Let us take a peep in the house and see. Mr. Turnipstone was standing in the lower room of the house, with a pair of spectacles on his nose, and a letter in his hand. He took it off, read it, and then put it back again. He then turned to the fireplace and looked at the logs. Then he took another letter and read it, and then turned it over and read the back. He then put it away. Then he went to the window and looked out. Then he turned to the fireplace again and looked at the logs. He then took another letter and read it, and then turned it over and read the back. He then put it away. He then took another letter and read it, and then turned it over and read the back.
