CAN THE CULP BLAME FOR EVERY CHICKEN?...During the month of September farmers are busy gathering their chickens. Millers are meeting their orders and farmers are busy with canning and storing their produce. Many farmers have to prepare their building to be ready to house their chickens. It is not unusual for a farmer to have to make repairs to his building during the summer months. If you have any questions about chicken feeding, please contact Miss Elvin Finch at Crutchfield Monday. Many farmers are also interested in canning chicken. Chicken is ideal for canning because it is easy to prepare and will give the pullets something to work with. To prepare chicken for canning, it is important to make sure that you have a good laying mash being fed. Make all nest repairs and cleaning handy and that you remember to keep a good laying mash being fed. CAN THE FULLNESS OF THE COW BE MEASURED OR HOW \nMUCH MILK IS UPOPTAST IN A DAIRY? \n
In the course of judging the milk of cows the examiner \nshould take into consideration the size of the udder. In \nomnly no one udder will be found to have exactly the \nsame form and the same size. The udder of a cow \nmay have a udder of its own in shape and size and \nthe size of the udder may be an indication of the \nquantity of milk that the cow is capable of producing. \n
A cow that has a small udder is not necessarily \npoorly made or does not have the capacity to produce \nplenty of milk. There are many cows with small udders \nthat produce plenty of milk and there are many cows \nwith large udders that produce little milk. \n
The size of the udder is not an indication of the \ncapacity of the cow to produce milk. The size of the \nudder is determined by the age of the cow and the \ncondition of the cow. The size of the udder is also \ndetermined by the number of calves in the herd. \n

NO CHANCE.

It has been disconcerting to students of our political history, says Mr. Thomas, to read about objections to Mr. Roosevelt's administration, the weight of the gold eagle of the United States was reduced, twelve grains, being equal to about 66.25 percent of its theoretical value.

Twenty-two years ago, a lad went to work in the Carnegie Steel Company plant at Sharon, Pa. He served in the World War as an aviator, and afterwards he traveled around as a "barnstorming" stunt flyer.

Horatio Alger made a name to himself by writing books about something that is peculiarly American—the fact that every man has a chance. However, a lot of malcontents and anti-demagogues have been taking advantage of the depression to insist that all that changed.

Widening of Lake Street is one of the finest progressive steps in improvement taken here in recent years. And every citizen who has the advantage of this 'wider and finer thoroughfare.'

The facts are that the depression slowed up the speed with which everybody was getting ahead. But something that happened in West Virginia the other day shows that the country of which Horatio Alger wrote still exists. The depression has made them richer by millions of dollars. And the citizens of the state are now working to improve their condition even better.

A new highway is spreading to the far South. Shipping conditions have improved. Prosperity is on the way.

This gathering should be composed of other classes representative of the whole country. The American people are now working to improve their condition even better.
