More Paved Streets for Fulton

Since the property owners on Carr street petitioned the city council to add their thoroughfare to the street improvement program, property owners on Fourth street circulated a petition which will be presented to the council at their meeting Monday night with sufficient signatures to warrant their street added to the improvement program. We understand that property owners on other streets are making an effort to have their streets included also. In fact, the beautiful concrete streets in the business section is a great stimulant for other improvements and within a few months Fulton will not look like the same town.

The new street on Commercial Avenue has been opened for traffic, also part of Lake street. Other streets have been completed but not opened for traffic yet.

The new concrete culvert on Third street has been completed and work on the concrete culvert on Fourth street will soon be finished. This is a wonderful improvement over the old metal culverts used for many years.

Bids have been advertised for a wider bridge with walk ways on each side across Harris Fork creek on Fourth street and this much needed improvement will be included in the present street program. The bridge will probably cost about $8,000.00.

The Kentucky Utilities Company, working at all times to improve their service and render every assistance to develop Fulton into the city class removed their poles off of Fourth street to lots in the rear, adding greatly to the appearance of this thoroughfare. The Southern Bell Telephone Company has also been asked to remove their poles from this street, and when all obstructions are removed, work of completing the paving of this street will continue.

New White Way

Along with other improvements, the Kentucky Utilities Company has been busy replacing the old white way system in the business district with a modern up-to-date system which will be completed for service within a short time. Sixty-five posts with the latest type of globe brilliantly lighted will convert night into day along the new paved streets.

MRS. T. T. BOAZ SUCCEUMBS AFTER FEW WEEKS' ILLNESS

The friends of Mrs. T. T. Boaz were grieved Monday morning to learn of her death at the family home on Eddings street. The end came peacefully after all that skilled physicians and loved ones could do to prolong life. Deceased was 46 years old at the time of her death, and her passing has caused untold sorrow in a happy household. She was a faithful member of the First Methodist church; a loving wife and mother.

Besides her husband, she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. George Hester, her mother, Mrs. Frances Gholson, one brother, Ben Gholson; two sisters, Mrs. Tom Hastings and Mrs. R. C. Long, all of Fulton. The entire community deeply sympathizes with the bereaved in the loss of their loved one.

Funeral service was held at the home Tuesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. J. V. Freeman, pastor of the First Methodist church, interment following in Fairview cemetery. Winstead, Jones & Co., had charge of burial arrangements.

South Fulton Council Meeting

Interesting Session Monday Night With Mayor McDade Presiding

The South Fulton City Council held a busy session Monday night with Mayor McDade presiding and the following councilmen present: Reams, Jolly, Houston, Roach, Stubblefield and Gates.

After the reading of minutes by City Clerk Stephens, reports of various committees were heard. The financial report showed the city in a healthy financial condition with a bank balance of more than $4,000.

An important matter discussed at the meeting was the water question which has caused much talk by citizens on both sides of the line. The City of Fulton, Kentucky, has supplied South Fulton, Tennessee with water ever since the town was established, but for some reason or another it has been hinted that South Fulton was considering installing a water plant of their own, and did go so far as to investigate the cost of installation, etc. On Monday night, Councilmen Phillips, Hanneppin, Bennett, DeMyer, and Atkins, of the Fulton council were present to seek information and learn if South Fulton had a grievance and assuring them that Fulton could furnish all the water needed, Councilman Hanneppin also took occasion to point out the advantage of having fire protection from a fourth class city and should they discontinue this service would drop back to about a ninth class city. This no doubt would mean a much higher insurance rate on every piece of property in South Fulton. Mr. Hanneppin's point was to enlighten South Fulton as to the economy and saving of money to its citizens by the fire protection they are given by Fulton. Mayor McDade invited each of the visiting councilmen for expressions on the water subject, but as all seemed ignorant as to what it was all about, except by idle rumor, did not have much to say. A suggestion was made that the water committees of each council get together and sift the matter out, so Mayor McDade set Thursday night, Sept. 15, for his water committee to meet with the Fulton water committee at their council chamber in the City Hall.

Another matter of interest to come before the council was the report of Councilman Houston when he announced that the new sewer system had been thoroughly inspected and accepted, and was ready for the property owners to make connections. This started the water question again by a visiting citizen who inquired, why make connections without water. Councilman Houston assured him there was plenty of water. City Attorney Jess Nichols, who was present, made a brief talk at this juncture assuring the council that Fulton would furnish them all the water needed.

Mayor McDade briefly addressed the citizens present, and enlightened them with a notice received from the county health officials to cut all weeds in the city and have a general clean-up.

A petition signed by a number of citizens was read asking for an auditing of the city books. A visiting auditor was present and addressed the council, giving valuable information on auditing. When asked what it would cost to audit the city books, he stated for two years back, $400.00, and for ten years back, $1,200.00. The Mayor instructed a committee to attend to the matter.

Councilman Houston reported street improvement work in progress with gravel furnished by the railroad.

After the regular routine of business and allowing accounts, the council adjourned.

"Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood" Reproduces Stirring Days of 800 Years Ago

Mankind owes a great deal to the power of motion pictures for taking one back through the vista of years bygone and showing how things were when "you were a tadpole and I was a fish."

Now comes Douglas Fairbanks and takes folks back eight hundred years and reveals to them how things looked and how people acted when chivalry was at its zenith. He accomplished this notably in his latest United Artists Production, "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," which critics

MAYOR SHANKLE RECOVERING FROM SUDDEN ILLNESS

Friends of Mayor W. O. Shankle will be glad to learn that he is up again after being confined to his bed several days at his home on Eddings street. Mr. Shankle was taken suddenly ill Friday evening at his home. Dr. Whitehead was called and on arrival, said the patient had become slightly overheated, but was not in a serious condition. Mr. Shankle was conscious and talked freely after rallying from his weakened condition.

During the day he had taken considerable exercise looking after city affairs and his personal business. The day was unusually hot and oppressive, and he had not been feeling well for several days, therefore, his energy was overtaxed.

KASNOW REMODELING STORE ROOM

Work of remodeling the store room at 448 Lake street occupied by L. Kasnow is progressing nicely under the supervision of contractor Jake Roberts and his crew of expert workmen. W. M. Hill & Sons constructed the concrete floor and gave it a beautiful finish in color to harmonize with the furnishings and fixtures. The pretty new front will add greatly to the business district on this street.

L. Kasnow has recently visited the leading markets and will open his store with a new line of merchandise, including dry goods and the latest styles in men's, women's and children's ready-to-wear.

During the past eight years Mr. Kasnow has built up a nice business in Fulton and his customers will be glad to see him open up in his new remodeled store room, 448 Lake street.

Sills Risks Life Making New Film

Star Carries Giant Movie Actor Over Cauldron of Molten Ore.

Thrills of the sort you see once in a lifetime are in store for motion picture patrons in "Men of Steel," First National's big steel photoplay, which comes next week to the Grand Theatre, with Milton Sills in the starring role and Doris Kenyon as the featured feminine player.

Sills has always been known as a "he-mas." In past pictures he has been called upon to perform some difficult feats, but in "Men of Steel" he surpasses anything he has ever done on the screen both in scenes calling for strength and courage and in acting.

For example, there is a scene in which Sills and Victor McLaglen are in a huge vat in a steel mill. A maniac is trying to dump a ladle of molten steel on their heads. Sills catches hold of a big iron hook swung over the vat on a chain from a crane and with McLaglen hanging to his feet is swung out of the vat, over masses of molten steel to safety at the other end of the big room.

McLaglen stands well over six feet and weighs more than two hundred pounds. The task of carrying him, to say nothing of the molten steel that was ready to bring death was one requiring iron nerve as well as strength.

Sills would not allow a double to take his place. It was his picture and he took the chances. This is just one of the many thrills that fill this picture from start to finish and place it far above the ordinary "special." George Archainbaud directed the picture.

During their residence here they cemented the love and friendship of a wide acquaintance and their leave is generally regretted.

CITY SCHOOLS OPEN WITH LARGE ENROLLMENT

The city schools opened Monday and started the fall semester with a large enrollment. It is always a pleasing sight to watch the youngsters enter school after a summer's vacation.

Practically every child in Fulton can enjoy school privileges, and the parent who neglects preparing his child to enter school on the first day, where it is possible, we fail to understand.

When parents neglect to start their children to school promptly and in good health, they must labor under handicaps which will make their school year much less pleasant and profitable than it should be. The child who starts late will have a difficult time keeping up with his classes, and the same is true of the child in poor health. Parents owe it to their children to give them an even start every year with every other school child. If they do not do this, their children are likely to come to the end of their school days without the sort of education that will give them a fair chance to succeed in after life.

Always at this time of year there are many parents of the older boys and girls debating whether they will return them to their studies in high school or college. In our opinion this is hardly a debatable question. Every young person should be given all the education that he can or will take. Unless parents are actually in such dire poverty that they cannot provide shelter, food and clothing without the labor of their children, they should send them through high school and college, always provided, of course, that the children have sufficient intelligence and character to profit by such education. Chances of success in after life are always tremendously enhanced by high school and college education. Any advantage that a young man or woman might derive from going to work early and not going to high school and college is generally lost in a few years, for the possibilities for advancement of a poorly educated person are severely limited. Except where the uneducated person is endowed with exceptional natural abilities, the college educated person will always outstrip him in earning capacity over a period of years, to say nothing of the increased ability to enjoy life, and to earn a livelihood without undue stress and strain, that a thorough education gives. The best thing that parents can do for their children is to give them a thorough education. It is of more importance to do this than to leave them a fortune. They may lose the fortune, but the education cannot be lost.

Prof. George Shankle was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Shankle this week. He was enroute to Shawnee, Okla., where he is a member of the Baptist College faculty.

HEWLITT COLLIER DIES SUDDENLY SUNDAY MORNING

The death of Hewlitt Collier early Sunday morning was a shock to his family and friends. While Mr. Collier had been in failing health for some time, his death was unexpected. He was 38 years old at the time of his death and an employee of the Illinois Central Railroad company. He was a good man and highly esteemed by his fellow workmen.

Besides his devoted wife, he is survived by two daughters, one son and two brothers.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at Collier Cemetery, conducted by the Rev. Douthitt, interment following.

A large circle of friends extended deepest sympathy for the bereaved.

The song director will be Mr. Elton V. Wilson, of Union City, Tenn. Mr. Wilson is well known to some in Fulton, and those who know him best are sure that the song service will be conducted with "the spirit and understanding." Services each day at 3:30 and 7:00 p. m. You are invited to each service.

How She Did Hate Cats

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(Copyright.)

"I HATE cats," Lucilla sniffed acridly.

"What sort—two-legged or four," Joe Dudas asked languidly.

"Both" from Lucilla, her voice even more edged. Joe wrinkled his brow deeply, then said judiciously: "Give an example."

"You may do that for yourself—you can, without half trying," from Lucilla.

With a reflective chuckle he hung back: "Only cat I can really truly hate is that woolly Persian, the Baxters are so crazy about. Not because it catches young birds and breaks up nests, but for its fool way of climbing too high—and refusing to come down until I get a ladder and go after it."

"O, indeed. Who makes you?" Lucilla's mouth was grim though she tried to seem casual.

"Just my fool self," said Joe. "At least I reckon so. Got in the way of mindin' Miss Mandy when I went to school to her. Only body I ever was really scared of."

"Is that why you 'most always come here by the back road?" Lucilla asked Joe giggled. "Did you never hear discretion was the better part of valor?" he bantered.

"I always knew it took a girl to be real reckless," Joe said sighing hugely. "That's how come I'm so shy of courtin'—some girl might say yes," he added, picking Lucilla up in his arms and kissing her swiftly—not once but many times.

She writhed free of his hold, white, breathless, a figure of frozen fury, eyes snapping sparks. "So you rate me along with the Baxter girls, and the other cats," she said grimly: "I ought to kill you for it—only it wouldn't help."

"Not the least bit—in life nor death," Joe said cheerfully. "Kissing, common or garden variety, never was a mortal sin—now it's a mere friendly civility. Still I draw the line—at the Baxter Persian at least."

"Go. And never come back! I hate the sight, the thought of you," Lucilla cried, pointing to the door.

"Not yet!" from Joe, his face granite. "Not till you tell me what put you in such a temper?"

"As if you didn't know," Lucilla began. Joe broke in steadily: "All I know is—you ought not to mind that clutch of kisses—they're the accumulation of your years. You stopped kissing me when I went to college—why you never would say. You're bound to know we've been growing up to marry each other."

Somehow feel that the Baxters are at the bottom of things. Tell me how they got there. By no help of mine."

"Nor mine. But I neither tattle nor cry," Lucilla began, checking as loud excited voices sounded outside the front door. It was being unceremoniously open revealing Miss Mandy, grim, withered lips narrowed to a line. True, reckoned the family beauty, and Patty a scrap of humanity, mainly nose and chin. Between them they herded black Aunt Sue, and Mrs. Toots, wife of the tenant farmer.

Miss Mandy clutched Joe Dudas, crying aloud: "Git the sheriff, quickly."

"What's up? Let go, please," Joe said, wrenching loose clutching hands from the captives who shook like leaves in a storm. Followed a triple bawling of the wildest, most impossible story—stolen jewelry—Mammy Sue the thief, Mrs. Toots the fence through whom there would come profit.

Jewels! What sort? Where did you get them?" Joe demanded sternly. True looked at him, staggered, pretended to be near fainting, then whispered: "Why all those you gave me—to keep till we got married."

It was Joe's turn to stagger—he steadied, caught True's hands in a cruel grip, and half shouted: "Give you jewels. Where would I get them?"

"From your mother of course—her corals, her string of pearls, her cameo bracelet, her gold watch and chain. You as good as told me you were afraid to keep them—afraid Lucilla'd come and take them and never give them back—And now—they're gone! Stolen! Unless I can find them you'll say I did it—"

"Sorry to accuse a lady," Joe said with his grandest manner. "But unless you did steal them however did you get them? As for giving my mother's poor little bits to you, I'd rather have sunk them in the sea. Say, turning in suddenly upon Lucilla, "have you heard anything of this fairy tale until now?"

"All of it—and then some," Lucilla said coolly.

"And never told me?" from Joe reproachfully. "Was it for love of our mutual friends?"

Lucilla shook her head. "Because I'm not a cat. I don't scratch, tattle, nor backbite. I knew what game they were playing—if you were not man enough to see through, and checkmate—then you'd be a good riddance."

"Carried unanimously," Joe said in his most courtly tone—then to the Baxter trinity. "Go, and never dare again set foot in this house, nor in mine. Return the things you stole, right away—unless you do you'll be sued for libel—Mammy Sue and Mrs. Toots can take half you've got to damages to say nothing of the scandal. Do as I tell you—and nobody will ever hear a word."

And so ended a strange plot to get a man away from the girl he loved.

POULTRY

FOR BIG PROFITS
WATCH IN SUMMER

The summer and fall seasons are the ones in which the producer of market eggs must be most particular about the quality of his product if he expects to receive the top market price. "At that time of the year," says the poultry department of the state experiment station at New Brunswick, "the spread in price between the two top grades of eggs may be as high as 12 to 15 cents per dozen as compared with a spread of 2 or 3 cents in the spring, which indicates that the producer's net profit at the end of the year may depend to a very large extent upon the quality of his summer and fall eggs."

There are several factors entering into the cause of this wide spread in price at the seasons mentioned, but probably the most important is the fact that the interior quality deteriorates very rapidly, and the eggs reach the market very loose and watery. To overcome this trouble, the producer should collect his eggs two or three times daily and keep them in a cool place previous to shipment.

A cave or cellar makes a very good place to hold eggs, but care must be taken to see that the place is clean and sweet, as eggs are very prone to absorb any foul or musty odors. Shipments should be made as soon as possible after the eggs are laid, and never should be less frequent than twice a week.

The eggs should not be excessively handled, since this aggravates the condition, causing the egg to become extremely loose. The aim should be to handle the eggs as a perishable product, which in reality they are. Speed and care in handling are the two prime requisites where the producer is being paid on a quality basis.

Faulty Rations Cause of Heavy Mortality

Faulty rations cause vast numbers of chicks to die every year. A pullet once stunted with improper or spoiled feed will never get back to successfully compete with those who were healthy from the start.

The feed the chicks get from the beginning should be directed toward the eggs the pullets are expected to lay when they mature, says an Ohio specialist.

The all-mash method of feeding chicks that has been perfected by the Ohio, Indiana and Wisconsin agricultural experiment stations makes it possible to feed the flock with more exactness. It also takes less time to care for them. It does not differ greatly from the scratch grain and mash method of feeding. The grain that is ordinarily fed whole or cracked is ground and mixed with the mash.

Charcoal Is Beneficial to All Growing Chicks

It has become common practice for the majority of chick mashers to contain some charcoal. Experiments show that it is beneficial as a preventive of trouble. It does not have any particular food value. Charcoal is a black odorless and practically tasteless product and does not go into solution in water. Its value lies in its ability to absorb gases of indigestion or dyspepsia. Some people claim that it will even absorb toxins or other poisonous substances, that are sometimes generated in the intestine. It aids in warding off and curing diarrhea and other troubles caused by indigestion.

Poultry Notes

Heavy hens bring $ to 10 cents a pound more than the light breeds on the market.

Watch the young poultry for signs of lice. It is amazing how suddenly an entire brood can become infested.

Because a coal-burning brooder stove keeps a colony house very dry, there is a tendency for some poultrymen to neglect sanitation until the conditions are very bad.

Usually chicks should be three weeks old before giving them freedom to mash all day.

Let the sun in the brooder house, having it shine directly on the chicks without going through ordinary window glass.

More incubator chicks die from bowel trouble due to chilling than perhaps any other cause. Chicks with hen mothers are seldom affected, and thrive in severe weather, if they can run to their mother when cool.

Turkeys do better on free range than in confinement as it is their nature to roam.

Hens need plenty of water. During periods of heavy production they consume more water than during the winter. Eggs contain 70 per cent of water.

Three very fundamental things necessary for you to furnish your chicks to make chick raising highly successful are proper feeding, necessary warmth and healthful sanitation.

Build Bigger Pigs—
with Less Feed

A 100 pound sack of Purina Pig Chow will build as much pork as 250 pounds of midds or shorts—and costs just half as much.

Pig Chow is Easy to Feed

HALE'S HENOGRAPHS

From Everybody's Poultry Magazine.

Well, prices for eggs and chicks got so low this spring that a lot of poultry raisers got the idea the business was overdone and everything headed for the bow-wows. The reaction is now taking place.

Edgar F. Howe, Editor Poultry Magazine, very aptly expresses it as follows:

"Throughout the whole country poultrymen began either disposing of or reducing their flocks. The hatcheries everywhere experienced heavy cancellation of orders for late spring chicks, and throughout a large part of the country farm hatching was forced to a low level by storms and floods.

"As a result of this condition, there are in the country today probably fewer pullets for fall laying than have existed in any summer season for a decade or more.

"Already, in midsummer, the storage excess over last year has been reduced one-half, and when the fall and winter come the scarcity of pullets will bring a scarcity of eggs.

"If this was the whole situation, still there would be reason to expect the demand for eggs to equal the supply and take care of the storage stock at a fair price range. But the situation is rendered more favorable by the fact that the equivalent of two or three million cases of eggs usually imported from China will fail to come this year because of the revolutionary conditions in that country.

"I fail to see how, at this stage of the industry, any one can fail to have a most hopeful outlook. In fact, it may easily happen that the supply of eggs will fall much below demand before the coming winter is over, and the price level be raised unusually high."

The demand will soon be ahead of the supply again and, mark this prediction, the bird that can lay 160 to 180 eggs per year and look like a standard-bred bird will be in demand. There is nothing that will kill the big egg record monstrosity any quicker than eggs at 15c to 17c a dozen as we saw them in the mid-west this summer.

A FARM WAGON THAT IS GUARANTEED

The amount of satisfactory service that a wagon will give depends entirely upon the material and skill the manufacturer puts into it. We want to show you a wagon that is built of the best materials by men who know how.

THE JOHN DEERE WAGON

The Wagon That is Guaranteed

A special machine automatically measures the inside of the skinn of the John Deere farm wagon and shapes the axle to fit accurately. The skinn is set in lead under high pressure. It has exactly the right pitch, and the axle has the right girth to make the John Deere wagon run lighter than other wagons. With the John Deere sand- and dust-proof skinn there is no wearing of bearing surfaces—the oil stays in—the wagon is always smooth-running and light-pulling. Only carefully-selected oak and hickory are used in the

Educate Children to Help Keep City Clean

A communication to the New York Herald Tribune from a traveler contains food for thought. He says: "Last week I spent a couple of days at Sheboygan, Wis. I noticed particularly that the streets and parks in this little city were clean. There were no paper, boxes, cans or rubbish lying around the streets.

"I had occasion to be at a dinner with the city attorney and remarked to him that I had to compliment their street-cleaning department; that I hadn't seen a city so clean as Sheboygan for some time. He replied that they didn't have anything remarkable in the way of a street-cleaning department, but that for several years now they had started in their schools to educate their children not to throw paper and other articles on the street, and to be proud of their homes and streets.

"Apparently this educating in the schools was brought home all through the city, as the next day I paid particular attention and noticed that the yards and everything around the city were clean and orderly.

"Recently I read in a New York paper where a judge fined some people for throwing papers in the parks. I think it would be a good idea if the general policy of Sheboygan, Wis., instructing children in the schools, were adopted in New York. I notice the parks along Riverside drive and also Central park, especially on a Monday morning, are a regular disgrace, the way everything is thrown around."

Care Will Make Back Yard Attractive Spot

A sordid back yard may be made the most beautiful spot about the premises, and regardless of its size. Ashbins may be screened with shrubbery or trellis supporting vines, unattractive fences repaired or replaced, grass given encouragement, flowers planted and cared for, trees trimmed or removed, garage painted, gates made decorative instead of creaking nuisances, seats installed and the whole picture refurbished. It is not difficult for the small place and is worth all it may cost in the case of larger grounds.

It is difficult to understand energy that will devote attention to a front lawn so the home may be made attractive to the casual visitor and to the passerby and that at the same time remains supine and permits the back yard to become a clutter of ashes, tin cans, rejected miscellany of the home, and bare of grass or shrub. The back yard is the city man's one opportunity to enjoy, of his very own, the beneficence of nature.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Exterior Walls

Common brick make excellent exterior walls. Sound and beautiful construction results if they are handled wisely. However, the Architects' Small House Service bureau does not approve a suggested use of black mortar, as this gives a quality of formality to the mortar joints which the blocks do not have. Employ a white or cream colored mortar. Have your contractor lay up several panels with different thicknesses of mortar bed and with different colors, also vary the coursing; choose between them. Some excellent results have been obtained by common brick without glaze lines. Only experienced brick masons should be employed for such work.

Care of House Plants

A large proportion of seed is fertile. Plant in a deep soil, mixed with about 50 per cent sand. Provide good drainage in the pots in which the seed are first planted. Level the surface of the soil carefully and distribute the seed evenly. Cover with a thin layer of soil. Keep the temperature warm and uniform, 70 degrees being a good temperature. When watering use a gentle spray in order not to disturb the seeds. Transplant after three or four clusters of spines appear.

City Development

The growing sentiment for orderly development in hundreds of cities of the country, as well as in individual states, is based on the realization that through this method alone can property values be maintained and the comfort, convenience and general welfare of the public promoted.

Important Investment

Many find the buying of a home the largest investment they ever make. A purchase made wisely may be the stepping stone to advancement and happiness, while a mistake may cause discouragement and a loss of all one's savings.

Omaha Leads Ownership

Of American cities Omaha is first in home ownership. More than 55 per cent of Omaha families live in homes of their own. Here is a record every city may aspire to.

The DAIRY

TELL COW'S AGE BY HER INCISORS

Although stockmen know that a horse's teeth tell its age, they do not generally know that the teeth of a cow give similar information. That is true even if the cow has no teeth in her upper jaw.

At the time the calf is born it has two temporary teeth and by the time it is one month old all of the eight incisors are visible. As the animal nears two years of age the temporary incisors commence to be replaced by two permanent teeth. When it has attained two years of age these two incisors will be fully developed.

When from two and one-half to three years old the permanent first intermediates are out and these are full sized by the time the animal is three years old. At three and one-half years the second intermediates appear and become fully developed at the time the animal is four years old.

The fourth pair of incisor teeth, known as the corner teeth, are replaced at four and one-half years. All the permanent teeth are then in wear when the animal is five years old.

The first pair of incisors or pinchers become leveled during the time the animal is between five and six years old. Both pairs of intermediates become partially leveled during this period and the corner commences to show wear.

From seven to eight years the pinchers become noticeably worn; from eight to nine years, the middle pairs; and by ten years old, all the animal's teeth appear to be noticeably worn. After the animal is six years old the arch in the contour of the teeth commences to become less marked. It may be found that the teeth are arranged in an almost straight line by the advent of the animal's twelfth year. From the sixth to the twelfth year the teeth become triangular in cross section, distinctly separated, and show progressive wear to the stumps.

Flies Great Annoyance to Cows During Summer

Flies are so great an annoyance to dairy cows during the summer that milk production often is materially decreased. However, a good fly spray applied correctly will not only quiet the cows but will also sober the temper of the milk.

A good spray for this purpose can be made from the following ingredients: 4½ quarts coal tar dip; 4½ quarts fish oil; 3 quarts coal oil; 2 quarts white oil; 1½ quarts oil of tar. Dissolve three pounds of laundry soap in water, add the ingredients of the spray and bring the whole up to a 20-gallon quantity with lukewarm water. This spray will keep flies off the cows and prevent the hair coats from becoming harsh.

The cows should be sprayed twice a day, in the morning after milking and in the afternoon when in the barn for slugs or other green feed. With a portable two-wheeled half-barrel cart having a spray pump and nozzle, two men can spray 40 cows in five minutes. Thirty gallons of this mixture will spray 40 cows twice a day for ten days at a cost of 1 cent per cow per day.

Profit in Dairying Will Depend on Proper Feeds

Profitable dairying depends much upon the proper selection of feeds for rations. Since market prices are not a good guide as to the value of different feeds, it is necessary to figure out economical rations, based on local conditions and prices, and the actual feed value of the various feeds obtainable. The best way to determine which of the available feeds are the most economical is to figure out the cost of a pound of total digestible nutrients and of digestible crude protein in each feed. This requires the use of a few simple problems in arithmetic and information regarding the analysis of the various feeding stuffs, but it is the only safe basis for the selection of an economical ration.

Dairy Notes

Feeder pigs pay on the dairy farm.

Fall freshened cows give more and cheaper milk and butterfat.

Milking ability is inherited. Raise he calves from your best cows.

If you have ten milk cows you need a silo. If you have no cheaper method to provide green stuff for them next winter.

A dish rag is always dirty. One of these things should never touch a milk vessel.

Quality milk brings the best price and makes satisfied customers. The main essentials are cleanliness, prompt milking, and holding at a low temperature.

Where succulent materials which will produce odors or flavors are fed to cows, the proper method of procedure is to feed such products shortly after milking.

Lesson for September 18

THE KINGDOM DIVIDED

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 12:1-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Forsake ye the way of destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God Punishes a Foolish King.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God Punishes a Foolish King.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Folly of Pride.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Prevent Divisions.

The movements leading up to the division of the kingdom had begun in Solomon's reign. He saw in Jeroboam the leader of insurrection and endeavored to kill him. Jeroboam fled to Egypt until Solomon's death (1 Kings 11:26). Having been informed by the prophet Ahijah that he was to have ten tribes over which to rule, as soon as he heard of Solomon's death he returned to be ready to take up his work.

I. The Demand of the People (vv. 1-4).

This was occasioned by the burden of excessive taxation and enforced labor, which was required by Solomon in order to build costly houses and temples for his brethren wives. The people were groaning under its weight. Upon the accession of the new king Rehoboam, the people, through their leader Jeroboam, came with the request that their burdens be made lighter, promising loyalty to him on the condition of lightened burdens.

II. Rehoboam's Foolish Decision (vv. 5-15).

1. Rehoboam consulted with the old men (vv. 5-7). These were men of experience who had been Solomon's advisers. Being acquainted with the condition as imposed by Solomon, and knowing the temper of the people, they advised that the people's request be granted.

2. Rehoboam consulted the young men (vv. 8-14). These young men had grown up with him, possibly were his half-brothers, sons of Solomon's many wives. Being thus brought up in the luxury of the harem, they were ignorant of the legal right of the people. Therefore they advised that the burdens be increased.

3. Rehoboam followed the advice of the young men (vv. 12-15). At the appointed time he announced his purpose to the people. He even answered them roughly, asserting his purpose to increase their burdens and sorrows. He assumed that it was his right to rule and that it was the people's role to obey regardless of conditions.

III. The Revolt of the Ten Tribes (vv. 16-23).

Then Rehoboam's announcement of his rash purpose all Israel cried out, "What portion have we in David?"

1. Rehoboam's attempt to collect tribute (vv. 18, 19). As he endeavored to collect tribute from the ten tribes, Adoram, his tribute gatherer, was stoned to death. So violent was the opposition on the part of the people that Rehoboam had to flee to Jerusalem to save his life.

2. Jeroboam made king over Israel (v. 20). They seem to have lost no time in selecting a head so as to be strong in their opposition to Rehoboam.

3. Rehoboam's attempt to compel the ten tribes to return to David (vv. 21-24).

To effect this, he assembled his army of 180,000 men. Through the prophecy of Shemaiah, which forbade them to go against their brethren, they were persuaded to return.

IV. Jeroboam's Scheme to Unify the Ten Tribes (vv. 25-33).

1. He established calf worship (vv. 21-24).

(1) He built houses and high places (v. 31). This was against the direct command of God. God had directed His people to destroy the high places and to break down the idolatrous centers. So we see that Jeroboam, by the demands of his sinful heart, disobeyed God.

(2) He changed the day of the Feast of the Tabernacle (v. 32). The time of this feast was set by the Lord (Lev. 23:33, 34). Jeroboam argued that the change in the time would be better suited to their northern climate, but God, who made the climate, ordained the time of the feast. It was his business, therefore, to obey God.

(3) Jeroboam himself intrudes into the priest's office. The act of presumption on his part was the climax of his godless acts, all of which grew out of his wicked heart.
