared and go to battle sincerely and free from the sin of Achan.

WHAT WE THINK.

I have always been an ardent admirer of J. Edgar Hoover and his efficient corps of assistants. Hoover has demonstrated that it is possible to catch a criminal by employing men as smart and as shrewd as the criminal.

It reminds me of the story of the boy and his dog. A friend asked him how he taught his dog tricks. He replied: "That is easy but to do it you've got to know more than the dog."

I look forward with a good deal of interest to the success Hoover will have when he tackles what I believe comes nearer being Public Enemy No. 1 than the kidnapers, gangsters and bank robbers—the racketeers. This will be the acid test for the Q-Men for the reason that this public enemy is so closely linked with the crooked politicians and in some instances the officers of the law themselves, and has its tentacles reaching out into the semi-respectable circles of society and anchored with men of power and influence in the communities in which they operate.

As soon as Mr. Hoover turns his attention to these, the real public enemies, they will set up a back fire against his department that will be heard across the continent. Every suite influence that can be brought to bear on Mr. Hoover and his department will be worked. He will find himself pitted against the best brains that ruthless gangdom with all the money and influence at its command can employ.

The work of rounding up racketeers, while more dangerous than that of trailing down kidnapers and bank robbers, will not only be lacking in the dramatic and spectacular appeal which surrounds the round up of the kidnapers, but will often even be met with resentment in some circles which it is commonly believed are in favor of strict law enforcement.

I believe that from the money standpoint the racketeers exact a large tribute from the American public and from American business ten times over than do the kidnapers. Racketeers rule by fear and intimidation. Their operations are far reaching. They differ from the kidnapers in that the kidnapers have their beginning and end in the lower strata of society while the racketeers receive their orders from higher up and their tentacles reach down into the substrata of gangdom.

If Mr. Hoover can whip the racketeers he will indeed have shown himself to be a super man.

During 1935, 1,730,000 trees were planted in the national forests of this country.

The big new telescope lens recently completed at Corning, New York, to be installed in the observatory at Palomar, California, will be able when completed, to photograph stars 1,600,000,000 light years away. A light year is the distance light will travel in a year moving at the rate of 186,000 miles a second.

The Chinese girls have upset all precedent of the race by going on for permanent. The fad has taken Canton by storm and every girl of the city who can do so now wears her hair curled.

Public Enemy No. 1, according to J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, is not the kidnaper of gangster but corrupt politics. This is the real and only public enemy No. 1.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
WEEKLY BUSINESS SURVEY

Severe drought conditions, centered largely in the Southeast but with other widely scattered areas affected, constituted a serious menace to crops but reports to the Department of Commerce last week. Building activity was one of the brightest spots in the business picture, while widespread employment gains were recorded and industrial operations were resisting seasonal declines.

While retail trade continued at some steady pace of recent weeks in most sections, the holiday and unseasonable weather caused some slowing down in a few cases. For the month of May, gains ranged from 10 to 20 percent ahead of the 1935 month.

North and Middle Georgia crops were suffering from the worst drought since 1925, according to the report from Atlanta, and Memphis described a similar condition in Tennessee and Arkansas. Suffering spread over Virginia, Maryland, the Carolinas and Alabama and to a less violent extent in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Missouri and the Northwest. In the Portland, Oregon, area, beneficial rains were timely, but too late for strawberries. Tobacco planting was considerably handicapped in the Louisville district and while the drought was broken in the Indianapolis region, crops were two weeks late. Wheat was good to excellent in the St. Louis territory, but fruits were scarce. Jacksonville reported the best citrus season in ten years. The spread of drought conditions occasioned considerable discouragement.

Labor disturbances continued in many sections. 10,000 sawmill and timber workers having been idle in the Portland area, while planning mill workers were on strike in Minneapolis. In Los Angeles, there was an acute shortage of skilled labor in building and manufacturing, but a surplus in unskilled. A survey in the Cleveland area showed industrial employment in May the highest since 1930 with several firms expecting to increase their personnel in June. In Nashville, more workers were employed in industry than in 1929, according to the Memphis report. During the week 10,500 persons were dropped from the relief rolls in Pennsylvania and 61% were absorbed by private industry. Industrial employment in Springfield, Mass., was at the peak of 1929, while a survey by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association of Chicago showed manufacturing enterprises in Illinois employing more than in 1929.

The Detroit industrial index receded slightly because of the holiday, but the index stood at 105, compared with 102.4 a year ago. Pittsburgh steel mills received final orders for 1936 model cars, but structural steel awards increased over the previous week and there was a gain in the window glass demand. Activity in the Cincinnati metal trades was steady, but factory shipments of shoes were ahead of last year. Continued improvement prevailed in the Buffalo heavy industries with steel plants operating at 76% of capacity, compared with 38% last May. The establishment of several new plants was reported by Philadelphia and Los Angeles. A $400,000 packing plant was being erected at Albany, Ga. Louisville reported an order by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad for $11,925,000 of new equipment. Flour production in Minneapolis dropped to 38% of capacity, the slowest week of the year in the milling business.

For the second consecutive month of the year, shipping through the port of Philadelphia set an all-time record. Machine tool orders in April reached the highest level of the year. The Federal Reserve Board announced aggregate bank deposits of the country at $48,984,000,000 at the end of 1935, a gain of more than four billion dollars over the previous year.

SEVEN MILLION TREES PLANTED IN KENTUCKY

Approximately seven million trees have been set in Kentucky, the Soil Conservation Service announces. This number includes 3,899,611 set in the vicinity of Madisonville, 2,616,447 around Paducah and 692,082 near Falmouth. Spring planting work in Kentucky will close when the remaining 1,296,557 trees are planted at Madisonville. Approximately a third of a million seed plots have been made, a quarter of a million being at Madisonville.

SELL LAMBS WHEN THEY ARE READY

Selling lambs at the proper weight is stressed by Richard C. Miller, sheep specialist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture. The late spring tended to cause lambs to be put on the market before they reached proper weight and condition. Light lambs go into lower grades, which means that the owner receives a lower price. He also sells fewer pounds.

Then there is the mistake of holding lambs after they have reached proper weight. Too heavy lambs, like too light lambs, suffer price reduction. The penalty is most severe in the case of heavy buck lambs.

Except for early in the season, the market calls for lambs weighing 72 to 85 pounds at the yard or that yield a carcass of 35 to 42 pounds.

DINNER IS SERVED, MADAM!

How would you like to be greeted with such a welcome sight as this—a deliciously baked oven dinner—upon your return from a party or a shopping tour? This meal, consisting of baked chicken, caramelized sweet potatoes, peas and carrots, and apple pie was baked in the oven of the Hotpoint electric range under the guidance of the automatic Timer Clock, one of this range's outstanding features. The food was placed in the unheated electric oven where it was carefully preserved in a moist, cool atmosphere until the appointed hour for baking arrived. At that time, the Timer Clock, which had been set in advance, automatically turned the oven on and when mellow came home dinner was ready to be served.

RECREATION ROOM INSTALLATION

MODERN styling of the new automatic electric water heaters make these heaters especially adaptable for installation in the bathroom, kitchen or recreation room of the modern home. The recreation room installation shown above is typical of the ease with which this important appliance may be fitted into the decorative ensemble of the room. It is a far cry from the old-fashioned heaters usually found in dark corners of the basement, difficult of access. The modern swing to all-electric homes has directed unusual attention to the convenience and dependability of electric water heating, which requires no attention after the heater is installed, and insures a supply of hot water at all times of the day or night. The heater shown is a Hotpoint in white enamel, with black trim.

VETERANS BONDS

Complete preparations are being made in this city for the arrival of the first bonus bonds at the postoffice June 18 and 19. The American Legion office and the postoffice are co-operating to give the best service possible to the veterans.

While the rules may seem a little heavy at first, second glance reads a meaning into all seemingly intricate handling. The federal government is attempting to see that not one bond goes astray, and that not one person receives payment to which he is not entitled.

It is a gigantic business which the government has undertaken in the handling of so many bonds. It will require a great deal of checking, many statistics and co-operation on the part of all concerned.

The local American Legion post is appointing a committee to help in the identification of veterans, which must be performed before the bonds can be delivered. Delivery of the bonds will occupy the primary attention of the postoffice department during the next few months.

Recently a call has been made for all soldiers to file their applications for the bonds by June 15. Naturally those who filed theirs earliest will receive their bonds first. The aid of the veterans is asked by the government in the task which confronts them.

THOUGHTFUL MOMENTS

It is a safe and good rule to sourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness, or speaking a true word, or making a friend.—Ruskin.

Charity is a virtue of the heart and not of the hands.—Addison. Far away in the sunshine are my highest aspirations. I may not reach them, but I can look up and see their beauty, believe in them and try to follow where they lead.—L. M. Elliott.

Sunshine is delicious, rain is refreshing, wind braces up, snow is exhilarating; there is really no such thing as bad weather, only different kinds of good weather.—Ruskin.

JUNE WEEDS.

June brings lovely brides and gentle breezes; it ushers in cerulean skies and emerald fields; it crowns the trees and expands the heart. And it also introduces a bountiful crop of weeds.

Weeds harbor insects and rats, and crush out grass and flowers. And they grow high and unsightly, the vacant lot full of them can spoil the trimmed and fresh effect of a whole street length of other-wise nicely kept lawns. They are a source of hay fever and asthma. They become uglier and uglier as the summer grows older.

The time to cut them is now. The property owner who keeps his vacant land trimmed and free from the rank and unpleasantly ragged growth of weeds does indeed do the community a real service. He is a good citizen, as good as one as the man who keeps his home free from fire hazards and his automobile within the safety limits. The man who permits his vacant lots to grow up in weeds is no good neighbor and is asking for an outspoken complaint against himself by people who would only be too happy to be friendly if he would keep his weeds cut.

SAFETY SLOGANS

If you are walking, don't trust to luck to escape passing automobiles, part of the responsibility for his safety belong to the pedestrian. After the accident it doesn't make so much difference who was in the wrong. With several broken bones to nurse there is little satisfaction to be gained in knowing you were in the right.

If you dislike the idea of having the impression of your license plate stamped across the front of your body, don't stop on the pavement at night and stand in front of a warning light while taking off the spare tire.

Remember that while you can get spare parts for your car, no spare parts have yet been made for the human body.

A few minutes may seem important and worth saving but wont count for much in eternity.

POTPOURRI

Father Time is a heartless grafter when it comes to trading. He takes your youth and beauty and gives you false teeth and rheumatism.

And come to think about it, a woman who can keep a secret, is a dull, uninteresting woman. Who falls in love with a woman who wont talk, who is "wise", who holds everybody off at arms length? Nobody! It's the woman who talks who has the following. The sly, secret, mysterious woman never gets anywhere except in a few fool novels.

KENTUCKY REPRESENTED AT POULTRY CONFERENCE

Kentucky was one of 36 states represented at the recent national poultry improvement conference in Chicago, where rules and regulations were adopted governing the development of standards and grades in chickens and turkeys. Dr. J. Holmes Martin, head of the poultry department at the Agriculture Experiment Station at Lexington, and E. A. Baute, representing the Kentucky Poultry Association, attended. The improvement plan will have considerable effect on Kentucky, according to Dr. Martin, as there are 25 hatcheries in the approved and certified grades in the state, with a total capacity of 1,500,000 eggs. There are also several Record of Performance breeders.

The conference voted to include turkeys in the poultry improvement program, and Dr. Martin was made chairman of a national committee which will have to do with rules and regulations for approved and certified grades of turkeys. Other states represented on this committee include Oregon, Utah, North Dakota, Texas, Wisconsin, Maryland, Connecticut and Kansas.

The 1935 census shows that turkeys are being raised on 28,459 Kentucky farms. The big bird is said to add approximately $1,000,000 annually to the income of Kentucky farmers.

The Big "Black Legion"
More and Better Babies
A Worried Empire
U. S. Dollars Emigrate

The "ritual" of the murderous secret society called the "Black Legion" contains some old "Know - Nothing" features. The candidate for admission must be "willing to commit murder, to proceed against Catholics, Jews and Negroes"; he must be "native born, Protestant, white and gentle."

The "Black Legion," which probably will not last long, had ambitious plans. Among other things it proposed to overthrow the federal government, which is not an original idea. It was also going to set up a dictatorship, with night-riding regiments to enforce discipline. Dictatorship is not a new idea, either.

Strange things are done or planned in the name of "liberty" now, as they were when Madam Roland mounted the guillotine platform.

Russia wants bigger families, like Mussolini and others with "plans." Stalin wants plenty of new little citizens.

A thousand million rubles will be set aside by Moscow to "subsidize large families and aid mothers." Birth control ladies and gentlemen will hear, surprised, that aid to large families will begin after the seventh child. Seven are taken as a matter of course; that is just the beginning of a Russian family.

Chancellor Hitler of Germany joins in the "more and better babies" cry.

The German ideal is no longer the beautiful golden-haired Margaret, spinning her wheel and saying "No." The Nazis demand women who, "above everything else, can become the mothers of several children," and are willing to do so, according to a representative of Chancellor Hitler.

William Philip Simms, English, is afraid the British empire may not survive, on account of "air fleet peril."

Britain is disturbed by the thought that her whole imperial line of communication, stretching 4,000 miles from the Straits of Gibraltar to the Gulf of Aden, is under Mussolini's bombing planes. Except that her empire is the biggest, England should not worry more than other countries. With surface ships losing all importance, except in the opinions of some Americans, anybody's bombers can break up any line of communications temporarily.

"Americans investing huge sums in the Bahamas, to escape income tax," says the New York Times, big type, front page.

Americans have been "investing huge sums" elsewhere, outside of the United States. Billions of American money have gone to Canada, England and other "foreign parts." More will go.

In all the Bahamas, 4,403 square miles of beautiful territory, there is no income tax. Think of that for a happy country.

Needless to say, if enough American money pours in to make it worth while the intelligent British will find a way to tax it.

Germany has proved the "48-hours-from-Europe-to-America" possibility, with America looking on.

Now England is rushing preparations for a line of heavier-than-air planes to fly between England and America, starting in a few months, and the French, preparing a similar line, are negotiating for a half-way harbor at the Azores. The southern route was said to be the wisest by Lindbergh, shortly after his great flight.

Many Frenchmen are disturbed and puzzled by the situation in Europe, and General Mordacq, close associate of Clemenceau in the war, discusses the question, "What would Clemenceau do if he could come back?"

France feels the need of "a man with a fist," un homme a poigne, and Clemenceau was that kind.

Concerning that fine old fighter from the Vendee, it is safe to say that if he came back he would hasten preparations for another war. But he would not have waited until now.

Marshal Badoglio, who cleaned up Ethiopia so swiftly, has been called to Rome, perhaps as part of a wise plan not to let anybody grow too big, like the tree Igdrasil, supposed to have its roots in hell, its topmost branches in heaven.

A new comet now approaching us, discovered by and named for L. G. Pel-tier, amateur astronomer, who works in a garage, will be the first comet visible to the naked eye since 1927.

Germany cut off the head of a sixty-five-year-old man convicted of killing 12 boys. Before death, "examined" by Nazi officials who thought he might be a Communist, he admitted many other murders. He used a secret poison that doctors could not detect.

Washington—A week or ten days ago, the name of Frank O. Lowden was scarcely whispered around where politicians foregathered. They talked about the forthcoming Republican National convention and they mentioned Governor Landon of Kansas; Col. Frank Knox of Illinois, Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, and others, but never was the name of Lowden mentioned.

In the short space of a fortnight, there has come first a whisper of the name of Lowden, then a mention of him as a possible Republican nominee and finally a full voice that approximates a "draft Lowden" movement.

A few weeks ago I reported to you in these columns that the prospects were very good for the Republican National convention to turn to a dark horse. There was no name at that time upon which anyone could pin a prediction but there were circumstances, undercurrent in character, that seemed to point the way to the nomination of a man not then in the forefront of political prognostications.

Of course, with the Republican convention delegates pledged and unpledged here, there, and everywhere, it is possible for almost anything to happen but my information is that the leaders desire most of all to avoid a bitter battle. They wish to avoid the very thing which New Deal political strategists have been seeking to foment. Only the final ballot will tell the story, of course, but it does appear at this time that the Republican leadership may display some good horse sense and seek to accomplish a nomination without splitting their party wide open.

This "draft Lowden" movement has come on with almost startling suddenness as I have indicated above. It has resulted from the fact, apparently, that Mr. Lowden, while he was governor of Illinois a number of years ago and since that time, has built up for himself a record as a friend of agriculture. Thus, the strategy would seem to be that the Republican leadership is turning to a man who can give President Roosevelt a run for his money in the farm belt states.

As far as I know, Mr. Lowden has not been consulted respecting the nomination. It would seem, however, that if he were nominated he would accept despite the fact that he has not sought the nomination in any way nor has he been very active in politics since he sought the nomination for the Presidency in 1920. It was on that occasion, it will be remembered, that he and the late General Leonard Wood fought through into a conventional deadlock and Warren G. Harding of Ohio finally was nominated as a compromise candidate.

It is difficult to see how the conservative element in the Republican party could refuse to back Mr. Lowden and it is equally difficult to see how the farm representation and the liberals in the party could withhold their support when the Lowden farm record is considered.

One hears more and more discussion in Washington these days of the tax muddle in which President Roosevelt has found himself. I think it is fair to say that his prestige has suffered considerably from the way his proposed tax increase was handled and I think it is the general consensus that this year's tax bill was a proposition to which the President gave too little thought.

Sometime in the future, the history of the New Deal will be written in a clear and comprehensive manner. The story then will show in retrospect that which we can hardly understand now—the good and the bad in the bewildering adventures attempted under the policies of reform and recovery. I believe those who write that history will dwell upon the 1930 tax legislation as one of the important political weaknesses developed by Mr. Roosevelt.

As far as I know, there has never been a public official who has been entirely consistent at all times in his methods and policies. Mr. Roosevelt, being human, has been inconsistent like all of the rest and there was no reason to expect that he would be the one exception despite the fact that some of his followers maintain that he cannot make mistakes.

But to link the tax legislation with the fact that Mr. Roosevelt is human, let me call attention to the further fact that he has been bold, even daring, in many of his moves. Where his quick decisions have been sound, the country has been benefited. Where he has made mistakes by acting too quickly, his spokesmen have sought to deny that there were errors.

The reason I have called attention to Mr. Roosevelt's mistakes on the tax legislation is chiefly to show something of a new awakening on the part of the general public. The way in which the senate took the tax bill that had passed the house and turned it topsyturvy, casting out the administration's experimental levy on corporate surplus, shows better than anything I can say how the voice of public opinion again is being heard in Washington. The "voice of the people," so often referred to by the politicians, was heard quite clear and strong by the senators and the result was a complete reversal of the position which the President desired them to take.

Now, the point is this: If Mr. Roosevelt had done as he has done on numerous occasions, he could have avoided the situation that has reacted unfavorably to him. It will be recalled that several times the President has tried out his theories on various governmental problems and has studied the popular reaction to his trial balloons. He did not do this with the tax bill. He left the job of drafting the legislation to the treasury and the treasury, being populated with a number of men who have no conception whatsoever of business practices and care little for American traditions, produced a piece of legislation that would have forever prevented any business unit from saving funds to carry it through times of depression, the proverbial rainy day.

In the discussions around Washington, it is frequently stated that had Mr. Roosevelt taken his so-called tax experts into a room and made them explain the character of the bill they were presenting, much of the difficulty would have been averted. But he did not use this foresight and the result is now history. He has alienated a considerable amount of congressional support that he ordinarily could have for the mere asking.

As the tax legislation stands, it is nothing more nor less than a makeshift boost in rates. It has added nothing at all to strengthen the nation's general taxation policies. It seems to me that the time is ripe for a general study of the tax structure with the idea in mind that a wholesale revision should take place and that scientific methods should be employed. We must not forget that we have a national debt of more than thirty-one billions and that several other billions in securities are really to be counted in since those obligations are guaranteed by the United States. That debt must be paid eventually and the revenue must be raised in the only way that the federal government can get its money, namely, by taxation. The conclusion, therefore, is inescapable that we face heavy taxation.

It may be that all of the twenty-one billions in tax payments and borrowed money which Mr. Roosevelt has expended can be justified in every respect. It may be that in future years the nation will be grateful that this era of extravagance is a part of our history, but the fact still remains that when a government or an individual borrows money, that money must be returned to those who hold the evidence of the debt. The forthcoming political campaign certainly will develop plenty of discussion on this point.

The civil service commission lately has compiled some statistics indicating that the merit system in the federal government is being pushed aside at an alarming rate. The commission's figures show how every President since Arthur in 1883 has expanded the scope of the classified civil service during his administration until the administration of President Roosevelt.

It would be a list much too long to record here how the number of employees of the federal government has increased each year as the government has expanded but as a matter of history it struck me as interesting to see how 41.5 per cent of employees of the federal government under President McKinley held their jobs under the civil service system and how this percentage increased to 61.5 per cent under President Taft; to 72 per cent under President Wilson; to 79.8 per cent under Presidents Harding and Coolidge, and to 80.1 per cent under President Hoover.

By the end of June, 1935, the number of civil service employees in the federal government amounted to only 63.3 per cent of the total number and, while the civil service commission has not tabulated the record for this year, I understand reliably that the ratio will be about 57 per cent of the total.

Rural Housewives of World in Convention

RURAL housewives from many countries began their third triennial conference in Washington with Mrs. Alfred Watt of Canada presiding. Their first meeting was held in 1939 in Vienna, and the second in Stockholm three years later. Secretaries Hull and Wallace and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, extended greetings to the visitors, but beyond that there were no set speeches and little formality. Instead, the farm wives held "exchange of experience" sessions, viewed elaborate exhibits of rural needlework and crafts of organized countrywomen of the participating nations, and attended "open houses" held by all branches of the federal government in which countrywomen are particularly interested.

In exchanging experiences the women learned, among other things, that English groups have stimulated a remunerative revival of quilting to supplement the family income. Australian countrywomen maintain seaside homes for convalescents. Canada's Federated Women's Institute promotes clubs for rural youth and combats maternal and infant mortality.

By conducting evening classes for young girls Danish countrywomen have helped to check their migration to town to seek factory work.

The East Africa Women's league visits native women in prisons and hospitals and provides information to prospective white settlers.

Huge Deficiency Bill Passed by Senate

THE senate by a vote of 62 to 14 passed the deficiency bill carrying $2,375,000,000, of which $1,425,000,000 is handed to the President to spend as he pleases for "relief and work relief." As passed by the house, the measure turned the entire amount of relief money over to WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins.

Three Democratic senators voted against the bill—Tydings of Maryland, Bulkley of Ohio and Byrd of Virginia. By a senate amendment, the bill authorizes the President to order a restudy of reports on the $200,000,000 Florida ship canal and allocate another $10,000,000 to carry on work upon it during the coming fiscal year. Efforts to do anything for the Passamaquoddy tidal project in Maine had proved unavailing.

New York's Wage Law Is Held Invalid

NEW YORK state's law providing minimum wages for women and minors was declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme court on the ground that it conflicts with the fourteenth amendment by violating freedom of contract. The decision, written by Justice Butler, was concurred in by Justices Van Devanter, McReynolds, Sutherland and Roberts. Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Stone, Brandeis and Cardozo dissented. A number of other states have statutes similar to the one thus held invalid.

Zioncheck Nabbed for Test of His Sanity

MARION ZIONCHECK, the peculiar representative from Seattle, Wash., outdid all his previous performances in one day of wild deeds and landed in the Washington municipal hospital where his sanity was to be tested. He had made two attempts to see the President, saying he wanted to ask for machine guns and tanks to blow up a hotel where he suspected his bride was hiding; sought a warrant for the arrest of Vice President Garner on the belief that he knew where Mrs. Zioncheck was concealed, and in various other ways persuaded the authorities that his mental condition should be investigated.

Civil War in A. F. of L. Expected Soon

NINE of the richest unions in the American Federation of Labor, having more than a million members, probably will be suspended soon by the federation's executive council, and at the next convention they will be expelled if the council can command the necessary two-thirds majority. Thus will come to a crisis the internecine contest between the craft unionists led by President William Green and the industrial unionists who follow John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers.

Green wants to continue to organize industry by skilled groups while Lewis would seek to unite all workers, skilled and unskilled, by industries into one big union. The craft unionists, it was learned, intend to suspend the charters of the nine industrial unions at the July executive council session, a power granted the council under the A. F. of L. constitution. Lewis group of unions includes 400,000 miners, Sidney Hillman's Amalgamated Clothing Workers, David Dubinsky's International Ladies' Garment Union, the oil workers, typographers, the glass workers, hat, cap, and millinery workers, mine, mill, and smelter workers, and textile workers.

Liner Queen Mary Falls to Equal the Record

BRITAIN'S magnificent new liner Queen Mary was given an uproarious welcome at New York as she completed the first leg of her maiden transatlantic passage. The giant steamship behaved well in every way but fell short by 42 minutes of equaling the record set a year ago by the French liner Normandie. The Queen Mary's officers offered no apology for this, but it was public knowledge that her speed had been cut down by a fog off the American coast.

The Queen Mary averaged 29.13 knots on a measured course of 3,158 nautical miles, between Cherbourg breakwater and Ambrose light, completing the journey between those two points in 4 days 12 hours 24 minutes.

Business Men Oppose New Guffey Coal Bill

BOTH the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers is firmly opposed to the new Guffey-Vinson coal control bill designed to replace the act declared invalid by the United States Supreme court.

Harper Sibley, president of the chamber, and James A. Emery, general counsel for the manufacturers' association, recalled, in almost identical language, that the most widely discredited phase of the defunct NRA was price fixing through codes. The new Guffey-Vinson bill, they said, like the old bill, is designed to establish price fixing by levying a prohibitory tax on products of mines which do not submit to its provisions.

"It is time," Mr. Emery said, "that we began to analyze these stop-gaps drafted hurriedly in an attempt to make permanent law of the things that are beyond control of congress and of the federal government; things which must, in the end, be harmful to the nation as a whole. Those who object to the new Guffey-Vinson bill did not even have an opportunity to present their valid reasons for objecting."

Pope, on His Birthday, Denounces Communism

CATHOLICS the world over celebrated the seventy-ninth birthday of Pope Pius XI, and the pontiff himself marked the day by attending a solemn mass in St. Peter's in the presence of 40,000 pilgrims who went to Rome especially for the occasion. These were mainly members of the Catholic Action organization which Pius XI founded, and to them he spoke for nearly an hour. He denounced communism, as he has done on other occasions, and declared the Catholic press was one of the best forces in combating the communists.

It was evident to all observers the pope's age is beginning to tell on him and that he found the long ceremony very much of a strain.

That the pope's health is causing some concern also in Vatican circles was shown by the fact that the plans that were originally made for the pope to bless the crowd gathered in St. Peter's square from the outer balcony of the basilica were abandoned at the last minute.

Japanese Find Excuse for Action in China

THERE was every reason to believe that Japan had found, or manufactured, excuses for further encroachments in northern China, and that serious conflict between the two nations would ensue unless China were submissive. The Japanese alleged that a bridge on the railway line between Tangku and Tientsin was destroyed and that there was an attempt to wreck a troop train. The highest Japanese officers in North China were summoned to a conference in Tientsin. Yachiro Suma, Japanese consul general in Nanking, declared publicly that China must choose either "mutual interdependence with Japan or war with Japan," and he said he had informed Generalissimo Kai-shek, Chinese dictator, of this viewpoint. "Japan has gone too far to retreat now and must advance straight ahead with inevitable conquests," Suma said. The Japanese military command, meanwhile, disclosed frankly some of their demands upon China. These included:

1. Privilege of building railroads, military and civilian air bases and army barracks.
2. Establishment of regular air service between China and Japan.
3. An economic, political and military position for Japan in China.

Garden Homes Planned by Housing Administrator

STEWART McDONALD, federal housing administrator, outlined to newspaper men a new program which provides for the construction of "garden homes" outside of large cities that will aid in the gradual movement of industrial workers from urban and suburban areas to small plots several miles out in the country. He said President Roosevelt was enthusiastic over the plan.

Emphasizing that "this is not anything in the way of a benevolent proposition" and that no grants of federal funds were involved, Mr. McDonald said it would be accomplished through a broadening of FHA regulations to permit government insurance of mortgages on such property. This will enable bankers and other lenders to advance funds for the development of these "in between" areas for residential purposes, he said.

"The President believes that whenever possible people should be on an acre to two acres of ground with trees, gardens and shrubbery," he said. "This plan has been made possible by inventions and improvements in the last ten years. Now we have good roads, electricity, water facilities, and other conveniences for those areas in between the city and the country. Such a program was not possible during the last building boom."

Raymond Moley's Warning to the Administration

RAYMOND MOLEY, who used to be considered the chief of the "brain trust," fears that his friend President Roosevelt may be destroyed politically by the radicals within the Democratic party who at the same time would "destroy moderation and destroy the very system which he attempted to improve." In a speech before the National Economy League in New York, Doctor Moley said he saw confronting the Roosevelt administration these dangers:

1. That federal relief agencies will be turned into political machines to perpetuate the rule of state and local politicians.

2. The tendency, "all too prevalent in this congress, to engage in muck-raking, marauding expeditions which destroy the liberty of all of the people while they seek to restrain the abuses of a few. These orgies of public castigation . . . may be means of furthering individual political ambitions, they may be build-ups for those with Presidential hankering, but so far as the public interest is concerned they are simply sound and fury."

3. The tendency "of those in charge of the New Deal to over-emphasize adherence to the belief in the philosophy of the movement and to minimize the importance of competent technical administration."

Doctor Moley defended capitalism; declared that already there has been a wide distribution of wealth in this country, and warned the average man that he eventually must pay the mounting bills for relief—that he is the "missionary being fattened for a cannibalistic feast."

Germany Celebrates Her Revived Navy

WITH three days of maneuvers, reviews and ceremonies, Germany celebrated the revival of her navy, and closed the big event by dedicating at Kiel the huge monument to the men and ships that went down in the Battle of Jutland, Reichsfuehrer Hitler was aboard the dispatch boat Grille and from its topmast flew the old flag of the kaisers. In the maneuvers the new navy, about fifty battleships, cruisers, destroyers and submarines repelled an "enemy" attack on Kiel harbor. New submarines and speedboats, first units of the fleet being built under the Anglo-German treaty which wiped away the Versailles treaty limitations of the reich navy to 100,000 tons, were shown: publicly for the first time.

Hitler, himself, did not speak during the ceremonies of the monument dedication. Instead he listened to Admiral Raeder, Vice Admiral Wolf, and Admiral von Broder, who was chief of staff during the Jutland fight. The latter two, both veterans of that fight, paid tribute to the English as well as the German heroes of the engagement.

Thousands of former sailors from all parts of Germany participated in the ceremonies. There were also assembled former colonial soldiers, dressed in their khaki uniforms. The presence of these colonialists constantly is assuming greater importance in German gatherings.

Serious Labor Troubles in Many States

FACTORIES and farms in 15 states, in all parts of the Union, were affected by labor troubles which intermediaries were trying in vain to settle. Leaders of organized labor claimed that from 30,000 to 45,000 strikers already were out, but employers challenged the union claims that the strikes were effective.

Workers in six plants of Remington Rand, Inc., were out on strike after union leaders ordered a walkout at Syracuse, N. Y. They said 6,000 workers in the company's New York, Ohio and Connecticut plants were involved. Company officials asserted there were 4,200 affected.

Six thousand barbers in lower Manhattan, New York, were ordered to join 3,000 others in a strike which had spread over a wide area.

WANT to be a camera man?

All of you men and boys who cherish that ambition can't do better than to heed the advice of Hal Mohr, who knows what it is to start from scratch and win. He is one of our ace photographers, you know; did the camera work on "Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Captain Blood," among others, and won the Academy Award this year.

"I got hundreds of letters from boys wanting to know how to become studio camera men," he said the other day. "They all want to come to Hollywood, and that is the worst thing to do. I'd say to them—

"Begin at home as an amateur camera man. Practice on your friends with your home movie and any simple kodak. Learn all you can about trick photography, lighting, effects, enlarging and finishing—this is the foundation."

Mohr did that, years ago in his home in San Francisco, using a rather crude movie camera that he had made himself and photographing local news events.

It seems too bad that Ginger Rogers and Lew Ayres have decided to part; they were such a nice young couple, and such an attractive one. Of course, it may be career trouble.

Ginger has climbed right along up since she's been coupled with Fred Astaire, and young Mr. Ayres has shelved the acting career that had such a brilliant start when he did "All Quiet on the Western Front" for directing. Here's hoping their difficulties can be patched up.

Charles Boyer continues to be the one actor all the girls want for leading man. He's said to be the reason that both Merle Oberon and Marlene Dietrich wanted to do "The Garden of Allah"—he was cast for the hero. And now Garbo has drawn him for "Countess Walewska," which she will do after she finishes "Camille."

Do you by any chance listen to those "Vox Pop" broadcasts on NBC on Tuesday evenings? If you don't, form the habit; they're great.

Parks Johnson and Jerry Belcher set up shop just anywhere around New York and gather in innocent bystanders to broadcast; they ask questions—tricky ones, usually—and the victim replies.

The boys have been doing a bit of research work, and declare that people from small towns have faster, keener minds than city bred people.

If you're interested in Radio salaries—Harry Conn, who wrote Jack Benny's scripts till he and Benny had a tiff, received $1,000 a week.

And if you're interested in the difficulties of a radio star Jack is having some, because after his regular broadcast is done he has to repeat it, some time later, for the Pacific Coast. One of its chief charms is its effect of spontaneity; that's not hard to achieve the first time, but it's tough to repeat.

RKO officials gave a little boy one of the most thrilling moments of his life recently. He is Sammy Mydash, seven years old, and he had been blind. An operation restored his sight, and as soon as he left the hospital he went with his doctor and his nurse to the Radio City Music Hall, to a preview of RKO's "Dancing Pirate," an all-color picture.

No doubt you saw the dialect comedian known as Parkyakarkus in Eddie Cantor's recent "Strike Me Pink"; you must have heard him on the radio, too. But—you should have seen him at a big league baseball game the other day with his nine-year-old son. The boy had a toy microphone, and busily pretended the entire game. Incidentally, Eddie Cantor continues to be one of the most popular air comedians. Considering the number of years he's been broadcasting, he ranks as a veteran on the air.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Gloria Swanson hoped to come back in "I am Not a God for Carrie" for Paramount; "Carrie" was a grand role for her; but Irene Dunne got it . . . Fred Astaire just can't resist singing songs; he's just finished another one . . . Fred MacMurray got a bad sore throat from the dust storms at the "Texas Ranger" location . . . Margaret Sullivan and Henry Fonda broke up their marriage because they couldn't get along together; now they're being teamed in pictures, because all of us movie-goers liked them in "The Moon's My Home" . . . James Cagney's in New York incognito; registers at hotels under his wife's maiden name . . . John Charles Thomas won't broadcast because the Federal Communications Commission won't let him go on ending with "Good night, Mother."

All Around the House

For the picnic lunch basket, roll out baking powder biscuit dough about one-quarter inch thick, cut with biscuit cutter, spread thickly with deviled ham, roll up and bake.

Umbrella plants should be liberally watered during the summer months. When shoots begin to grow out at base of plant, cut off to give plant shape, and water freely.

Powdered borax added to the water when washing fine white dandelion, helps to keep them soft.

Heat a lemon thoroughly before squeezing and you will obtain nearly double the quantity of juice.

Strong soap suds and hot water will remove stains from powder that has become discolored and dark.

Half a cupful of milk added to most soups just before serving, makes them creamy and delicious.

A teaspoonful of baking powder added to potatoes while they are being mashed, will make them light and fluffy.

If table silver is placed in hot soap suds immediately after being used, and dried, with a soft, clean cloth, much of the work of polishing will be saved.

Purchase seldom used spices in small packages, as it is more economical since spices lose some of their flavor when exposed to the air.

To prevent lime suckers growing up around your lime bush, cut a circular piece of linoleum about two feet wide, cut hole in middle for bush, slit linoleum from edge to center hole and place around bush.

CHAPTER V—Continued

In the small square house where the dynamo stood greasy and unresponsive, Bryn detached a pair of overalls from a peg on the wall and climbed into them. "Now," he said, when Gary had given him the pathological history of the electric plant, "if you'll go and prepare a large and delectable dinner, and leave me alone in my glory, I'll see what's to be done, Gary." There was, as Bryn had suspected, nothing seriously wrong with the engine of the electric plant. He opened the cocks to drain out all the old oil, cleaned the connections, and made a note of the few parts it would be necessary to replace. Before the motor was started, he decided, it would be wise to inspect the connections at the house. He removed the greasy overalls, hung them on the peg.

He went to the kitchen and got a drink. Gary was shelling peas. All morning, as Bryn knew, he and Deborah had spent making strawberry jam; and now every window-sill was filled with small ruby jars which caught and held the sunlight.

"Where's there a ladder?" he asked. "Out on the edge of the orchard," Gary told him. "But you better be careful of it. It isn't as good as it might be."

Bryn went out behind the house and followed with his eye the line of the electric wires as they crossed the trees and the brook. He went out to the orchard, lifted the ladder lying half-hidden in the grass, carried it back and propped it up against the wall of the house, beneath the place where the wires entered. Trying each rung cautiously, he went up the ladder. As he reached the top he turned half-around as he took the pliers from his pocket, and was just in time to see Deborah emerge from her retreat down near the bridge. He did not look at her, but went busily to work, whistling blithely, attacking the wires at their point of connection with the house.

There was a sudden ominous crackling which Bryn scarcely heard; he was listening for Deborah's footstep on the path beside him, wondering whether to look down and smile or to continue absorbedly with his work. He was spared the necessity of making a choice; for, a moment after the unheeded warning, the rung upon which he was standing collapsed into splinters, and Bryn fell neatly through. He heard Deborah scream; the puppy barked furiously; and then he dropped into oblivion.

He awoke, a few moments later, with something cold dashing across his forehead, and the sound of Deborah's voice saying in a whisper, "More, Gary, get more, quick!" The sound of footsteps. Bryn lay motionless, collecting himself. He was not hurt. He knew he was not hurt. The grass was thick, here, and he had broken his fall; his head had probably been whacked just hard enough to put him out for a minute or two. He did not open his eyes. Deborah was beside him. She put her hand on his forehead, lifted the wet hair back from his brow.

She bent over him. "Don't die," she whispered like a breath. "Don't die, please don't die."

He moved his head faintly, and lifted his hand. He would find hers . . . with his wedding ring on it . . . he would hold it firmly, and tell her . . . her little white hand . . . he groped for it.

Something soft and light fell on his cheek, a delicate gentle touch. He caught his breath and held it. The touch came again, gentle, on his cheek, at the side of his mouth. He threw off his pretense of weakness, put his hand up quickly, opened his eyes, his heart thumping; and found himself clutching with both hands the puppy, nosing him in an anxiety of curiosity. Deborah was gone.

He got up with the puppy under his arm and stroled grimly around the corner, to meet Gary, wild-eyed, approaching with a brimming dipper of water.

"You aren't hurt, sir?" Gary gasped breathlessly. "Aren't you hurt?"

"Not a scratch," Bryn replied. "Sorry to frighten you."

"Well, that is good," Gary said with heartfelt emotion. "I got a terrible fright. And Miss Deborah was coming to the house and saw you fall. She . . ." he stopped.

"She what?" Bryn asked calmly. "She's crying."

Evening came on again; dinner was served in the dining room, brighter now with a host of tall tapers. Grandmother was happy tonight, gay and light hearted. When dinner was over she wanted to go for a little stroll.

It was a glorious night. The moon had already risen, and hung, a huge silver lamp, just over the top of the lowest hill. The sky was deep blue. Grandmother leaned on Bryn's arm; Deborah was on her other side.

They came back to the front porch at last, but Grandmother did not stop. She did not seem to notice their awkward silences. She walked to the corner of the house, and there, gently, she withdrew from between them and tucked Deborah's arm in Bryn's.

"There, my darlings," she said, with the ghost of a laugh. "Walk together down the path beside the brook. It's a perfect night for lovers. I am going in now. Good night!" and before Deborah's hand could stop her, or Bryn's words could form themselves, she was gone.

"Very nice night," Bryn said formally.

"Yes," Deborah agreed after a moment.

She glanced up at him in the moonlight, but his face was cool and unmoved. Wordless, she followed his lead, walking quietly beside him. They went slowly down along the brook.

They were almost at the end of the path. He had not spoken. She lifted her head. "I'm . . . I'm sorry you felt and hurt yourself," she said in that delicious low voice with the tiny break.

"I didn't hurt myself," Bryn said calmly. "Sorry to cause a commotion."

They reached the end of the path. Bryn turned. Deborah hesitated, but, after a second, turned back to him. Half-way to the house she hesitated. "It was . . . kind of you to remember tobacco for Gary," she said. "I didn't realize why he wasn't smoking."

Bryn did not reply.

Almost back at the house, she spoke again. Her voice held a hint of desperation. "It . . . it is a lovely night, isn't it?" she said.

"I think it's a little chilly," Bryn replied. "Do you suppose your grandmother thinks we've been out long enough now?"

"I'm Sorry You Fell and Hurt Yourself."

She stopped and looked up at him. And as he looked down at her, she turned away with a little droop in her shoulders, and left him.

Deborah stood against the stone railing of the balcony, surveying the changes taking place in her little world, and was thoroughly miserable. Everyone seemed to be in a conspiracy against her. Grandmother was very happy; her cheeks grew pinker every day, her appetite had improved. Grandmother, of course, thought that Deborah was happy too. She didn't begin to realize how empty life was now, and how lost and forlorn Deborah was beginning to feel. It hadn't occurred to her that this dream of hers which had come true had never been Deborah's dream.

Yes, Bryn was making Grandmother happy; but that was frightening. Because, at the end of the year . . .

And one couldn't dream of making a bargain with him to continue the play acting until . . . until Grandmother didn't need anyone any longer. That would be years and years, Deborah hoped. And he had his own life to live, his own career to carve out, his own . . . well, his own girl to marry.

Deborah felt to wondering what his own girl was like. She would be beautiful, of course, and probably tall and queenly, instead of little and childish. It was difficult to understand what her circumstances were that she would allow him to make money for her in such a strange way. If she were wealthy, surely they would have been married whether he had money or not. If she were poor, one would think that she would have been willing to marry him and share his difficult times with him. There must be something about her that Deborah didn't understand.

Deborah moved suddenly from the balcony railing and went inside her own pretty bedroom; and there she flung herself on the bed and cried miserably into the silver and violet spread.

After a long time she sat up and dried her eyes. There wasn't anything to cry about. What if they had laughed at her? She would never see her. As for the man, they were as distant from each other as any two people could possibly be, who had to act at intervals an affectionate little comedy. The other night she had tried, it was true, to be friendly. She had tried to apologize for not accepting his assistance with better grace, to tell him how sorry she was that he had been hurt while trying to help her; and he hadn't allowed her to be friendly. He had been cold and unresponsive, and she hated him for it. But it was better for him to be so. Far better. There wasn't anything between them but the relation of an employer to a servant; he had said so himself.

She got down from the bed and tiptoed to the door. No one was about, she knew that. The maids had been here for two days, and the cook as well, but they were all down in the living room with Gary, putting it in order.

Deborah went through the back door and down the path to her old play-house.

JUNGLE HUNTING EASY, BUT ZOO GETS HIM DOWN

Hans Nagel, curator of the Houston (Texas) zoo, says stalking wild animals in jungles is a tame job compared with that of keeping them in captivity.

From 1904 to 1912 Nagel roamed Africa in search of reptiles, beasts and rare fowls for zoos. And in those eight years he met with an accident only once—a lioness lacerated his leg.

But in wild life in cages—that's a different story, one that has meant hospitals and suffering to Nagel. He bears scars from head to foot. A boa constrictor once almost squeezed his life out. Caesar, the zoo lion, bit him through the shoulder. A stork dived from the top of the bird cage and knocked him unconscious. A kangaroo has kicked him to the ground and bitten his arm. Civet cats, lobo wolves, kinkajous and monkeys have gashed his hands and arms. Bobcats and hyenas have attacked him. Elephants have trod on his feet. "Big Jim," largest of the zoo's alligators, sent Nagel to the hospital for 100 days when he sought to halt its escape.

Pure Exhilaration

THE amount of pure exhilaration that is inherent in an obstacle and a difficulty has never been adequately estimated. There is really no such stimulus known elsewhere. It is like a ladder set up that one may climb. It is a tacit invitation to command the outlook. It is the open door of opportunity. It is the intimation to look within and discover one's latent powers and use them. It is one of the most forcible intimations of immortality.—Lillian Whiting.
