FULTON, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, JUNE 19, 1936.

NUMBER TWENTY-TWO.

I. C. SPENT $623,727 IN FULTON COUNTY, 1935

In a report just received from the Illinois Central System, it is shown that $623,727 was paid out by this railroad in payrolls, purchases, taxes and other expenditures during 1935. Following are the actual figures:

Payroll (369 employees, 18 pensioners): $590,260; Purchases, materials and supplies: $16,561; Taxes: $12,083; Local expenditures for water, electricity, telephone service, etc.: $4,823, making a total of $623,727.

That the dependable service rendered by the railroads in the transportation of passengers, freight, express and mails represent only a part of the benefits of the railroads to the communities which they are serving, which is shown by the statement of expenditures just issued by the Illinois Central System.

Last year this railway system spent $7,300,000 in Kentucky for wages, materials, supplies, taxes and other items. Providing employment to an average of 3,400 workers in Kentucky, the railroad paid out $5,044,500 in wages in the state last year.

The railroad's next largest outlay was for fuel, materials and supplies. For these items the Illinois Central spent $1,659,400 with 57 Kentucky firms last year. A large part of this sum went to pay wages of industrial workers in the state.

State, county and local governments and other taxing bodies in Kentucky received $470,000 in taxes from the Illinois Central last year. A substantial part of this sum went to support the public schools and maintain the public highways.

An additional $216,400 was spent by the Illinois Central in Kentucky last year for water, electricity, telephone service, rentals and pensions.

The Illinois Central is a property owner and taxpayer in 25 counties of Kentucky, and its 1935 expenditures for all items were spread over 30 counties of the state.

FORMER FULTONIAN MURDERED IN FLORIDA

W. G. Chester, brother of Herman Chester of Clinton, Ky., and former resident of Fulton, was found Sunday mysteriously murdered in the residential section of Tampa, Fla., near Hillsborough River. His body was discovered in a rank growth of weeds, where it had been deposited, officers stated, after he had been choked to death at some unknown location.

Mr. Chester, who left Fulton a little over a decade ago to reside in Florida, is survived by his divorced wife, who has re-married, and by two children of Golden Gate.

CROP LOSS IN THIS AREA IS EXTENSIVE

Crop loss in this area, comprising Fulton, Hickman, Graves counties, Ky., and Weakley and Obion counties, Tenn., has been estimated to have amounted to $300,000, due to dry weather. Surveys made by county agents other authorities in this territory show that no rain has fallen in many sections of this area in two months.

Pastures and truck crops have dried up, the fruit crop is short, and approximately 40 percent of intended tobacco acreage is unplanted. The hot, dry weather has retarded the growth of corn and cotton, and is having a telling effect on most all field crops.

The farmers in the vicinity of Fulton have an unusual opportunity to profit from poultry production. With two hatcheries in this city, almost every farmer within a reasonable distance can supply one or the other hatchery with hatching eggs. True, there is some extra expense involved, but the premium paid for quality hatching eggs soon offsets the extra expense. Most hatcheries prefer buying eggs as near by as possible, but we are forced to obtain eggs from some distance to supply the need.

Five years ago the hatchery capacity of Fulton was 10,000. Last season it had increased to about 60,000. This is an increase of nearly 400% in four years. Furthermore, five years ago, a large part of the 10,000 capacity was used for custom hatching, while last year a very small percent was so used.

The demand for hatching eggs increased to about 150,000 this season. Figuring the average premium at 9c per dozen above market price, this returned approximately $1125 to the farmers of this community in four months time.

PASTURES RUINED FOR LACK OF RAIN—AGENT STATES

Paul Farlow, of Chicago, agricultural extension agent for the Illinois Central System, states that a survey of Western Kentucky showed 50 to 75 percent of the pastures ruined due to hot, dry weather.

There is hope, however, that the pastures will come back if general rains fall in this section of the state within a week, Farlow said. "Unless we have showers soon all pastures will be dried up, the agricultural agent said. Conditions are even worse in Tennessee, Farlow said.

LAKE STREET PROJECT MAKES SLOW PROGRESS

Work started this week on the project to widen and pave Lake-st. Telephone poles had already been set back nearer the railroad tracks, and workmen early this week removed the city whitewash posts and replaced along the south side of the street. After all clearing and grade work has been completed, the laying of an additional strip of pavement 20 feet wide will begin.

Removal of the old bridge in Missionary Bottom is in charge of Pryor & Co. contractors of Mayfield. The old bridge will probably be used to replace an old wooden one on Burns-av., near Anderson Hotel.

NEGROES GO ON SHOOTING SPIEE IN MISSIONARY BOTTOM

Two negroes, Dero Johnson and Henry Morgan, got into a shooting scrape Saturday night about 7:00 o'clock, and when the fireworks were over both were wounded. Officers Boaz and Dunn investigating this shooting found Johnson shot once through the bicep of the left arm, and again through the chest near the heart. Morgan sustained a bullet wound in the hand. Johnson used a 38 caliber pistol and Morgan used a 32 caliber.

Johnson is alleged to have been in front of Morgan's place of business in Missionary Bottom cursing and disturbing the peace. Morgan went out to stop him, and Johnson is said to have started shooting. Whereupon Morgan returned fire with his gun.

Morgan's wound is not considered serious, but Johnson sustained a chest wound that is dangerously near the heart.

CONTRACTOR STARTED WORK ON NEW WELL FOR CITY THIS WEEK

Fulton is to have a new well at the city water works, to replace the old one recently abandoned because of underground "slumps." Contract was recently closed with Layne Central well supply company of Memphis and the water works committee of the city council this week selected a site for the new well on the west side of the pump station.

It is estimated by D. P. Hood, driller in charge of sinking the new well, that it will be 400 feet deep, and will require about one month to complete, and should be in operation by August 1. The new well will carry a 60 foot strainer, and will be constructed with a new type gravel wall, which will prevent slides, it is believed. The well is guaranteed to furnish a maximum of 1200 gallons of water per minute, and will cost $6,800.

BONUS BONDS WERE DELIVERED TUESDAY

World War veterans were wearing broad smiles Tuesday as they received bonus bonds from the federal government for honorable service rendered to their country. Occasionally tears of happiness and joy were shed in the realization that their dreams could be made to come true. In this community approximately $80,000 in these bonds was received by veterans, who will use the money to pay off old debts, erect homes, and in the purchase of automobiles, radios and necessities of life.

In the east end of Fulton county it is estimated that bonds will total around $90,000 to about 150 white and 45 colored veterans. In the west section of Fulton county even more will be received by the veterans, bringing the total payments in Fulton county to $190,000 to $200,000.

In every community throughout the United States this same scene took place, and it is estimated that all the bonus bonds were converted into silver dollars and laid aside to edify, they would reach around the world three times. Bonus settlements are of such magnitude that is hard for the average person to grasp the extensiveness of the payments, and the large amount of money put into circulation will undoubtedly lend a decided spur to business, as well as bring happiness and ready capital to the veterans.

As a result of a movement backed by the Hickman Lions Club, Fulton county will likely have a new truck crop, if plans of Martin Tohner of Franklin, Tenn., can be carried out. The beans are to be planted with the corn, so that the stalk will make SPENDING OUR MONEY.

When a merchant sells an article he makes a certain profit over and above the wholesale cost of the goods, the transportation and the cost of handling. This rule applies the world over.

Suppose the people of this community have $500,000 to spend within a given length of time.

It is better to keep the profits at home and in circulation among us, or is it wiser to send it all away?

For purposes of illustration, we will say the dealer's profit is 15 per cent, or $75,000.

If the people send away for this $500,000 worth of goods all of the money they send away will stay away. We will never see it again.

If, on the other hand, the people buy those goods from local dealers, the only money to be sent away will be the wholesale cost of the goods and the transportation charges.

The 15 percent profit will remain at home, as well as the overhead expenses, such as clerical hire, insurance, heat, light, and various other items.

Keeping that money at home does two important things. It increases the money in circulation at home, and it gives employment to local people.

People who are in the habit of patronizing their home merchants invariably have a better and more prosperous community than those who have the catalogue or big city habit.

These are FACTS worth looking in the face.

FATHER HAS HIS DAY.

Sunday, June 21 is the day when father comes in for his special recognition. Founded on the idea that Father should also have special tribute paid to him after the fashion of the homage paid to Mother on Mother's Day, the occasion may be a sort of by-product, but the attention paid to Dad on this day is none the less deserved and appreciated.

It isn't in the make-up of Dad to expect the sentiment which is associated with mother. Not that he is made of sterner stuff, for many fathers are as soft hearted as mother ever dared to be, once you know him intimately and learn how easy it is to tug at the heart strings.

It is the heritage of fathers that they form a sort of courageous and protective buffer for the family against the hard realities and cruel indifference of the world. They face the business and laboring world each day in the pursuit of a livelihood for he family and take the buffs and hardships that are a part of it, uncomplainingly, that mother and the kiddies may be kept secure and happy with the comforts that recompense for his labors will bring. Father wants his loved ones spared he troubles that are his in fighting the battle for subsistence.

His reward is smiling faces and kind words when he comes home at night to rest.

A few fathers play the role of hero, being lionized in the public's eye for some outstanding feat, but the vast majority go their way unassuming, thinking only of the safety and well being of their families and laboring faithfully and unsung toward keeping them secure.

So Dad really does deserve credit and the custom of setting aside this one day for special attention is noteworthy. His loyalty should be rewarded with a special expression of appreciation on next Sunday, a hearty slap on the back and perhaps a little gift that will be a material reminder that you are thinking about him and appreciate what he has done for you. His heart will beat a little faster and though he may not show it in an animated way, there will be fond memory tucked away in his store-house of treasured remembrances, for the special kindness that he has received this Father's Day.

ECONOMY AND PERFORMANCE FEATURED IN NEW FORD V-8

Performance records reported by owners and mechanical features of the Ford V-8 engine which contribute to economy are presented in a new sound slide film now being shown on request by Ford Dealers. In the first part of the film, voluntary endorsements received from many Ford owners are presented pictorially. Among the statements presented are those of a rural mail carrier, a police chief, a bus line operator and the manager of Pike's Peak summit house.

The bus line operator, Dean Hollinshead, who operates between Bend and Lakeview, Ore., reports operating his Ford V-8 stage over 85,000 miles with an expense of only $39.50 for repairs. Gasoline mileage, he reports, has averaged 18.2 miles per gallon. Several owners reports averages of 20 miles per gallon in heavy city traffic, and tests with the new type carburetor—now used on all models—which resulted in mileages as high as 24 miles to the gallon are shown.

Exceptionally low oil consumption and low maintenance costs are other factors commented upon by the users who are shown in the pictures. In some instances, the conditions under which the cars were operated are also shown.

Economy features of the V-8 engine, not usually seen by the motorist, which are shown in the film include the mirror finish cylinder walls, the direct drive for the ignition system, the light cast alloy pistons, the cooling system, the lubrication system and some of the precision methods used in manufacture. Chassis features pictured and explained include the torque tube drive, which reduces power loss; the straddle-mounted driving pinion in the rear axle, insuring correct alignment, and the extensive use of roller or ball bearings to eliminate friction. The engine and parts exchange plan is also explained, and the reconditioning of motors in the factory to provide a low-cost replacement is pictured.

FORD V-8 TRUCKS DO MORE WORK AT LESS COST...

because they have

RESERVE POWER AND EXTRA STRENGTH!

ON long or short hauls—up steep grades—through gravel or gumbo, Ford V-8 trucks have the reserve power to deliver their loads on schedule and no favors asked.

The mighty V-8 engine is conservatively rated by Ford at 80 horsepower—more than is needed for most work. . . . And this is one of the main reasons for a Ford truck's economy. Because, with so much reserve power, the Ford V-8 does its work easier, with less effort. It operates efficiently and at low cost because it is usually below "peak." The whole truck, straight to the rear axle, gives longer life than would be possible with a relatively under-powered, over-worked unit.

And V-8 power is coupled with extra strength in the Ford truck. . . . Frame, clutch, rear axle—in fact, the whole chassis, including springs, is ruggedly built to insure users the greatest possible freedom from servicing cost.

But the best way of all for you to learn for yourself exactly what a Ford V-8's reserve power and extra strength means, is to try it—on your own job—with your own loads, and check the results. Call your Ford Dealer today for an "on-the-job" test—without charge or obligation.

160,000 Horses
A New Democracy
Thin Men Live Longer
Must We Have War?

The well advertised Queen Mary, looking very big moving up to her New York dock, represented in reality the quintessence of compressed power. On the way over she developed one hundred and sixty thousand horse power.

That number of horses hitched in pairs, one ahead of the other, would make a "team" more than two hundred and fifty miles long. Still more remarkable power compression is that of the flying engine, which compresses the power of a 1,000-pound horse into less than three pounds of metal.

The government offered for sale six hundred millions of 2 1/2 per cent bonds, four hundred millions of 1 1/2 per cent notes. The whole issue is oversubscribed.

It is a comfort for those that have money and want no risk to invest even at low interest rates, free of income tax payments.

Such an investment is much simpler than running the risk of a business enterprise with pay rolls and jobs attached.

To tax heavily the man who uses his money and brains to give work to others, and free from taxation those that buy bonds and take their ease, is a brand-new kind of democracy.

Men of middle age and older may learn from Civil war veterans in the Memorial day parade, some ninety and some ninety-three; one, who led New York city's G. A. R. procession, past ninety-six years of age.

All the old soldiers are very thin men, averaging in weight less than 140 pounds. Had they been fat they would be in the grave, not in any parade.

General Pershing cut a big birthday cake with a general's sword. Mrs. Roosevelt looking on, and on Memorial day he warned America against another war.

To believe that this country can be dragged into a war without a repetition of our big war folly is not complimentary to those in charge. No foreign nation would force war on the United States, and thus put United States resources, and any fighting qualities that Americans may possess, on the side of that foreign nation's enemies.

The unfortunate congressman, Zioncheck, from the Northwest, is locked up in Washington, his sanity to be investigated, after he visited the White House with a present of empty beer bottles for the President.

The unfortunate congressman's antics are not important in themselves, but you wonder what qualities were seen in him by the voters.

The United States Supreme court declared unconstitutional a New York state law that would permit New York to fix a minimum wage for women and children.

Chief Justice Hughes, who did not agree with the majority opinion, wrote: "I find nothing in the federal Constitution which denies to the state the power to protect women from being exploited by over-reaching employers."

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., who ought to know about American industry, says enormous building operations are needed in the United States to replace out-of-date equipment, and that the door is wide open for "plenty of jobs and then more jobs."

American cotton growers fighting the boll weevil will sympathize with Argentine growers, attacked by vast swarms of devouring locusts, far worse than any weevil. The Argentine ministry of agriculture announces 10,000 tons of cotton devoured, 60,000 acres invaded.

Farmers fight the locusts by erecting walls of sheet iron or digging ditches, into which the locusts swarm, to be sprayed with gasoline and burned. Tons of the pests are thus destroyed.

Mayors of Arab cities in Palestine warn the British that they must stop Jewish immigration and the sale of land to Jews in Palestine. The British answer to the warning will probably not be satisfactory to the Arabs. It is reported also that the central committee for Palestine of the "Communist party" is distributing literature urging British soldiers in Palestine to mutiny.

The national Socialist convention in Cleveland, formulating "immediate demands," denounces the New Deal, demands a revision of the Constitution and an end of what is called the "usurped power" of the Supreme court. In all these matters, others were ahead of the Socialists.

President Lewis, of Lafayette college, thinks wars would end if monarchs who voted for it were put in front line trenches. That might prevent some wars, not all.

The Tree Crocodile

The customer proved most exacting and the clerk was growing impatient.

"Now are you sure this is genuine crocodile skin?" the customer inquired, critically examining a handbag.

"Quite sure, madam," was the reply.

"You see, I know the man who shot that crocodile."

"It looks rather dirty," remarked the customer.

"Well, yes," replied the assistant, "that's where the animal struck the ground when it fell out of the tree."—The Automobileist.

Lost for Good

"Mummy," said little Joan pleadingly, "can I please have another piece of toffee?"

"I've only just given you a piece," said mother. "What happened to it?"

"I've lost it," the child replied.

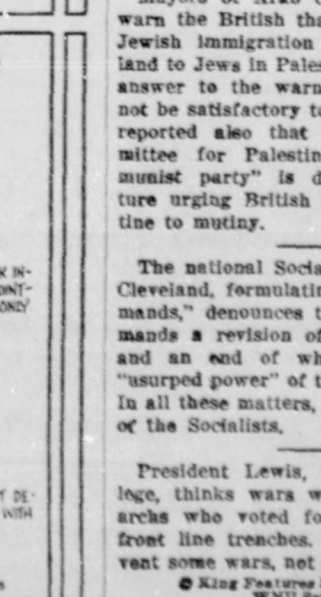

"Where did you lose it?" mother inquired.

"I just put it in my mouth and it went right down," Joan informed her.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
 By WILLIAM BRUCKART
 NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON D. C.

Washington.—A great many persons were mystified a few weeks ago by the treasury announcement that it had entered into an agreement to buy Chinese silver. On the surface, it appeared to be an action by the American government that was wholly a part of its domestic silver policy—a policy that thus far has resulted in no economic benefits at all but has cost American taxpayers rather dearly. Beneath the surface, however, the Chinese silver purchase agreement is one of the most significant moves yet to be made in our foreign policies. I believe it has potential consequences as great or greater than any foreign relations pronouncement to come from the Washington government since World War controversies were liquidated.

To understand the importance of the silver purchase agreement with China, one must examine international relationships over a wide scope. They involve, first and most important of all, the steady inroad made by the Japanese into the Chinese political and economic structure. They embrace, as well, relations of Soviet Russia with China and Japan, and the whole Far Eastern situation for that matter, and the continued efforts of the British to obtain for their nationals additional or restored spheres of influence in China.

Lastly, these international relationships involve, indeed, directly affect, the open door policy respecting Chinese trade. The United States has consistently maintained that China must be open to world trade and in this attitude our nation has had support of the British and some other white nations. On the other hand, the Japanese, while adhering to the open door policy on the surface, have consistently attempted to undermine it directly or by use of the military.

Before the World War it used to be said in China that the international competition there took the form of diplomacy operated through banks and railways. Now, we see the addition of currencies and tariffs to the methods used by the diplomats. The United States is using the currency method—a method attempted by the British without success two years ago—and through this influence, this nation is seeking to expand its trade with China. The Japanese are employing the tariffs to protect their own interests in China and to keep the British and the Americans on the outside.

So, for the first time since 1898, the battle among the nations for the rich lure of China trade is on an economic basis of competition and, it must be said, Japan is in the lead. The Japanese are ahead in this economic warfare chiefly because of their proximity to the territory which is so rich in potential trade.

A year or more ago, the British sent Sir Frederick Leith-Ross of the British treasury to Shanghai to aid the Chinese ministry of finance in the establishment of a currency system. It was not announced, of course, but the real purpose of Sir Frederick's visit was to stabilize Chinese money and link it to the British pound sterling. Diplomats watched the maneuver with great interest because it was expected that Japan's control in the North China provinces would be loosened through British currency influence. But it failed to work that way. The North China provinces simply were separated further from China proper and the Japanese tightened their grip.

Now, the Americans have tried something of the same scheme. They worked it out on the basis of silver purchase from China but they prescribed that as the American treasury buys Chinese silver, the dollars paid therefor will be deposited in a branch of the Bank of China which will be established in New York. It will result in easy transfers of money where American exporters ship to China.

No one can tell what the consequences will be.

There is still the further circumstance of Japan's smuggling into China. Having had control of the Chinese tariff, the wily Japanese proceeded to enforce tariff duties rigidly against everyone except themselves. Stories coming out of North China through diplomatic channels as well as from commercial interests tell of vast smuggling operations by the Japanese. In other words, the Japanese have proceeded to find scores of landing places on Chinese soil where they neglected to place customs houses. The net result is, of course, that the Chinese are being supplied with Japanese goods without the payment of a tariff whereas all other imports from foreign shores must carry the tariff load.

It seems, then, that while we cannot know at this time whether the Japanese will attempt further military movements in North China, it certainly can be said unequivocally that the open door for China foreign trade is at stake in this conflict. Most authorities on foreign affairs with whom I have talked tell me that there is little hope to prevent Japanese political supremacy in China. They cannot move northward because in that direction they butt their heads against the Soviet Russian frontier. The Soviet is armed to the teeth on the border of Manchukuo, but to the south and in the area known as North China, no present method appears for curtailing Japanese power.

Thus, history appears to be repeating itself. The battle for concession that took place in 1898 seems about to be revived and undoubtedly the climax to this conflict has been hastened by the American agreement to acquire Chinese silver.

Few authorities are willing to venture a prediction as to where this new policy, promulgated by President Roosevelt, will lead us. Some insist that it is in accordance with the attitude the United States has held for nearly forty years insofar as Chinese relations are concerned. Others claim that, since Japan has grown to such importance as a world power, the silver agreement may eventually lead us further into the Far Eastern controversy, so far, indeed, that the questions later to arise may involve national honor—and national honor oftentimes is a prelude to war.

While we are looking over Japanese activities in the Far East, we ought not to forget that only a year ago, our congress, under a political lash, and the pressure of selfish interests, voted the Philippines their independence. Of course, the Philippine Islands are still under our protection and will be so for several years, but it is most interesting to know that already the Japanese have set about the colonization of portions of the Philippine Islands.

Through the last 20 years, American officials stationed in Manila have kept a watchful eye open to detect any signs of Japanese encroachments. It was not military movements by the Japanese that were feared. It was their well-known capacity for creeping under the edge of the tent and suddenly developing into an economic power.

Official reports now are reaching Washington which indicate amazingly rapid encroachment by the Japanese upon affairs of the islands. One official document shows that Japanese colonists have virtually swallowed up one large Philippine valley. By devious ways, legal and illegal, Japanese farmers have filtered through and have obtained all of the land that is tillable in the Dava valley.

Philippine laws, sponsored by Americans before independence was voted, have been designed to check Japanese colonization and the battle against this has gone on unremittingly since the days of the World War when the Tokyo government first exhibited definite ability to expand its spheres of influence through colonization methods. It should be said, however, that the American officials have been somewhat lax in enforcement of the anti-Japanese laws and the result has been that small colonies of Japanese were planted in various parts of the islands.

Now, it is shown that these colonies have developed into great numerical and economic strength. They seem to have unlimited credit from somewhere for their operations and in the Dava valley, for example, they actually control the price of hemp which is the main agricultural product of that section.

The Japanese are operating in another fashion in the Philippines. It is a well established fact that when legislation is being considered by the Philippine legislative body, it is confronted with a powerful lobby if it is inimical to Japanese interests. Existence of this lobby is known and recognized and many of the Japanese representatives are fearful of consequences to their political careers if they go contrary to the lobby's position.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

CHAPTER VI

Deborah walked slowly back to the house. The shadows were beginning to lengthen; the sun was already dropping down toward the western hills. In the garden the men had turned on the spray of the new watering system that had been installed, and the water spread up in a wide jeweled fan against the orchard green.

From the road outside the wall came the steady hum of an approaching motor. The motor slowed. The gate was open; the car turned in and came cautiously up the drive not with its usual swift rush to the house.

It was Mr. Forbes.
"Here I am," he said cheerfully. "Don't say you don't remember me!"

"Of course I remember you," Deborah said, smiling. "It's only a little more than two weeks."

He took her outstretched hand. He smiled down at her, the warmest and most comfortable kind of smile. "Where's Bryn?" His eyes searched her face, and she flushed faintly as she answered.

"He's gone to town. You must have passed him there."

"Well, he'll come back," Tubby said with assurance, and turned to the man who had come with him, still sitting in the car. "It's the place, all right," he said, and the man began to climb out. Tubby turned back to Deborah. "I've brought the new butler."

"Oh," Deborah's eyes flickered over the grave and dignified men of the new butler. She nodded to him. "I'll call Gary," she decided, turned, stepped inside the kitchen and called out "Gary! Oh, Gary!"

In a moment he came, puffing, red faced, his coat only half on. He was fumbling for the sleeve. "Never mind your coat," Deborah told him, and took it away from him. "This is Gary, Mr. Forbes," she told Tubby. "Mr. Forbes is Bryn's best friend," she informed Gary. "He has brought us a butler. You will take care of him, Gary, and Mr. Forbes, too. I must run and tell Grandmother." She smiled again at Tubby. "She will be wondering."

"Who was that, dear?" Grandmother inquired as Deborah reached the foot of the steps. "Not garblers, surely. They seem quite different."

"It's . . . a Mr. Forbes, Grandmother. I told you about him. He was at my wedding. Bryn calls him Tubby. Because he is so pink and plump, I suppose. And the man with him is the new butler. Gary is taking care of them."

Grandmother sighed contentedly. "I can scarcely believe it," she murmured. Footsteps sounded in the hall inside the open door, and Tubby appeared in the doorway. He hesitated, and Deborah went to his side. "Grandmother, this is Mr. Forbes," she murmured, and Tubby crossed the porch to bend over the wrinkled hand held out to him. He looked very nice indeed in a suit of gray-blue, a perfectly tailored suit.

"I am so glad you have come," Grandmother was saying. She settled herself again into her pillows and drew the thin Paisley smooth over her knees. "I have suggested to Bryn any number of times that we might have some of his friends come and visit us, but as yet we have been so busy putting the house and ourselves in order." Tubby was frankly staring at her. "Do you call him Bryn, now?" he inquired.

"Yes. He explained it to me, and asked me if I minded. Of course I did not mind. I have become very fond of him, even in this short time. It doesn't matter what he is called. You have known him a long time, Mr. Forbes?"

"Yes," Tubby was beginning, comfortably. He settled down in his chair.

A stately figure appeared in the doorway. It was the butler, bland and serene, with a small silver tray holding a bell. He looked at Tubby and waited.

"Oh," Tubby said. "Mrs. Larned, this is Burch. I think he will be able to make you comfortable."

"How do you do, Burch," Grandmother said gently. Burch bowed, and murmured an acknowledgment of the introduction. He advanced slowly and put the bell down on the small table at Grandmother's side. His movements were quietly majestic. He began to withdraw.

"Hi," Tubby called after him. "Bring me my bag, will you, Burch?"

"Yes, sir."

In a few moments he returned with a heavy plaid bag which he set down before Tubby on the porch. He went away again. Tubby fumbled in his pocket for a key ring. He opened the bag. He looked at Deborah.

"I've brought you some wedding presents," he said with his fascinating lisp. "There wasn't time to tell anyone before you left San Francisco. Bryn made me promise I wouldn't tell, anyway, as if it could have been kept quiet. The city is buzzing."

"Oh, dear," Deborah said faintly. Nobody heard her. Grandmother was looking very proud. "His is a very old family, of course," she said. "Even in San Francisco the wedding was certain to be a matter of comment. Nobody there will remember us, but I am pleased to think that Bryn is well known."

Tubby drew forth a tissue-wrapped box. "This is from my sister Sally," he explained, handing it to Deborah. Deborah unwrapped the tissue paper. Inside was a long velvet jeweler's box; she opened it, and there, in the white velvet lining, lay a whole suite of rose-colored crystals, exquisitely cut. The long strand of the necklace dropped to her waist; the earrings were pendant on silver chains; there were two sparkling bracelets and a beautiful ring. Deborah looked at them.

"Is your sister Sally . . . is she a very great friend of Bryn's too?"

"Yes, indeed. They've adored each other for years. When Sally and Simon used to quarrel, it was always Bryn that Sally went to for sympathy. He'd let her cry it out on his shoulder, and pat her— you know, the way men do." Tubby said to Grandmother with camaraderie.

"And then he would slip off and telephone Simon, give him a good wiggling, and tell him where Sally was. . . . I don't think they'd ever have got through at all if it hadn't been for Bryn."

"Who is Simon?" Deborah heard herself saying.

"Simon? Oh, he's Sally's husband. They're crazy about each other, you know, and always were, but they did quarrel until they were married. Now, here," Tubby went on, rummaging with one hand and nodding out a flat round parcel with the other. "This is from me. It's the only way you'd ever get it. I thought you'd appreciate it," he muttered, his head in the bag.

Deborah unwrapped the parcel silently. Inside, looking out from a beautiful heavy silver frame, was

"All the Girls Are Crazy About Bryn."

Bryn's face. The gray eyes twinkled up at her; the mouth was firm and quiet. She looked at it. She handed it across to Grandmother. "You will like this," she said.

Grandmother took it and held it silently before her. After a moment Deborah saw her fumbling for her handkerchief. She wiped her eyes, surreptitiously. She loved him. She loved him as much as that.

"There," Tubby said, lifting a fiery red face. "There, right at the very bottom, of course. Now this is from Madeline."

It was a most exquisite rose-colored silk shawl covered with pale-blue embroidered flowers. In small perfect stitches, and a long pale blue fringe. "It's to match the crystals," Tubby explained, quite unnecessarily. Deborah's hand caressed the heavy silk. "I love it," she told him gently. "Is Madeline your sister too?"

"Well, no," Tubby said, with what seemed to her a hint of embarrassment. "Not exactly. She's Simon's sister, so of course she's practically in the family. She's an extremely nice girl."

"Has she been a friend of Bryn's all his life, too?"

"Well, yes. Practically."

"Do they . . . ?" Deborah stopped. Her violet eyes were fixed on his face. She waited.

Tubby coughed. "You know how it is," he explained with a wave of his hand. "All the girls are crazy about Bryn. Always were. They're bound to be a little upset to think he's married now and gone."

"Is Madeline upset?"

Tubby laughed heartily. "Oh, I don't think so," he said. "She's too sensible for that."

"I see," Deborah said quietly. Grandmother looked up from the shawl and lifted the picture again. "Would it be possible to have another copy made of this?" she inquired.

"I'm sure I can get any number," Tubby said at once. "They're Bryn's graduation pictures. He's wearing the gown and hood there. I can get 'em from the photographer in Palo Alto."

"Palo Alto?"

"That's where Bryn graduated, of course, at Stanford."

"Stanford?" Grandmother repeated, with wrinkled brows. "Isn't that rather strange?"

Torrens Law in Effect in Eight States; What It Is

The Torrens law is in effect in the states of Mississippi, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Utah, Virginia, Washington and in Cook county, Illinois. The Torrens system simply requires that the property owner present to a designated court proof that he owns his land.

Usually he does not even need a lawyer to do this, because the court is assisted by an official examiner of title. If the court is satisfied by testimony and claims after hearing all sides, it decrees that he owns the land. The registration fee, which is moderate, includes an assessment of $1 a thousand on the value of the land for an assurance fund. If later claims against the property are ever established successfully, payment is made to the claimants out of this joint fund.—Washington Star.

Firestone

GUM-DIPPED TIRES

WIN INDIANAPOLIS 500 MILE RACE

On May 30th, Louis Meyer broke the track record at 109 miles per hour, driving the entire race without tire trouble of any kind. He is the only driver ever to win the race three times, and has always used Firestone Tires. No tires except Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires could have resisted the terrific heat generated at such high sustained speeds. You can have no greater proof of blowout protection.

Not one of the thirty-three drivers would risk his life on any other tire, for each driver knows that heat is the chief cause of tire failure and blowouts. Firestone cords are soaked in liquid rubber, which saturates and coats every cotton fiber, preventing friction and heat and adding great strength. This is the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, that gives you greatest blowout protection and safety.
