FULTON LEGIONNAIRES TO STATE CONVENTION

As the time draws high for the 1936 Kentucky state convention of the American Legion which is to be held at Paducah, July 19-22, Legionnaires of this community are preparing to attend. The convention opens Sunday with the registration of guests, rifle and pistol matches, a skeet shoot and golf tournament. Twenty-five drum and bugle corps are expected to participate in the big parade. They will come from five states, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, Missouri and Indiana. The floats will tell in pagery the story of the Revolution, the War of 1812, the French and Indian War, the War Between the States, the Spanish-American War, and finally the World War.

This will be the 18th annual convention of the American Legion in Kentucky, and is expected to draw 10,000 visitors to Paducah. Many prominent speakers are scheduled on the program, including Governor Chandler, and the program of entertainment is well arranged to provide something of interest for everyone attending.

SKET CLUB IN SHOOT HERE LAST SUNDAY

The Fulton Skeet Club held a shoot here Sunday, with Billy Whitel taking honors, scoring 39 out of 50 targets. Harvey Cheatham was second with 37 out of 50. Harris 20; Harold Owens 18; Buck Bushart 16; David Holloman 15; Ward McClellan 12; Bob White 13; Barker 10.

JUDGE ADAMS METS OUT PUNISHMENT

Judge Adams of the city police court meted out punishment to law violators Monday morning, after officers had gathered in the week-end arrests. Disorderly conduct and drunkenness were the principal charges, with the maximum fine $5 and costs, and the smallest $1. William Henry Robinson, colored, charged with highway robbery, was given a preliminary hearing and bound over to await the action of the grand jury. Failing to make bond for $300 he was taken to the county jail at Hickman. Robinson is alleged to have struck Will Jones, colored, over the head with a pistol and removed some money from his pockets, near the Beard farm Sunday morning.

THREE HURT IN AUTO CRASH NEAR DUKEDOM

E. C. Williams and brother, Gordon, and cousin, Mrs. Lela Yates, were injured in an automobile accident near Dukedom, Tenn., Sunday. They were enroute from Fulton with flowers for the funeral of their half brother and cousin, Auburn Blalock, 21, St. Louis hospital electrician, who drowned Thursday of last week in Moccasin River. Blalock was a native of Pilot Oak where he was buried Sunday. The three were injured when their car overturned on the road near Dukedom, rinning them beneath the wreckage. Passersby freed them a few minutes before the car caught fire.

PHILLIPS IN STRONG BID FOR CONGRESS

Recent developments in the First Congressional race between Congressman W. V. Gentry and V. A. (Bill) Phillips, Princeton, indicate that what a first glance appeared to be but another breeze for the Mayfield man now has assumed the aspect of a head race right down to the finish line, with young Mr. Phillips apparently receiving much unexpected backing, establishing him as a potent factor, if not the decided winner.

Information of unquestionable authority from Hopkinsville this week is to the effect that leaders of the Wallace organization, which carried Christian county for the former U. S. Commissioner of Immigration, against Governor Chandler and Tom Rhea last year, are now lined up for Bill Phillips. This includes W. M. Hancock, Colonel R. E. Cooper, Clarence "Red" Fleming, president of the Young Democratic Club, and other of the city and county. This development, an entirely unexpected and very fortunate break for Mr. Phillips, insures a heated contest in the biggest county in the district and assures the big majority expected to be delivered for Gentry by Vaco Barnes, postmaster of Hopkinsville, will not materialize in fact may be turned into a margin for him.

Elsewhere in the counties east of the river, friends of Phillips are becoming more numerous and more active daily. It is claimed by persons of some political experience in these counties—except Trigg—that Phillips is certain of respectable majorities in Crittenden, Livingston and Lyon, while Caldwell county citizens, enthused over the prospect of having a fellow townsman in Congress for the first time in history, promise to give Phillips a record vote to start him on to what he confidently states will be a victorious swing through the district.

The situation in Trigg county is a big and important question mark at present. Phillips supporters say he will get strong backing there, having many friends who remember his progenitors who lived in Cadiz district. News favors Phillips because it was their county's vote which deprived him of a seat in the State Senate last year, after he had carried the other three counties of the New Alliance. News also says that Phillips is being formed in Trigg county this year and the smartest of the elder politicians three are reticent about hazarding a guess on how the county will go in the Congressional race. It was safe to predict, however, that Phillips will run a much better race there this year than last, when the then all-powerful Broad-bent organization opposed him—and beat him for the State Senate.

With the situation obtaining in the counties east of the river, the candidacy of the Princeton aspirant begins to assume proportions of real moment. It is a foregone conclusion that Mr. Cracker, never friendly toward Mr. Gregory, will give Phillips a majority which will give him means sufficient to offset the huge lead Graves county will roll up for its man, may mean the difference between victory and defeat. Mr. Phillips claims Calloway, his native county, will be in his column by a comfortable margin. This is another pivotal spot, like Trigg, and it is McCracken, Calloway and Trigg which now control Phillips' chances of success.

Newspapers of the district have thus far, carried nothing about the Mayfield candidate, either for or against his re-election, while all, excepting the Mayfield Messenger, have been friendly toward the Princeton candidate. Editorials in several of the district's leading journals have committed them to Phillips, while virtually all the other papers have printed editorial reprints pointing out that Graves county now has a monopoly on State and Federal offices and honors, and indicating their sanction of the Congressional honor being moved elsewhere this year.

FARM PICNIC DRAWS CROWD AT COLUMBUS

The big farm picnic and outing was held Wednesday at the Columbus-Belmont Park with farmers attending from many counties in West Kentucky, West Tennessee and Southern Illinois. A varied and interesting program was carried out, with much interest being manifested by thousands of farmers. Edward O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation and Ben Kilgore, executive secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau, headed the speaking program.

LIONS CLUB MET FRIDAY AT NOON

The regular weekly session of the Lions Club was held Friday at noon, with George Hester, sponsor of the program. Elder J. S. Robinson talked before the club on the drouth and its causes. He pointed out that there are human and spiritual reasons for abnormal conditions of the weather, urging that the people should take deeper interest in things of spiritual nature.

Miss Martha Sue Rakin of Memphis is visiting friends and relatives in this city.

DEATHS

MRS. D. C. NUGENT

Mrs. D. C. Nugent, age 81, died Sunday morning at her home near Palestine, following an illness of several weeks. On May 26 she was stricken and taken to the I. C. Hospital at Paducah to undergo a major operation. An infection contracted by her proved fatal.

Mrs. Nugent, who had lived in the Palestine neighborhood practically all her life, was the oldest member of the Methodist church in that community. She was also a member of the Homemakers Club and always took an active interest in community affairs. She was loved and respected by all who knew her.

Funeral services were conducted at Palestine Monday afternoon by the Rev. McCaslin, assisted by Rev. H. M. Vaughn. Winstead-Jones had charge of the burial arrangements. She is survived by five children, Leslie Nugent, with whom she lived, Mrs. Morgan Davidson of Fulton, Mrs. Foster Butler, Rosburg, Colo., Aubrey Nugent, Franklin, Tenn.; also thirteen grandchildren, six great grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Melvin Edmondson, Union City, Tenn.; many other relatives and a host of friends.

Mrs. Nugent was the eldest of ten children of the late Rev. Mack Pettit and Jane Beasley Pettit.

NEW LIGHTING UNIT ATTRACTS WIDE INTEREST

The newest thing out in highway and street lighting was demonstrated here early this week, under the direction of Z. W. Pique, lighting engineer for the Kentucky Utilities, when installation was made near the Orpheum Theatre for the purposes of demonstrating this new light.

This light is being used quite extensively in Europe, and uses a 600 lumen sodium vapor lamp. The light is perfect for use on intercity highways for the prevention of night accidents. The light gives a golden orange color, and is being tried out on several highways in the United States.

This system of lighting is more economical than the ordinary lighting unit, and Mr. Pique declares that it is about three times more effective. He pointed out that statistics show that 56 percent of traffic accidents occur at night, and that it is estimated that proper illumination of highways would save 7,000 lives and 50,000 injuries in a year. Motorists and others who have seen the light in demonstration here showed much interest in the possibilities of proper lighting of highways in the future.

OBION COUNTY SCHOOLS SHOW TEN-YEAR INCREASE

Nashville, Tenn.—Obion county's high school population increased over the ten-year period from 1926 through 1935 from 749 to 967, average daily attendance. The state's high school attendance leaped from 34,325 in 1926 to 55,682 at the close of the 1935 school year, or an increase of 21,357 or more than 62 percent. During that same period elementary school population grew from 411,653 to 442,311.

But while the attendance was increasing, the per capita income from county levies for high school purposes decreased from $68.46 in 1926 down to $41.98 in 1935. W. A. Bass, secretary of the Tennessee Educational Association, has compiled the statistics comparing the year period, showing the surprising increase in high school population and the corresponding decrease in per capita revenue from tax levies.

Only one county in Tennessee showed a decrease in high school attendance over the ten-year period, that Rhea county from 350 in 1926 to 337 in 1935. All other counties showed an increase.

Obion county showed decrease in the per capita revenue from local tax levies with $37.77 in 1926 and $29.36 in 1935.

ICE CREAM TAX ENJOINED IN KENTUCKY

PARIS, Ky.—The new state tax of 28 cents a gallon on ice cream, Circuit Judge William B. Ardrey held Monday, is discriminatory and confiscatory and therefore unconstitutional. Ruling on two cases involving what is believed to be the first exercise tax on ice cream in the United States except for general sales tax, Judge Ardrey granted a temporary injunction to restrain Hughes & Co., Lexington ice cream manufacturers, from paying the tax, and another temporary injunction to restrain the collection of tax by the state commission.

An appeal from Judge Ardrey's decision will be taken at once to the court of appeals, Assistant Attorney General J. W. Jones announced.

FORREST OF FULTON ON CHICKASAW IN WRECK

Ernest Forrest of Fulton, flagman on the Illinois Central Chickasaw, which was wrecked at Covington, Tenn., early Friday morning, was uninjured in the crash and continued on the relief train. Mr. Forrest formerly resided at Rives, Tenn., and served as a deputy sheriff in Obion county for several years.

FULTON CLUB BATTLES TO HOLD STANDING

FULTON AT MAYFIELD

Fulton Eagles turned Tuesday's game with the Mayfield Clothiers into a hit and run affair as they scored fourteen runs on seven hits and three Mayfield errors to win 14-0. Winning, Fulton pitcher, and Batts hit home runs. The Eagles scored four runs in the fifth, three in the sixth and seven in the ninth. Shelby pitching for Mayfield, was overpowered by heat in the sixth and was relieved by Bell.

BASEBALL CELEBRITY VISITS KID ELBERFELD

Winn Clark, who represents the Professional Baseball Players Association, was in Fulton last week end on business and to visit Kid Elberfeld, manager of the Fulton Eagles. Mr. Clark is one of baseball's notables, having played ball during the same period that our own Kid Elberfeld was in his prime.

Mr. Clark was here in interest of broken down ball players who are unable to take care of themselves. He was taking memberships in his association to sustain this purpose. While here he and Kid Elberfeld reviewed olden times, going as far back as when he and the Kid were playing against each other in Baltimore, when they were just 18 years of age. Mr. Clark recalled many high points in the career of the late John McGraw, one of baseball's greatest figures, and friend of Clark and Elberfeld.

OBION COUNTY LOSES

In the past few weeks Obion county has lost two prominent citizens, namely, Rice A. Pierce and Sam R. Bratton.

These two men were widely known, having many friends in this locality and throughout Tennessee. Mr. Pierce was one of the best known lawyers in Union City for many years. Sam R. Bratton, speaker of the Tennessee state senate in 1929, and a figure in Tennessee politics for fifty years, was one of the outstanding men of Tennessee. He was a member of the Obion County court for thirty years.

The death of these two men marks the close of two active lives. They have helped make history in Obion county, and many accomplishments by them will long be remembered.

GOVERNMENT COSTS

Local governments were spending $6,720,000,000 in 1929. In 1934 they were spending $5,621,000,000. What a swell idea to "chisel" and reduce the cost of local government.

But the federal government was spending $3,949,000,000 in 1929 and the taxpayer who thought local governments were saving money for him, had to dig down in his pants pockets in 1934 and 1935 to the tune of about $6,784,000,000 a year.

On a per capita basis the National Government cost the people more than twice as much in 1934 as in 1929.

HOT WEATHER

Everybody is suffering from the heat. Temperatures are hitting the top, as people and livestock sweeter. Western Kentucky and Tennessee have been fortunate in receiving several nice rains which have helped to break a drought that is sweeping other parts of the country. For a while farmers were very discouraged with prospects, for pastures and crops were beginning to perish from the lack of moisture. But then came rain and new life. Now crops are looking up, and with an occasional good rain this part of the country should come through in fine fettle.

But in the meanwhile, everyone is looking for a cool spot, as the sun bears down.

TRADE INCREASES

Fulton is growing as a trade center. There is abundant proof to back up this fact if you take time to notice the increasing number of automobiles that come to Fulton regularly, and the crowds that jam the sidewalks.

Traffic is often so heavy in the downtown district that it is almost impossible to get through. Parking space is scarce. We are advised that additional parking space is now available on the old Meadows Hotel lot adjacent to the new Shell Service Station. So if you are looking for a place to park drive over to this parking lot—parking is free.

Fulton will be much better off after Lake Street has been widened and opened to traffic. Motorists are looking forward to the official opening of this thoroughfare after the new strip of pavement has been laid.

Merchants of Fulton are reaching out after more business, as is indicated by the increasing amount of advertising being run regularly in The NEWS, which has enlarged the trade territory of the city by putting on close to 800 new subscribers in a recent subscription drive.

Let's continue to go forward, Fulton. Move on with progress!

BACK TO THE FARM

Almost 2,000,000 persons who lived in cities, towns or villages in 1930 had moved to farms by January, 1935, according to the recent Federal Farm Census. These are prophetic figures for the city and state planner, says Walter H. Blucher, executive director of the American Society of Planning Officials.

"It is generally known," says Mr. Blucher, "that there was a movement of city population back to the farm during the depression years, but the extent of the movement has not before been realized. How long or how far it will continue is an important factor in the development of any city or state planning."

"All public improvements in communities depend to a considerable extent upon the number of people in them. Future programs of city development must be based on estimates of future population. When new schools are built, for example, their capacity must be planned with careful regard to the number of pupils who will use them over a period of years."

County and state planning will be especially affected if the flow of population from the city back to the country continues to increase. Mr. Blucher points out. Apparently most of the flow during the past five years consisted of persons unable to obtain employment in industrial areas. The migration has been to small farms, some of them not far from industrial areas. Some of the people, however, are going back to submarginal and unimproved lands which will not provide a livelihood for them. Proper planning of land use will prevent disaster in these cases.

If enough people move back to the farms, says Mr. Blucher, it is conceivable that municipal relief problems of cities may be lightened, although at the same time the surplus supply of labor in cities will be cut down.

Figures of the Federal Farm Census show that the Connecticut farm population increased 65 percent from 1930-1935. Pennsylvania's figures went up 113,388 families and Ohio's went up 114,000 families. In the West North Central region, including Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North and South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas, only Missouri and Minnesota showed an increase in farm families. South Dakota showed a decrease of 32,000 families. In the South Atlantic region West Virginia had the largest increase of both numbers and percentage—112,805 families or 25 percent. Kentucky in the East South Central region had an increase of 131,292 farm families.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
WEEKLY BUSINESS SURVEY

Retail trade showed more symptoms of seasonal slump than last week, although hot weather caused sustained volume of many seasonal items and virtually all lines ran substantially above last year, according to reports to the Department of Commerce from leading trade centers. Bonus money was described as a favorable factor in several cities. Louisville reported the most satisfactory business since 1930 attributed to favorable weather and bonus money. In St. Louis, similar factors caused trade to be sustained with the additional advantage of a favorable employment situation. There was some recession in Philadelphia, due to the vacation exodus. In Chicago, favorable factors were counteracted by an immense heat wave, but Summer apparel and vacation necessities were the focal points of consumer interest. New York stores experienced successful promotions. The Los Angeles report said the usual seasonal lull had not yet appeared and the Southern California index stood at 87.39, compared with 69.62 last year. Business improvement over both the previous and 1935 week was reported by New Orleans, Wilmington, Norfolk, Jacksonville and Indianapolis.

Interest in wholesale was largely centered in Fall and Winter merchandise. The Furniture Mart in Chicago was a center of interest with registrations running ahead of last year and 10,000 buyers expected to order $20,000,000 of merchandise. Most cities reported a favorable employment situation. The Norfolk report said industrial employment in that city was at an all-time peak. The reopening of the Canton, Ohio, Stamping and Enameling Co., plant was expected to result in peak employment there. Labor troubles continued in the lumber industry of Washington State and Idaho, according to the Seattle report, but there was a shortage of 1,000 sawpilers and pea pickers and 500 striking auto mechanics returned to work. Agricultural sections were changed by improvement in the drought situation but heavy losses have already been sustained. Copious rain rejuvenated pastures and crops in Southeastern States, but conditions remained serious in the Dakotas and other Northwest areas. Louisville, St. Louis, Memphis, Birmingham, New Orleans and Dallas reported recent soaking rains. The Kentucky burley crop is estimated to have been cut 40,000,000 pounds by the drought. The crop reporting board estimated the cotton acreage as of July 1 at 30,621,000 acres, a gain of 9.2% over last year, but 26.1% less than the acreage for the 1928-32 period. Cotton prices soared to the highest levels since September 1934 with New York futures on July 3 advancing $2.70 to $3.10 a bale. The Department of Agriculture designated 268 counties as "emergency drought" areas in which 55,000 farmers will be given relief work, while it is estimated that 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 families are affected.

In St. Louis it was stated that July holiday traffic was heaviest in ten years. Kansas City reported a large increase in vacation travel. The New York report said the travel increase, exceeding expectations, necessitated increased railroad facilities. Portland, Oregon, reported the heaviest tourist season known, with Crater Lake National Park and similar scenic resorts showing an increase of 150%. Lake cargo movement was said by Cleveland authorities to be the best on record, while in Detroit, marine freight through the Sault canals in June was the heaviest for the month since 1930. In a semi-annual statement Secretary Rorer said the forward movement of business in June reached the highest point since the depression, with steel production at a six-year high and electric power production at a wartime record. He said the 1935 national income produced, amounting to $3 billion 361,000,000, was a third higher than in 1932 when the total was $2,550,000,000. The statement called attention to a 40% rise in prices of farm commodities sold since the low period of 1932. The production of 2,450,000 automobiles in the first half of the year was 79% greater than the production of the entire year 1932.

NEW TAX PROGRAM
REDUCES STATE DEBT

By approximately $500,000 a month figures available in the office of State Auditor Ernest L. Shannon, show Kentucky is switching from the red to the black side of the ledger. General fund receipts so far up to June 23 were $1,211,206. For the same period general fund expenses have been $417,123 and unpaid bills of about $300,000 were listed. These last two bonds subtracted from receipts leave $494,079 as surplus for the month, which is expected to exceed the half million mark by Tuesday.

Taking all state funds, including highway, the figures show the state has made a net financial gain of $4,139,761 since January 1. The outstanding state warrants have been reduced by $5,116,125, while cash balances have fallen only $956,363. Commissioner James W. Martin, of the revenue department, has not been bragging about it, but tax receipts lately are a source of satisfaction to the state administration. The new whiskey consumption tax has yielded $763,849, beer tax, $657,578, cigarette tax, $256,298 and automobiles sales tax, $14,226. The whiskey production tax so far this year has brought in $3,585,430. Race tracks have contributed $69,441 in daily license fees and admission taxes. Amusement and utility taxes are in effect, but have not yet appeared on the books as important revenue items.

We can reconcile most of the political appointments we have known with the "copy book" teaching that true merit is always recognized.

SOUTH'S BUYING POWER
SEEN AS $11,000,000,000

Buying power of the South, based on its productive power, will total $11,000,000,000 this year, according to Manufacturers Record for July, basing its estimate on figures compiled for the 1936 Blue Book of Southern Progress Figures on Kentucky's production are: Manufactured output, $297,808,000; mining production $89,042,000; agricultural output, $196,100,000; total value, $582,950,000. Total production for the United States is set at $43,544,631,000. The article says in part:

"The aggregate output of the South's factories, mines and farms will approximate $11,000,000,000 this year. A gain in excess of 63 percent in the South's productive power during the past twenty-five years compared with a 33 percent increase for the rest of the country."

"Universally, the South is looked upon as a great agricultural region, and rightly so. It annually produces about 40 percent of the crop values of the United States. It has about one-third of the area and population of the Nation. It has a farm population of 18,062,000 out of a total population of 44,267,000. But the South is an expansion of manufacturing and mining facilities in recent years and currently under way is setting the pace for the Nation. "The estimated gross value of the South's crops and livestock products in 1935 of $3,225,000,000 compares with a factory output of more than $8,500,000,000, and with a production of the mines, oil wells and quarries totaling more than $350,000,000. "Of commercial fertilizer the South produces over 70 percent of the country's total, also more than 90 percent of the cigarettes are made in Southern plants."

"Industrial expansion even during the low point of the depression was continued in substantial volume as shown by awards last year of more than $136,000,000 for privately financed plants, representing an increase of 72 percent over each of the two preceding years. During the early part of 1936 even greater strides have been made."

Outbreaks of food poisoning at church suppers, picnics, fairs and other gatherings are almost caused by insufficient refrigeration. On a warm day, when the temperature is ideal for the growth of harmful bacteria, stacks of sandwiches in a warm place may become a distinct menace to health.

The Soil Conservation Service advocates strip cropping where practical on sloping land, growing cover crops that will keep the land from lying bare during the fall, winter and spring, and planting of trees and grass on slopes too steep for cultivation.

Skim milk and buttermilk lack the milk fat and vitamins removed with the cream and butter, but they retain practically all the mineral values, much of the protein, the milk sugar and vitamin G.

Paralysis of the neck muscles is one of the first symptoms of rinder neck in poultry. It is caused by eating decayed flesh or vegetables or poison of any kind. Four or five drops of turpentine given in a tablespoonful of castor oil is used as a remedy.

A circular published by the College of Agriculture, Lexington, suggests the installation of a pitcher pump at a kitchen sink, where a hot pressure system cannot be had. Such a pump, and a drain for disposing of water, usually costs between $15 and $40.

It is estimated that if the experiment now being conducted to blend gasoline with 10 percent of alcohol produced from farm products is successful, the present consumption would require five years to build the plants necessary to furnish this alcohol. To produce a blend of one third alcohol and two thirds gasoline would give employment to 6,000,000 persons and require 90,000,000 acres to produce the alcohol products.

The chief source of sasaparilla in this country is the Ozark region in Missouri. Most of it is dug by women and children.

WPA ROLLS DECREASE
2,268,540 UPON LISTS

According to WPA reports from Washington, its employment load has declined steadily since February. Aubrey Williams, deputy administrator, said that on June 20 the rolls had dropped to 2,268,542 workers, the lowest point since large-scale operations began last November.

The number of employees carried by the entire works program also was at a new low on the same date, with 3,338,627 on the rolls he said. The effect drought relief will have upon the summer employment totals was not exactly determined but the WPA prepared to provide jobs for 50,000 farmers in the drought area.

Williams estimated during the fiscal year ending June 30, the WPA had poured into employment channels more than $1,300,000,000. He estimated this fund provided a total of 2,400,000,000 work hours. Peak employment on WPA projects was 3,056,000 at the end of February. The combined total of all agencies operating under the works program reached its highest point a week later with 3,553,000 employed.

Williams attributed much of the WPA decline to return of workers to private payrolls and transfer to projects operated by other federal agencies. The WPA now is employing 68 percent of those on works program rolls as compared with nearly 79 percent at its peak on February 29.

"No Telephone—House Destroyed by Fire"

Such was the headline which preceded the following item published in a recent issue of the Postoria column of the Lapeer, Mich., "County Press."

"The house on the Mrs. Ella Myers' farm, 2 1/2 miles east of town, burned to the ground Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Myers' daughter, Mrs. George Hehringer, and family, lived on the farm. They think a spark from the chimney caused the fire and as they had no phone and no near neighbor had a phone, by the time word was got to town for the fire truck the house was burned down. Most of the furniture downstairs was saved. The daughter's family had no insurance on their furniture."

The Tax Problem

For the past five years the subject of taxation has overshadowed all other political issues in the State of Kentucky. We have had more trouble with taxation during this time than we have had since Kentucky was admitted to the Union. There is a definite reason for this. I have served as clerk of the Kentucky Senate for the past seven sessions, and, although I have taken no part whatever for or against tax measures, as my duty as clerk prevented my doing so, I have been a close observer and have given the subject mature thought and careful consideration, and I have come to the conclusion that our tax problems are due to the negligence of our Representatives in Congress.

With the beginning of the depression came the decrease in real estate values and the inability of real estate to bear the burden, and also came an increase in state expenditures in the form of relief and old age pension making it necessary to find new sources of revenue. Whether we like it or not, the fact remains that our two chief revenue producers in the State of Kentucky are whiskey and cigarettes. We produce approximately 50,000,000 gallons of whiskey each year and ship to every state in the Union. Louisville is today the largest producer of cigarettes of any city in the world. The Federal Government has taxed whiskey $2.00 per gallon and cigarettes 6 cents per package, producing revenue to the extent of $150,000,000 per year. Kentucky ranks about fortieth in wealth per capita and about tenth in the payment of taxes to the Federal Government. That is to say, we pay more taxes to the Federal Government than some of our wealthiest states, which is unfair and discriminatory. We are being robbed!

Our total expenditures for the upkeep of our state government amount to about $25,000,000 annually. After paying approximately $150,000,000 on our two main taxable products to the Federal Government, we are forced to place a retail tax on automobiles, cosmetics, cigarettes, soft drinks, ice cream, chewing gum and lolly pops in order to raise revenue to carry on our state government. One third of the taxes derived from whiskey and cigarettes should be returned to the State of Kentucky by allowing us to tax them to the extent of one-third and by the Federal Government giving them credit for that amount. This would produce $50,000,000.

It is true that the bulk of these products are sold to customers in other states, but the great automobile manufacturers and others in the great manufacturing states have made their fortunes by selling their products in Kentucky and other states and according to the inheritance tax laws, when one of these wealthy manufacturers dies and leaves an estate taxable for $1,000,000, the Federal Government returns 80 per cent, or $800,000 to the state in which he lives, simply by allowing that state to tax his estate to the extent of 80 per cent of the total, giving his estate credit for that amount, and the Federal Government receiving only $200,000 in federal taxes. This form of taxation prevents him from moving into any other state to escape taxation, for, if he did so, he would simply pay it to the Federal Government instead of to the state, leaving him no avenue of escape. We have the same privilege in Kentucky, but we are not interested so much in the inheritance tax because we have very few wealthy men, but, as I have mentioned above, our two chief revenue producers are whiskey and cigarettes, and we should have the same consideration as other states.

The Congressmen from Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania and other wealthy states have been wide awake and have protected the rights of their states, while our Congressmen have been asleep.

If I am elected to Congress, I propose to introduce a bill whereby one third of the whiskey and cigarette tax will be returned to the State of Kentucky, the same as the inheritance tax is handled. This will produce approximately $50,000,000 per year for the State of Kentucky. As above stated, only $25,000,000 will be needed to pay our entire state expenditures, allowing us to repeal all taxes, including the retail tax on automobiles, cosmetics, cigarettes, soft drinks, ice cream, chewing gum and lolly pops, leaving $25,000,000 which can be used to increase the old age pension, free the toll bridges, increase pay for school teachers, etc., retire the state debt, etc.

I am in sympathy with the New Deal, and, if elected, expect to back the President in all his undertakings, but I reserve the right to protect Kentucky and the First Congressional District against discriminatory legislation, and when Kentucky ranks about fortieth in wealth and about tenth in the payment of federal taxes—something is wrong!

THIS AND THAT

Thou hast a mighty arm; strong is thy hand, and high is thy right hand. Justice and judgment are the habitation of thy throne: mercy and truth shall go before thy face.—Psalm 89:13-14.

Two theories of government prevail in this country. One promulgated by Thomas Jefferson held that the federal government cannot control the industrial affairs within the United States. The other theory of government was promulgated by Alexander Hamilton, who contended that a strong central government having control over all the states was the desirable type. It is contended that under the former type that people have a larger liberty and there is less likelihood that radical or autocratic powers in control at Washington can upset local state government.

We note that while a good many people insist that the schools should go back to the old fashioned plan of teaching reading and writing and arithmetic, or the three Rs as they are called, that there are few advocates for the old fashioned system of tutoring that demanded the liberal and energetic use of the hickory switch when the old fashioned student didn't learn the old fashioned three Rs in the old fashioned way. Maybe we have been giving credit to the wrong thing. Perhaps instead of it being the subject taught it is the hickory switch that should be immortalized in poetry and song as the great educator.

There is a good deal of advice being given about our staying out of the next war. Most of this is idle. No one knows what the next war will be. It is entirely possible that we will not be able to stay out of it. There are some things that no self respecting nation will take off, and not fight, much as that nation might love peace, and bitterly as it might hate war.

The taxes are paid by the thrifty. The only tax the wasteful and the spendthrifts pay is the sales tax. We have often wondered what the old time preachers would do if they came back to the modern world and had to preach the empty pews. The old timers were always sure of a good congregation. Even the prospects of a thirty or forty-five minute prayer didn't keep them away. The preacher nowadays who tried to pray for forty-five minutes would be sung down at the end of the first fifteen minutes.

A quarter of a million colored people live in Chicago, but very little of the disturbance and violation in that city comes from the colored people. Most of it comes from the foreign element from southern Europe.

If you want to know what is going on in a town get hold of a newspaper from that town. If you want to know what kind of town a town is, get hold of a newspaper from that town. If you want to know if a town has a live, aggressive and progressive bunch of merchants get hold of a newspaper from that town. If the paper is filled with good, well-written news, you can be sure there is a live up to date group of merchants and you can be equally sure that there is a good community and a good town. Good communities draw good merchants and good merchants advertise.

While we shrink from admitting that the law of the jungle, the law of the tooth and claw, is still applicable in life there are few who will not admit that we are living in an age in which the law of the survival of the strongest still rules. The only difference is that in place of muscular strength has come financial strength. The big fish still eat the little fish.

The tendency in school these days is to develop originality in the student rather than slavish adherence to precedent, it is all right to develop originality in most everything except spelling and the multiplication table. A reasonable effort should be made to learn these two branches without much thought as to improvement and change.

Whether or not it is the best thing for the country, the mass of people are going to demand more and more progressive ideas in government as long as the depression lasts. As long as things are moving along and business is on the upgrade there is not much demand for a change but when things slow down the tendency of people used to living at high pressure is to become restless and impatient.

There was a nation that for thousands of years had been a Christian nation. Ever since the days of Christ it had an Emperor who prayed in the temple daily. It has never waged war except to protect its own borders. It has never meddled in world affairs or interfered with other nations. Yet when Italy desired more land she looked about her for a likely nation from which she could take Ethiopia appealed to the League of Nations, of which she was a member, in vain. She appealed to the Christian nations of the world with no avail. She appealed to God in the heavens but in spite of all appeals the locusts of Italy possessed her, stripped her of her treasure, and burned and sacked her cities. Ethiopia to my mind represents a tragic sacrifice on the world's altar of unpreparedness.

She looked at France and Germany and Russia, but none of these appealed to her although the soil was richer and more easy of access. She chooses Ethiopia because was unarmed.

I am aware of the claim by many that preparedness is an invitation to war. That to fortify a nation is equivalent to building up within it a spirit of militarism that generates the fever and the blood lust of war. I do not believe that this necessarily follows.

It was not the armies of Germany that filled her with a desire to conquer the world. It was the insidious propaganda that was taught by a tyrannical and autocratic government that the rest of the world was trying to crush Germany. A teaching as false as it was silly.

If I were a foreign power and had designs on the United States I would not be so crude as to preach anarchy and communism to break down the government. I would take the easier way by preaching unpreparedness, I'd sugar coat it with honeyed oratory so that it would go down easy and when I had sung my patient to sleep I'd slip in and hog him before he could shake the sleep from his eyes or dig out rusty musket and his crooked and rusty sword.

I for one am afraid to journey down the rocky road to Jericho that nations must travel today. I am afraid that I might fall among the thieves and that the good Samaritan in my case, as in the case of Ethiopia, might not come along.

No one hates war more than I do. It is because of this that I believe as I do. I do not have faith enough in the world to trust myself unprotected against its greed and selfish designs.

In one county in Oklahoma this spring 10,000 new pecan trees were planted.

The population of California has increased 12 percent in six years. Santa Fe, New Mexico, is the old.

TRENCH SILOS

This type of storage space can be built at very small cost and enables a farmer to store roughage made from corn stalks, sorghum or corn and beans, in such a way that it can be fed during the winter with practically no waste and the feed is succulent enough that a large amount of hay can be saved.

This is early in the season to be thinking of silage but since hay will be scarce on some farms because of drought, early planning for a winter supply of feed may be worth many dollars.

The trench silo is nothing more than a trench dug in a well drained bank or well drained slope. The length and depth will depend on the number of livestock to be fed and the length of time silage is desired. It has been found that a cubic foot of silage weighs about thirty lbs. and this is about the average amount fed to a mature cow per day. If the number of days the silage is to be fed is multiplied by the number of head of livestock it will give a rough estimate of the cubic feet needed. For more definite instructions, plans feeling tables can be secured from the College of Agriculture or the County Agent's office.

Your Debt Now Is 34 Billions

Householders Are Warned of Taxes as Penalty for Extravagance.

By JOUETT SHOUSE
President of the American Liberty
League

Let us review a few recent developments in national budget-making, annual deficits, borrowing, and finally in the growth of that huge mountain of responsibility—YOUR public debt.

This is the sixth successive year in which the government has spent more than it has taken in. Those six annual deficits added together make a total to the end of this fiscal year of eighteen billions of dollars.

We have nearly doubled the public debt. It is at this date more than thirty-four billions. This debt was undertaken in your name. You owe those billions. The money will have to be paid.

Tracing the origin of your enormous debt we find that the root of it all is excessive spending. We cannot blame the unbalanced budgets on decreased income because for two years or more you have been turning over increasingly large amounts to your agents, the government authorities, who handle your public business. You go further into the red each year because, while you have been paying more in taxes, the government has steadily increased its spending.

How Debt Grows
As a matter of fact, at present unofficial estimates, for every dollar you turn over to it the administration is spending about two dollars. In other words, you entrust the government with four billions and the government spends eight. The government winds up with a probable 1936 deficit of about four billion dollars. Your government has to borrow the four billions to keep the national household's current credit in working order. If the four billions is not paid back by means of more taxes or by rigid economies it is going to continue a part of the public debt.

Expenditures for next year are estimated to be even greater than for the present year. If present policies are followed there is no hope of any material reduction for 1938.

What are we going to do about it? We have only two things that we can do. YOU have got to pay more taxes and YOUR GOVERNMENT has got to reduce its expenditures. You would recognize the way out of such a problem if it arose in connection with your household budget. Spending and borrowing cannot go on indefinitely if your government is to maintain its credit and its self-respect.

Relief Problem
We are up against the problem of relief. I do not believe there is any man or woman of any class or group or creed or political party who would suggest that your government economize at the expense of human lives, or that food, clothing and shelter should not be provided for those unable to care for themselves. In the opinion of some of us this device of work-relief has condemned itself. I, for one, favor using what federal funds are necessary to help finance relief, but I believe the money could be used more effectively and far more economically if direct, actual administration of the job were left to the states. They are in close contact with their own problems. I believe that boondoggling would be reduced, or eliminated. In the last three years about ten billions of dollars have been allocated for relief purposes. There are still twelve millions of unemployed and twenty millions are on relief.

Isn't it about time you tell the Congress that is supposed to represent you that while you are willing to make any sacrifice to prevent suffering among the needy, you demand that your government give heed to the same common sense economy that must govern your family budget?

Citizen Pays It All
The only possible source of revenue with which to meet the heavy obligations of which we have been speaking is your pocketbook. YOU must pay more taxes. In bringing taxes up to a total of about four billions annually we have already put as great a load on wealth as it will stand, short of confiscation. It is people with medium incomes and moderate savings who will be called upon to make these new sacrifices.

Bureaus Still Swelling
The latest report of the United States Civil Service commission shows a total of 810,418 employees of the executive department of the government. For the month of April it shows an increase of more than 4,000 payrollers over the previous month. Spending has not been reduced in either regular or emergency department payrolls. The Tugwell resettlement bureau, which has been strongly opposed as an applicant for more funds, had a payroll of 18,656 in April. Huge numbers of these federal employees got their jobs through the Farley system, without regard to Civil Service.

Decisions Save the Constitution

Court Rulings Show How
New Deal Plans Its Attack.

How the Roosevelt administration has exerted constant and carefully directed pressure to change the American form of government is shown by a review of the Supreme Court decisions of the last two years. These changes have not been sought by amendments to the Constitution. The administration has attempted to "build up new instruments of public power" without asking the people for the right to do so.

In addition to usurping powers, the record shows, the administration has sought to create powers which are in conflict with the Constitution. It has done this through the passing of numerous laws held to have a "desirable object" and a presumably strong popular appeal. After the Supreme Court ruled these laws invalid the administration systematically assumed the attitude that the Supreme Court and the Constitution had thwarted the will of the people.

The Constitution is the supreme law of the land. In its framework are three fundamentals. The federal and state governments have separate powers. Federal power is distributed among the legislative, executive and judicial departments. None may encroach upon the powers of the others. Guaranties of personal liberties constitute another fundamental. All of these three pillars of the American system of government have been attacked by the administration.

Checked by Court
In defense of the American form of government the Supreme Court, passing upon New Deal laws, has held:

1. That practically unlimited legislative power was delegated to the Executive, thereby destroying the protection afforded by the distribution of power in coordinate departments as provided in the Constitution.
2. That Federal authority was exerted in fields reserved under the Constitution to the States to the extent of "obliterating" the States and breaking down our system of a Federal union of autonomous states. Local self-government has been imperiled.
3. That individual liberties guaranteed in the Bill of Rights were encroached upon.
4. That the taxing power has been expanded into an instrument of coercion and a means of effectuating social and economic control.

A review of all the cases in which the Supreme Court has held acts of Congress or their application to be unconstitutional indicates that at no other period of the history of the United States has there been such a concerted attack upon the American form of government as under the New Deal. It is fair to say that none of the acts held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court prior to the New Deal was the result of any conceived plan to undermine or destroy the Constitution of the United States.

List of Cases
In fourteen cases, laws or their application have been held unconstitutional during the Roosevelt administration. In eight of the cases (two cases affecting the AAA being considered as one) important laws enacted under the New Deal were declared unconstitutional while in two others the application of major laws was held to be unconstitutional. The four other cases were of minor importance, two of them having to do with laws enacted under previous administrations.

The eight major cases in which New Deal laws were held unconstitutional were those of the NRA, the "hot oil" case, the Guffey Bituminous Coal Act, the AAA, the abrogation of the gold clause in government obligations, the Railroad Retirement Act and the Farm Mortgage Act and the Municipal Bankruptcy Act. The two chief cases involving an unconstitutional application of New Deal acts affected the Securities Act and the Home Owners' Loan Corporation Act. In two other cases not involving the constitutionality of laws, the Humphrey case and the Parker Dam case, New Deal policies were disapproved by the Supreme Court.

Contrary to the popular impression, only a relatively few acts of Congress have been held to be unconstitutional by five-to-four votes. Out of 79 decisions, the total of cases since the foundation of our government in which federal laws or their application have been held to be unconstitutional by five-to-four votes is only 11. Among the cases decided during the present administration only two—those affecting the Railroad Retirement Act and the Municipal Bankruptcy Act—were by a five-to-four vote. The decision in the NRA case was unanimous, while those in the AAA and Guffey Coal Act cases were by votes of six to three.

LEGION AUXILIARY IN MONTHLY MEETING

Thursday afternoon, July 9, the American Legion Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting on the lawn at the Legion Cabin. Mrs. H. B. Houston, president, presided, with routine business being transacted, and the yearly report read by the secretary, Mrs. Jesse Jordan. The Auxiliary will be 100% blue ribbon at the Legion convention in Paducah, July 19-22.

Following the business session Mrs. Houston retired giving the chair to Mrs. Jordan, newly elected president. Standing committees were then appointed as follows:

Rehabilitation, Mrs. B. O. Copeland, Mrs. C. C. Parker.
Membership, Mrs. Earle Taylor, Mrs. R. L. Harris and Mrs. N. T. Morse.
Legislative, Mrs. E. Heathcott, Poppy, Mrs. H. Luten, Mrs. H. B.

Houston and Mrs. B. Brewer, Child Welfare, Mrs. Kellie Lowe, Fidae, Mrs. W. J. Coulter, Americanism, Mrs. Ray Graham, Music, Mrs. H. B. Houston, National Defense, Mrs. Jesse Nichols.
Sick Committee, Mrs. Kellie Lowe, Rear Book, Mrs. L. Shelton, Mrs. F. Gossam, Mrs. Gladys Chowning, Telephone, Mrs. A. B. Roberts, Mrs. Sam Winston and Mrs. H. Furlong.

Following a discussion of plans for holding an annual picnic, August 13th was set as the date for the affair. A committee composed of Mrs. R. L. Harris, Mrs. H. Luten, and Mrs. A. B. Roberts, was named to make arrangements.
Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Jordan, Mrs. Houston and Mrs. Harris.

GROUP A ENJOYS A POT-LUCK SUPPER

Group A of the First Methodist Missionary Society met Monday afternoon at four o'clock and enjoyed a delightful pot-luck supper at the Brown Haven Park, country camp of Mrs. S. L. Brown located on the Union City highway. Hostesses were Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Herschel Grogan.

The chairman, Mrs. Hoyt Moore, presided over a brief business session during which time reports were made by the different officers. After the business, Mrs. Smith Atkins very interestingly read the lesson.

At the close of the meeting a picnic supper was spread on tables and the remainder of the evening was spent informally.

MRS. LADD'S SUNDAY CLASS ENJOY PICNIC

Mrs. E. R. Ladd's Sunday School class of the Cumberland Presbyterian church enjoyed a picnic outing Thursday evening last week at the Atkins Camp on the Laidle road. Those enjoying the delightful picnic lunch were: Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Powell and Glynn Powell, Mrs. O. C. Linton and son, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Puckett, Mrs. Paul Turbeville, Mr. and Mrs. Brown Thacker and daughter, Mrs. Rupert Stille, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fields, B. A. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Mullins, Mrs. Elvis Myrick, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Dawes, Mr. and Mrs. John Bowers, Mrs. Ernest Huffman, Jane Huffman, Mrs. Horace Young, Mrs. E. R. Ladd, Florence McCorkle, Cornell Henley, Inez Sharp, Mrs. Henry Miller, Mrs. Everett Jolley, Mrs. Lynn Askew, Barbara and Wade Askew, Mrs. Basil Ross, and Mrs. Evelyn Starnes.

POT-LUCK SUPPER FRIDAY EVENING

Employees and their families of the Fulton Department Store and the L. Kasnow's Store enjoyed a pot-luck supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kasnow on Pearl-st. At six o'clock twenty guests arrived and surprised the honoree, Louis Kasnow, who will leave soon for a visit with home folks in Russia.
The following guests were present and enjoyed various games and contests: Mr. and Mrs. Wrenn Coulter, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Huff, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Green, Mr. and Mrs. James Cummings and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Roberts, Mrs. Beatrice Valentine and niece, LaDonne McClain, Mrs. Len Berninger and son, Ernest, Harold Hirsch, Robert Furlong, Charlie Sanofsky, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kasnow, and the honoree, Louis Kasnow.

RECENT BRIDE HONORED WITH SHOWER THURSDAY

Mrs. Virgil Barham, formerly Miss Jettie Sue Omar and recently married was honored with a miscellaneous shower Thursday night at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ben Davis on West State Line.

The home was beautifully decorated with bouquets of cut flowers tastefully arranged. Many lovely and useful gifts were presented the honoree. The remainder of the evening was spent informally.
The hostess served a delightful party plate.

UNEEDUS CIRCLE ENJOYS PICNIC

The Unneedus Circle of the First Methodist Woman's Missionary Society met Monday, July 13th, at the Country Club. At 6:30 o'clock a delightful pot-luck supper was served.

After the supper a very brief business session was held over which the president, Mrs. Wallis Koelling, presided. A report was given by the secretary and treasurer. The remainder of the evening was spent informally with twenty-one regular members present with the following visitors: Misses Almeda Huddleston, Ruby Boyd Alexander, Ruth Graham, Katherine Koelling, Ruth Bugg, Sara Frances Granberry of Hattiesburg, Miss. Sadie Graham of Memphis, and Ann Rice of Paducah.

THURSDAY NIGHT CLUB

Mrs. Lynn Askew delightfully entertained her bridge club Thursday night at her home on Maple-st. Three tables of players were present which included one new member Mrs. Maxwell McDade, and two visitors, Mrs. William Blackstone and Mrs. Robert Whitehead. After several games of progressive contract high score among the club members was held by Mrs. Charles Murphy Jr. and Mrs. Robert Whitehead held visitors' high score. Both were presented lovely prizes.
Late in the evening the hostess served a delightful salad course to her guests.

A King's Farewell
Good Soldier Obeys
An H or Two
40,000,000 Degrees

Paris.—To "last words of dying men" will be added those of the late King George of England—"I am sorry to keep you waiting like this." Typical of a good, modest king, always obedient to duty.

At the request of his ministers, including Sir John Simon, who waited upon him at the last moment, the king struggled pathetically to sign his name to a state paper, succeeded, then, turning to his advisers, spoke those last words, followed by a smile and nod with which he was accustomed to end an audience.

This was published in the Star of Johannesburg, South Africa, in a Reuter dispatch. Mr. Gunia sends the clipping from Gibsonia, Pa. Much obliged.

The Italian soldier Badoglio, in the striking uniform of an Italian marshal, returned to Rome and embraced Mussolini, who wore the uniform of a corporal of fascist militia. Napoleon also liked to be called the "little corporal."

Marshal Badoglio is an Italian soldier who obeys orders. When Mussolini's forces were marching on Rome, Badoglio, according to the story, said to the king: "What shall I do—wipe them out?" The king ordered: "No; no violence." Now, Mussolini rules, and on his orders Badoglio wipes out Haile Selassie and the government of Ethiopia.

Anything could happen in Europe, and one of the things considered quite possible, extremely disturbing to respectable old England and others, is an agreement between Mussolini and Hitler to make "a deal on Austria" profitable for both; not for Austria.

There is always, however, the memory of 1914, when Austria, Italy and the Kaiser had the triple alliance that did not "stand up." Such alliances usually go along racial lines, if they are to last. France and Italy are natural allies, both Latin; England and the United States would probably be found not far apart if a really big World war should ever come, with one or two other IPS.

Science proudly demonstrates for the Westinghouse company a new lamp that "rivals the beams of the sun." The demonstrator explained that the temperature at the sun's surface is about 11,732 degrees Fahrenheit, while the new lamp reaches 25,222 degrees Fahrenheit. That, however, as scientists know, is a long way from the sun's best temperature.

According to Sir James Jeans, there prevails in the depths of the sun temperature of "forty million degrees centigrade," which is considerably higher than any man-made temperature.

If you came within 1,000 miles of a 5 cent piece with a temperature of 40,000,000 degrees centigrade, you would be burned to a cinder; hard to believe, but true.

England protested against raising the elevation of guns on American warships because that would make our guns shoot too far. In case of war we might hit a British ship lined up against us.

Are animals capable of any thought?

A dog on Prince Edward island, whining and howling with its muzzle against a pile of clothing on the edge of a pool, attracted men who took from the water the bodies of two brothers, fifteen and seventeen years old. Could the dog have "thought out" a connection between the clothing and the disappearance of its young owners?

At Ur, ancient city of the Chaldeans, they show a gigantic brick temple, recently uncovered, where it has lain in the ground covered through the ages. It was constructed originally, like the tower of Babel, to enable the builders to get up into heaven and reach the gods. First they invented those pagan gods, and then they actually believed in them.

The United States navy has ordered 191 "bomber" airplanes; cheerful small news.

It is to be hoped that the government is trying to build bomber planes able to fly any ocean.

If war came, our bombing operations could be carried on in countries across the Atlantic or the Pacific. We should not want to do any bombing in America. After the first experiment, no country would send any ships within easy bombing or submarine range of these shores.

"You have to give your constituents what they want," remarked the sympathetic friend.

"The job's harder than that," answered Senator Sorghum. "For purposes of future reference, in case their ideas go wrong, I have to try to educate them in what they ought to have."

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—The arrival of the first robin does not guarantee the immediate arrival of spring but when the first robin is observed, folks generally consider that there is little left of winter. An out and out bolt by an individual in party politics likewise does not guarantee important defections, but, like the arrival of the early robin, an individual bolter, if he be a man of consequence, has a story of its own to tell. A bolt in party politics never attracts attention unless the bolting individual is of some consequence and, therefore, has a personal following. Thus it is that when we observe a bolt by a nationally known individual from his lifelong political affiliation, we immediately understand its significance. The scope of this significance, however, is the thing that concerns us.

Nearly everyone knows now that former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, Democratic Presidential nominee in 1928, has made known that he cannot support President Roosevelt for re-election. They know as well that the four other individuals who asked the Democratic National convention to push Mr. Roosevelt aside and nominate a Democrat can be classified as important individuals along with Governor Smith. No one dare say that former Sen. James A. Reed of Missouri, former Governor Ely of Massachusetts, Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state in Woodrow Wilson's administration and Daniel F. Cohalan, one time Tammany chieftain, are unimportant in politics. They have consistently figured in Democratic party councils and thus it becomes apparent that these five robins presage something more than just their own departure from the ranks of Roosevelt supporters.

I make this statement notwithstanding the declaration by James A. Farley that he would not dignify their statement with a reply. Of course, Mr. Farley as postmaster general, chairman of the Democratic National committee, chairman of the New York State Democratic committee and delegate to the Democratic National convention, necessarily was a very busy man at the time the Smith statement, refusing support to President Roosevelt, was released for publication. Nevertheless, I am in a position to know that the Smith statement threw quite a scare into New Deal ranks. Frankly, they did not like it.

How much they do not like the Smith statement remains to be seen. I believe that no one can forecast exactly how much strength this group can pull away from Mr. Roosevelt in the November election. Much will depend upon their personal activities henceforth. If men like Smith and Jim Reed and Ely take the stump, if they go out into the hustings and actually campaign for Governor Landon, the Republican nominee, it seems to me obvious that such campaigning will damage the Roosevelt cause materially.

It was the natural strategy for Mr. Farley to follow in declining comment on the Smith defection. His assertion that the Smith statement was so unimportant as to require no reply will be convincing to a very great many voters who already have made up their minds to support Mr. Roosevelt. But the truth is that the election has not been won yet by either side and any votes that are influenced by such a group as that headed by Governor Smith will have weight in the final determination of our next President.

... The Smith defection becomes the more important in my opinion because it occurred almost simultaneously with the development of a third party under the leadership of Rep. William Lemke of North Dakota. This picture may not be entirely clear to everyone. It is substantially this: Lemke and his colleagues are attempting to draw together the extreme radicals, the leftist groups. The bulk of these will come from the Democratic party if the Lemke organization develops any particular strength. The Smith group represents the conservative, or rightist, element in the Democratic party. Thus we see detractors from the Roosevelt strength on two sides.

I do not mean to say here that the combination of these circumstances will insure President Roosevelt's defeat. Anyone who would make such a declaration at this time demonstrates his lack of knowledge of political maneuvers. What I am seeking to show, however, is that robins have arrived in the back yard and in the front yard of the New Deal party and if the leaders of the two obstreperous groups engage viciously in this campaign, the time may come when Mr. Farley will recognize their importance.

There already has been evidence of the influence of the Lemke radical segment. I think everyone agrees that the announcement of the third party's organization vitally affected the type of platform that was written in Washington and adopted by the Democratic convention at Philadelphia. From many sources comes information that the Democratic platform was made much more liberal—some critics describe it as more socialistic—than would have been the case had Representative Lemke stayed out of the political picture. He has the backing of Father Coughlin, the Detroit radio priest, and his personal union for social justice and he has the backing of the remnants of the late Huey Long's share-the-wealth adherents. In addition, the Townsend $200-a-month pension followers will be found behind Lemke to some extent.

... The European disturbances continue apace. It is a situation that is extremely interesting and one that probably will unfold as the weeks go by, in curious ways. I say curious because to us in America, it has been rather difficult to understand the meaning of many of the maneuvers that followed the outright subjugation of Ethiopia by the power thirsty Mussolini of Italy.

Word that comes rather direct from inner councils in Europe indicates a tremendous fear on the part of Italy and France about German plans. The British likewise are displaying nervousness and the present alliances and combinations of power existing in Europe are none too stable. It is just possible that Germany's Hitler may, by his present activities, force a new cementing of these alliances and understandings among other powers but at this time there is no mistaking the fact that Europe, outside of Germany, is a bundle of nerves.

It seems that the basis for this nervousness is rooted in the clever scheming of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, who is something of an economic dictator under Hitler. Dr. Schacht is a brilliant negotiator. He understands economics, trade and finance as well as any man in Europe today and when you couple such knowledge with diplomatic keenness, you obviously have a man capable of accomplishing results.

... In the case of Italy, an economic weapon in the hands of Germany might easily prove disastrous because Italy virtually exhausted her gold reserve in the late war and her government cannot go on much longer in furnishing purchasing power for her people. France has been able to open certain markets to the little entente and to the Balkans and has, in addition, provided some financial aid. Thus, when Dr. Schacht pats the neighbors of Germany, on the back and points out where markets can be made for them in Germany, France and Italy quickly develop cases of jitters.

It seems that Austria and Hungary cannot depend fully on Italian markets because of the low gold reserve in Italy. In the meantime as well, France has been losing millions in gold as her own domestic situation has been embroiled in a political whirlpool. The Austrians and the Hungarians and some of the other central Europeans recognize that unless France gets straightened out, there will not be purchasing power available there for their surplus produce. So, Dr. Schacht is cultivating what appears from this distance to be a fertile field.

Dearth of Happy Lines

I sometimes go musing along the street to see how few people there are whose faces look as though any joy had come down and sung in their souls. I can see lines of thought, and of care, and of fear, money lines, shrewd, grasping lines—but how few happy lines! The rarest feeling that ever lights the human face is the contentment of a loving soul.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

DO you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination, backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unbracing and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

"I wouldn't like her," Deborah said positively, and put her chin up. Simon raised himself on his arms and called down to them through the twilight. "Hi," he said, "what about the other mail?"

"There's more, Tubby's got it," Madeline explained. "In his pocket. He's coming across the bridge now. I can hear his delicate footsteps."

Tubby came around the end of the house. His face was very red. He was not smiling. He was almost frowning. Madeline glanced significantly at Sally, who compressed her lips and stared at her brother. Tubby stopped beside the steps, only a few feet in front of Deborah, so that as he took the letters from his inner coat pocket she could easily see them. Idly, as he called out a name, she glanced at each envelope.

"Simon," he announced. "Nothing for you, Bryn. Sally, two for you. Nothing at all for you, Deborah, and Madeline had hers in town. Another for you, Simon. And here," he said gallantly, "is a letter for you, Mrs. Larned. It looks very interesting. Written in a bold, dashing, masculine hand, with a very thick enclosure, it carries with it a hint of mystery."

He had been holding out Simon's last letter, waiting for him to take it, as he spoke; so that Deborah had had a moment to take in the meaning of the handwriting on Grandmother's envelope. It was familiar. . . . It was dreadfully familiar. A cold icy hand clutched at her heart, and she felt herself turning faint again, as she had on that dreadful afternoon on the wharf. . . . she put out her hand involuntarily for the letter and made a queer little strangled sound. Grandmother was smiling at Tubby's nonsense, waiting for her letter. She did not notice Deborah's face. But Bryn did. He stood up sharply. He saw Deborah's whiteness. He put out his hand and took the letter from Tubby's. He glanced at it. He looked over at Grandmother.

"He could be arrested for this," he told Grandmother grimly. "Interfering with government mails. Bribery and corruption. The crooked game of politics."

Tubby stared at him, his mouth open. "Shut up," Bryn told him, although he had not spoken. "Not a word out of you, you inquisitive scoundrel. Trying to defraud me of my rightful property. Indeed, this is my letter. I've been looking for it for weeks, longing for it, not being able to sleep nights. It's a detailed and careful account of the construction of the arch of the bridge over the . . . over the Volga river in Russia. New departure in engineering. I'm sure Grandmother would enjoy reading it, wouldn't she? I suppose this is your idea of a joke. Grandmother, I apologize. I apologize for having such a stupid and crass insect for a friend."

"I was . . . I was just kidding him, Grandmother," Tubby muttered. "It isn't your letter after all. It's his."

"Oh, dear," Grandmother murmured, laughing. "You two keep me in a perfect state of bewilderment. I don't suppose I shall ever be able to tell whether you are talking sense or nonsense."

"Tubby's fault," Bryn answered, thrusting the letter into his pocket. "Tubby's an awful ass, Grandmother. You have no idea."

"He's all right," Simon explained. "He smells the dinner. We're going to have duck and watercress."

Deborah stood tensely before the window, hands locked together, waiting for Bryn to come downstairs after taking Grandmother up to bed. To-night of all nights, Grandmother had stayed up half an hour later, and all the time Stuart Graham's letter, filled with all sorts of unimaginable possibilities, lay unopened in Bryn's pocket.

Bryn came in quickly and shut the door behind him. Deborah broke away from Madeline's arm. She took a step toward him. She put her hand out mutely.

His eyes were upon her face. He compressed his lips. His hand went to an inner pocket, and then he said, quietly, "Just a minute, Deborah. Are you perfectly sure that you're not mistaken?"

"Oh, yes, yes!" she cried, and the air in the room was suddenly electric, as if someone had turned a switch.

Bryn drew the letter out. He looked at it. "I don't like opening other people's letters," he said slowly. "It might be only an extraordinary resemblance. Deborah, you've had it on your mind, you know."

She took it from his hand and looked at it. The very touch of the envelope made her shiver. "I'm sure," she said. Bryn ripped the end off the envelope, and drew out the folded pages. He glanced at Deborah's face. "Shall I read it, Deborah?"

She nodded mutely. Bryn straightened the pages and began.

My Dear Mrs. Larned:
Naturally I cannot imagine just what Deborah has told you regarding the failure of our plans in San Francisco, but I am afraid she may not have shown me in a kindly light. For the past month I have been most anxious to write and explain the situation to you but circumstances beyond my control have made it impossible for me to do so.

I suppose it is useless for me to expect that after hearing Deborah's story, whatever it was, and after this long silence on my part, you can have any sympathy for me and the position in which I now find myself. But I must ask you to accept the explanation which I have made in regard to my silence. A few of the facts that I am an enlisted man in the navy, completely under the arbitrary control of any whim of my superior officers and subject to the restrictions of anyone on board a ship out of touch with land and such conveniences as mails.

And now for Deborah's story. What she has told you, I do not know, as I mentioned before, but looking at the matter from her point of view, and trying to be just and generous, I am forced to the conclusion that whatever she told you must have been both exaggerated and biased. I was very much disturbed over the whole business, and spent all my shore leave when in San Francisco trying to find her and explain, but of course it was an impossibility to do so.

I don't know whether it has occurred to you, Mrs. Larned, to think how completely ignorant of the world and its ways Deborah is. I was prepared, of course, for a certain amount of unsophistication, knowing to some extent how she had been brought up, but I did not realize that any girl could possibly be so entirely unaware of the trends of modern times. I have, of course, every respect for the manners and customs of the time of my parents and grandparents, as I am sure you will know, but having lived a normal life, I have naturally progressed with others of my generation to an acceptance of the manners and customs of the present day. Deborah has not. This was obvious on our first meeting, from her appearance and from her absolute inability to meet an ordinary situation with calmness. I grant you that it must have been difficult for her to come down alone to meet me, and perhaps if I had known just how difficult, if I had realized Deborah's state of mind and lack of understanding of modern life as it is lived, I should have been able to overcome her objections and explain away her difficulties. As it was, I could do nothing. Deborah was in a state of frantic terror before I had a chance to see her at all, and by the time I did, she was so beyond ordinary reasoning, I am literally sorry for it all, and reproach myself that I didn't guess what to expect, and so prepare the situation accordingly. It so happens that I might have been warned, Mrs. Larned, of what I should have been expected to encounter.

Even as it was, I might have been able to overcome Deborah's childish terrors had it not been for the absolutely unarranged interference of some unknown person in the lawyer's office. Deborah will probably have mentioned him to you, and made some satisfactory explanation as to her conduct. I was certainly pained and astonished to discover that she had so little good taste as to be willing to take up at once with a stranger. The fact that Mr. Holworthy's presence was all that reconciled me to leaving her, angry as I was, may be that the time will come when I will make it my business to discover this stranger's identity and settle with him for the insult he offered me.

However, this is all beside the point. The really serious question between us is that of your husband's will and Deborah's estate. With a copy of the will I have consulted a lawyer, and it is his opinion that under certain circumstances we might make a fight for the estate that would ultimately prove successful. The circumstances are, of course, a marriage between Deborah and myself which would take place from your point of view, an absolute necessity. This, unless there are aspects of the case with which I am not familiar, seems to me to be, from your point of view, an absolute necessity. I have examined the list of securities named in the will as the source of your present income, and you doubtless know only too well, and of them are completely worthless. How you have managed for the past few years is a mystery, and may possibly explain Deborah's appearance and obvious lack of advantages. In any case, the mitigation of your circumstances may arrive except through me, and although I was deeply hurt . . . (I think I broke his jaw," Bryn said happily) . . . deeply hurt and mortified, not to mention my disappointment, and the general disruption of my plans, I am willing for the sake of the friendship which has existed between our families for so long, I am willing to do what I can to make things easier for you.

I have obtained from my commander an extended leave, and I am leaving San Diego tomorrow morning to drive up the coast to your home. You may expect to see me at the latest by Wednesday noon, unless I meet with unexpected difficulties along the road.

Yours sincerely,
STUART GORDEN GRAHAM.

Bryn folded the letter. Tubby thrust his hands into his pockets and began to saunter up and down the room, whistling beneath his breath. Simon put his hands behind his head and stared at the ceiling. Sally was trembling with excitement and clutching Simon's knee, and Madeline walked slowly across and dropped down beside Deborah.

"Well," Tubby said, buttoning his coat and squaring his shoulders, "if he's got to be kept away, he's got to be kept away, and that's all there is to it. After all, there are four men of us here, and Burch. I've against one. That ought to be easy."

"You talk as if we were going to fight about it," Sally said tearfully. "With guns. It isn't half as blundering or easy as that."

"Not half," Madeline echoed. "This is going to be strategy. And strategy, Tubby, never was your strong point. If you will remember," she smiled up at him, a warm tender smile that made him blink and look as if he saw her for the first time. "But you're a darling, Tubby, and you're loyal and strong, and worth a lot more than one of those slithering strategists."

"Well, gee," Tubby said, bewildered, and sat down.

"We might bar the road," Tubby said hopefully. "Put a gate across it, you know."

"Somebody would have to guard it, of course," Bryn said thoughtfully. "And he'd want to know why he couldn't pass. If I stayed there myself and had a talk with him, explaining the situation, it might help; but I wouldn't trust him not to pretend to go away and then to sneak back when we weren't watching just to see what harm he could do."

Matron's Dress with Vestee

Pattern No. 1907-B

This dress designed with soft capelet sleeves and a contrasting vestee is one of those perennial styles. It is always a pleasure to show by popular request. They're so universally becoming to larger and more mature women, and so adaptable to conventional occasions.

The model shown is a clever street frock which takes into consideration the fitting problem encountered by many women whose tastes incline toward conservative rather than complicated dressmaking. The lines are studied to give slenderness without sacrificing a trim and neat appearance, exemplified in the beautiful pointed up bodice, especially graceful and smart. Sheer cotton, prints and chiffons are delightful for town or country.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1907-B is available for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material. Send 15 cents in coins.

Send for the Summer Pattern Book containing 100 Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send 15 cents for your copy.

Modest Grain

A farmer went with his son into the wheat-field to see if it was ready for the harvest.

"See, father," said the boy, "how straight these stems hold up their heads. They must be the best ones. Those that hang down their heads as if they were ashamed can't be good for much, I'm sure."

The farmer plucked a stalk of each kind and said: "Look here, my child. This stalk that stood up so straight is light-headed and almost good for nothing, while this that hung its head so modestly is full of the most beautiful grain."

Uncle Phil Says:

Regrets Should Deter

All regrets are "vain" if they do not act as deterrents on future occasions.

Inactivity, supineness, and femininity have ruined more constitutions than were ever destroyed by excessive labors.

What ailed the clothing of the ancients more important than a run in the stocking of the moderns?

Indulgent Dad

Son, Father can always tell you something for your own good if he will speak the whole truth to you. Often he hesitates to hurt your feelings.

The man who always speaks the truth is sure to have other virtues.

You may have a good-natured neighbor and be unable to determine whether it is laziness or a kind heart. Both, maybe.

Are We Overcharged?

Even our pleasures cost more than they used to. Many a fellow's idea of a good time is to pay a $50 fine for 50 cents' worth of fun.

As soon as a man begins to love his work, there will be also begin to make progress.

Making a collection of books is at least as justifiable as making a collection of anything else.

A Worthy Ambition

Greatest personal triumph is to make a friend out of an old enemy; and as interesting an ambition as any other.

Keep your promises and discharge your obligations.

"Don't worry" is a good rule to offer others; but, like all advice, they are unable to follow it. A boost when needed is better than a pull that isn't.

"I WOULDN'T RISK MY LIFE ON ANY OTHER TIRE"

Says Louis Meyer—

EQUIP YOUR CAR WITH

Firestone
GUM-DIPPED TIRES
for Greater Safety!

THERE is a reason why Louis Meyer won the 500-mile Indianapolis race this year—and why he is the only man ever to win this grueling race three times. He always used Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, and never experienced tire trouble of any kind.

Louis Meyer knows tire construction. He also knows that to drive for 500 consecutive miles over this hot brick track, negotiating the dangerous curves 800 times at the record-breaking average speed of 109 miles an hour, requires tires of super strength and greatest blowout protection, as a blowout on any one of the dangerous curves would likely mean instant death. By the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process every cord in the tires on Louis Meyer's car was soaked and coated with liquid rubber, thereby preventing internal friction and heat. This is the secret of the extra strength and reserve safety built into Firestone Tires.

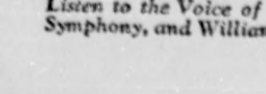

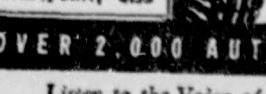

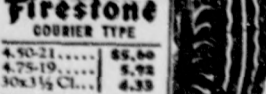

You of course will not drive 109 miles per hour, but at today's higher speeds you do need tires that will give you greatest blowout protection and will stop your car up to 25% quicker. Take no chances! Let your Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store or Firestone Dealer equip your car with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, the safest tires built. It costs so little to protect lives worth so much!

Danzig Crisis Worries

Nations of Europe

WAR-WORRIED Europe shifted its anxiety from the Italian-Ethiopian sanctions problem to the newer and baffling question of what to do about the Free City of Danzig now seeking to free itself from the bonds of the League of Nations.

The league disposed of the sanctions problem by voting to abolish them, thus to all practical intents and purposes removing Ethiopia from the family of sovereign states. Appearing personally before the league assembly, the refugee emperor, Haile Selassie, made a last moving bid for Ethiopia's freedom.

The "king of kings" denounced France and Great Britain without mentioning their names. To the generally expressed desire to reform the league, he said the weakness was not the league covenant itself, but a lack of international morality. The Negus' request for a loan of $50,000,000 to Ethiopia was voted down. Previously Haile had informed Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, that he would return to Ethiopia immediately to join his loyal tribesmen and fight for Ethiopian independence.

With Mussolini given satisfaction, the Danzig situation brought into the foreground the figure of Adolf Hitler, chancellor of Nazi Germany. It was a Nazi follower of Hitler, Dr. Arthur Greiser, president of the Danzig senate, who demanded independence for the former German city now surrounded by Polish territory and who denounced the league and Sean Lester, league high commissioner for the port.

Observers were of the opinion that Greiser was acting under orders from Chancellor Hitler. In view of Germany's expansionist program and its rearmament, they feel that Danzig will be the next Nazi objective now that the Rhineland is remilitarized. By the elimination of Commissioner Lester or by the curtailment of his authority over the international affairs of the city, it is believed the Nazi would be in a position to crush the opposition party and pave the way for annexation of Danzig by Germany. In the event of a Nazi putsch on Danzig, it was believed that Britain and France would co-operate in opposing it.

July 4th Celebrations

Cost 346 Lives in U. S.

A TOLL of 346 lives was exacted in the celebration of the Fourth of July throughout the United States.

Booming cannon crackers played a comparatively innocent part in the slaughter, for only 11 lives were lost in accidents due to fire-crackers.

But if the nation heeded warnings about the danger of fireworks, it forgot the menace of motoring accidents, for 238 people in 36 states were killed as the result of accidents on streets and highways. Ninety persons were drowned in 36 states. Miscellaneous tragedies accounted for 37 additional fatalities in 15 states.

Not since 1931 has the celebration of America's patriotic holiday claimed so many victims. In that year the death total from accidents reached 403.

Roosevelt and Landon

Return to Their Desks

THE Presidential candidates of both the Democratic and the Republican parties returned to their desks in their respective capitals following absences.

President Roosevelt came back to Washington after a three-day pilgrimage to Virginia. Included on his program was the dedication of the Shenandoah National park, his Fourth of July address from the portico of Thomas Jefferson's home at Monticello and his visit to Williamsburg, capital of the Old Dominion from 1699 to 1779. In his address at Jefferson's home, the President called on the nation to rekindle the "sacred fire" of "true freedom" which had lighted the "golden age" of American history. He declared the present emergencies require the same leadership as that displayed by the founder of the Democratic party.

Gov. Alf. M. Landon returned to Topeka, Kan., after a vacation in the Colorado mountains, for the reconvening of the state legislature and for the acceptance speech at the Republican notification ceremonies July 23. National significance was attached to the meeting of the Kansas legislature because of the fact that it would have to deal with old-age pensions, unemployment insurance and general social welfare legislation and that an amendment to the state constitution was in prospect. Discussions of the farm problem and conferences with Governor Landon's political advisers were on the program. The Republican standard bearer was not expected to return to Colorado until after the notification ceremonies.

In the meantime, great activity was apparent in opposing campaign headquarters.

President Roosevelt summoned Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley to Washington for a conference on the political campaign. It was expected that the question of Mr. Farley's retirement from the cabinet about which there has been considerable rumor lately, would be decided. The Democrats have established national headquarters at the Biltmore hotel in New York and it is from here Chairman Farley will direct the campaign.

John Hamilton, national chairman of the Republican party, opened national headquarters in Chicago. He addressed 2,800 banqueters at a dinner in his honor and declared that the reaction of voters in recent days has been disheartening to the Roosevelt administration. Since the Cleveland convention, he said, the Democrats had offered the Republicans the "sincere flattery of imitation."

Pope Pius Orders World

Censorship of Movies

A WORLD censorship on movies was ordered by Pope Pius, in an encyclical letter addressed directly to the bishops and archbishops of the Roman Catholic church in the United States.

The pope also ordered bishops throughout the world to obtain from their communicants annually renewable pledges "to abstain from witnessing bad films." The encyclical of his holiness was addressed to the American bishops because they originally took the lead in movie censorship. He invited bishops of the entire world to follow their example.

To carry out the plan of censorship, the pontiff directed that a permanent national movie reviewing office be established in each country. He urged the exchange of information between the various offices for making the censorship effective. He urged bishops to appeal to Catholics connected with motion picture productions to use their influence in accordance with their faith and ideals.

Labor Leaguers Begin Drive

for Steel's Unionization

WITH labor organizers spreading throughout the nation's steel mills in a drive to enroll 500,000 workers into one big union, the National Labor Relations Board reopened a fight in the courts to force steel companies to accept the National Labor Relations act as a means of keeping peace.

The board announced it had petitioned the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans in a new effort to enforce the act.

Meanwhile the full resources of the $5,000,000,000 steel industry were marshaled against the unionization drive. Observers pointed out that the situation was fraught with grave possibilities of industrial warfare. Principal steel companies who have banded together in a militant effort to maintain the open shop warned employees not to be "misled" into affiliation with the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers Union, which forms the basis of organized labor's drive.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and head of the committee for industrial organization, in a radio address broadcast from Chicago entitled "Industrial Democracy in Steel," sought the support not only of union labor, but of the public generally in his crusade.

Breckinridge Long Resigns

as Ambassador to Italy

BRECKINRIDGE LONG, American ambassador to Italy, submitted his resignation to President Roosevelt because of illness. The diplomat declared that he hopes to recuperate his health during the summer and to take an active part in the Presidential campaign in the autumn.

Mr. Long's place will be taken by Undersecretary of State William Phillips. He will represent the United States government in Rome in an effort to solve Italo-American problems arising from Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia.

Mr. Phillips has had a distinguished career in the diplomatic service. He has held posts in Europe, the Far East and Canada and has three times been sub-secretary in the State department.

STAR DUST

By VIRGINIA VALE

IF YOU are among the many who never fail to tune in on Major Bowes' broadcasts on Sunday evenings, you'll be interested in the discussion of money matters that's going on.

The genial Major's contract expires in September, and the same sponsors want him again. So do others. He asked $18,000 a broadcast, then cut it to $15,000—twice what his old contract brings in.

As for the amateurs who appear on the program, they get five dollars an appearance. If they get the gong it's doubled. If they are good enough to land with a unit, they draw real money.

As soon as "The Garden of Allah" is finished the stars are going to scatter like spilled quicksilver. Marlene Dietrich will go to London (she plans to put her little girl in school in Europe next year, which will mean their first separation for any length of time); Basil Rathbone will head for London also; Charles Boyer leaves for Paris, and Joseph Schildkraut for Austria. And as they arrive, no doubt, they'll probably be summoned back to Hollywood for more pictures. The wise picture star, when starting for a vacation, leaves no address.

When you see "The Good Earth" don't sympathize with the actors, thinking that they had to shave their heads for the picture.

The head of the make-up department at Metro, Jack Dawn, mixed up a dressing that would give the effect of shaved heads—and by having the actors use it, the company saved a lot of money. You see, had the actors had to become bald for the picture, they'd have had to be paid till their hair grew again!

Ginger Rogers has been in pictures for six years. She celebrated the anniversary just the other day. She still likes them. But the girl has unlimited energy; after working all day with Fred Astaire on dance routines for their next picture, she goes out dancing in the evening.

Ben Lyons and Bebe Daniels sailed for England the other day with their daughter Barbara, aged four and cute as she can be. Ben and Bebe will make personal appearances (they've been coming money doing it over here), and then take a vacation on the Riviera. They have more fun than almost any other married couple in Hollywood.

Fred Allen could journey to Hollywood and make pictures this summer if he wanted to; the offers have been rolling in thick and fast. But he has turned them all down. When he is broadcasting he works all week on each broadcast, and he feels that he's entitled to a rest when he goes off the air for the summer. So he'll vacation in his home town in Massachusetts—and probably pick up new material for his next series of programs.

Katharine Hepburn is taking no chances on her next theatrical appearance. Signed with the Theater Guild to do "Jane Eyre" next fall, she insists on a preliminary out-of-town tour lasting six weeks, just to get her hand in.

It's rumored that Margaret Sullivan will also have a try at the New York stage, where she was doing very well indeed when the movies captured her, and she became a favorite of screen fans.

Robert Taylor's New York vacation remained hectic to the very end. Leaving a broadcasting studio after he'd been on the air, he was mobbed by a crowd that took 15 policemen to handle—and then one of the fans got away with his handkerchief, and another took one of Taylor's shoes, to remember him by!

ODDS AND ENDS . . . "The Rivals," the famous play by Richard Brinsley Sheridan which has been delighting theatergoers for some two hundred years, will reach the screen before long . . . Imagine Shirley Temple in a picture called "The Bowers Princess" . . . Rudy Vallee was given an honorary degree at Suffolk Law school recently . . . Richard Barthelmess will appear in "The Spy of Napoleon," an English picture . . . George Raft traveled East for the Louis Schmeidler fight . . . The French government made Harry Warner, of Warner Brothers, a Chevalier of Honor for producing "The Story of Louis Pasteur."

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Cut out old canes in raspberry bushes when they are through bearing fruit. These canes will never bear fruit again.

Clothes saturated with polishing liquids if stored away in a closet often cause spontaneous combustion. Keep these cloths in a covered tin container.

Annual seeds of such plants as annual poppies, larkspur, sweet alyssum if sown out of doors now in equal parts of soil and coarse sand will be strong enough to live through the winter if well protected.

A cup of peanut butter mixed with half a cup of mayonnaise and one finely chopped raw onion makes a good sandwich spread.

Lingerie must be tinted occasionally to preserve its dainty appearance. A faded blue garment will tint a delicate orchid with the aid of a pink dye, a pale yellow will shade into a delicate green if dipped in blue dye and a pink dye will change the yellow to a shell pink. Be sure to use small quantities of the dye for these pastel shades.

Use the purest of cider vinegar for pickles and pickled preserves. Do not mix two different kinds of vinegar.

Oil or oily substances should never be used on waxed floors. They soften the wax, sink into the wood and eventually darken it.
