PUBLIC SENTIMENT

Interest in the proposal to open Third-st extension, connecting with Lake-st at Baldridge's corner has grown stronger and stronger. You can hear talk in favor of this project in every part of the city. It is now up to the mayor and city council to take immediate action in pushing through this much-needed improvement.

Plans for this project are complete, and it can be put through under the WPA program. All that is needed is right-of-way through the Graham property near Harris Fork Creek. Opening of a street connecting Third and Lake Streets would improve the valuation of the property adjoining, and the city should not find it difficult to come to an agreement with owners of this property.

Opening of Third-st extension would form a decade link in the network of downtown business thoroughfares, and materially relieve traffic congestion in this district under proper traffic regulation.

Narrow Commercial-ave, also connecting with Lake-st, and one of the worst congested streets in town could be made into a one-way street with Third-st extension another one-way street running in the opposite direction. With parking zones on one side of these streets, the flow of traffic would be simplified and much easier regulated.

The council faces a problem in setting up regulation for parking on Lake-st after it is completed, and opening of Third-st extension would be a wise move, as well as a timely improvement for Fulton. But immediate action is necessary by the city.

AUTO ACCIDENT PROVES FATAL

Mrs. Grace Ferguson and son, J. D. Ferguson of Fulton, and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Caldwell of Union City started the funeral services for Mrs. Stella Hicks, 42, and her step-daughter, Miss Betty Jean Hicks, 8, Saturday morning in St. Louis.

Mr. Hicks, who is a brother of Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Hicks and daughter, were injured in an automobile accident which occurred near Pinkneyville, Ill., last Wednesday, August 5. Mrs. Hicks was severely injured and died 12 hours later, and the little girl sustained internal injuries to die five hours later. Mr. Hicks, who also suffered internal injuries, developed bronchial pneumonia and was not expected to live.

The wreck occurred when a fire blew out as the Hicks family were passing a truck. Their machine overturned in the truck, turned over and caught fire. They were enroute to their home after visiting his sister in Fulton.

RAILROAD EMPLOYEE MYSTERIOUSLY INJURED

Ed Parton, employee of the Illinois Central railroad here, was found mysteriously injured and unconscious last Thursday night in the north end of the new yards at ten o'clock. He was rushed to the railroad hospital at Paducah.

Mr. Parton was seen to pass the passenger station about 3 o'clock enroute to his home in Riceville. About two hours later he was found critically injured. His right hand was badly mangled, a deep gash was cut in his head, and numerous abrasions were found about the body. After being taken to the hospital in a semi-conscious condition he is alleged to have muttered something about being robbed, and it is believed that he was probably knocked in the head by an assailant. It is possible that he was also struck by a passing train.

It is reported that his condition is improving, but that he will likely lose his mangled hand.

MRS. HERRINGTON RANKS 1ST AS HUSBAND CALLER

Mrs. Edward Herrington of Sylvan Shade, stood crowned for the second time in a year as champion husband caller of Fulton county during the Farm Bureau meeting here last week. Her shrill "E-D-W-A-R-D" out-clashed the half dozen entrants in a feature contest of the annual picnic and barbecue for the farm bureau which attracted over 1,000 guests and visitors.

Last fall Mrs. Herrington put in contest during the Hickman community fair. Mrs. Harry Lee King of Sasfras Ridge, was awarded second in the farm bureau event.

GRAVEL TAX BEATEN IN WEAKLEY COUNTY

Weakley county voted down the proposed 10-cent gravel tax by the narrow margin of 1,535 to 1,400 in a general county election, it was revealed this week when official returns from the primary and general election were canvassed. The tax, had it been voted, would have been used for 350 miles of gravel roads in rural sections during the next ten years.

"GREEN PASTURES" COMING TO ORPHEUM SUNDAY-MONDAY IS MAMMOTH PICTURE

At last "The Green Pastures," Marc Connelly's Pulitzer Prize play that ran eighteen solid months on Broadway and was shown throughout the United States, thrilling millions of people comes to the screen.

The picture, which retains all the unique qualities that made the stage production known as "America's Best Loved Play," will have its local performance at the Orpheum Theatre Sunday and Monday. Box office will open at 1.00 p.m. both days in order for every one to see this great film.

It is said to be the most pretentious production ever attempted by Warner Bros., or any other studio, and was filmed in the same lavish manner as "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Anthony Adverse." Absolutely nothing was spared in the making of this film to give this inspiring play the majestic back-

CITIZENSHIP AT WORK

We cannot all be interested in everything which interests groups of people, but we can lend our general support to all county and community projects as well as our enthusiastic efforts along lines of distinct personal appeal.

It is obvious that this community is now pulling together in a manner which reflects much credit upon the citizenship as a whole. There is a philosophy which states that co-operation is purely selfish, as that which aids a community will aid the individual. That may be to a certain extent, but we find it a hard thing to believe that the average citizen supports civic betterment movements because of selfish reasons. On the contrary, it is our opinion that citizens of this community are entirely human in their desires to see Fulton progress. Civic pride spurs citizens on to do things that make their community a finer and better place in which to live.

There are many programs eliciting community-wide support at this time. The more county and community projects carried through to a successful culmination, the better community we will have. Citizenship at work is what builds a community.

WATCH FOR THE NEW BOB WHITE DOLLAR

Have you come across Mr. Dollar yet? Well, if you haven't, you will.

Mr. White of the Bob White Motor Company has inaugurated the plan of paying off all his employees with silver dollars. Everyone knows the scarcity of silver dollars in everyday money exchange the 3 days so when you see a silver dollar or be reminded that Bob White probably started it on its merry way.

Mr. White points out that the circulation of money in a community controls the prosperity and growth of the community. In order to show how these dollars work to build a community, he has adopted the plan of paying off with silver dollars.

It is a very definite way of showing how dollars spent and re-spent at home provide a steady income and revenue, which in turn make a prosperous community. So when you meet Mr. Dollar bid him welcome, then send him along to another. Keep him busy, going from pocket to pocket. Meanwhile, Bob White will start a lot of his twin brothers every week.

LIME SPECIALIST VISITS IN FULTON COUNTY

S. C. Jones, Field Agent in Soils and Crops, from the Agricultural Experiment Station, conducted five meetings over the county this past week, and discussed with the farmers the possibility of using limestone in order for time to receive under the new conservation program. Results of experiments were given, and they conclusively indicated that farmers could not afford not to use limestone. Results from some experiments carried on at Princeton showed that for each dollar spent for limestone at this time through increase in crops raised on this land.

Mr. Jones also pointed out the necessity of sowing the winter cover crops on all cultivated land in order to prevent the leaching of nitrogen and phosphorus during the winter season. This would necessitate the cutting and shocking of corn on land that is rolling enough to wash seed bed for wheat, rye and barley. The yields of these small grain crops will not be as large as from land that is summer fallowed and sown, but by applying phosphate when the small grain is seeded an increase yield can be expected large enough to more than pay for the fertilizer used, and if grass and clovers are seeded at this time they will be greatly helped by this fertilizer treatment.

Mr. Jones does not believe that the farmers of this county have realized the full value of shocked fodder, and states that the winter pasture that can be expected from this practice will more than pay for the cutting and shocking of the corn. The decreased expenses of preparing the seed beds for small grains will enable farmers to buy more phosphate and limestone and thus enable them to build land much faster than by the general practice.

While in the county Mr. Jones found three mail beds on the farm of George Davis. These beds appear to be high in calcium carbonate and Mr. Jones contemplates spreading enough of this mail to take up his soil building payment. It is believed that a considerable number of beds can be located thru the Brownsville community.

SWINE SPECIALIST MAKES SUGGESTIONS TO HOG RAISERS

Grady Sellers spent two days with the County Agent holding meetings for the purpose of advising farmers of the importance of having pigs farrowed under sanitary conditions. Mr. Sellers suggests that if farmers will move the sows to clean pasture fields just before the pigs are farrowed, and then never permit pigs to return to land where hogs have been raised, until this land has been broken, that from one to two bushels of corn per hundred pounds of pork may be saved in fattening hogs, and from three to six weeks time may be expected to be saved in the length of time required to get hogs ready for market.

Since the price of corn and other feed stuffs are unusually high, it appears to be very profitable to save all of the pigs farrowed and make as an economical and quick gains as possible. Mr. Sellers also states that worms reduce to vitality of hogs and thus makes them susceptible to disease such as cholera and swine plague.

FULTON MERCHANTS ARE IMPROVING WINDOWS

Believing in the logic that a good front speaks well for a business, many Fulton merchants are improving their window displays. Considerable time and effort is being devoted in properly displaying merchandise, and windows are now being changed more often.

The P. H. Weeks store on Lake Street has a most unusual and attractive window this week featuring Shirley Temple dresses. Lewis Weeks who arranged the display, deserves commendation.

CIVIL SERVICE IN COUNTIES

We read in an exchange the other day, that the Ohio State Civil Service Commission has decided to extend the merit system to county government, placing around 10,000 jobs under competitive examination.

This is an encouraging maneuver in the battle to take politics out of government. It penetrates another unit of administration that employs hundreds of thousands over the country.

The step marks recognition of the fact that taxpayers have as much right to the protection of civil service in county government as they in the larger state and federal departments.

Here is a procedure that has been delayed too long. The Ohio example should be followed throughout the country.

Let every merchant, clerk and attorney get some article, a sales talk and a load of unmitigated gall and make the rounds. After the housewives of Fulton have answered the doorbells to their calls and seen the displays they will probably be tired of front door merchants.

To make sure the day will be a success, we suggest that prizes be offered to the "peddler" who makes the largest number of sales. Of course, there must be a deposit from the housewife, who will be required to wait seven days for the delivery of the article.

Then if it goes bad, there must be no comeback on the merchant. No guarantees allowed and bull dogs barred.

BETTER DO SOMETHING

(Courier-Journal)
The South has been concerned regarding the handicap of freight rate discrimination. Historically agricultural and impoverished by war which had stimulated industrial development in the North. Dixie didn't realize for more than half a century what was being done, but took it for granted that manufacturing grew up like vegetation in the most salubrious climate.

With the dubiously philanthropic acquiescence of other sections, rates on raw materials from the South to their plants have been generally reduced; but Southern manufactured articles don't enjoy the same advantage to competitive points. At last the South is becoming aroused. The Nashville Banner asserts that "the South is practically barred from some of the best markets in the country." The Birmingham Age-Herald believes, "If the South's industrial growth is to continue and if the industries we already have are not to be stifled by unfair competitive conditions, rates must be adjusted." The Atlanta Constitution asks for no special favors nor any unfair advantages, but it does demand fair treatment. The Montgomery Advisor observes "numerous instances of discrimination against Southern products."

This is not something new, only newly discerned below the Ohio Northern business men and Northern railroads co-operate to their mutual advantage. They have done it since the middle of the last century. They always plead for an off-set to "cheap Southern labor," a condition Sou-

THE SUCCESS FAMILY

A FASTER COUNT

Kentucky's first experience with the Brock-Gilbert Law amendment during the count of returns election night, seems to have been satisfactory. Sunday morning's Courier-Journal reported 291,252 votes from 2,335 precincts in all but five small counties and 150 to 381 in every Congressional District outside Jefferson County.

Returns from more precincts probably were published than were heard from election night when the votes were counted by precinct election officers. And they were correct, the ballot boxes of "missing precincts" were known to be under guard at the Court Houses. "Missing precincts" in close elections formerly were often the objects of suspicion.

This was a short ballot and a party ballot. The count of election returns in November will not be as fast. The ballot will contain names of Presidential electors for all the various parties, of candidates for Senator, Representative and the Clerk of the Court of Appeals and in several districts one or two others. Enough, however, will be counted to indicate the drift of sentiment throughout the State, and, by organizing and beginning the work election night, the count is expedited. The tabulators can resume in the morning where they left off the night before. (Courier-Journal).

SAFETY SLOGANS

Most railroad crossings accidents are caused when drivers approach the crossings and slow down with the engine in high. When they step on the gas it kills the engine. The safe way is to shift to second gear. The twilight hour is the zero hour for motor car accidents. Visibility seems to be at its lowest at this time of day.

June is the record month for automobile accidents. Drive carefully. Official reports show that approximately 7 percent of the drivers involved in 1925 accidents were under the influence of liquor. If you must drink don't drive. Someone in every swimming party should understand first aid and understand how to get a drowning person out of the water.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
WEEKLY BUSINESS SURVEY

Although the drought situation remained acute in some sections of the country and was reflected to some extent in wholesale markets, retail trade in general continued to ward off the normal Summer slump and in many cities the volume was greater than the previous week, as well as the 1935 period, reports to the Department of Commerce from all sections indicated. Pronounced gains over the previous week were attributed to increased consumer interest in home-furnishings and furniture, while there was some advance Fall buying. Crop conditions outside the drought areas were excellent.

Memphis, for example, reported that the buying power of Tri-State farmers was greatest since 1930. In Cleveland, it was said Ohio crops were better than normal with 30% better than the average. Minneapolis reported some improvement as a result of scattered showers with country merchants in drought area still optimistic. In the Northwest, fruit and crop harvests were progressing nicely, according to the Seattle and Portland reports. The moisture deficiency continued in the St. Louis area with much of the corn being cut for current feed and silage to defeat the grasshopper scourge in Northern and Western counties. Jacksonville and Atlanta reported excellent results from the opening tobacco sales with better quality and higher prices than last year. The Georgia crop was estimated to yield the growers $14,000,000.

In New York, there was an increased demand for canned and package goods as drought news created expectation of higher prices. Some cancellation of orders from drought areas was reported by the Pittsburgh steel industry.

While most cities reported retail trade gains over last year, sharp improvement over the previous week occurred in New Orleans, Atlanta, Wilmington, St. Louis, Philadelphia and Washington. The 28% retail gain in St. Louis over the previous week was in the face of severe drought conditions in that area. There was an easing off into a seasonal lull in Kansas City notwithstanding a stronger demand for canned goods, while Los Angeles also reported some recession. Summer sales were stimulating factors in some cities.

Leading wholesale markets were buoyant with retail buyers attracted by special exports. In New York orders were placed freely and with confidence and the tendency was to quality merchandise. Other markets crowded with buyers were Minneapolis, Los Angeles, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, and Kansas City. A Memphis wholesale furniture distributor operating 36 stores in the South reported 21% increased business during the first half of the year over last year.

Industrial activity was being sustained at high levels and considerable expansion was reported. A $75,000 modern steel citrus packing plant was being constructed in Dade City, Fla.; Detroit reported a $100,000 expansion of the Norge plant for motor car accidents. Visibility seems to be at its lowest at this time of day.

June is the record month for automobile accidents. Drive carefully. Official reports show that approximately 7 percent of the drivers involved in 1925 accidents were under the influence of liquor. If you must drink don't drive. Someone in every swimming party should understand first aid and understand how to get a drowning person out of the water.

OLD SANTA FE TRAIL

REPRODUCED BY FORD

The Old Santa Fe Trail, first broken by explorers and adventurers, is reproduced in part as a section of the "Roads of the Southwest," which skirts the lagoon opposite the Ford building at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas. This trail is one of nine reconstructed historic roads and highways which have played important parts in the development of the Southwest.

The original Santa Fe Trail extended from Independence, Mo., 775 miles to San Francisco, New Mexico following closely the Arkansas River to Bent's Fort, Colorado, where it turned southward, crossing the Raton Mountains and reaching Santa Fe by way of the valleys of the Canadian and Pecos rivers.

Early in the nineteenth century, however, Captain Zebulon Pike attracted the public to the possibilities of carrying on trade with Mexico, which then included the territory now comprising Texas, and soon long packs of mules and covered wagons, drawn by ten or twelve oxen, began to wear the trail into a rough road.

By 1824 this trade with Mexico became so important that the United States government authorized the survey of a road from the Missouri River to the boundary line of Mexico at the Arkansas river, and from there on to Santa Fe. This road, naturally followed the route of the Old Santa Fe Trail.

As much as possible, the road followed the banks of rivers, but many times travel was difficult because of deep and murky channels. The extension of the Santa Fe Trail from Santa Fe to Los Angeles was known historically as the Old Spanish Trail. This route was a mule trail in every sense of the word, and figured greatly in the caravan trade between these two points in the first half of the nineteenth century. Practically the entire route of the Old Santa Fe Trail now is paved with concrete or oiled surface.

"THE WORLD FOR GOD"

A wise man once said, "The answer to substitution is always 'No'." There is no "just as good" when it comes to Salvation, and there are many who offer substitutes.

There is, for instance, the substitution which life offers to the earnest seeker of the truth.

There is the substitution of false standards; standards which compromise with the eternal verities; standards which are born of circumstances and condition and environment, and which must pass with the circumstance and condition and environment, and to these mankind must say "No."

The standards inculcated at mother's knee—standards of honor and justice, standards which make for happiness, temporal and eternal, must never be exchanged for a substitute.

They may lead to a high place, or they may lead to a Cross.

In one case they led to a Cross, but there was no compromise.

The matter was definitely settled one night in a garden by the Master, who said, "Thy will be done!"

What about our personal standards? Have they been lowered? Are we less men or women than we were boys and girls?

In making our world, our personal life, a World For God, we go back to the old verities and refuse a substitute.

MORE THAN 200,000
UNEMPLOYED IN KENTUCKY

The types, background and personal status of the more than 200,000 unemployed persons registered with the district offices of the National Reemployment Service in Kentucky are statistically summarized in a study that has just been completed in Washington, according to Myer Freyman, state reemployment director.

Trends in occupational classifications and composition and characteristics of the registered workers are revealed by the study and some unusual facts are indicated by the figures.

It is shown that twenty-seven registrants over twenty-five years of age have no work history. These potential employees have been unable to find work of any kind and present one of the acute economic problems that confronts the Reemployment Service in finding work opportunities for the unemployed. More than 600 youths between eighteen and twenty-five years of age are actively seeking but present a problem in that knowledge of their capacities and abilities are so limited that they cannot be assigned to a definite occupational group. The foregoing together with other information, hitherto unobtainable except in a few scattered communities, is now available through comparative studies of the statistical data supplied in and tabulated by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

This inventory was inaugurated on November 1, as a national project to compile an adequate record of registered unemployed as of November 16. From the records of the employables from all states, a punched-card file is maintained in Washington. The records there are kept current by daily and weekly reports from each state. This central file system makes available for tabulation for the first time, all types of data of all job seekers registered in the United States Employment Service offices of the nation.

The inventory records of the employment seekers contains a series of items establishing the personal status of each applicant and his place in the economic organization of the country. Information as to residence, sex, color, year of birth, veteran status, whether relief or non-relief, and principal occupation established on the basis of training and experience as reported to interviewers of the Employment Service, covers 200,542 applicants in Kentucky in the active file as of November 16. Although the active files have been reduced to 132,129 by elimination of all applicants not now available for work since the inventory was completed, the general conditions which are reflected by the study still prevail in most respects. Further information will be issued from time to time affording more specific data on trends and composition of the registered unemployed in Kentucky.

RUGGED HILLS AND BLUFF TURNED INTO FINE PARK

The rugged hills and bluff on the old site of Columbus, Kentucky, where great battles were fought during past wars, where the largest chain ever made up to that time was strung across the mighty Mississippi river to prevent U-Boats out of range of soldiers, has now been turned into a place of beauty by the state government. The old trenches that were used during the war are still very noticeable and the overhanging trees and vines afford a most magnificent place for a cool hike.

Upon entering the Columbus-Belmont Park on the site near where Columbus now stands, since the government moved the town upon the hills away from the treacherous Mississippi, you come to an office being conducted by Mr. R. A. Summers, mayor of Columbus. He guides visitors and tells them of the wonderful sights to see while visiting the park. A small charge of 10 cents per person is now being charged. This fee goes to beautify the park. The picnic grounds are well kept, they being plentifully supplied with concrete and iron stoves for the purpose of cooking meals.

Fountains adorn the grounds with cool water running at all times. But, the most enjoyable of all is the long River Trails. One will go to the extreme northern part where the most beautiful river view can be seen. One can stand on the bluff at this point and see for miles in either direction. Nearby has been erected a foundation for the mighty chain and anchor from that was brought up from Columbus. The river trail starts here and winds through the rugged bluffs until you reach the bottom. The government has erected nice steps with railings on either side to protect visitors. Small benches have also been erected at different places down the trail, 219 steps complete the run down the bluff.

More one will find people from numerous states daily. People who come to the place that once was designated as the capital of the United States. On your next outing and picnic visit this historical spot.

TAX DECISION APPEALED TO HIGHER COURT

Attorney Roy A. Roberts, filed an appeal Monday in Graves circuit court, at Mayfield, following decision of County Judge W. B. Sullivan in action involving assessment of bank shares for taxes.

The Graves county board of supervisors, raised the value of bank shares from $40 to $50 per value. First National Bank of Mayfield filed suit in the lower court and produced evidence to show that more of the stock had sold at higher than $38 per share during the previous year.

Judge Sullivan held that $40 per share was a fair value to list the taxes, and now Attorney Roberts appealing his decision in behalf of the county. The proposed raise would be from $727,000 to $990,000.

More than 350 million dollars have been invested in new railway track-age alone in the last six lean years.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

The War On "Gas"

They're trying to outlaw gas as a weapon of warfare. And, I've been fighting "gas" in my patients all my professional life. Yes, gas is always an enemy unless it comes through a meter for the range, and you run there, if you don't watch your step.

I have learned a few things about the "gas-patient." The first, he has been overloading. That's the thing about question I ask myself, when I begin to show symptoms of inflation. I find the cause of discomfort right there, nine times out of ten, just over-indulgence in eating. You, dear reader, may find the same thing in your own case. Attend to volume in diet.

Next, I learn that gases will accumulate if the sewer is clogged. To combat this, I use a simple, but effective laxative to relieve immediate distress. This must be done. Always. Then shut off the excess of eating for a few days. This will cure the average patient with "just gas."

Third, there may be fermentation in the digestive tract. I find this in the fellow who is extremely nervous, or the worried, anxious patient. The bowels are not really constipated, and there is belching, eructations, laxative again, with alkaline powders for a few days to neutralize excess of acid. Mild diet, and rest the nerves.

Fourth, I prescribe an artificial digestive, unless my patient is confined to bed with disease of other organs than the stomach. I don't like to hurry a stomach that needs rest, nor do I encourage a lazy one by doing its work for it.

U. S. TAKES 11 OUT OF 22 OLYMPIC EVENTS

The United States again proved its prowess during the Olympic games just staged in Berlin, Germany. America came off with 11 victories out of 22 events for men during an eight-day track and field competition. Following are the events and winners for the United States:

100 meter—James Owens
200 meters—Jesse Owens
400 meters—Archie Williams
800 meters—John Wood
110 meter hurdles—Forrest Town
400 meter hurdles—Glen Hardin
Pole Vault—Earle Meadows
Broad Jump—Jesse Owens
High Jump—Cornelius Johnson
Discus Throw—Ken Carpenter
Javelin Throw—Ken Carpenter
Decathlon—Clayton Morris

Miss Helen Stephens of Fulton, Mo., raced around the track to win the women's 400 meter relay race in 46.9 seconds, matching the old Olympic record.

The Olympiad saw record-breaking exploits in 16 events. Americans contributed record feats in nine State's events, with Owens, Ohio State's negro ace, figuring four times in competition, which shook the Olympic record list from top to bottom.

Forty-five cents of every dollar the railroads take in go for railway payrolls.

Citizens of Fulton August 12, 1936. And Vicinity.

The month of August has been designated by the livestock associations and meat packers as a period to feature Beef and Veal sales for that month. This is nation-wide, so we are asking all our customers and friends to join in with us to push the sales of beef and veal as we have never done before and to encourage all customers to eat more beef than they ordinarily do. The purpose of this is to encourage the raising of more livestock at satisfactory prices.

At this time most all meat markets are handling the highest grade beef and veal to be had. Always call for the REELFOOT brand of cold storage beef and you will never have cause for complaint of the quality.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

Browder Milling Company has very kindly agreed to pay $5 toward defraying the expenses of 4-H club members to and from the 4-H Club Camp at Paducah.

All farmers of Western Kentucky are invited to the Annual Field Day to be held at Princeton Sub-Station on Friday, August 14. The purpose of this meeting is to show the results of experiments that are being conducted on all types of livestock and farm crops.

Four ounces of Bluestone dissolved in three gallons of water and four ounces of this material given to each mature sheep on the farm will greatly decrease damage caused by stomach worms this winter.

Because of the drought all red clover and lespedeza seed should be very carefully saved as the return per acre from seed saved will probably amount to three or four times the amount of money that the hay from this acreage would bring.

Plans for trench silos can be secured at the County Agent's office. A number of these temporary silos were constructed in this county in 1934 and 1935 and have proven to be very satisfactory for the saving of corn fodder for feeding during the winter. Silage can be prepared that is equal in feeding value to that stored in much more expensive silos.

Farm Supervisors will start to work measuring land the last of this week. Letters are being mailed out to all who signed a work sheet and you should go and draw your maps and have them ready when the man come to your place.

WATER VALLEY NEWS

The Gossum family reunion was held at the County Agent's office last Sunday. There were approximately 160 present.

The new highway from Water Valley to Cuba is rapidly nearing completion. This road passes historic Camp Beauregard where several hundred Confederate soldiers were buried.

The Water Valley school system will open Monday as planned, although it was feared that the infantile paralysis epidemic might interfere.

Charles Haskell is supervising the remodeling of his home which is situated next to the Gulf station.

George Pendegast, owner of the George Dept. Store, has returned from Elizabethtown where he has been on a short business trip.

Misses Nova and Rubye McNeil returned from Oklahoma where they vacationed with their sister. They have taken rooms with Mrs. Ben Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wilson returned last week from Akron, Ohio.

Mrs. Mae Lee of Savannah, Ga., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Guy McClure.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cornwell of Detroit spent Tuesday night with Mr. and Mrs. Guy McClure.

Mrs. Al Ropp and daughter, Martha, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ben Scott.

Mrs. Gertie Boyd is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Prentice Glasgow.

Willis Brann and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Melton spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Cloyes.

Mrs. Dessie Abbot shopped in Mayfield last week.

Harold Aldridge has been ill. He returned to his work Wednesday.

Mrs. Houston Owen shows little improvement.

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

The great monster Death has entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. McClure and claimed for its own little Ronald Leon. He was two years on earth, but, oh, how short it seems to us now! God saw fit to pluck this flower from earth and we have the blessed assurance that it is transplanted in heaven, and may the Father and Mother so live that when the Lord shall call for them they can say, "Yes, I'm ready to go and live with Ronald Leon." May the in that home and heal the broken hearts.

The reaper is no respecter of persons, and when death claimed Ronald Leon, a bud was plucked from God's garden of flowers as pure as the lily of the valley.

The bereaved parents and relatives have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends in this dark hour. We know their loss is hard to bear, but those who have faith in Almighty God need have no fear. The little form rests beneath the mound of Johnston Grove cemetery. The soul made its flight to a happier, brighter home where pain and sorrow are not known.

May God comfort and strengthen those left behind in our earnest prayer.

Funeral services were conducted by Winstead-Jones Undertaking Co. Tuesday morning.

IMPORTANT FACTORS IN GROWING PULLETS

There are three important factors in growing pullets that will develop into healthy laying hens this winter.

1. Plenty of cool fresh water at all times.
2. A proper feeding program.
3. Supply a good grade of limestone or oystershells.

There is nothing more important for growing pullets than plenty of cool fresh water at all times. Neglecting this has ruined many flocks of good birds. Don't make this mistake. Change your water at least three times a day.

You can't expect your pullets to make a profit this winter without you feed them properly this summer. Keep growing mash before them at all times. It is a good practice to feed them all the grain they will eat late in the afternoon. This develops the habit of going on the roost with a full crop which will be an advantage to them during the long cold nights this winter. This will help to maintain the body weight of the birds and prevent a winter molt.

However if your pullets do not have a cool place to roost don't feed them too heavy on corn until the weather gets cooler.

Green feed is very important for growing pullets and if you do not have all the green feed they will eat be sure there is at least 10% alfalfa leaf meal in your growing mash.

Growing mash should also contain 5% animal protein which could be meat scrap, dried milk or a combination of both.

Don't feed liquid milk to pullets in the summer time, as this will draw flies which the birds eat, and develop tape worms.

When your pullets are developing it is very important that they have some source of digestible lime. This can be supplied by keeping a good grade of agricultural limestone before them. This is cheaper than oystershell and will also serve as a grit.

However there is one more very important factor in the care of your pullets: Don't waste your feed and time on pullets that are infected with worms, lice, and coccidiosis. Get rid of these three handicaps and then start feeding your pullets like you mean business.

The Silo a Forage Bank

Practically all that can be grown can be saved by the silo. In recent years it has been found—not only in this country but in many foreign nations—that excellent "silage" can be made from nearly all kinds of grass crops. When the plant lacks available sugar, molasses can be supplied and thus the necessary fermentation produced to make the finest silage. Canned goods furnish a large and important part of our diet—and the percentage is rapidly growing—the time will soon come when we will can for our stock as we can for ourselves.

Some of our states are using the silo in a thorough and practical way. For example, Wisconsin has in use about 125,555 silos, which is about one for every 30 head of livestock, and still they are not nearly supplied. It is estimated that we need a million more silos in the United States if we use them as Wisconsin is now doing.

It should not be concluded that the silo is a drought measure only. In simple language, the silo is merely a means of preserving forage just as canning preserves human foods. A bumper crop should be ensiled and, if necessary, carried over for several years. There is no reason why a great drought should cause such a fearful loss. The proper use of the silo would prevent the overproduction of corn as grain. It is high time that the stock farmer seriously considered this problem.

Clean Dairy Utensils

Churns, bottles and crocks are kept sweet and clean by simply washing them in a solution of lye—one level teaspoonful to a gallon of water. The lye unites with the grease and butterfat to form a soft soap which readily dissolves. Rancidity and sourness cannot exist where lye wash solution has been used and your milk containers come out clean and bright with little rubbing.

KENTUCKY STATE FAIR BEGINS SEPTEMBER 14TH

Kentucky's show window will unfold its panorama of Kentucky's progress in all the arts, manufacture and agriculture beginning September 14th and ending with the world's greatest saddle horse event on Saturday night, September 19th.

The nationally known $10,000 saddle horse stake which will be one of the outstanding features of the Kentucky State Fair, September 14-19, promises a larger and finer list of entries from all over the country than have been enrolled in many years. In addition to the World Grand Champion Stake twelve other rich events for saddle horses, harness horses and roadsters will be featured. Advance entries for these showings are unusually large, according to Mr. W. J. "Jeff" Harris, Lexington, Kentucky, Manager of

Two Operators Given Silver Medals, Cash Awards, for Notable Service

MISS MAMIE INEZ PITTS, Operator, Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., Pontotoc, Miss.
MRS. RUBY C. BAHR, Night Operator, Community Telephone Co. of Wisconsin, Fairchild, Wis.

These telephone employees received silver Vail medals and cash awards for noteworthy acts of public service in 1935.

Two telephone operators have recently received silver medals, each with a cash award of $250, from the national committee of award of the Theodore N. Vail Memorial Fund, which provides for the recognition of acts of noteworthy public service on the part of telephone employees.

The recipients of these medals are Miss Mamie Inez Pitts, operator of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company at Pontotoc, Miss., and Mrs. Ruby C. Bahr, night operator of the Community Telephone Company of Wisconsin at Fairchild, Wis.

She Carried On Alone During a Tornado

Shortly after eight o'clock on the night of March 11, 1935, when a severe electrical storm began, Miss Pitts was on duty as one in the telephone exchange located on the second floor of a two-story building. Anticipating interruption to the local electric light service, which later occurred, she secured and lighted the emergency electric lantern, then closed the windows and doors. Hearing the crash of falling trees and houses on the far side of the town, she returned to the switchboard to handle the expected heavy volume of traffic. The tornado, reaching a velocity of sixty miles per hour, struck the building, and tore off the brick coping and a section of the roof. Part of the roof, the ceiling, bricks and other debris crashed to the floor within five feet of where Miss Pitts was seated.

Despite the danger of further collapse of the roof, she remained on duty throughout the night, rendering material assistance to officials and citizens in locating doctors, relatives and relief authorities. To protect the switchboard and the distributing frame from the rain pouring through the damaged roof, she improvised a cover from canvas on her cot and a roll of oil cloth secured from outside, with the result that although the floor was covered with water, the equipment was only slightly damaged. As there was total failure of all long distance lines passing through Pontotoc, she sent a report of the storm damage to the Plant Chief at Tupelo by people driving through, which information materially expedited the completion of repairs to the lines.

She Helped Catch a Murderer

About four o'clock on the morning of August 21, 1935, while on duty, Mrs. Bahr heard the sound of gun fire. Hurrying to the door, she saw an automobile occupied by a man and a woman traveling at high speed in the direction of Black River Falls. Anticipating that the persons in the machine might have been connected with the shooting, she noted the first three digits of the license number and the general characteristics of the car.

Returning to the switchboard, she received a report that a filling station attendant had been shot and killed. She promptly notified the sheriff at Black River Falls, twenty-two miles away, giving complete information and advising that the car was evidently short of gasoline. She next called police authorities at nearby points in all directions and also operators at exchanges along all routes. As a result of her accurate observations and prompt action, the fleeing criminal was quickly located and identified when he drove into a service station at Black River Falls. He attempted to escape, was shot and wounded but finally captured and convicted of murder.

Fifty-seven systems control 90% of electricity, survey discloses. Population of nation rises 3.9% to 127,521,000 in five years.

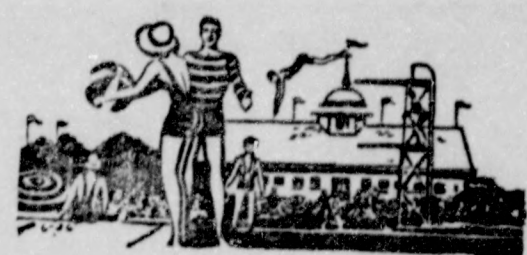

A midwest senator was hit by lightning, but not, it appears, just after he had promised to work heart and soul for his constituents.

The average self-made man keeps quiet about it because probably he thinks he made a bad job.

According to a biologist, the human race eventually will lose its fingers. Probably by wearing them down, scratching heads over how to eke out a living after paying tax bills.

the Fair Horse Show.

Livestock and other farm exhibits are expected to be finest in the history of the Fair. Because of improved conditions in both urban and rural sections, enthusiastic interest in the 34th renewal of the Fair is reported throughout the state.

Indications are that from an attendance standpoint participation standpoint the Fair will be the largest and most successful since 1930. Already more than two-thirds of the exhibit space has been sold. Fair officials report wholehearted support from manufacturers and merchants who plan exhibits. This would indicate that exhibitors are experiencing better times and are expecting this year's fair to be bigger and better than ever.

Improved and redecorated grounds and buildings will greet Fair visitors this year. Exhibit buildings have been made more attractive than ever, and many novel and unique exhibitions have been planned.

The admission price has been reduced to 25c for adults, and 10c for children under 14 years of age. It is believed that the reduced gate admission will do as much to swell attendance figures this year. Season tickets which are good for the duration of the Fair will sell for only $1.00.

GOVERNOR'S HANDICAP WILL BE RUN TOMORROW

Dade Park, Ky. August 14—The Governor's handicap, the feature race of the summer meeting of the Dade Park Jockey club will be run tomorrow, August 15. The event is for three-year-olds and upward over a mile route for a purse of $1,500. Some of the best handicap horses in training are expected to compete in the race.

James C. Ellis, president of the Dade Park Jockey club, has extended invitations to Gov. A. B. Chandler of Kentucky, Gov. Paul McNutt of Indiana, and Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois to be present at the running of the Governor's handicap.

Never in the history of Dade Park has there been more auspicious opening than that Saturday when the thirteenth annual Summer meeting was ushered in by a crowd that almost taxed the capacity of the huge Western Kentucky racing plant. In addition to thousands of racing fans from the tri-state territory of Kentucky, Indiana, and Illinois, there were visitors present from cities far removed from this area. The wagering on the pari-mutuels was lively from the first to the closing event on the program. A new high record for money handled on the opening day was set, which showed an increase of about 30 percent compared with the corresponding day of last year. President Ellis is expecting another record-breaking crowd for his running of the Governor's handicap.

Like them you'll soon be calling me the "miracle cook"—because your meats, vegetables, breads and pastries, etc., will have finer flavor and be more nourishing—because you'll save so much time and work in the preparation of meals—because you'll find me so economical.

JUST PLAIN BORED

(From The Business Record)

"Did you ever attend a theatre to find recreation and entertainment and have to sit through a long, tiresome series of screen 'advertising' that simply bored you to death?"

"You start to squirm and twist in your seat. Your neighbor in the next seat and across the aisle is doing the same thing. It's a perfectly natural reaction, because this type of stuff is a pain in the neck to 99 people out of 100. And the average individual tries to avoid sitting through these pesky episodes. Many even get up and leave the theatre before they see all the feature picture."

"Just watch your reactions to this boring stuff next time you attend a theatre. We wager you'll get bored, too, for after all, you're paying to be entertained."

"Theatres are working merchants for advertising tie-ups on the screen in small towns, because the shrewd business man of the larger cities doesn't go for this stuff. The average merchant who attends the theatre himself doesn't like to sit through it. Maybe he will stand for his own—but if it is the other fellow's, it's just too bad!"

"Another thing. If these same merchants had a stock of merchandise which they absolutely had to dispose of, they would not resort to this so-called screen advertising. They would seek some definite way by which to carry their message into the homes, where it could be perused in quiet, and not be cursed because it was destroying an evening of entertainment."

"Which brings the thought: 'That ANY ADVERTISING MESSAGE THAT LEAVES A BAD TASTE WITH THE GENERAL PUBLIC IS MUCH BETTER LEFT UNSAID, for it really does more harm than good.'"

"This thought is based upon the experience of experts who have made advertising a life study, and upon facts established by advertising agencies, department heads and manufacturing concerns. Statistics kept by them show the correctness of their knowledge in the matter."

FULTON AT MAYFIELD

The Fulton Eagles won both ends of a double-header at Mayfield Sunday afternoon with the Mayfield Cloths. The Eagles took the first single in the last half of the tenth with bases loaded decided the game for Fulton. Score by innings: Hopkinsville 040 003 000 0-7; Fulton 033 000 010 1-8.

Batteries: Joyner, Burge, Knickmeyer and Sternberger; Price, Trent, Wenning and Clonts.

In the first game here with Hopkinsville last Thursday, Fulton Eagles scored three runs in the first inning and were never headed as they turned back the Hoppers 8 to 1.

Score by innings: Hopkinsville 100 000 000-1; Fulton 250 010 403-8.

Batteries: Kinginger, Burge and Switzer; Smith and Clonts.

Childhood
Tugwell's Little Girl
Holland Buys Planes
Rev. Webber Knows

Childhood lasts longer in France than in America and it is real childhood. Boys in their teens, writing letters, call their fathers "petit papa," "Dear little papa," "Imagine that from an American 'prep' school."

Little French girls play innocently with Toto, their little dog, hardly knowing that such things as franks exist, when much older than Assistant Secretary Tugwell's intelligent young daughter, Marcia, aged twelve, who, in partnership with her friends, Mary Frances Cottrell and Joyce Helmick, organized "a laundry for washing dogs." They advertised: "Small dogs, 30 cents; middle-sized dogs, 35 cents; groomed and washed. Dogs not good-natured must be sent with muzzles, and we cannot wash large dogs."

Too bad that parental severity broke up the dog laundry. It had announced working hours "10 a. m. to 5 p. m. on Saturdays," the studious little girls' only holiday, "all hours after school on other weekdays."

What a good example for government enterprises: the little girls really meant to work to "groom and wash" the dogs, not merely stand around and collect the 30 cents.

Plucky little Holland and her wise queen seem to have decided that the 1914 "war to end all wars" did not finish its job. Holland went through the big war safely, selling butter, cheese, eggs, not disturbed, not making any bad $10,000,000,000 loans.

Now Holland is buying 13 heavy bombing planes in Baltimore, spending $1,500,000 for the 13, and spending many other millions for other killing machinery.

That means work and wages in Baltimore; it may mean poison gas and death for some of Holland's neighbors.

Foreign countries read everything said about them in America; not that foreign countries care what Americans think, or attach importance to American opinion, as such; but America has money, raw products, and governments that are sometimes whimsical, changeable and boyish.

Europe, Asia and Africa watch with equal interest statements of Americans that count and more numerous Americans that float like feathers in the air.

One simple-minded Russian pointed with pride to the statement of a clergyman in our Union Theological seminary.

That gentleman, Rev. Charles C. Webber, has a plan for a better government, not based on the text about rendering unto Caesar that which is Caesar's. The big idea is to take away what is Caesar's.

Eight hundred young people were told by Reverend Webber: "God, who is not content with things as they are, is a revolutionary Being, constantly seeking to make all things new."

Rev. Webber, "recognizing this," about God being a revolutionist, has a plan to help God in his efforts; a plan as simple as A, B, C. Capitalism, he says, must be abolished. Rev. Webber wants a planned and planning social economy in the United States. Under the Charles C. Webber plan, people would own and manage such things as industry and property; no money would be spent for war, and youth would rule.

Those brought up with the old-fashioned idea of God might ask Rev. Webber, respectfully: "If God really is a revolutionary 'constantly seeking to make all things new,' why does He not carry out His will and 'make all things new' every few minutes? Can it be that He needs the help of Rev. Webber? Lenin and Stalin got along without that help."

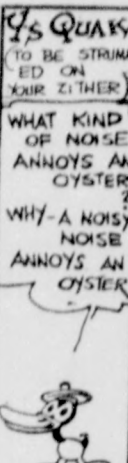

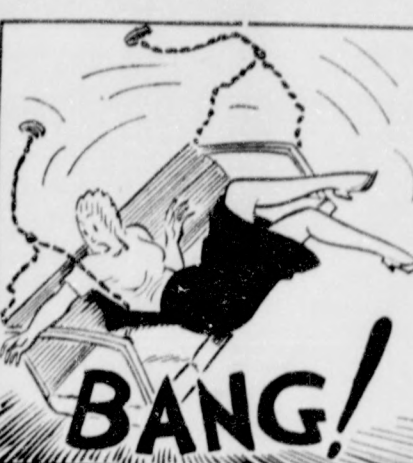

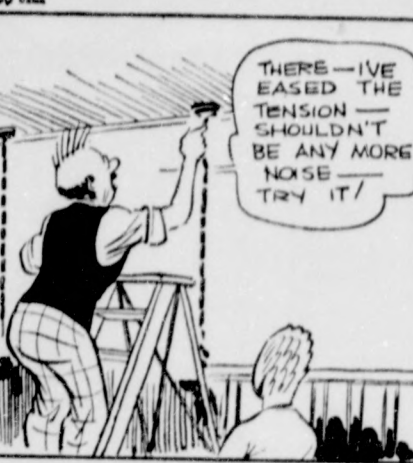

Also arises this question: With capitalism abolished, who would build the churches, the Union Theological seminaries, and pay salaries to Rev. Webbers for reading the mind of the Divinity?

Dean Swift should have known Rev. Webber when he wrote his tale of a tub.

France calls Paris the "aerial port of Europe," proudly. In America the still prouder title "Chief Air Traffic Port of the Whole World" is claimed by Miami, Los Angeles, San Diego, Chicago, Cleveland, and with a great deal of reason by San Francisco and Oakland, thanks to the magnificent bay, and to the fact that the greatest air line, running from America to Asia, starts from that neighborhood.

His Problem

Into the night court they marched a man who had all the earmarks of a professional tough guy. This chap was as desperate looking as any gorilla you've ever seen.

The magistrate looked down at the surly prisoner.

"Well," asked His Honor, "guilty or not guilty?"

The prisoner scowled.

Not Needed

"In this scene, Miss Trimm, the young man rushes into the room, grabs you, binds you with rope from head to foot, and then smotherers you with kisses," explained the film director.

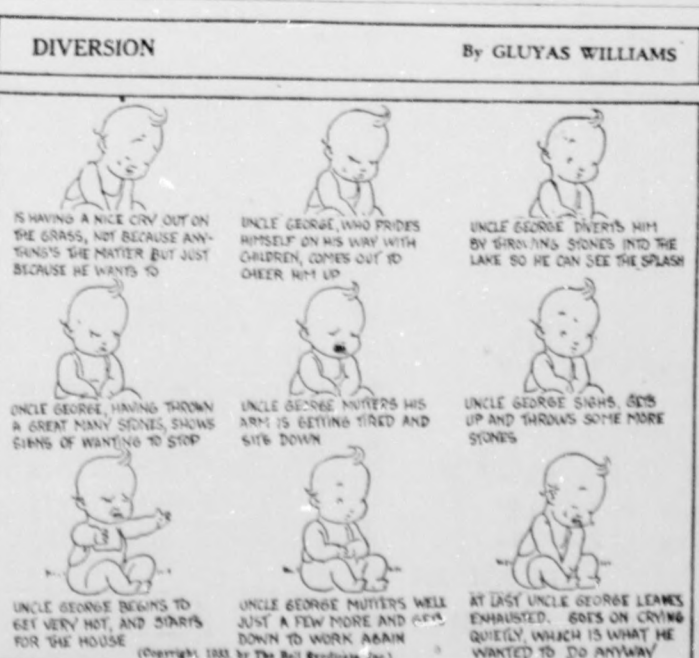

"Is the young man tall, fair, and handsome?" the actress asked.

"Yes, Why?" he asked.

"Then he won't need an' rope," she replied.—Stray Stories Magazine.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
 By WILLIAM BRUCKART
 NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON D. C.

Washington.—There seems to be very little doubt any longer that President Roosevelt is getting ready to spring a new surprise among his many surprises and that he will employ it to wean away as much of the farm vote from Governor Landon of Kansas as is possible. The President usually has a card up his sleeve, one that he can pull out with a flourish and one that, on the surface at least, carries very convincing prospects in the particular line he has chosen.

In this instance, it seems rather well established that you may expect the President to come forward shortly with a brand new proposition for greater co-operative effort between the farmers and the city consumers. He is likely to present this new proposition—some of his critics have been unkind enough to describe it as a new rabbit from the hat—in a dressing that will be quite alluring. It is not clear yet just when the new plan will be offered by the President and his New Deal associates, but the guess can be made that it will come in time to permit a full exposition of the program by the New Dealers in advance of election. By the same token, it is apparent that the President's 1936 promises for the farmers will be disclosed late enough so that the Republicans will have little time to pick it to pieces.

The tip-off on the fact that Mr. Roosevelt is developing another farm program comes in Mr. Secretary Wallace's latest book "Whose Constitution?" Of course, the secretary's observations may not be charged directly to the President. Nevertheless, it is the opinion of many of us who have watched the New Deal wheels go around that the secretary of agriculture usually leads the procession in offering new suggestions for New Deal activities.

Secretary Wallace is a candid man and his frankness continuously has been of an engaging sort. For the reason that he is of this type, I think it can be said usually that his views reflect what is going on beneath the surface. That is, his views ordinarily serve as a trial balloon, whether the secretary realizes it or not, and if they are watched closely, an accurate forecast of what is coming may be made.

It might have been that the secretary's book would have escaped attention as a vehicle carrying a message from the inner circle of New Dealers except for one line that was tucked away in the Democratic platform, or the platform adopted by the Philadelphia convention.

The sentence in the platform with which the secretary's book may properly be connected reads: "We will act to secure to the consumer fair value, honest sales and a decreasing spread between the price he pays and the price the producer receives."

Some observers here have linked that proposition with a thought that Mr. Roosevelt proposes to organize not only co-operatives among the farmers but to link those co-operatives with similar co-operatives among the consumers. The conviction held by these individuals is that Mr. Roosevelt, astute politician that he is, is seeking to kill two birds with one stone. In other words, they contend that his plan will be thrown out as an inducement for the farmers to support his policies and re-elect him and that when he deals with the voters in great industrial areas he will point out to them the possibility of cheaper food in this manner.

We now have had acceptance speeches by both Mr. Roosevelt and his opponent, Governor Landon. The extent that the keynote speeches of the national conventions indicate the trend of mind of the party workers and to the extent that the acceptance speeches tell in a way the deeply rooted views of the candidates, the issues of the campaign are drawn.

Of course, it has frequently been the case that the issues of July are not the issues that decide the election in November. There are those students of politics who are saying this year that the questions discussed by President Roosevelt and Governor Landon in their acceptance speeches are going to have very little to do with the decision of the voters three months hence. I can report only on a consensus among political authorities on this point. That consensus seems to be that Mr. Landon is going to stick to discussion of the major problems as he sees them and that Mr. Roosevelt's strategy will be governed entirely by whatever changes take place in campaign conditions.

In other words, these writers in Washington who have gone through many a harried political battle, seem to feel that Mr. Roosevelt's campaign strategy is going to be exactly like the policies he has followed in his present administration. By that I mean, to quote the President's own words, that "If one thing fails, we will try something else."

There is the conviction among these same writers that Governor Landon will resort to no oratorical flourishes nor will he employ any of the tactics that Mr. Roosevelt has so often used in his fireside radio chats. Further, it is quite evident, I believe, that Governor Landon will make the burden of his plea to the American people an appeal to restore what he considers to be the American form of government. It was quite obvious from his acceptance speech, as it has been evident in some of his pre-campaign pronouncements, that he favors the common sense idea in government management and that he will permit nothing to swerve him from that course.

But it should be said, it seems to me, that if Governor Landon is able to maintain that plane throughout his campaign, he will be deserving of great commendation. There are many observers here who believe he has undertaken a task of the most difficult kind. The governor has built up or others have built up around him an atmosphere of simplicity. It has reached a high pitch. The question is—can he keep the campaign attuned to that pitch from now until November? If he does, he will surprise a great many observers.

Lately, I have heard through underground channels that Democratic Chairman Farley is getting a little irked at the methods employed by the youthful John Hamilton, who is chairman of the Republicans. "Big Jim" has taken a leave of absence as postmaster general, you will remember, in order to devote his time to re-electing President Roosevelt. He is now in a position to battle and, judging by his record, he can be expected to carry on a vigorous fight. That makes it all the more surprising to know that "Big Jim" has grown a little bit peevish as a result of the nudging and the razing that the red-headed Republican chairman has been handing him.

Six weeks elapsed between the nomination of Governor Landon and the date of his formal notification. During this time, Mr. Hamilton alone had to carry the Republican ball. He made numerous speeches and minced no words in any of them. He struck out straight from the shoulder at Mr. Farley.

During that time, Mr. Hamilton really had no one firing back at him. It was exactly the same condition as obtained before the Republicans had selected a candidate and Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Farley had no one to fight back at them. The test for Mr. Hamilton, therefore, will come when Mr. Farley gets into action and the Democratic campaign is fully underway.

There is another phase of the campaign that is going to be interesting to watch. For three years, Mr. Roosevelt has had open channels on the radio, has had the utmost freedom in picking his spots for delivering new pronouncements or his appeals for patience by the people. But that time has passed insofar as the President is concerned. He is now confronted with competition. What I am trying to say is that everywhere and every time the President speaks, he will speak with the knowledge that a fighting opposition is ready to leap on every word and every proposal that he makes. This is an entirely different circumstance than any Mr. Roosevelt has faced since he entered the White House March 4, 1933.

SUCCESS PROCESS TOO COMPLICATED TO BE GIVEN OUT

Few processes are so delicate or complicated as those of success. Who would venture to say that he has mastered them so thoroughly that he can venture to make a success of this individual life. Some people who succeeded never seek guide. They have instincts which guide them in the most difficult moves of the game. They make mistakes, of course. It is often necessary to make mistakes once, so that one need not make them a second time.

William Watson, in one of his poems, has spoken of "that stillness on a base of power." There is fine counsel, as well as truth, in the phrase; for true power goes as quietly about its work as gravitation.

Failure is usually a nervous, fidgety creature, perpetually agitating itself as to whether or not it is succeeding; whether or not it is winning acceptance. Success, on the other hand, does its work, does it with all its might, knows for certain that it has done it well, and, come, praise or blame, passes quickly on to its next job; or if it be not always so scientifically sure of itself as this, it practices what it has called an "optimistic fatalism."

—Richard Le Gallienne.

Odd Occupation

In New York city, Clarence E. Willard, 61, has for an occupation, the "stretching" of men who need added height to help them pass civil service and police examinations to obtain employment. Willard's ability to stretch his own height seven inches has given him the name of "India rubber man." He is 5 feet, 10 1/2 inches high, normally, but can stretch this to 6 feet, 5 1/2 inches at will and can maintain this height for hours even while walking, swimming, etc.

He declares his ability to stretch has been one of the prime factors in maintaining his good health. "Animals stretch for the same reason," he says. Are we in for a new health fad?

Envy

WHAT a wretched and apostate state is this! To be offended with excellence and to hate a man because we approve him! The condition of the envious man is the most emphatically miserable; he is not only incapable of rejoicing in another's merit or success, but lives in a world wherein all mankind are in a plot against his quiet, studying their own happiness and advantage.

Olympic Games Formally Opened in Berlin

With a spectacular ceremony the Olympic Games were officially opened in Berlin when a graceful flame that had been started from Greece dashed into the stadium, lowered the silver torch before Reichsfuehrer Hitler and kindled the sacred fire in a great cresset. Then came the formal parade of the athletes of fifty nations, natively uniformed and marching with precision while drums boomed and bands blared. Some of the foreign groups gave the Hitler salute as they passed by the chancellor. Others did not. Among the latter were the Americans, who placed their straw hats on their left breasts and marched by with eyes right. Nor was the American flag dipped before the fuehrer, the explanation being that this was done only before the President. The American contingent was greeted by an outburst of whistling which the knowing declared meant "the raspberry." But on the whole the affair was decidedly successful.

In the first day's contests the United States started things with a rush. Jesse Owens, Ohio State's colored star, broke the Olympic and world records in winning his heat in the 100-meter dash; and Johnson, who is from California, set a new Olympic record of 2.03 meters. In some other events the Americans did well, and in yet others they were eliminated.

In the 100 meter finals Owens won and Metcalfe of Chicago was second. Helen Stephens of Missouri, in winning two heats of the women's 100 meter event, broke the world record both times.

By a vote of 36 to 27 Tokyo won the Olympic games for 1940, Finland being the losing bidder. The Americans, South America and the British empire were virtually solid for Japan, which offered a transportation subsidy of about $485,000 to offset costs of traveling in the Far East. The Finns urged that the games be returned to a Spartan simplicity.

Lewis and Allies Absent

When A. F. of L. Council Meets JOHN L. LEWIS, head of the United Mine Workers, and his 11 associates on the Committee for Industrial Organization, made good their promise not to be present when the executive council of the American Federation of Labor met to try them on charges of "insurrection." The council members were plainly angered by this defiance and it was predicted they would proceed to find the defendants guilty "in absentia" and to suspend the unions in the Lewis group. This would be the greatest split in the ranks of American organized labor since the federation was formed fifty years ago. It would mean the loss of about one-third of the federation's membership.

Previous to the meeting of the council President William Green in an impassioned speech accused Lewis and his followers of substituting "jungle law" for democracy in their efforts to organize the steel industry. He said he was prepared to make any personal sacrifice, even to resigning his office, to bring about peace and "bind up the wounds."

Col. Roosevelt Willing to Run for Governor

NEW YORK Republicans are to nominate a candidate for governor at their party convention in September, and Col. Theodore Roosevelt has said in a letter that was made public that he is willing to accept that honor if the party so desires.

Colonel Roosevelt, now forty-eight years old, was the Republican candidate for governor in 1924 and was defeated by Alfred E. Smith. Since then he has been governor of Puerto Rico and governor-general of the Philippines.

Puerto Rico Nationalists Are Found Guilty PEDRO ALBIZU CAMPOS, leader of the Puerto Rico Nationalist party, and seven of his associates were found guilty at San Juan of a conspiracy to overthrow the United States government in the island by force and were sentenced by Federal Judge R. A. Cooper to prison terms ranging from two to six years. In the first trial of these men the jury had disagreed. The defense attorneys gave notice of appeal.

President Roosevelt's Vacation Is Ended PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ended his 437 mile cruise when his yacht docked at Campobello island, New Brunswick, where he has a summer home.

Mr. Roosevelt remained at Campobello only two days and then took a special train to Quebec, where he visited with Lord Tweedsmuir, governor general of Canada.

Immediately after this meeting, Mr. Roosevelt took train for his summer residence in Hyde Park, N. Y., and there began mapping the plans for his campaign for re-election. Half a dozen leaders of the Democratic party, including National Chairman James A. Farley, were summoned into conference with their chief. The President also obtained from Secretary Wallace and Chester Davis a report on drought conditions and relief needs.

The case originated in a clash between Nationalists and police last October in which several persons were slain. Following this, Col. E. Francis Riggs, chief of insular police, was murdered, presumably in revenge for the killing of Nationalists in the October fight.

New Locarno Pact May Give Europe Security

WHILE the nations of Europe were worrying over the Spanish rebellion and the danger that it might bring about open rupture among the Fascist and anti-Fascist governments of the continent, were taken to assure peace. Germany and Italy accepted the invitation of Great Britain, France and Belgium to participate in a conference this fall from which it is hoped another and better Locarno pact will emerge.

No date for the conference has been set, but it was expected to be held either just before or soon after the meeting of the league of nations assembly in Geneva in September.

Zioncheck Does Not Seek Re-election to Congress

HEREAFTER Washington will have to get along without the excitement provided by the antics of Marion A. Zioncheck of Seattle, Wash. That eccentric—to put it mildly—gentleman has announced that he is not a candidate for re-election, because of his mother's ill health, and says he wants to be America's forgotten man. Zioncheck has settled down to private law practice.

Progress of Revolution in Spanish Republic

GEN. FRANCISCO FRANCO'S rebel forces in Spain, according to late reports, were pressing the government troops seriously and winning some bloody encounters. This despite the claims of Madrid that the rebels had been checked. The rebel columns advancing on the capital from the south were reported to be threatening communications between Madrid and the eastern sea coast at Valencia and Alicante, chief sources of the government's food supplies. Leaders of the insurgents claimed they held Huelva, important seaport, and all the territory between Seville and the Portuguese border.

The government, now a red dictatorship, has taken possession of all church property and assumed control of all industry and agriculture. It also has confiscated the merchant marine to form a defense fleet. The loyalists were encouraged by victories in and around San Sebastian.

Fascist Italy has been accused of aiding the Spanish rebels, and it is asserted a number of Italian bombing planes were sent to them in Morocco. The leftist French government naturally is in sympathy with the Madrid government and Frenchmen, unarmed, have been given permission to cross the border to aid in putting down the rebellion. German and Russian sympathies, also, are ranged on opposite sides, and all this caused fears that a general war might result. France called on all other nations to preserve neutrality, and Spain warned Italy and Germany to keep hands off.

Day by day the struggle in Spain became bloodier and more ruthless. Summary executions of prisoners were common on both sides and these deaths were probably as numerous as those in battle. The government planes showered bombs on the rebel strongholds, virtually destroying many towns; and the Fascist bombers engaged in desperate fights with loyal warships.

STAR DUST

Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

THE death of Thomas Meighan may not mean very much to the younger movie-goers, but it will shock those who remember him as one of the big stars of the days of silent pictures. Like many stage stars, he was not too sure at first that he would like pictures.

But he did "The Miracle Man" and with it hit his stride. Oddly enough, Lon Chaney made his name in that picture too. And so did Betty Compson, who was finding it none too easy to climb the ladder of fame.

Nobody suspected that "The Miracle Man" would be such an epoch-making picture as it was. But it established its three leading actors as stars almost overnight.

And speaking of star-making pictures, see what's happened to the people who appeared in "The Private Life of Henry the Eighth," none of whom were well known in this country till it was released—and the rest of the world had acclaimed only Charles Laughton, of the cast.

But since then Laughton, Robert Donat, Merle Oberon, Wendy Barrie and Binnie Barnes have been welcomed by Hollywood. All have been extremely successful in American pictures.

Since her marriage Jean Parker has been luckier than many Hollywood brides; she has had assignments that provided a pleasant honeymoon. First they went to Texas, on location with the company that was making "The Texas Ranger"; now they're off to Mammoth lake and the mountains for "King of the Royal Mounted." Now all she needs is an engagement with some company that's headed for Honolulu, Hollywood's pet honeymoon spot.

Joe Penner is going to make that picture at last. And because children have become sure-fire hits on the screen, he'll be assisted by Patsy Lee Parsons, a five-year-old who sings and dances. The dancing teachers of this land ought to give Shirley Temple a medal or something. Everywhere—even out in the country where you wonder where and how they can take dancing lessons, you see little girls doing tap dancing nowadays. And Shirley is responsible for that!

Just one more story of the way things happen in Hollywood. Samuel Goldwyn wanted a German actress for a role in "Come and Get It." He was sure that none of the local talent measured up. So he had old German films run off for him, for days and days, in the hope of seeing exactly the right actress in one of them. If he found her, where she was, and put her under contract, and have her brought to California at once.

He found the girl in a picture called "Frederika" and the wheels began to turn. Then it was discovered that she is Mady Christians, who has been right in Hollywood for two years, yearning to make a lot of pictures but not getting too many assignments.

Remember Joan Crawford in "Dancing Lady"? The picture is being reissued not because of Joan's popularity, but because Fred Astaire had a small part in it. Nelson Eddy had a bit, too—just a flash and he's gone. And now we what fame the gentlemen have attained on the screen? Fred Astaire has achieved an unprecedented popularity in the gay night club type of vehicle; Nelson Eddy has become the idol of millions of movie goers as well as radio listeners.

Memorial to Crusoe

The government of Chile has decided to make a national park of Robinson Crusoe's island in the Pacific, Juan Fernandez.

The cave where lived Alexander Selkirk, the original of Robinson Crusoe, the lookout from which he watched for passing ships, and his other associations will now be in the care of keepers, and guides will be available for visitors to the island.

Alexander Selkirk, the son of a Scots shoemaker, ran away to sea and rose to be sailing master in one of Captain Dampier's privateers in the South Seas. In September, 1704, he quarreled with his captain and had himself landed with his effects on the uninhabited island of Juan Fernandez. He lived there till January, 1709, when Captain Woddes Rogers took him on board.

Captain Rogers told his story in a book three years later, and it was mostly from this account that Defoe built up his immortal story for boys.

Place a glass pie plate over the top of the kettle when making a stew. The stew may then be watched while cooking without lifting the cover or allowing steam to escape.

Custards may be cooked on the top of the stove when the oven is in use, and they are just as good as custards cooked in the oven. Put the dish into a kettle of water and keep the water boiling until the custard is set.

Do not wash art muslin curtains in warm water. Make a lather with hot water and when it is nearly cold wash the curtains. If the muslin is green add a little vinegar to the water in which they are washed; if lilac or pink add a little ammonia.

To wash feather pillows soak in soapsuds for several hours, changing the water as it becomes soiled. Then put them through a washing machine or wash them by hand. Rinse them well in clear water and hang them in a sunny place to dry. Turn frequently to change the position of the feathers in the tick.

Add a tablespoon of cream to roast beef or lamb gravy. It makes it a delicious brown.

"My dear, you are more than welcome," Grandmother said warmly. "Any friends of Bryn's are our friends, too, and our home is always open to them. And I am delighted to hear you discussing details of modern society. I am sure your talk will be a liberal education for Deborah, and help her to establish herself more easily when she goes out into Bryn's world with him."

Pilar's black eyes rested momentarily on Deborah. They were quite expressionless. "There will be no difficulties for Deborah," she said tenderly. "She is so adorable that she won't need to make the slightest effort. Every one will fall in love with her at first sight."

"Just as Bryn did," Sally added, and looked fleetingly at Pilar.

"Just as Bryn did," Pilar repeated, but her mouth tightened a little. Deborah saw, at the corners.

"How long are you planning to stay, Pilar?" Madeline said evenly. "Are you going home for the yacht races?" "I really hadn't considered it. I wasn't sure I'd be invited to stay, you see."

Grandmother gave a little sigh. "I am so thankful that when Deborah does emerge into society she will have dear Bryn to take care of her. He understands so well what her life has been, and he is so thoughtful and loving. It takes a great load off my mind to have him so."

"Bryn has always been a dear," Pilar agreed at once. "I don't know what I should ever have done without Bryn." She went on. "For years, now, he has been my staunchest comrade. No matter in what difficulty I found myself, there was always Bryn, and he brought me all his troubles and joys as well. It delights my heart to know that he is happy."

Deborah did not move. Grandmother lifted her eyes and looked at Pilar frankly. "You modern girls are so honest and open," she said. "In my day a girl would never have dared to make such a statement about a man. She would have been afraid of being misunderstood."

"Misunderstood?" Pilar murmured, flicking open the lighter.

"In my day," Grandmother explained, "there were few young men such as our dear Bryn, so handsome, so all-giving in every way, so fine. If a girl had been his friend always, as you have been, my child, then she would have been expected to marry him, and indeed, she would herself have expected to marry him. I do not quite understand the new camaraderie which allows of such close friendships without any thought of marriage or romantic love. In my day, so queerly uncontrolled was human nature then, the sort of friendship you mention would have been potentially dangerous. If either the girl or the man—particularly the man—married elsewhere."

Pilar's eyes narrowed the faintest trifle against the light as she looked at Grandmother. Grandmother was sitting up a little straighter than Deborah had seen her sit for some time and there was a little pink in her cheeks. But her eyes as they met Pilar's were calm and kind, and Deborah pushed away the thought that Grandmother suspected something and was taking her own way to combat the hint of danger.

Pilar rose and stood for a moment, tall and lithe and full of grace. To side the door, she was smiling. "Cousins are very different now," she murmured, and begged to be excused and went out through the door.

There was a little silence when Pilar was gone. Deborah looked up from the puppy to find Grandmother stretching away placidly again, her eyes on her material, and Sally and Madeline looking at each other with steady meaning. Sally and Madeline didn't understand. They didn't know what it must have been like for Pilar to love Bryn, to have loved him for years, and then to have him suddenly marry another girl. They didn't know what it meant to love Bryn. Simon and Tubby were all right, of course, and perfect darlings, but they weren't Bryn. Deborah's eyes burned, and the bad lump came back in her throat.

There was a knock at the door. It was one of the maids, wanting Deborah. The cook would like her orders, the maid said respectfully. Deborah went out and shut the door behind her.

Deborah stumbled down the hall toward the kitchen. In her mind's eye she could see herself sitting on the wall the other night, with Bryn leaning close beside her. She remembered what she had wanted to do. Bryn's face was so close, and he was such a dear; she had wanted to take his face between her own two palms and bend down and put her cheek against his forehead. She had almost done it when he said... "Deborah, do you like me... at all?" But now she was glad she hadn't done it, because he wouldn't have wanted her to. It was Pilar he loved. He had said so. He had told her how deeply he loved this other girl... and if she hadn't been so blind she would have seen instantly that his telling her of the other girl was sure proof that he didn't love her, Deborah.

And if he did love Pilar so dearly, then Pilar was a very lovely person. Madeline and Sally didn't like her, but they didn't understand. And Bryn's heart must ache, now, to think that he was shut away from Pilar for so long; and Pilar must be suffering dreadfully.

When she was finished in the kitchen, Deborah went up the back stairs swiftly and along the hall to her room. Someone came lightly along the hall, and she caught her breath lest it should be Bryn. But it was, instead, Pilar; and she was in search of Deborah, for her own room was down in the other wing with Grandmother's. She glanced in through the open door.

"Ah, there you are, sweetie," she said. "I wondered if you'd run away. Where've you been?"

"I was down in the kitchen," Deborah explained, praying that her voice sounded as usual. "Then I came up to get some embroidery. I find myself with no work at all to do these days."

Pilar was watching her. "You are refreshing," she sighed. "But really, Deborah, you must begin to make some changes in your life, or you will be completely bewildered by Bryn's gay world. Bryn travels pretty fast, dear."

Deborah sat down slowly, with the Italian embroidery in her hand. She fingered it absently. "Hasn't Bryn explained it all to you, Pilar?" she asked at last, lifting her dark eyes.

"Explained what?" Pilar asked, after a moment.

"I know he... hasn't told the others. Sally, or Madeline. I don't think even Tubby knows. I'm not quite sure why he hasn't. For a while I thought it was on his own account, but now I think he has been doing it for me, so that I wouldn't feel so queer and left out."

"I don't know what you mean."

Deborah looked at her.

"You know that Bryn couldn't be in love with me," she said.

Pilar did not move. Not by a flicker did her expression change. Her eyes were black and fathomless.

"Not in love with you?" she repeated.

"Surely you knew, Pilar?"

"Even if I did," Pilar said softly, "you wouldn't expect me to... mention it, Deborah?"

"No," Deborah said after a moment. At Pilar's words her heart had fallen like lead. So Pilar did know. Bryn had told her.

"Bryn, of course, is a gentleman," Pilar said. "He does not tell any more than is necessary."

"No," Deborah said again. "But I can tell you, Pilar. I can explain to you."

"I was... hoping you would."

"I don't want to go into detail," Deborah said. "I think I can tell you in just a few words. It was like this. I had to be married by my twenty-first birthday or lose my grandfather's estate. I went down to San Francisco to meet the man I was to marry. He was... I couldn't possibly marry him. And Bryn came along by accident, and saw that I was frightened, and I told him about it, and he offered to marry me instead. That's all."

Pilar straightened. "I see," she said, and then, "The day I came, Tubby dragged me away and threatened me with murder if I called Bryn by anything but Graham. The man you were to marry is named Graham?"

"Yes."

"Your grandmother thinks Bryn is the man?"

"Yes."

"And what happens next?"

There was a queer note in her voice, and Deborah looked up quickly. But Pilar's face had not changed, and Deborah's eyes fell again. "Nothing," she said. "We have to go on until the end of the year, or I do not get the money. The marriage must last for a year. And if it must go on for that long, after that... I don't know what we shall do to explain to Grandmother, but there will be something. Bryn will be free, then, of course."

"You cannot get the money within a year?"

"If the marriage is not successful to that extent," Deborah explained carefully. "I do not get it at all."

"Your grandmother seems very fond of Bryn."

"She loves him," Deborah said, with a little catch in her breath. "He is wonderful to her. Even if the estate were not so tied, I don't see how we could be... divorced... before that time without breaking Grandmother's heart."

Pilar turned the ivory holder between her long browned fingers. "It seems rather a long time out of Bryn's life," she said. "A year?"

"I know."

"I should think there might have been somebody else, Deborah. Somebody you might have paid for his name and his lost year."

Deborah looked up again, but did not speak. Pilar was watching her. After a moment she said, "Of course, it's all very romantic, and you are really quite pretty. Any man would like to be the prince who awakens the sleeping beauty."

Deborah's eyes flew to the long oval of Pilar's face. Her own cheeks crimsoned furiously, and her eyes flashed.
