Council Meeting A Busy Session

The city council held an interesting meeting Tuesday night, with a large number of representative business men in attendance.

Among the important matters to come up for consideration was the building of a new bridge on Fourth street across Harris Fork Creek. The blueprint of the bridge ordered by the council at its last regular session was submitted and after some discussion as to financing the project, a notice to contractors for bids on construction work was ordered published in this issue of The Advertiser.

It is understood that W. M. Hill & Sons, the well known contractors of Fulton, agree to build the Fourth street bridge and finance same for a reasonable length of time should they be the successful bidders. This no doubt removes the biggest obstacle which has handicapped the city for some time in passing on the construction work definitely heretofore. The matter will be finally settled at an adjourned session called for at an early date and the work pushed forward as quickly as possible so it may be completed along with the street improvement work now in course of construction.

The bridge is a much needed improvement and will add greatly to the safety and comfort of the traveling public, both in vehicles and afoot.

Fourth street is fast developing into one of the main thoroughfares of the city and when all improvements are completed now in course of construction and some contemplated improvements are made, it will be a beautiful street as well as a busy one.

Paul DeMyer, chairman of the street committee, reported that a good street had been constructed on Lake street extension connecting with the Jeff Davis Highway, out of the gravel taken off of the business streets now being surfaced with concrete. Other streets also have been improved, and the street committee should be commended for the excellent work and economy used in construction.

More Street Work

The names of a large majority of property owners on Carr street were signed to a petition presented to the council Tuesday night, asking that Carr street be included in the street improvement program now in course of construction.

At a meeting of the Council Wednesday night the petition was read and accepted. Plans and specifications were adopted and the ordinance for Carr street improvement came up for its first reading. The second reading will take place on Monday night, Sept. 19, and given to the printer for publication in The Advertiser.

At the same time an advertisement will be published asking contractors for bids on several types of material to be used in construction work.

The full length of Carr street will be paved 40 feet wide, beginning at State Line street to Valley street, near Browder's crossing. When completed this will be one of the prettiest residential streets in the city and a great stimulant for others to fall in line.

Carr & Carr were employed to render legal services.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Jones are the proud parents of a fine son. The young man arrived at 2:45 Monday morning.

DAIRY FARMERS ARE BEING ATTRACTED TO FULTON COMMUNITY

Because of a series of advertisements which this office has caused to be circulated into the north and northwest, there is being considerable attraction to our community upon the part of the dairy farmers of those sections.

We had three homeseekers here last week, one of them coming from as far away as northwest Iowa. These men are well pleased with our section and the opportunities it offers to the dairy and poultry farmer. They tell us that we have it all over them when it comes to opportunities, they all went home stating that they would do what they could to dispose of the farming equipment and such livestock as they would not need in this section, and expect to return in the fall for permanent locations. They ask us to hold certain farms for a few days at which time they hope to make definite arrangements.

The writer has always been rather optimistic and often looks with too much favor upon the future, but in this particular case he feels that his position is well taken when he contends that Fulton and Fulton community is due for a great period of advancement. There is absolutely nothing in our way to preclude a rapid stride of progress if we will employ the workable methods which are now within our grasp.

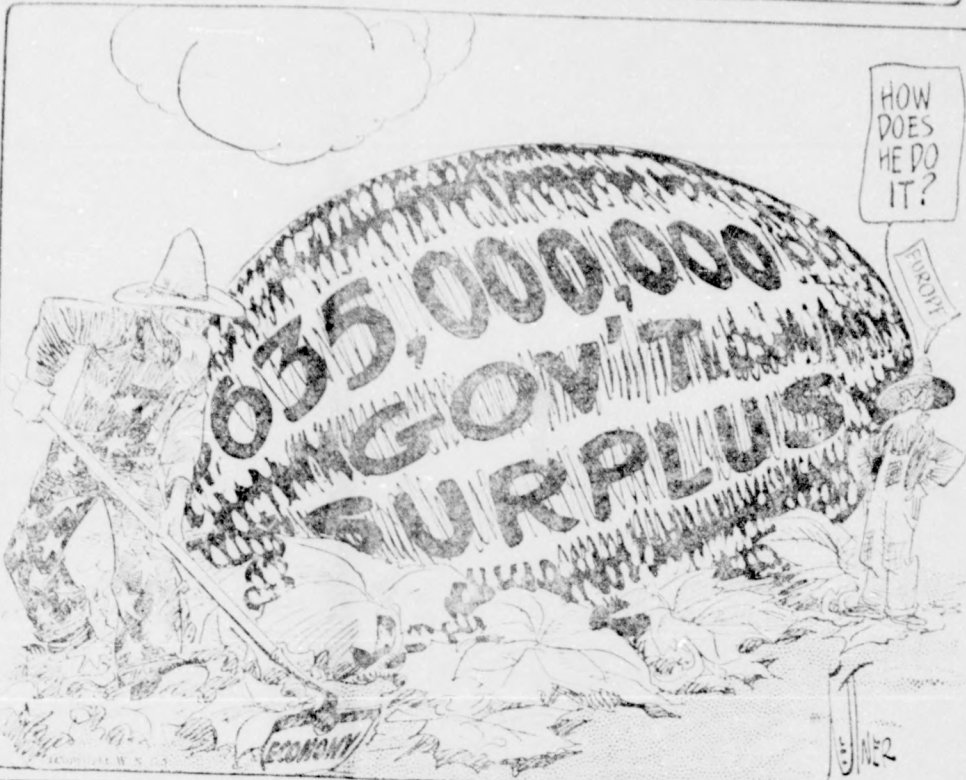

Because of my previous employment for the last several years, I have been closely associated with the general conditions the country over, and have closely watched the periods of depression and inasmuch as most everything hinges upon the natural law of service, we may well conclude that many a great achievement has failed because of an inactive attitude upon the part of the public thus concerned. It is quite possible that this community has never had a greater opportunity for a real advancement than is now before its people and what is most needed at this time is a clear insight of the possibilities for immediate advancement.

With the improvements of our city and the highways connecting us with the more important centers of the country and our unequal railroad facilities, we should feel assured of a great advancement in our community, but the most important and most essential requisite as regards progress is the right type and character of people to carry on and promote the destiny of public welfare, and after being here in Fulton for over six months and dealing with the rank and file, this people I feel fully sure that Fulton is favored with the finest moral element that can be found in any section of the Middle West.

We know of some very important matters which are now being very seriously considered that will mean more to our city's progress than anything that has happened in recent years, but because of our personal obligations we are not in position to give this information out, but feel that it is well to call the attention of the public to the possibilities which have a likelihood of development in the near future and we trust that our people will take cognizance of our future possibilities and work to that end for a bigger and better Fulton.

Very truly yours,
Fulton Chamber of Commerce.

Fulton Men Buy Saunders Store

S. C. Smith, C. L. Maddox and J. C. Cochran closed a deal for the Clarence Saunders grocery store, Friday, Sept. 2, and are now sole owners of the establishment on Church street.

The new firm is composed of well known Fulton men who have the interest of the city at heart and who will conduct the business in a way to make the housewife happy and the man who foots the bills delighted.

While the establishment will be operated as a Clarence Saunders Store, the men who compose the firm are the owners and dictate their own selling prices, retaining the low buying power of the entire chain of Saunders stores.

"The people want quality goods at the lowest prices," said Mr. Smith, "and quality, price and service is what they will get when buying meats and groceries at our store."

Meat Department

"A royal feast awaits anyone who purchases a steak from our store. Tender, juicy and delicious in flavor is the porterhouse or sirloin cut from our high-grade beef. We cater to the connoisseur, and the more fastidious and critical the palate, the more we delight in tickling it. Our steaks, chops, prime roasts, sausage, breakfast bacon and ham make dishes fit for a king. The meats that we buy for our customers are of the very best quality that can be bought, and will sell on their own merits at the prices we ask. Our meat market is in a class all by itself, neat and clean."

Choice Groceries

"Economy is wealth, and if you wish to be economical then be sure you make a right start by making your purchases at the Saunders Store. You'll find you save and live better if you live from our store. Watch us here grow on you," says Mr. Smith. "Our constant aim is to make this grocery a better one, a more desirable source of supply, an efficient aid to thrifty housewives. We aim at perfection in all details—in quality, price and service."

The New Firm

Few men in Fulton stand higher in the esteem of his associates than C. L. Maddox, popular I. C. railroad employee. Clarence has been tried and never found wanting in any undertaking he ever attempted, and his influence alone will be a drawing card for the firm which he is a partner.

J. C. Cochran, who has been in the employ of the Saunders store for some months, is a young man well qualified to identify himself with the new firm. He is well posted along grocery lines and is a "live wire" member of the establishment.

S. C. Smith is the same individual who placed the U-Tote-Em grocery store among the leaders during his management. Some months ago he sold his interest in the firm and today is in a better position to serve the public than ever before with choice eatables. He solicits an opportunity to please you.

OBION COUNTY TENNESSEE ELECTS

Jack Hubbs Defeats R. A. J. in Race for Sheriff

The citizens of Obion county went to the polls Saturday and selected Jack Hubbs as sheriff for the next two years. Mr. Hubbs was given a majority of 545 votes over his opponent, R. A. J. in 30 out of the 32 outstanding precincts in the county. The two outstanding precincts will not have any material effect on the count of the election.

Scott Easley was given a majority of 75 votes over his opponent Andrew L. Burrus, in the race for tax assessor in the same number of precincts as that of the sheriff's race. Ernest Tucker was elected trustee without opposition.

VETERAN CONDUCTOR DIES

W. M. Blackburn, 25 Years With I. C., Succumbs

Jackson, Tenn., Sept. 3.—W. M. Blackburn, for the past 25 years a conductor for the Illinois Central R. R., and well known over the system and in this city, where he had lived for many years, died at midnight at the Crook Sanatorium, where he was brought Thursday from the Illinois Central hospital at Paducah. He had been ill for the past three months and went to Paducah for treatment. His condition showed little improvement, and his family decided to bring him home.

New Mary Pickford Photoplay Booked Here

Announcement has been made by Manager Chisholm of the Orpheum Theatre that Mary Pickford in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" her latest United Artists attraction, will be shown in Orpheum for the first time Sept. 12 and 13.

Picturizing "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" the most famous of the Charles Major novels, stands out as one of the cinema events of the year, presenting Mary Pickford in her greatest role. Her thoughts having dwelt so much upon the filming of this story, Mary has given her whole heart and soul to the creation of her newest screen personality.

A most capable cast of players will be seen in her support. Alan Forrest is the lover, Sir John Manners, Marc MacDermott is the villainous cousin, Malcolm Vernon. Anders Randolph makes an ideal father for Dorothy Vernon, and Wilfred Lucas is the Earl of Rutland. Clara Eames, famous for her portrayal of queenly roles on the speaking stage, brings to the screen a characterization of Queen Elizabeth that is a revelation of histrionic art.

Among the other players of note are: Lottie Pickford Forrest, Malcolm Waite, Courtenay Foote, Howard Gaye, Estelle Taylor, Mme. Carrie Daumery, Eric Mayne, Colin Kenny and Lewis Sargent.

The production is lavish, no expense having been spared in erecting stately mansions and mediaeval castles. Scenes of pageantry and revelry are presented with picturesque magnificence.

Under the capable direction of Marshall Neilan, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" has renewed interest in the romantic costume drama of the screen. The photography by Charles Rosher is the most beautiful ever done by this well-known cameraman.

BALL PLAYERS OF NOTE AS ACTORS

Game's Greatest Athletes Appear on Screen in "Slide, Kelly, Slide."

At the Grand Theatre Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 12-13

A delegation that might literally be termed a convention of famous professional baseball players was gathered together at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, when famous players from almost every league in America donned uniform and added grease paint to play in "Slide, Kelly, Slide."

In the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer baseball romance, featuring William Haines, Sally O'Neil, Harry Carey, Karl Dane and other noted screen actors, are names that practically make a "blue book" of the great American game. Notable among the professional ball players in the picture are Mike Donlin, greatest hitter in the history of baseball and former idol of the New York Giants, Bob Meusel, "Irish" Meusel and Tony Lazzeri, stars of the recent world series and famous Yanks; C. T. Twombly of Jersey City; Knap of Pittsburgh; Bill Ludolph of Detroit; Perry O'Brien of the Philadelphia Athletics; Golvin of San Antonio; Red Oldham, of Pittsburgh; Wilkins, of the White Sox, and others.

Haines Heads Notable Cast

Haines plays the redoubtable Kelly, a "busher" who becomes a major league star. Carey is the veteran cat who trains him. Others in the cast are Dorothy Sebastian, Karl Dane, Eileen Sedgwick, Warner Richmond, Tenen Holtz, Paul Kelly, Gurni Williams and others of equal note. Edward Sedgwick, director of "Tin Hats," directed the new picture.

BIG CROWDS CELEBRATE LABOR DAY AT EDGEWATER BEACH PARK

Labor Day was observed in Fulton, Monday, by the closing of almost all public offices, banks and some of the stores. The employees flocked out for Edgewater Beach Park and other places of recreation. One of the largest crowds on record celebrated the day at Edgewater Beach Park on Reelfoot Lake, the playgrounds of Western Kentucky and Tennessee, where great preparations had been made for the day's festivities. Two bands were employed for the occasion. All day dancing, boating and swimming were indulged in and all who attended report a good time. Nothing was left undone to entertain the crowds. A big fish fry and barbecue dinner was a feature. All kinds of cold drinks and ice cream were served.

The management is to be congratulated on handling the huge crowds and furnishing wholesome amusements.

THE THING TO DO

(From the Carlisle County News)

The primary election is over now and although there is another heated contest in the offing, the people of West Kentucky (and we say West Kentucky because we are interested in West Kentucky) can do their section a good turn by getting together and working for the advancement of our section.

One of the greatest curses that West Kentucky is laboring under at the present time is the lack of cooperation. We talk about roads, and fume and cuss because we haven't them, and at the same time every fellow is working overtime to secure roads for his own little territory and not thinking anything about his neighbors. If all the counties in West Kentucky could get together and put up a solid, unbroken front for better roads, we would get them and we are not going to get them to the extent that we should have them until we show by our oneness that we are in earnest about the thing and that we mean business and do not propose to be sidetracked by a lot of promises.

There are also many other things that West Kentucky can accomplish if we are only organized for the job. The reason other sections get things done is because they get together and go after what they want. And until we, here in the Purchase, realize that we will have to do the same thing if we get anywhere, the quicker we will arrive at our destination.

A nice gift. Send The Advertiser to a friend one year—only $1.00.

GREAT NATIONAL PROBLEM

That great army of Americans, aggregating at least two-thirds of our population, familiarly known as the consuming public, will indeed be wise if they take a little more interest in the problems now confronting the farmers of this country. They would show good sense if they would take time to figure what it means to them if agriculture shall go bankrupt. It's all very well to sit on the sidelines and talk about fear of higher living costs if the farmers' bill is passed by Congress, but no sensible man will do that very long, if he will reckon what a tremendous toll he and the farmers are paying right now for the privilege of exchanging money and food-stuffs.

Just think of it for a moment. Between the farmers and the consumers at the present time there is an annual loss in dollars and cents of twenty billions of dollars, the most of which is not at all necessary, but simply a tribute being paid to middlemen for the privilege of doing business with each other. What a fine kettle of fish. Such a thing would be prevented, if it were possible to bring these two great arms of the American public into closer relationship.

When Congress meets again, we will hear lusty-lunged city congressmen telling the world that they are opposed to farm relief because it would mean an added burden to the backs of their consuming constituents. Rank nonsense. If something worth while isn't done pretty soon for the farmers, the consumers will discover their market baskets shrinking or their pocket-books flattening out. And the manufacturers, what of them? They may harp on their opposition to farm relief all they like, but in the final analysis, they will discover that the raw material which they so much need in order to keep their plants running will have faded out of sight like the fog before a determined morning sun.

This farm problem, so much discussed of late and which has caused so many political minded states to lie awake at night, is no local question. Its ramifications spread from coast to coast, and from the Gulf to the Great Lakes, and its blighting effects, if not soon stopped, will reach into every home in America. It isn't a political question in a partisan sense either and he who undertakes to play politics with it is either a fool or a knave. In truth, it is a great economic question affecting the very stability of our country. Even the loudest mouthed opponent of farm legislation is compelled to admit that he knows there is trouble somewhere and that if that trouble is not overcome we are due to face business disaster and food shortage. Why then are we so unmindful of known conditions as to sit idly upon the very top of a "growing volcano" and hope for the best?

Foreclosure sales plainly denote failure somewhere. Mortgage farm homes certainly do not spell successful farming. Thousands upon thousands of farm deserters do not indicate that peace and tranquility among the soil tillers, so necessary to the proper and ample WITHDRAWING the family's savings account at the bank where it is safe, and losing it through speculation is a serious matter. It may bring great hardship, especially to the mistress of the home. It may force great economies in household management or amount to actual privation. It may mean that the children will have to go to work before they complete their education. The loss of the family's accumulations may even result in physical breakdown on the part of the wife through worry over the loss of savings which she helped to accumulate at the sacrifice of home comforts, but was not consulted when it came to investing them. The making of investments by men who are heads of families and inexperienced in finance should not be undertaken without consulting her. But even if both agree the venture should be talked over with the local banker or information about it obtained from the National Better Business Bureau in New York, which serves without cost and purely in the public interest. If this is done a lot of trouble and quite likely many regrets and heartaches will be avoided.

W. R. MOREHOUSE

There is one point in the activities of the inexperienced investor where he should have above him a red-light stop signal to cause him to pause and investigate and that is just before he reaches the decision to "sign on the dotted line." Before you part with your savings in the bank by signing a contract placed before you by sharp promoters, stop, examine and investigate! It will pay to read the contract several times, even reading it aloud, all the while weighing every term. It will pay to be on guard against the deadly fine print usually incorporated in most contracts,—so small that it strains your eyes and causes you to skim over it superficially. Do not sign blindfolded. It will pay well to take plenty of time to study the contract by yourself where all is quiet and you are free from the personal influence of the persuasive promoter, for to sign without the calmest consideration may spell your Waterloo financially.

Unless dealing with a responsible firm or individual, never sign on the dotted line. If in the least doubt, don't sign. Never sign on verbal assurances that you are fully protected. Terms stated orally but not incorporated in a contract are not binding. Glowing promises, wild exaggerations and gross misstatements of facts are seldom reduced to writing or made in the presence of your witnesses. Your failure to read and to understand a contract before signing is not a legal excuse. When you sign a contract you proclaim that you agree with its terms and will abide by and endeavor to carry them out.

Don't sign just because some high-pressure salesman tells you that you are a wonder, or that you show good judgment, or that you have a lot of sense. Sign only when you are fully convinced that your interests are fully protected.

production of foodstuffs. Never mind whose fault it is. We are not trying to find somebody on whose coat to pin the badge of dishonor. That badge will take care of itself in due course of time. The time has come when we should be earnestly striving to find the proper solution to this vexing problem for upon that solution rests the happiness, health and prosperity of our Nation. This is no longer a farmer's problem. It has reached that stage where and when it has become the problem of every decent self-respecting American citizen, and all such should quit "passing the buck," and get down to a sincere effort to help straighten out the "kinks" in our system of conducting things. Just handing out bunk will further the devastation and want, which are handmaidens of unrighteous legislative performances. In plain English, we have got to put a stop to playing favorites with our legislation and pass laws for the benefit of the whole country. If this is done, we will see quite a marked difference in the agricultural situation. The farmers are not asking that any special "dishes" be prepared for them. They are willing to take "pot luck" with the rest of the Americans but they do not propose to longer keep still while their life's blood is being squeezed out of them for the financial benefit of special classes of individuals who do much less to keep America on an even keel than they do. When the square deal is brought into operation again, and not until then, will the farmers be satisfied.—National Farm News.

Governors was organized with the names of prominent local citizens among them two eminent judges. No sooner was the organization of the board complete than the promoters armed with the endorsement of the outstanding men, went forth to reap a great harvest by selling memberships. They got the members—but the building of the garages remained an idle dream.

When the members of the Board of Governors were later interviewed as to how they came to consent to the use of their names they stated that they thought the additional storage facilities were needed in the downtown district and they signed up without looking into the proposition carefully. Imagine their chagrin when told that a reading of the by-laws of the organization showed that the Board of Governors had no powers but had been used merely as scenery in order to sell memberships in a false proposition.

Because these prominent citizens were careless with their names and failed to read and to investigate the enterprise, hundreds of business men bought memberships only to lose their money. Signing without reading is about the most dangerous act of financial carelessness that can be committed.

Lesson for September 11

SOLOMON DEDICATES THE TEMPLE

LESSON TEXT—I Kings, chapter 8.
GOLDEN TEXT—I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Worshipping in God's House.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Young Man's Love for God's House.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Love for God's House.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Value of God's House to a Community.

The first task of Solomon after his coronation was the building of the temple, a privilege which was denied to his father, David. In his preparation for this task he secured wood from King Hiram of Tyre, stones for the foundations from the Pheenicians, skilled workmen also from King Hiram. It was located on Mount Moriah (II Chron. 3:1). The suitability of this place was due to the fact that the Lord had appeared here to Abraham. Its dimensions were 90 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 45 feet high. It contained the brazen altar, the laver, the golden candlesticks and cherubim. The dedication of the temple was arranged to take place at an auspicious time. The dedicatory services consisted of:

I. Bringing Up the Ark (vv. 1-11).
The ark of the covenant was typical of Jesus Christ. God dwells among men through Jesus Christ (John 1:14). The ark was God's holy dwelling place. This, therefore, must be brought up first and placed in the temple. For the manifestation of the divine presence was the real dedication. When the house of God was to be dedicated the king arranged for a representative gathering of the people, consisting of the elders, princes and heads of the tribes. There were many great men present, but only the priests, God's appointed ministers, moved the ark. The fatal experience of Uzzah in David's time was doubtless clear in their minds. Solomon profited by the blunder of his father. Connected with this service was a very great sacrifice, one in keeping with the occasion. The ark with the two tablets of stone under the mercy seat shows God manifesting Himself to His people on the ground of a law perfectly kept and since atoned for by the shedding of blood. At the completion of the sacrifice, the temple was filled with the glory of the Lord.

II. Solomon's Address to the People (vv. 12-21).

He points out to the people that God had chosen David to be king, yet for certain reasons He would not allow him to build the temple, promising that his son should do the work. Now that the work was done, the temple was built and the ark of the covenant was in its place, they could be assured that God had raised him up in the room of his father.

III. Solomon's Dedicatory Prayer (vv. 22-53).

The ark having now been placed in the most holy place, and the address to the people being ended, the king pours out his soul to God in prayer. In this prayer Solomon gratefully acknowledges God's goodness in the past, giving glory to Him, and pleads that His promise to his father be verified (vv. 22-29); he prays that God's eyes might be continually open toward the temple which He had now taken possession of (vv. 27-33); so that (1) in case of contention between parties He would judge between them (vv. 31, 32); (2) in case of being smitten by the enemy, even though they had sinned, upon confession of the same, God would forgive and restore (vv. 33, 34); (3) in case of famine as chastisement for sin, upon confession and prayer before the temple, God would forgive and send rain (vv. 35, 36); (4) in case of pestilence and sickness, if they pray to God toward the temple, God should hear and forgive (vv. 37-40); (5) in case of the coming of the foreigner who comes at the news of God's greatness, and prays toward Jerusalem, his prayers should be heard (vv. 41-43); (6) in case of going out to battle, their cause should be maintained (vv. 44, 45); (7) in case of being in captivity because of sin, God should hear their prayers and restore (vv. 46-53).

IV. Solomon Blesses the People (vv. 54-61).

On the strength of the covenant promises, he invokes His presence always with them to keep them faithful, and exhorts the people to have their hearts perfect before God, walking in His commandments and statutes.

V. Solomon and the People Offer Sacrifices of Thanksgiving (vv. 62-63).

Parents Example

A manicurist told an inquisitive reporter in a large city that modern youth was "not so terribly wicked," and that if the dads of the younger generation "behaved as well as their sons, this would be a pretty nice world to live in." She complained that most of the flirtations attempted were by men between 40 and 45 years of age.

This might be a good thought for the fathers of the present generation to carry home for study. If all the sins charged up against modern youth are true, how much of it is due to the example set by their parents?

Mothers as well as fathers come in equally for the blame that may be attached to modern parenthood for the model provided for the youngsters who try to ape their elders.

Parents are seldom able to slip anything past the clever youngster of today. They may believe that on the sly they are doing small things which escape their children, but they are badly mistaken, for the boy and girl of today is far wiser in the ways of the world than the youth of a generation ago.

A Good Recipe

Our country never was in a more prosperous condition than it is today—on a better or more solid financial foundation, with glowing prospects not only for next year but for many years to come. There are, naturally, individual and community cases of disappointment—where business and wages and employment are below the average—but these cases in no way hamper the general prosperity of the nation.

The people as a whole are better off today than they ever have been, and are better off than the people of any other nation in the world, more labor-saving devices in the home, more and better clothing, set better tables, have more opportunities, and more means of enjoying play better than they ever did.

If the country were on the way to the bowwows, such a condition could not exist.

Let's quit yammering and yowling about hard times—and also about everything else—and turn our thoughts toward the blessings that are given to us in such abundance, and if we make the most of our blessings we will have provided ourselves with an armor that cannot even be dented by the professional calamity howler; and we will enjoy life better.

It takes a restless baby to make photographers look unpleasant.

Every man who knows himself knows how selfish other men are.

Lies are always in a hurry, but the truth awaits its turn contentedly.

If a man is to be trusted at all it is when he is sick in bed—so a woman says.

About the best the man can do who tries to drown his sorrows is to make his head swim.

Many a man has traveled a personally conducted tour under the management of his wife.

Every man who does the very best he can is a true hero.

Brieflets

The larger a man's salary is the larger the increase he thinks he is entitled to.

Fools occasionally find opportunities, but wise men make them.

Ornamental penmanship is a flourishing industry.

A woman's mind is like a bed—it must be made up occasionally.

If love would only remain blind after marriage—but what's the use?

If you would get up with the lark you must go to bed without one.

Few people feel called upon to condense the milk of human kindness.

Some men manage to dodge enough work to keep a dozen people busy.

Experience is a great teacher. It teaches us how to make other kinds of mistakes.

From a theatrical point of view a divorce without publicity is worse than marriage.

Too many men wait until they have been done to a turn before turning over a new leaf.

Men are so contrary that if their wives wanted them to stay out late they probably wouldn't do it.

Any young man knows that it is more satisfactory to get a smile from a girl than it is to get the laugh.

A remark carelessly dropped does not always fall flat.

When a tall man finds himself short he naturally is embarrassed.

When a man is accused of leading a dog's life it may be an insult to the dog.

If you would make a lasting impression on a woman, try to suppress her.

You can never tell what a man is until you get into an argument with him. If his opinion doesn't jibe with you he is a crank.

Almost every man makes a more satisfactory lover than he does a husband.

A miser's face is like a bank note, every line in it means money.

Unless you have confidence in humanity you are a suspicious character.

A man without a single idea is less of a bore than a man with only one idea.

It is better to have loved and lost than to be the victim of a breach of promise suit.

Lots of men acquire fortunes by being kept too busy to spend the money they make.

A successful man is entitled to less praise than the man who makes another effort after each failure.

It is only a matter of time until a fast young man discovers that the race isn't always to the swift.

Religion that doesn't abide with a man twenty-four hours a day and seven days a week isn't worth having.

The man who marries for dollars lacks sense.

Community Building

Take Stock of Home Before Its Purchase

Most men buy houses entirely upon appearance and design. In no other purchase do they take so much for granted. When they buy a watch they must see the works and have a guarantee that the case is of gold or warranted for a specific term of years. When they buy an automobile they want every feature of the equipment explained in detail.

But when they buy a house they usually take it for what it appears to be. No guarantee goes with the average house today. One never knows what is behind the clapboards or the shingles or its walls. You cannot tell what is back of the plastered ceilings in the cellar. You never know what is in the walls unless they happen to be of brick.

If you want to get full value for your money the better way is to build your home, and build it of materials that are time-tested and proved. Build it fire-safe and permanent. Build a house that will have the maximum of fire resistance. Such a house will not rot and deterioration will come slowly. Its expense of upkeep will be the minimum always.

Such homes of common brick, with fire-resistant roofs of slate, burned-clay tile or asbestos, with solid walls good for a century's service without fading, can be built at very little more cost than the cheapest houses of other types of wall. So little, in fact, that you will be astonished.—Exchange.

Proper Use of Colors

Add to Home's Charm

Many homes that could be really beautiful do not have more than half the actual attractiveness they might possess. This is because the value of a careful selection of colors was not appreciated when the house was last painted.

All paints, to be truly decorative, must be selected with proper regard to color harmony. Style of architecture, character of setting, geographical location, should be given consideration when choosing the paints to be applied. Pure, full color tones can rarely be used without violating good taste; tints and shades of the primary colors are far safer.

Most homes look better painted in the lighter colors. The Colonial type house, either pure or modified, can not well be given any color other than a cream yellow or white, with shutters and roofs in deeper tones.

The popular square type house, if not too large, can be finished in warmer colors, particularly when it is close to other dwellings and has little shrubbery or few trees around it. Such houses are frequently painted in two colors, a darker, or warmer hue being used on gable ends, or on the upper story if it is a large residence.

Where there are beautiful trees to set off and be set off by the house it would be unwise to use any colors on the blue side of the spectrum.

Trees Good Investment

Trees are integral parts of the grounds around a home; they grow from seedlings into tall, many-branched, green-leaved giants whose shade offers comfort during warm summer months, and whose blended shades of green and brown harmonize splendidly with the grays and blues of summer skies. Take care of them; see that they have enough food, water and air and that harmful insects and parasites are destroyed. One can make no better investment than that of preserving fine old trees.

Plants to Be Avoided

Dirty trees which drop leaves or flowers on the sidewalk, such as the horse chestnut, catalpa, paper mulberry, and softwood silver maple, birch and basswood should be avoided. Near the house it is often desirable to plant a few low-growing things to hide, perhaps, an ugly foundation, or to accent the important points of the house design, such as corners or entrances. This foundation planting is very much overdone just as present, and must be indulged in very moderately if good taste is not to be violated.

Painting Pointer

The bureau of standards says that peeling of paint on a porch floor is undoubtedly due to moisture getting back of the paint film. If the moisture is coming from the under side (as is often the case) there is nothing that can be added to the paint to prevent the peeling. Paint invariably peels over knots containing considerable pitch. Before any painting is started, the knots should be washed with turpentine.

Town Builders

One fine thing about this magnificent city was the fact that it did not wait for anything to happen—it just kept on working, boosting and doing because of the rare leadership of its splendid town builders. They are a mighty team and we are all proud of them.—Huntsville (Ala.) Times.

Only One?

Every community has at least one man who isn't good for anything except to see the other fellow's duty.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Interrupted Proposal

By AD SCHUSTER

(Copyright.)

"I WILL marry the one who first proposes."

Leona Murray settled the problem of two suitors, of impecunious youth and affluent middle age, with this decision. For Fred Dashi, her young admirer, she held a mixed feeling of resentment and admiration. Had he not been so bashful he might have won long ago and there would have been no perplexing question. As to Aylott Plam, well, he could provide a good home, was not much over forty, and was good looking.

Perhaps if she had not been influenced by her parents the girl would have accepted neither, or it might have been she would have discouraged Aylott. For weeks she had received the attentions of both, hoping that Fred would summon sufficient courage to say the words which would rescue her from Aylott and the plans of a father and mother. And now, rendered desperate, she was determined to say "yes" to the first who asked.

Something of the seriousness of the situation may have occurred to Fred Dashi for he tried bravely to put the question. Obstinate Leona refused to help. She would never marry a coward, she told herself. If she were worth having she was worth asking. So Fred stammered, ran his hand around his collar, and talked of the prospects for business with the election out of the way.

When he left he took home with him the declaration he should have made. He even took it to his office and voiced it, bravely this time, into a dictaphone. With the windows closed and the keyholes locked he spoke the tender words of love putting into them, unconsciously, the tones and the tricks of a man dictating a letter.

"Leona," he started, "there is a matter of importance I would like to, ahem, call to your attention. It had occurred to me, er—hmm—will you marry me?" As it struck him there was an anonymous quality about the declaration and she might not be able to recognize the voice he added: "This is Fred Dashi speaking."

The rest would be simple. Leona's father still owned one of the old-fashioned talking machines designed for clandestine records. He would send this one to the girl, count upon her playing it alone, for the father detested music, and await his answer. In this way, he reflected he would get in a proposal before the next evening when Aylott would call on Leona and it was just possible that every moment would count.

Leona received the package and recognizing the writing as Fred's refused to honor the gift with a trial. He had had his opportunity, she decided, and passed it by. Now she could give Aylott the chance and Aylott was romantic and eager. With the least encouragement he would propose, she would accept, and Fred Dashi could go through life with a broken heart. Strangely, the idea seemed to comfort the girl.

Aylott Plam, dressed in his best, expressed determination in every line when he called that evening. His long hair which gave a poetic appearance was glossed with a marvelous preparation which he hitherto held in contempt.

"Leona," he said, "this is a marvelous evening. The moon was made for poetry and love. It is the perfect opportunity." And Aylott paused to give the girl the full benefits of an adoring gaze.

The proposal was coming. She would accept him, Leona knew there was no backing out now, and that the plans she had cherished were about to be killed forever. Aylott's glance fell upon the talking machine and a new thought came.

"Place a record there," he said. "Music, and the moon, and a beautiful girl . . . an evening which may be remembered all of our lives."

The girl, wishing desperately that a storm would break to carry her, Aylott, and the house away that this proposal might be averted, fitted the cylinder to the machine. She started at the sound of Fred's voice, but her astonishment was as nothing compared to that of Aylott.

"Leona," he heard the machine saying, "there is a matter of importance I would like to, ahem, call to your attention. It has occurred to me, er—hmm—would you marry me?" "Shut it off! Shut it off! That's not music."

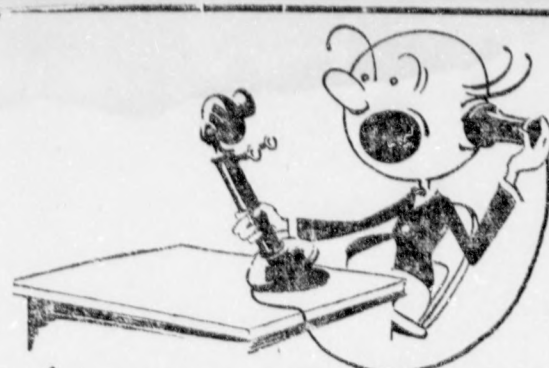

It may be said for Aylott that he persisted in spite of the embarrassing interruption. Leona stopped him. "I cannot marry you, Aylott," she said, "because I have accepted another."

Park in Center of State

The Pike National forest, which takes its name from Pike's peak, perhaps the most famous mountain in the United States, is located exactly in the center of the state of Colorado, on the east slope of the continental divide, and has a gross area of 1,256,112 acres, of which 1,084,700 acres is public land. It is drained partly by the South Platte and partly by the Arkansas rivers.

The Difference

The difference between work and exercise is that you can work without a special uniform.—San Francisco Chronicle.

do you talk in your telephone - or at it?

This is the right way to hold the telephone. Directly in front of and one inch away from the lips. The mouthpiece catches the sound waves (represented by the dotted lines) so that your voice is heard clearly.

And this is the wrong way to hold the telephone. The full force of the sound waves escapes the mouthpiece and the voice is heard indistinctly.

THE rubber mouthpiece on the telephone transmitter was put there for a specific purpose. It concentrates the sound waves when you speak in your telephone. Now if you merely talk at your telephone, holding the transmitter to one side or several inches away from your lips, the mouthpiece cannot help you. Furthermore, the person at the other end of the line will find it difficult to understand you.

If the person you are talking with complains that he cannot hear you—try holding the transmitter as directed.

THREE CHARGED WITH KIDNAPING

Woman Accuses Divorced Husband, Two Others, of Taking Child

Clinton, Ky., Sept. 3.—On a charge of kidnaping, Walter Lampkin, George Potter and Guy Harper, prominent men of this vicinity, were arrested here Friday morning by Sheriff T. E. Kimbro on a warrant issued by J. B. Dale, justice of the peace of Edwardsville, Ill. Affidavit for the warrant was made by Mrs. Onie Lampkin, divorced wife of Walter Lampkin, who is making her home in Wood River, Ill., and charges that the defendants kidnaped her son, James Lampkin, one day this week and returned him to Hickman county from Wood River. A judgment rendered in the Hickman circuit court here some time ago, at the trial of the divorced parties, provided that the child should be in the custody of his mother during the school term. The boy, who is ten years old, was taken in custody by his mother here last Saturday and taken to Wood River, to be with her during the winter.

The defendants left Friday evening by automobile, accompanied by one of the local officials and their attorney, J. Kelly Smith, for Wood River, to answer the charge.

It is supposed to have happened in a theatrical club. An actor remarked: "I am tired of the way they are casting me lately. In my last three plays I have been a dirty scoundrel."

"That's the trouble with your American idea," observed an English actor, "of casting with types."—New York Graphic.

The Example

"What a beautiful ring, Laura."

"Yes, but the engagement's broken off, dear."

"Well, aren't you going to send it back?"

"Of course; but I shall keep it long enough for the next one to see what he's expected to live up to."

Success

"There are some points about your writings that much resemble Shakespeare," said the editor.

"Do you think so?" cried the delighted author.

"Yes," the editor continued; "you employ almost the same punctuation marks."

A FARM WAGON THAT IS GUARANTEED

The amount of satisfactory service that a wagon will give depends entirely upon the material and skill the manufacturer puts into it. We want to show you a wagon that is built of the best materials by men who know how—

THE JOHN DEERE WAGON The Wagon That is Guaranteed

A special machine automatically measures the inside of the skien of the John Deere farm wagon and shapes the axle to fit accurately. The skien is set in red lead under high pressure. It has exactly the right pitch, and the axle has the right gather to make the John Deere wagon run lighter than other wagons. With the John Deere sand- and dust-proof skien there is no wearing of bearing surfaces—the oil stays in—the wagon is always smooth-running and light-pulling. Only carefully-selected oak and hickory are used in the John Deere Wagon, and every piece of wood is air-seasoned under cover in our own yards for at least two years. The tires are set hot under hydraulic pressure and under a gauge that assures proper dish—the load is always carried on plumb spokes.

And don't forget this other big feature—the heavy malleable fifth-wheel with corrugated coupling—no bending or breaking of kingbolt—bolster does not get out of line and rock—no danger of tipping when handling large, top-heavy loads.

Come in and see this wagon—read the guarantee on the tool box. Let us explain the many fine points embodied in it.
