"The Messiah" To Be Presented Dec. 14th At Murray College

Handels' "The Messiah" will be presented by the Fine Arts department of Murray State College on Sunday afternoon Dec. 14, at 3 o'clock.

The combined forces of the College Oratorio Chorus and the a cappella choir will make up the chorus and the accompaniment will be supplied by the College orchestra.

Soloists for the afternoon will be Miss Dorothy Bond (soprano) from Paris, Tenn., Mrs. Mary Shelton (alto) from Mayfield, Mr. Doyle Dumes (tenor) from Paducah, Kentucky, and Harry Hampshire (bass) from Murray. The concert is under the direction of Prof. Robert K. Baar and is free and open to the public.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cox of Wyandotte, Mich., announce the birth of a daughter, Sandra Sue, on Nov. 25. Mr. Cox is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lotus D. Cox, formerly of Marshall County.

Rex Henson of Route 5 was in town last week on business.

New Dual-Streak Pontiacs Announced for '53

In nationwide dealer showings, Pontiac Division of General Motors today introduced its new line of Dual-Streak Chiefline models, featuring longer wheelbase, increased vision and new curve-control front suspension. Advanced styling is marked by smooth contours, rear fender fin and high deck lid, one-piece curved windshield, wrap-around one-piece rear windows, roomier interiors and entirely new radiator grille and chrome treatment. Above is the new Custom Catalina, one of 11 body types in three Chiefline series: Special, De Luxe and Custom. Wheelbase for all series is 122 inches, with Power Steering as optional equipment.

Rules for Safe and Sane Christmas Season Outlined

Christmas is one of the most dangerous times of the year. Plus the usual winter hazards of open fires, heaters and furnaces there are the seasonal fire snarls of Christmas trees, paper wrappings, extra electric wiring and candles.

Here are some safety rules suggested by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, to fireproof the family fun this Christmas.

1. Flameproof your children's flimsy party costumes by dipping the clothing in a solution of nine ounces of borax and four ounces of boric acid in a gallon of water. This should be reapplied after each washing.
2. Look for the UL label all electrical toys. This means they have passed Underwriters' Laboratories tests for fire and shock hazards.
3. Supervise play with chemical sets, and don't buy inflammable toys for small children.
4. Choose a small Christmas tree and keep it outdoors until just before Christmas. Then stand it in a pail of water, or use a live tree planted in a tub of earth.
5. Never use cotton or paper tree decorations.
6. Don't put electric trains under the tree.
7. Use only electric lights, and see that the wires are not frayed or the connections worn.
8. Throw away gift wrappings as soon as presents have been opened. Don't let them pile up near the tree.
9. Don't leave tree lights burning when no one is at home.
10. When the tree becomes dry and needles start to fall, throw it out.

Remember a Christmas tree is full of pitch and resin, and is one of the most combustible objects known.

Fear or Faith

Lesson for December 14, 1952

"FEAR was the first creator of gods," wrote a long-ago Roman poet. This was more or less true of all religions he could have known about. It is also true of most religions around the world.

An ex-Buddhist who had once trained for the priesthood in his own religion, said of his childhood, "All I knew was that there were 800 gods and I was afraid of them all."

The characteristic feature of most religions is the appeasement of angry, capricious or vengeful gods. Sometimes the terror is without rhyme or reason, as in the case of the Buddhist boy just quoted. Sometimes the terror has a moral base; and reason, as the great Greek poet Aeschylus portrays in his plays—the terrors of a man of guilty conscience fleeing from the gods who do not forget nor forgive.

What Makes Men Afraid?

In Matthew's story we have illustrations of what men fear. Herod, for example, was a superstitious man. He was afraid of John the Baptist, and later afraid of Jesus because he thought he might be John again, risen from the grave. Herod was an example of the man who fears whatever he does not understand. A horse will shy at a piece of paper more than at more dangerous things. Horses nowadays pass cars (or rather, cars pass them) and the horse does not so much as prick an ear; but in the days when cars were rare, horses would go wild at the very sight or sound of one.

People are like that; grown men are often no more than grown-up children, still afraid of the dark. Then Herod also is an illustration that men are as it were afraid of their own shadows. That is to say, as Shakespeare puts it, "Conscience doth make cowards of us all." Or as the Psalmist said long before Shakespeare: "The wicked flee when no man pursueth."

Many of our fears would never exist if we had lived as we ought to have lived. Men live in fear of exposure, fear of blackmail, fear of failure and defeat, often through no one's fault but their own. Then the disciples too were afraid. They were not superstitious, they were not haunted by their sins, but they were afraid in the storm, they feared the wind and waves.

Why Christians Are Brave

Students of the Bible have discovered that the word "fear" is usually tied there to another word: Not Fear not, is one key-note of both Old and New Testaments. The reason for this is plain. Christianity is the religion of love: love to God, love to one's neighbor. Not mere good will or kindly feeling, but active, self-forgetful love. "There is no fear in love, but perfect love casteth out fear," as St. John said.

Old writers, commenting on the story of Peter's sinking in the sea, have said that if he had kept his mind on Jesus instead of on himself and on the storm-tossed waves, he would not have cried out, "I perish." Certain it is that when we are self-centered we are sure to be tormented with fear, for we are always thinking what may happen to us—and of course plenty can.

If we keep our minds on our work and on the fact that God is our Father, if we remember morning, noon and night that the God who "so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son" is the same God who created this universe and controls it, then we shall not be scourged with fears.

Courageous Christians

It is a tremendous mistake to think that Christianity is only for rabbit-people, for mice and not men. Christ does something for even such persons, it is true; he takes them clear out of themselves. Remember the long roll of the early Christian martyrs, very humble people most of them, who died horrible deaths rather than deny their Master; remember such saints as the missionaries who converted our own savage ancestors, at great peril to their own lives; remember the missionaries of our own time, and all of them suffering tortures and all of them dying, yet not giving up. The ordinary Christian missionary has more to be afraid of than most of the rest of us have; yet he has less fear. He knows God too well.

Godfrey and Friend

There is no idea who won the golf match, but Arthur Godfrey and Wendell P. Butler last week called for a "realistic approach to the problem of public education" and to that end recommended approval by the people next year of a proposed Constitutional amendment under which we can attain a "sound minimum foundation program of education."

Minimum Foundation of Education Program Urged

Frankfort, — State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wendell P. Butler last week called for a "realistic approach to the problem of public education" and to that end recommended approval by the people next year of a proposed Constitutional amendment under which we can attain a "sound minimum foundation program of education."

The present census pupil basis of distributing school funds actually prevents attainment of such a program, Butler suggested. Next year a Constitutional amendment will be offered the people that will permit the General Assembly greater latitude in the distribution of common school funds.

"It is almost impossible to provide a defensible program of education, adequately financed," Butler added "under terms of the present Constitutional provision as he pointed to glaring educational deficiencies of the adult population which have hindered the economic and social well-being of Kentucky's citizens."

little improvement in its training level if steps are not taken to remove the cause of these weaknesses," Butler continued as he cited the fact that 88,000 children in the school census last spring were "not enrolled in any school, public or private."

Mr. and Mrs. Wright Brown of Olive were guests last week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Warren.
