BULLDOGS PLAY UNION CITY FRIDAY

After turning back the highly-touted Morganfield eleven by the close score of 2 to 0 last Friday, the Fulton Bulldogs battle the invading Tornado from Union City on the Fairfield gridiron here Friday.

The Bulldogs will have to tip in the terrible Tornado like their ferocious namesake, if they expect to stop the visitors from Union City, who were barely defeated by the Morganfield Cardinals last week by the score of 13 to 6.

Coach Jack Carter has been putting his proteges through stiff practice sessions all the week, hardening them for the stiff battle facing them, and the Tornado may run into a surprise. There is every indication that the game will be bitterly contested, and the Bulldogs are in much better condition than they were in the opening game. The probable line-ups will be as follows:

CLYDE BATTS LEADS IN KITTY BATTING

The 1936 Kitty League batting crown went to Clyde Batts, Fulton rightfielder, yesterday on the basis of averages released for the entire season. His track mark was .368. Manager John Antonelli of Lexington, finished second slot at .363, and Bud Adams, Hopkinsville first half batting champ, fell to third place with .354.

Several players, both pitchers and hitters, were added the second half, but their averages were not figured to compete with players who had participated in games over the entire route.

SECOND guesses never count. It's so easy for all of us to know the importance of fall insurance protection after the damage has been done. The sensible householder is forehanded; he takes all possible precautions to avoid fire hazards. And then he makes doubly sure of his protection with adequate fire insurance.

Fly-by-night agents with handsomely decorated policies cause many regrets. The old-line reliable insurance companies have weathered the storms of time because they always give the most coverage and protection at the lowest possible cost. # NEXT YEAR By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

For the most part, gardening is over for the year, for, except to harvest what is now maturing, there is nothing to do beyond to speculate on the chances of this or that beating the frost, and to hope that the frost will come late.

Gardens this year were not always all one hoped. Offhand, this may be excused by the dearth of rain-fall, but the fact is that here and there were gardens that behaved nobly in spite of the drouth. This was no accident, but came about by the gardener's following his usual practice of working into his soil a vast amount of vegetable matter for breaking-down into that magic material called "humus." Thus, the soil was made spongy and enabled to absorb and hold for the vegetables' needs the few rains that fell. Strange, had the season been wet, this same humus would have been of help, as assuring soil drainage. Humus is a soil "conditioner" in any year.

The usual way to assure humus a-plenty is to turn under a heavy coat of manure but not all gardeners can get manure in an adequate amount; some can scarcely get it at all. This need not trouble them, but they may condition their gardens by sowing a winter-growing crop to rot under in the spring to follow. In fact, this practice is in some ways superior to that of spreading manure, for a cover crop conserves soil fertility that would be lost through the rigors of the winter and tends to lessen loss of topsoil through washing.

The most reliable cover crop is rye, for it survives the coldest weather, particularly the Rosen and Abruzzi varieties.

Second-best is wheat, but its lower seed price this year and its being perhaps more easily to procure locally in any year makes it first choice with many persons.

The finest humus is that from barley, because of its winter-tenderness it is not safe to sow barley except in those portions of the state where the winters are dependably mild.

Ground preparation for these three is not critical only shallow stirring of the topsoil is needed; the seed is covered by dragging or with a rake. Usual sowing rate is one bushel per acre, but, to make sure of dense cover this amount should be doubled, two pecks on a first frost, but more growth will result if the seed can be sown earlier. In fact, now is the time to seed down the spent portions of the garden to follow over the rest as the vegetables are removed. Rye, wheat, barley add no new plant-food, but merely conserve the fertility already in the soil.

Other humus-making crops are the greens, particularly those of the cabbage family, and the winter hardy varieties of these. They are Siberian kale and Seven Top turnip greens; the less hardy Southern Curled mustard and Dwarf Essex rape may be used, as well, for they may make quite appreciable growth before the cold cuts them down. The greens make less matter than do the conventional cover crops but they are worthy make-shifts because of the ease with which they can be sown and because of their low seed

'Honeymoon Mountain' Praised by Reviewer in New York Times

New Novel Chosen as Serial for This Newspaper.

"Honeymoon Mountain," the latest novel by Frances Shelley Wees, this paper's newest serial story, brought forth the following comment by the New York Times:

"A determined young lover will find a way, even if it is a very roundabout one. The author has hedged in her young lovers with more obstacles than there were in the rocky mountain roads round the home where pretty Deborah lived in the wilderness of Oregon. The clearing up of her problems makes an appealing romance with a pleasant mixture of the old-fashioned and the ultra modern."

There's a spring-morning freshness to this story that carries you along with a thrilling sense of anticipation. Deborah's mother had made an unhappy marriage and her grandparents, to protect her from a like tragedy, reared her in the absolute seclusion of a mountain estate. At twenty-one, unsuspecting and naive, she was to marry a hand-picked suitor and then come into her fortune. When the prospective husband proved impossible, Bryn stepped in as a substitute, ostensibly for the $20,000 he was offered. The young man's gallant struggle to win his shy but proud young wife makes a tale you'll long remember.

Frances Shelley Wees is a native of Oregon, the locale of this serial. California and Alberta, Canada, have been her homes since childhood. She is descended, on the maternal side, from Canadians of English extraction. Her father's people are Americans, having begun their westward migration in Revolutionary times.

Though quite a newcomer in the literary world, her rise has been marked with success. Some of her popular novels are "The Mystery of the Creeping Man," "Romance Island," and "The Maestro Murders." Read her latest as it unfolds serially in this paper.

And, now, in concluding both this column and the 1936 series, the suggestion is offered to all gardeners that they prepare to sow now a winter cover crop, so that, next year, they will have good gardens.

SIX RED CROSS CONFERENCES IN THE NEXT TWO WEEKS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24—Climaxing one of the busiest Red Cross years in the State's history, representatives from Kentucky's 139 Red Cross Chapters will meet in a series of six Regional Conferences during the last week in September and the first week in October, officials of the national organization announced here today.

The conference will take their keynote from this year's Red Cross

This theme will be developed by prominent state leaders and officials of the national organization, including Everett Dix, Assistant Manager of the Eastern area; J. A. L. Sayer, National Representative, Charles Carr, of the Disaster Relief Staff; Mrs. Ethel Matson, of the Junior Red Cross; Miss Ruth Rice, and Mrs. Sheridan Connolly, of the Kentucky field staff. It is expected that very chapter in the State will be represented in at least one of the conferences, during which accomplishments of the past year, including the state's participation in the wide-spread flood relief activities last Spring, will be discussed and plans for the coming year formulated.

The first meeting is scheduled for Mayfield at the Hall Hotel on September 28. Mr. David Ansman will act as conference chairman. A representative of the Junior Red Cross from Paducah will speak on the Junior organization.

USING RED SQUILL POISON FOR RATS

While it is desirable to rat-proof newly constructed buildings to keep rats out of the houses entirely, other means of dealing with them must be used, once they get in. Starvation is the first precaution, keeping all foods in secure containers and taking the greatest care that nothing attractive to rats is left about.

Red squill poison baits are effective against rats. Several kinds of bait mixtures are used, because the rats will become wary of any one food. It is a good idea to "prebait," that is, use various mixtures without poison for a night or two, and then set up poison stations where the rats are known to feed and live about a level tablespoonful of bait is used in one spot. Bait may be spread on small rounds of cardboard which are easy to gather up and destroy, or put paper bags, with the tops tied. Care should be used to keep pets out of the way when rat poison is about, and not to use the baits above the ground floor of a dwelling. The formulas given below will not kill cats, dogs, or poultry, but are likely to make the mammals sick and cause them to vomit.

Formula I: Red squill oven dried 1 ounce; lean hamburger meat, 15 ounces; corn meal, 1 ounce. Mix the dry poison with the corn meal first, then add the meat and as much water as needed to make a sticky, but not wet, mixture.

Formula II: Red squill, 1 ounce; canned salmon or mackerel, 15 ounces; oatmeal, 1 ounce; and water as needed. Mix the red squill with the oatmeal first, then add the fish and water.

Formula III: Red squill, 1 ounce; corn meal, 16 ounces. Mix thoroughly and add sufficient water.

By changing formulas frequently the natural suspicion of the rats is allayed.

May we give you
six dollars?

NOT in cash, of course. We're speaking of its equivalent. But here is something for you to consider: Every year this newspaper brings you at least three outstanding novels in serial form. Purchased as books each would cost not less than $2, making a total expenditure of at least $6 per year.

Like yourself, we could find plenty of uses for that $6. Some member of the family is always in need of a new pair of shoes or some other necessity. But at the same time your requirements for good reading material must be met. By accepting these three novels each year we feel you are treating yourself to real enjoyment, at the same time giving your purse a substantial boost.

These novels are a source of constant pride to us. Every year we select them from the season's most outstanding best sellers, offered in serial form by a large newspaper syndicate organization. We'd like to feel that you—as a subscriber—always look forward to reading the coming installment in the next issue. It gives us a great satisfaction to know that here is another reason why our paper is popular in the home.

You are invited to begin reading our novels now. These regular brief visits to fictionland will prove a delightful interlude from your work-a-day activities. And it will make us happy to know that you are getting enjoyment from them.

CAMPAGN PUFFLE

The battle cry of the Republican hot-air aggregation of spellbinders now engaged in the campaign is to belittle everything accomplished by the Democratic administration and spread fear and distrust throughout the country. Some are even picturing the president as a dictator in the Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin class.

What campaign puffle against America's greatest humanitarian, a man who has proven himself a leader of intrinsic value to a nation brought to the very verge of starvation and rebellion by the Hoover administration!

These spellbinders never introduce any constructive activities to better conditions or say what they would have done to lift the country out of the disastrous depression which was inherited by the present administration from the Republicans.

The masses are not forgetful of the miserable conditions existing four years ago when banks were closing their doors, forcing millions of depositors on relief; industrial plants closing on the verge of bankruptcy; agriculture with little or no markets and products of the farm selling at starvation prices; sweatshop wages prevailing with unlimited hours at hard work; twelve million unemployed with no hope of relief with President Hoover in a curiously "prosperous" White House, reporting "the prosperity that failed to show up until he was ousted from the office by the overwhelming vote of the people and Franklin Delano Roosevelt took place of the government affairs on March 4, 1933.

And what miraculous changes have taken place since that date! Banks are open with deposits increasing; confidence restored in government with prosperity returning and starting its squarely in the feet; industry humming along at a lively pace with millions returning to work on shorter hours and better wages; the farmers are happy with their products selling at fairer and higher prices.

Does it not seem the height of folly to "swap horses in mid-stream" so to speak, when we are climbing out of the dark, mire of prosperity and better economic conditions. President Roosevelt has been our savior in time of great national distress and to forsake him now would not only be ingratitude, but would be dangerous practice that is likely to rebound, bringing untold repercussions.

URGES COMPLETE USE OF CORN CROP

S. C. Jones of the College of Agriculture, a member of the Kentucky drouth committee, urges farmers to make complete use of the corn crop. This, he says can be done:

1. By placing the crop in silos where available.
2. By placing the crop in trench silos.
3. By cutting the crop, shocking, curing and sheltering. There will be more barn room for storing fodder because of the short hay and tobacco crops. Shredding conserves space and improves palatability.

Corn fodder constitutes from a fourth to a third of the value of the crop. It is rich in carbohydrates or energy and fat-making material and is a good substitute for grass hay. It is low in protein and gives best results when fed with legume hay.

Kentucky's three million-acre crop, if saved and utilized along with other feed products grown in the State, would practically take care of the feed problem.

Communities that have had rain can greatly benefit themselves financially by feeding rough feeds and selling good hay and corn to drouth communities in need of feed.

Winter cover crops of rye, wheat, barley or winter oats will supply fall, winter and spring pasture and finally a small grain crop for harvest.

Mr. Robbins is to be congratulated upon entering a larger field. He has acquired The Hopewell (Va.) News, and will resume his career in the historic James River country. A native of Virginia's Daughter Commonwealth, he should have no difficulty adjusting himself to his new environment. Indeed, Gus Robbins would find any environment congenial where right thinking and commendable effort for community welfare were the recognized standards of honest journalism.—(Courier-Journal).

AVIATION

At least one American industry has grown from childhood to maturity during the depression—commercial air transport. An interesting survey of this industry, which is assuming increasing economic significance, appears in a recent issue of the United States News.

At the present time, air passenger traffic in this country is about six times as large as it was in 1929, and the volume has doubled in the last two years. Where less than 462,000 passengers rode the airways in 1934, almost 747,000 left terminals in 1935. Estimates carry that about 900,000 people will board transports this year. In 1926, when passenger transport was inaugurated on a few scattered lines, only 5,700 people bought tickets.

Startling fact is that while there are established air systems in all modern countries, American airlines carry more passengers than are carried in all rest of the world combined, along with two-thirds of the world's total of air-borne mail and express.

As everyone knows, air transportation has grown cheaper through the years—early rates were virtually prohibitive. It has likewise grown more comfortable, due to developments in sound-proof cabins, cutting motor vibration, making planes more stable in wind currents, etc. Speeds have been markedly increased—modern carriers average 200 miles an hour, where best lines in 1920 averaged little more than 100. And travel has been made safer—last year, there was but one passenger fatality for every 24,000,000 passenger-miles traveled.

According to the Department of Commerce nearly half the population of the country is now served by air-lines, and there are 109 companies in operation with routes totaling a little over 52,000 miles. This coverage is of course not comparable to that offered by railroads and buses, but is gradually increasing.

SUGGEST CARE IN BALANCING DIETS

There are certain foods which the body needs and there should be some of each of these in each day's diet, points out the "4-H Food Manual," a Kentucky College of Agriculture publication used in 4-H club work.

A diet which supplies these needs of the body is adequate diet; that is, there is not much starch or too much protein or too much fat, but a good proportion of all. An adequate diet also supplies the minerals and vitamins needed for health.

The manual says that some of each of the following groups should be eaten each day:

Cereals—Bread, macaroni, rice, oatmeal and other breakfast foods.

Fats—Butter, cream, olive oil, other fats and meat fat.

Vegetables and Fruits—Two of each every day, besides dried beans and potatoes.

Protein Foods—Meats, eggs, cheese, fish, dried beans and peas.

Sweets—Sugar, sirups and honey. Use sparingly.

Let milk play an important part in all meals. A quart a day for the children and at least a pint for adults are the amounts needed for health.

It may not be possible to have all the necessary foods in one day, but they should be supplied in one of the three meals for the day when making out the menu, rather than to consider each meal separately. It is the adequate diet for the whole day which counts.

SILVER DOLLAR BRADY RENTS PENTHOUSE FOR PRIZE HORSE

Silver Dollar Brady, wealthy cowboy from Dallas, has the world's first hotel "penthouse corral" 17 floors above Chicago. Brady and his horse are shown here "at home" looking out over the skyline.

"More Silver Dollars in circulation will bring back better business conditions a whole lot faster."

That's the idea of Silver Dollar Brady, who arrived in Chicago with the intention of getting more Silver Dollars in circulation.

Brady, big, six-foot wealthy rancher from the West, walked into the Hotel Sherman, his prize horse trailing behind. First, he registered with the horse at his heels . . . then both man and beast went into the coffee shop and had a bite to eat.

He had word for reservations for himself "and horse," and was given a penthouse high above the street on the 17th floor, with a special corral, hay, oats and all, for his horse. "The trouble with paper dollars is, you don't feel 'em in your pocket," Brady said. "Now, it's different with Silver Dollars. You know you got 'em. They seem to mean a whole lot more. But because they're heavy, you spend 'em a lot quicker."

Brady said he was going to urge merchants to pay their employees in Silver Dollars.

"Then you just watch business boom," he said.

Brady himself wears a valuable belt made of old and rare Silver Dollars.
