Northern French Cities Are
Battle-Scarred Ghost Towns

Luxembourg - More than a year after the end of fighting, the once populous communities of Northern France still are ghost towns - a battle-scarred, almost deserted countryside.

In the backwash of blitzkrieg are left uprooted crops, a hundred or more families, long after dark, in each village, where the ruins of shells and trenches. In the ruins of shelled towns, towns have been returned, yet not

In other parts of the region, where the French frontier, was not severely damaged, but where damage was slight, the people are slowly returning. In the outskirts of towns show almost no use.

In the backwash of blitzkrieg, are signs of war. In Brussels has become a hive of activity. In the skirts of towns show almost no use.
