THE LISTENING POST

War has a curious habit of bringing things and people to light—things and people well forgotten. I remember in the last war that many names of places I had come across in reading years before suddenly leaped into the news as battles were fought in or near these places. A phase of the Russian campaign early in the war brought a name which had been in my memory for many years. I remember reading one day that the Russians were fighting a battle adjacent to the city of Tarnau, in Galicia, and it instantly brought back a line from Kipling which had stuck in my memory for many years. It occurred in Kipling's verse, and I have forgotten the title, concerning Anne of Austria, of whom, Kipling said, "From Tarnau in Galicia, to Jan Bazar she came, to eat the bread of infamy and take the wage of shame." Anne must have been quite a cutie, according to the manner in which Kipling spoke of her, but until the first World War I had never thought that Kipling used a real name to give her a home.

Another person bobbed up in the news the other day. I read a brief item which stated that Robert W. Service was back in Canada after an absence of almost thirty years. Service, now sixty-six years of age, did for Alaska and the Yukon country what Kipling did for India, although in a less splendid way. Indeed, I have often thought that if there had been no Kipling there would have been no Service, for in many ways the latter was a close imitator of the great Englishman. However, Service did have talent, and some of his verses, although modeled closely on Kipling, have considerable fire. His most famous verse, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," closely patterned to Kipling's verse about Ann of Austria, has considerable merit of its own, and has long been a favorite with elocutionists and declaimers whenever a real he-man piece was desired. Despite its similar pattern to Kipling it really does have merit and many of its lines are quite good.

Personally speaking, I always like Service's "Law of the Yukon" much better, for in this it seems to me Service really got going in an original manner and the verse has some remarkably swinging lines of good and mouth filling words. For instance "of women esteeming me good, of children born in my borders of radiant motherhood."

I have never known anything at all about Service. I read with a lot of enjoyment his verses of life in the Yukon, and I know he wrote a lot of verses about world war soldiers. Whether he soldiered in that war I do not know, although he was young enough. The news item I read the other day said he was now sixty-six years of age, and thus he could have served in the British army during the first World War.

Service, according to this story, was in Russia when the present war started. After many hardships and difficulties he managed to reach France and was there when the German rush through the Low Countries and France started. Too old to take any part in this war he suddenly decided to return to Canada, where his early years were spent and arrived there only a few days ago.

Somewhat I have had an idea for a long time that Service was no longer living. Where I got the idea I do not know. Must have been that because I heard nothing of him I decided he was no longer living.

Ex-Secretary Woodring Opposes Plan

Action Is Taken To Ease Tax Burden On Defense Plants

Washington. —President Roosevelt directly advocated peace-time military conscription today and his former secretary of war, Harry W. Woodring, opposed it.

"I am distinctly in favor of a selective service training bill and I consider it essential to adequate national defense," the chief executive said at a press conference, emphasizing his words by permitting direct quotation.

"How any fair-minded member of Congress," Woodring said in a letter to Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), who issued it to the press, "could say that we have given the voluntary system of enlistment for the U. S. Army a fair trial and that it has broken down, and therefore we need the compulsory service, is beyond my understanding."

Meanwhile, the taxation sub-committee of the House ways and means committee was taking action to remove obstacle to the production of defense items. It drafted legislation to permit firms which expand their plants for the production of defense orders to deduct from their taxable earnings 20 per cent of the expansion cost annually for five years.

Then, the sub-committee went on to the question of repealing present limitations on the profits which manufacturers derive from naval and aircraft contracts, and of substituting an excess profits tax. Administration officials said the aim of the latter tax was to prevent undue enrichment of anyone as a result of the defense program.

The Senate military committee was busy, too, polishing the conscription bill for a final vote scheduled for early next week.

After hearing the testimony of War Department officials, it rejected an amendment to limit the number of men who might be called up to 900,000 and another under which voluntary one-year enlistments would be tried for a 90-day period to see if the Army's personnel needs could be satisfied without compulsory service.

F. D. R., Jr., Goes Aboard Warship For Brief Cruise

Newport, R. I. —Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the President, boarded the U. S. S. Lawrence here today for a two weeks' training cruise. Navy officials were mum on the subject of their temporary crew member, but a Navy brig tied up at the Government wharf early in the morning and waited until young Roosevelt arrived.

HAWKINS IS NAMED
Dr. Don P. Hawkins has been named chairman of Fulton County for the state wide celebration commemorating the 130th anniversary of Kentucky's First Sunday school, on September 22, James A. McCaleb, of Louisville, director of the state celebration announced today.

L. S. U. Country Club Fires Pair To Help Reduce Red Ink Payroll

Baton Rouge, La. —Louisiana State University Thursday launched an effort to eliminate the red ink from the books of its own country club, remnant of the era of big spending, accent on athletics and fun which ended with the Louisiana scandals.

Acting Controller Tory M. Middleton said Manager John Sanchez and Golf Professional Pete Augusta had been dismissed to lighten the club's $2,675 payroll, which helped pile up a deficit of more than $15,000 in two years.

Hillman Picks 4 To Safeguard Peace In Industry

Washington. —Sidney Hillman, labor member of the National Defense Commission, Friday set up a four-man committee—with two A. F. L. and two C. I. O. members—to try to keep peace between the rival labor organizations in defense industries.

The action, endorsed by the full A. F. L.-C. I. O. labor policy committee, which advises Hillman on labor problems, is aimed particularly at preventing inter-union raiding and cross-picketing where such activities might interrupt production of defense materials.

The four members—Harvey Brown and George Q. Lynch of the A. F. L. and Van A. Bittner and Emil Rieve of the C. I. O., will act by persuasion and negotiation.

Lewis Declares Profit Is Put In Patriotism

Santa Fe, N. M. —John L. Lewis, shaggy-browed C. I. O. leader, said Thursday the Government was "making patriotism profitable only for the manufacturers of war materials."

"Let the workers of this country be sure of their jobs, of a chance to send their children to school and of a modicum of security for their old age, and they will protect the Nation at all times from danger without and within," he told newsmen.

"But deny them that, and make a new crop of millionaires from the lavish expenditure of defense money, and you make the country vulnerable."

Football Budgeted

The university's new board of supervisors, admonished by Gov. Sam H. Jones to concentrate on education rather than the gridiron, already has announced strict budgeting of football expenditures.

The Westdale Country Club, about four miles from L. S. U., was in financial straits in 1936 when the university snapped it up to the bargain price of $25,000. The school got a clubhouse, a swimming pool and golf links.

Death Valley Scotty Sued On 1902 Grubstake Claim

Los Angeles. —The 35-year-old mystery of Death Valley Scotty, Monte Cristo of the desert, took on some legal twists Thursday.

William H. Neblett, attorney, made known that he has been retained by Julian N. Gerard, New York banker, and brother of James W. Gerard, one-time Ambassador to Germany, "to sue Walter Scott for 22½ per cent of all he owns" on a 1902 grubstake.

Partner Gets Judgment
It became known also that Albert M. Johnson, Scotty's partner, got a $243,291 judgment against the mystery man last week. The judgment was for $117,000 Johnson says he advanced Scott between 1904 and 1940, in mules and supplies, plus interest.

The legal twists first came into the open early this year after State and Federal income tax investigators had been after Scotty for years because he paid no income tax.

Scotty met the Government issue in January with a statement to income tax officials. He said he found some very rich ore about thirty years ago.

"To the best of my recollection," he wrote, "I have had no income for about thirty years except money borrowed from my partner, A. M. Johnson, who has furnished me with all the supplies and mules that I have used in the mountains."

Later he broke out with a new angle. He wrote to Washington officials saying he buried $100,000 in gold certificates about 1909, and cloudbursts covered the site. He wanted to know whether he would have to go to jail or be fined, if he recovered the now outlawed gold notes, and if not, whether he could get some good money for them. The answer was a mass of documents, and Scotty still can't figure what they mean, but has asked until 1941 to try to find the gold notes.

Old Age Staff Cuts Costs During Year

Frankfort, Ky. —The field staff of Old Age Assistance did more work, at less than half the cost per case, in the first six months of 1940 than it did in the twelve months of 1939.

From January 1 to July 1 this year, 213 field workers approved, denied or re-investigated 34,586 cases at an average cost per case of $4.56.

A staff of 209 workers, for the calendar year of 1939, approved, denied or re-investigated 29,402 cases, at an average cost per case of $10.45.

Factors In Decrease Cited
Dr. A. Y. Lloyd, director of Old Age Assistance, said Friday three major factors and several minor factors are responsible for the record. He listed the major factors as:

1. The workers were put under pressure to work harder and longer due to a new Federal regulation which required re-investigation of every case not re-investigated for the year prior to April 1, 1940.

2. The field staff was put on its toes by the advent of a new State Administration. Orders went down the line from Gov. Keen Johnson that that tenure of jobs would depend largely on efficient and loyal work.

3. Report forms were simplified, enabling workers to write their findings more rapidly.

MUSSOLINI WOULD FOLLOW CAESAR'S PATH

Berlin, Switzerland. —Italian fighting planes and German-trained Italian troops were reported today to be massed alongside Nazi blitzkrieg forces for a part in the invasion of England.

Italian sources in Switzerland said that plane-load after plane-load of battles in Ethiopia and Spain, have flown across France to take-off bases from the Bay of Biscay to the Low Countries facing the English Channel and North Sea.

Reports have been current in foreign diplomatic circles that Premier Mussolini specifically asked Adolf Hitler to let the Italians share the job of bringing Britain to her knees.

Il Duce was said to have wanted a strong part for his troops in a direct invasion of the shores where Caesar's legions landed almost 2000 years ago.

American Car Is Making 1,156 Tanks For Army

Washington. —American Car and Foundry Company, it was disclosed Friday, is manufacturing 1,156 tanks for the United States Army.

Previous official reports told only of the construction of 627 tanks by A. C. F. under a $11,000,000 contract awarded recently.

The larger number was announced by Robert W. Horton, information director of the National Defense Commission, who said the company's plant at Berwick, Penn., was now turning out combat vehicles at the rate of 2½ to 3 a day and would be able to double its output within five months.

William May Leaves To Train At Fort Harrison

Frankfort, Ky. —Agriculture Commissioner William H. May 32, left today for a month's military training at the business men's training camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

"I'm in a fighting humor," laughed the slightly rotund commissioner. He said Assistant Commissioner William G. Harris would be in charge during his absence.

Answering a question as to whether May would be liable to lose his August salary, Finance Commissioner J. Dan Talbott said, "I'm not trying to stop anybody from making a good soldier out of himself."

At Lexington, John Y. Brown, attorney and former Congressman, said he planned to leave Sunday for Fort Benjamin Harrison for army training.

Couple Marries In Two Countries In One Day

Laredo, Texas. —The bride wanted to be married in Texas; the bridegroom, in his native Mexico. So they were.

First, Justice of the Peace Manuel Cruz of Laredo stood on the International Bridge spanning two nations, some 200 feet north of the boundary monument on the U. S. side, and pronounced Miss Doris Almaguer of Laredo and Maximiliano Salinas, young Monterrey, Mex., business man, man and wife.

Then the couple stepped across into Mexico and were married in a Roman Catholic ceremony in Nuevo Laredo.

The Green River Electric Cooperative Association, serving five counties in Kentucky, has paid all interest due and $10,000 on its borrowings, and has $9,000 in its treasury. The association has 1,200 members. Applications have been filed for about 100 additional miles of primary line.

Free Cable Use Offered Parents, Child Refugees

London. —A free monthly exchange of cable greetings between stay-at-home British parents and their children removed to the Dominions under the Government scheme was announced today by Sir Edward Wilshaw, chairman of cable and wireless.

The youngsters may wire their parents one of eight standard texts monthly, such as, "Arrived safely, well and happy, writing," and "Now going to school and like it." (There) no provisions for those who don't like it.)

Parents may send "Have received your telegram. Glad to know you are safe. Write soon." "Is there anything you specially require," or six similar replies.

Flood Gadget Licks Floods

Knoxville, Tenn. —With an elaborate system of water control, the Tennessee Valley Authority has whipped the worst drought in the Tennessee Valley in more than forty years.

Paradoxically the feat was accomplished with the same machinery set up for navigation and flood control.

The intricate control system permitted navigation on the river throughout the low-water period last winter, and power production was maintained at all the authority's hydro plants, source of electric energy for more than 2,000,000 valley inhabitants.

The key point in the battle to keep the water flow sufficient to maintain navigation and power production, without jeopardizing either, was Norris Dam on the Clinch River in East Tennessee.

The man directing the fight was Sherman M. Woodward, chief water control planning engineer for T. V. A.

Newsie To Act In Film And Sell Papers On Side

Hollywood. —Film Producer Gene Tower liked the looks and voice of the newspaper boy from whom he purchased a paper while out driving the other day and invited the youngster to take a screen test.

Today Towne disclosed that the boy, Chicago-born Bobbie Cooper, had been signed for a role in "Little Men." Asked if he would give up his present job, Cooper replied:

"I should say not. The motion picture business is too uncertain."

URGES BETTER CARE OF KENTUCKY SOIL

Urging better care of Kentucky soil, Prof. George Roberts of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, in a new circular called "Save the Soil and Improve It," says "there will never be effective soil conservation until all those who use the land realize and fulfill their obligation to pass the land on to the next generation unimpaired." The circular deals with the prevention of erosion and leaching, the growing of legumes, conservation of manure and other farm by-products, and the supplying of deficient mineral nutrients to the soil.

Judge Called On To Make A Real Hairline Decision

New York. —Does a man have to shave if he doesn't want to? Assistant District Attorney Solomon A. Kilen contended in a Brooklyn court Thursday that if the man is Harry "Pittsburgh Phil" Strauss, the answer is yes.

But defense lawyers insisted that to make Strauss shave his long, black beard was tantamount to making him testify against himself and was an invasion of his constitutional rights.

Kilen countered with the same

British Aver Hamburg In Virtual Ruins

Krupp Works, Supply Depots, Other Bases Are Heavily Bombed

London. —Great Britain proclaimed smashing success tonight in her own growing war of plane-borne destruction designed to cripple any blitzkrieg at its roots in Germany's supply dump, ports, airdromes and war industries.

The German port of Hamburg, biggest in all Europe, was pictured in virtual ruins by authoritative British sources—the result of three months of intermittent Royal Air Force blasting.

The great Krupp arms works at Essen, supply depots, synthetic oil plants and airdromes in Western Germany and Holland were the latest targets reported put under the bombsights and bomb racks of the RAF.

The Krupp works, said the air ministry news service, were pounded with bombs for five minutes.

Score Several Hits
The raiders, it was added, "scored several hits on the works and started fires which could be plainly seen by observers until at 11,000 feet our aircraft entered the clouds."

The air ministry said that RAF raiders by day struck a hangar and strafed grounded German planes at the airdromes of Leeuwarden and Haamstede, in The Netherlands, yesterday.

By night British squadrons swept in on Western Germany and loosed bombs on synthetic oil plants at Gelsenkirchen, Kamen, Hamburg and Reischolz; the Krupp works at Essen, supply depots at Hamm, Krefeld and Mannheim and several airdromes in Northwestern Germany.

"The damage inflicted on the oil targets is believed to be considerable," the ministry communique said.

All Raiders Return
All the night raiders returned, it was said, but one plane was missing from the daylight attack on the two Holland airdromes.

Marriage Had 25 Reasons For Downfall

Tulsa, Okla. —There were twenty-five reasons why the marriage of William and Della Besser didn't click.

"There was too much controversy over the children," Attorney Floyd V. Freeman explained Thursday in divorce court.

So Mrs. Besser took her seven children by a previous marriage and moved to Shawnee to live with relatives. Besser and his eighteen children remained on their fifty-acre farm near here.

DIFFICULT TO UNDERSTAND

At the present time, and none too soon by any means, this nation is beginning to arm itself and gird itself for possible war. When war is threatened it is difficult to say precisely when it may come, or from what direction. In these days war comes suddenly, and the element of surprise is always used by those nations which seek to impose their will upon other nations. These aggressor nations do not make a practice of notifying other nations that they plan to attack them on such and such a date. They attack and let that serve as the notification.

Since it became apparent that this nation faced grave danger, and this became apparent clearly when Germany crushed the French and English in a few brief weeks in the Battle of France, it has been determined that defense steps must be taken. Such a decision met with wide and universal approval. The American people were of one accord when it came to building planes and ships, and huge amounts of money were readily appropriated in record time. The nation was ready to do these things.

Then came the logical statement that the creation of an army was also urgently needed. The United States has never had forced military service in times of peace, and has never had a large regular army. Army chiefs stated creation of a fairly large army was necessary and conscription was suggested as the fairest, easiest and safest way to build this necessary Army. Naturally all the military establishment in the world will be useless without man power, and it should be well known that vast sums of money spent for ships and planes and tanks will amount to nothing unless supported by adequate man power.

Yet, despite this, considerable opportunity is developing in Congress to the military bill and a filibuster is being threatened against its passage. Also it is plain that there is considerable opposition to the bill over the country. Many people feel that it is a step toward war, others profess to see in it an abridgement of their rights as free Americans.

Certainly it is a step towards war which may be nearer than we now know. If war does come and we have the men and the machines ready we will be thankful that we have prepared. If war does not come it will probably be due to the fact that possible enemies were certain that we were prepared and did not care to take the risk. Certainly, also, forced military service is an abridgement of rights in this country as we have known them. There can be no doubt of this. But there are times when it is best to curtail certain rights in order to preserve them. This appears to be such a time.

Forced military service has long been one of the curses of European nations. Such practice had kept Germany and France practically bankrupt for many years and perhaps has caused war. But if one nation practices it, another nation which faces the danger must also practice it. Else the nation which has a huge army, ready to strike, will win and win quickly. This picture has at last come to us and we must face it realistically.

Selected Feature

British sea power, under constant attack by German air power backed by surface and under-water torpedo, craft, asserts itself by extending the blockade from the Arctic Ocean to the northern tip of Africa. No differentiation is made between unoccupied France and occupied France. Spain and Portugal, through which the axis partners have been getting essential raw materials, will be limited strictly to the needs of their populations. The islands of the Iberian nations and such possessions as Spanish Morocco are included within the cordon. Never in history have such widespread measures been taken to prevent supplies from getting to the enemy.

And sea power is not the only weapon with which Britain seeks to blockade the entire Continent. World power is an important adjunct. Neutral nations which do not comply with the contraband control regulations—and virtually everything is contraband—will be denied the facilities of the British or Dominion ports and naval stations throughout the world. They will not be allowed to take on coal or water in such ports, and if captured their ships will be subject to the rulings of prize courts.

A continuous line of warships from the Faroe to the Canary Islands will not be necessary. Contraband control will be exercised at the ports of origin. At such ports British consuls will examine cargoes and if there is no contraband on board will issue to the masters. On showing these navicerts vessels will not be molested and may complete their journeys. Only those without such papers or those which attempt to run the blockade will be taken into contraband control stations. Sea power aided by world power cannot be ignored by neutrals.

During the World War Britain developed its system of contraband control that eventually starved the enemy. There were leaks in it, however, principally through Holland and the Scandinavian countries, and it was slow in becoming effective. Now the aim is to stop the leaks and accomplish the purpose of the greatly extended blockade in the shortest possible time.—Courier-Journal.

Writing folks many times, reach that point. For instance, Rudyard Kipling was living during the World War, but the old fire was gone and he could write no more in one glowing manner he had known in early years. I recall only one decent line of verse which he wrote about that war, and in that one line the old Kipling spoke. He wrote a verse about the death of Lord Roberts, old and famed British soldier who died while visiting the British armies in France. I remember nothing of the verse save the one line in which the old Kipling spoke. It read: "Four hundred miles of cannon spoke when the master gunner died."

FORMER FULTON GIRL MARRIED IN BEAUMONT

The following article appeared in a recent issue of a Beaumont, Texas, newspaper. The bride is well-known in Fulton, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Jones. The article follows:

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Dean Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Jones, to George Bibb Edmondson, son of Mrs. Mattie Bibb Edmondson of Montgomery, Ala., will be solemnized at 8 o'clock this morning.

The ceremony will take place at St. Mark's Episcopal church, with the Rev. E. Cabot Stein as the officiant, in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends.

The couple will be unattended and will approach the altar together, entering from the vestry room of the church.

Tailored Ensemble
The bride will wear a tailored ensemble of navy rayon crepe, the only trimming being at vertical tucks and a tracery of lace on the frock. Her hat will be an upswEEPING beret of navy blue felt with accessories in harmonizing shades and her flowers will be a corsage of orchids. Following the ceremony the bride and groom will leave for a trip to points on the coast and upon their return will make their home in this city.

Miss Jones is a native of Kentucky, her family having resided in Beaumont only a short time, and her education was obtained in the schools of Kentucky and Texas. Her forebearers were among the early Americans.

One of her original American ancestors, Walter Deane, by whose surname Miss Jones is called, brought his wife from England to Taunton, Mass., in 1637, where he was a selectman for many years in addition to holding other offices. He was also founder and a stockholder in the first permanent and successful iron works in America, and served with distinction in King Phillip's war.

Native Of Alabama
Mr. Edmondson is a native of Montgomery, Ala., where he spent practically his entire life until less than two years ago, when his connection with the Coca-Cola company of Beaumont brought him to this city to reside. He was educated in the public schools of Montgomery, Ala., and the University of the South, at Sewanee, Tenn., where he was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Notable among the members of his family were Governor James Davis Porter of Tennessee, Governors William Wyatt Bibb and Thomas Bibb of Alabama, Governor George Rockingham Gilmer of Georgia, and Sir Francis Wyatt, colonial governor of Virginia.

CHENIAE-DUNN

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Dunn of Water Valley, Miss., formerly of Fulton, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ethel, to Gilbert W. Cheniae, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cheniae, Fulton. The wedding took place on February 3, 1940, in Mayfield. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Ward.

Mrs. Cheniae attended Fulton High school and was graduated in the class of 1934. The groom also attended Fulton High, graduating with the class of 1932. For the past 3 1-2 years he has been a student of the University of Kentucky, Lexington, where he is a member of Pershing Rifles and Scabbard and Blade Fraternities.

They are making their home in Water Valley, Miss.

Tigers Whip Hoppers Again Last Night Behind Sanford's Pitching

Behind the steady pitching of Lefty Sanford, the Tigers again whipped the cellar dwelling Hopkinsville Hoppers here last night, 6 to 3, to mark up the second straight victory and making a three game lead for seventh place. Sanford, while lacking his usual uncanny control, was strong when hits meant runs, and at one critical moment a great throw from Frank Filchok, and an equally great tagging episode by Ted Pawelek stopped the tying run.

Sanford was opposed by Kvedar, another left hander, and the Hopper flinger proved a puzzle in early innings. However, the Tigers got to him in the closing innings and blew him down in sturdy fashion. He was finally relieved by Burgess.

The Hoppers scored their three runs singly, Sanford never allowing hits to be bunched for more than one run. With perfect support two runs might have been avoided. In the fourth, with three men on, Mullen threw one man out at the plate and Pawelek tried for the double play at first, the ball going wide and one run scored. In the seventh frame Sanford seemed hanging to the ropes. Opening with a two run lead, 4 to 2, Decker led off with a single, and Walker promptly drove him home with a triple. Walker was held on third and Bryan then lifted a fly to Filchok in center. Frank took the ball at top speed and threw instantly, the ball coming to Pawelek on a line and the Tiger catcher tagged Walker three feet from the plate. It was a great play, saving a tie score at the moment, and the Tigers went back in their half and scored three runs to make the lead safe.

Pawelek led the hitting with four blows, and Filchok had three. Quackenbush batted in three runs with a double and single.

The final game is being played tonight and the Tigers leave on a long road trip tomorrow, returning here next Saturday.

ANOTHER HOLE IN ONE

Aces are coming in rapid succession these days at the local country club. R. M. Belew registered a hole in one yesterday on the short Number Seven just a day after James Cullum had done the same thing. Mr. Belew failed to see his ball when it struck the green and thought it had rolled into the sand trap. Finally he looked into the cup and found the ball.
