THE LISTENING POST

● If I had my way about the matter, I would issue a proclamation on the first day of August which would set aside the entire month as a holiday, and would make it a prison offense for any work whatever to be done during the month. For August is the month in which laziness and general cussedness appear in humanity, and as the days drag on it becomes increasingly difficult to do any work.

● Torrid weather generally appears in August in full blast, and this year has been no exception. For days I have had a difficult time in getting up in the mornings, and each morning I have a feeling that it would be worth a lot to just remain in bed and sleep. I wake around six o'clock each morning and generally am cool and comfortable at this hour. Outside the grass is heavy with dew, the trees bend gracefully in a gentle breeze, and a sun, which has not yet generated its blasting heat, is yellow in the east. The view is beautiful, but for some reason I always have a desire to continue my slumber.

● But I know I have a job to do. I know that downtown two linotype machines are melting metal and by seven o'clock these machines will be ready to begin spewing out their molten lines, and copy must be provided for those molten heated machines. I wonder, and there is a modicum of dread, too, in the wonder, what lines I can secure on this, another hot day, for those machines to spew forth. One day is very much like another—year, exactly the same, on the surface—but each day must be different, for the words must be arranged in a different manner and tell a different story.

● So up to dawdle over a cup of coffee and look at the morning paper to see what history has been made during the night. Each morning I open the paper there is a fear that London has been burned, or that German troops are scaling the cliffs of Dover or pushing inland over the English countryside. I breathe a sigh of relief when the newspaper tells me that the fighting is going on as it was the day before, with only a few people killed and a few English villages blasted. I wish I could really get a vacation from war, but this is impossible. Civilization seems determined to push on to complete wreckage.

● Then, when the Tigers are playing away from home, I turn hastily to the sports page and it is a fine feeling to read that they have won on some foreign field. That is about the only worth while thing these days in the papers, for everything else is a tale of calamity.

● Then down to the office and the postoffice and to a great armload of newspapers. A hasty skimming through to get early copy and then start the machines, and then the planning for the day. By this time the sun is blazing down at the town and heat waves begin to shimmer on the pavements. Then it is noon, and the walls of the office begin to radiate heat like a stove. Then, finally the paper is out, and another day begins to draw to an end. By this time another shirt has been practically ruined, another day's disposition wrecked, and plans are to be made for the night. If the Tigers are playing at home or at Union City plans are soon made, but if not, one wonders about a long automobile ride in the coolness of night, and usually this is about the best medicine.

● Yes, it is pleasant to ride along the highways these hot nights, after the sun is gone, and when concentrated coolness blows through open windows as the car rolls along. It is about the best remedy for heat I have found and the best remedy for jaded, tired nerves.

Bombs Strike Airport In London Area

Britons Claims 144 Nazi Planes Downed In Fight

London. —(Friday)—Britons dug their dead and wounded early today out of the bomb ruins of the biggest air attack in history, executed by an armada of more than 1,000 German planes which struck eight miles from the heart of London and spread destruction from the Scottish border to Lands End. Enemy planes came back after midnight over the Midlands and Northeastern and Southwestern England. Explosions were heard in the southwest and residents of one town there detected a continuous rumbling some thought might be naval gunfire.

In the last dusk-hazed fury of the fighting yesterday, planes were reported plunging in smoke-trailing death dives at a rate of one a minute.

The British total claim for the day—144 German planes to 27 British—drawn previous reports on successive assaults since last Sunday. Yesterday's fierce air siege overshadowed all earlier mass raids.

What the British losses would amount to actually in dead and wounded, splintered homes and smashed buildings remained obscure despite communiques coming from cities from the English Channel to the Irish Sea. Listing of deaths was scattered and the ministry of home security summed up the assault with the comment:

"Little success at a high cost." London echoed with the banshee wall of alarm sirens as the tide of Nazi bombardment ripped close about the sprawling city, heart of an embattled empire.

C. C. C. Camps In Worn-Out Street Cars

Washington. —Not all the worn-out street cars enter the quick-lunch business on vacant city lots. Some of them in Denver, for instance, travel to the wide-open spaces on the Federal range to aid in carrying out the national conservation program, according to a report submitted by Henry Prager, Safety Training Instructor of the Grazing Service at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Destined to serve as "side camp" quarters for C. C. C. enrollees stationed at Meeker, Col., seven of these veterans of congested metropolitan traffic were hauled through the State of Wyoming to become the first of that type of vehicle in mountainous Rio Blanco County.

Army Gives Chrysler Contract To Build Huge "Tank Arsenal"

Washington. —The Army took steps today toward grand scale production of tanks by giving the Chrysler Corporation a contract to build a $20,000,000 "tank arsenal" at Detroit and turn out an initial $33,500,000 order.

Designed for ready expansion, the plant is expected to start mass production in 13 months. Delivery dates on the $33,500,000 order were not announced.

This order, military circles heard, was for approximately 1,000 "medium" tanks of 35 or more tons, a weapon which figures prominently in the War Department's preparations to arm a force of 2,000,000 men.

State Probes Rural Power Line Upkeep

Frankfort, Ky. —The Public Service Commission started an inquiry Thursday that may lead to a rule forcing electric utilities to operate and maintain 293 miles of lines now serviced by some 1,300 rural consumers.

Hugh B. Bearden, principal consultant of the commission, said Kentucky, so far as he knows, is the only State which permits electric utilities to put maintenance and operation burdens on rural consumers whose lines run over their private property.

Bearden wrote utility commissions in all other States, asking them for their policies in this respect. Those reports, together with data he already has collected on the Kentucky situation, will be used on a hearing on the subject within a few weeks.

Kentucky Utilities Company and affiliates have 272 miles maintained by consumers on 1,281 separate lines, Kentucky-West Virginia Power Company has two miles maintained by consumers on ten lines, and Kentucky-Tennessee Light & Power Company has nineteen miles maintained by consumers on eighty-four lines, Bearden said.

Assuming this burden, would not affect rate structures or returns on investment, Bearden explained, if utilities set it up on their books in accordance with accounting rules approved by the Federal Power Commission. As it now stands, utilities are required to stand costs of at least 150 feet, and there is some talk of extending this minimum to 250 feet. The prospective customer pays the remainder.

All The Striking May Not Be Done At Barber Shop

San Rafael, Calif. —Elmer Hedden found himself in a peculiar labor situation—forced to strike against his own barber shop—and his own wife.

Hedden and his wife, Margaret, operate a barber shop and beauty parlor. Mrs. Hedden refused to sign a new work contract with the hairdressers' and cosmetologists' union. Her four employees walked out.

So did Elmer. The barbers' union took away his union shop card because Mrs. Hedden wouldn't sign with the other union.

Population Lost By Three States In Mid-West

Washington. —Three Midwestern Great Plains States—Oklahoma, South Dakota and Nebraska—lost population in the last ten years, the Census Bureau reported today.

Preliminary census figures showed 1940 populations of 2,334,437 for Oklahoma, 639,972 for South Dakota and 1,313,468 for Nebraska. The losses were said to have been 2.6 per cent for Oklahoma, 7.6 for South Dakota and 4.7 for Nebraska. Utah, however, was reported to have gained 8 per cent. Its 1940 figure was placed at 548,393.

Operation Risking Blindness Fails To Save Baby's Life

Chicago. —Baby Helaine Colan, for whom a "jury" of physicians and clergymen decreed an operation at the risk of total blindness rather than a "mercy death," died yesterday.

The child, two years and four months old, succumbed to glaucoma, a cancerous growth that caused complete blindness recently. Her case attracted nationwide attention.

When the baby was two months old the disease had blinded her left eye and impaired the vision of the other. Physicians said an operation might save her life but that she probably would be blind.

Her parents, Herman and Estelle Colan, were unable to decide between an operation and a "mercy death." Advice came from all parts of the Nation. On recommendation of the "jury," physicians removed the left eye and part of the optic nerve in a vain effort to check spread of the malady.

OKOK Car Tag Aids In Founding Safety Club

Southport, Conn. —Because the Connecticut Motor Vehicle Bureau rewards capable motorists with licenses bearing initials rather than numbers, Orson Kilborn has plates lettered OKOK—and he has a mission in life.

The Southport advertising man found OK was in use. That didn't stump him, because his wife's name is Olga Kilborn. He asked for OKOK and got it.

People looked at his plates and grinned, and Kilborn became a one-man Cheering-the-People-Up Society. Out of the laughs came a plan for promoting highway safety. He organized the Nutmeg Initial Club, whose forty-two members believe it's smart to drive carefully.

Oregon Taxes Prove Fatal To Octopus

Toledo, Ore. —Oscar, the Depose Bay aquarium's fourteen-foot octopus, is no more.

Tourists delighted in flipping sales tokens into Oscar's pool to watch him investigate them. All was well until someone started tossing for the breathing hole in Oscar's head. That was too much. They found Oscar dead next morning, his breathing apparatus jammed with tokens.

Germans Deny Trade Interests Clash With U. S.

Berlin. —Trade interests of the United States and Germany in no way overlap, authorized German sources commented today of the Navy Knox that a British defeat would leave the United States without a friend in the world. Knox made the statement yesterday before the House Military Affairs Committee in Washington to recommend adoption of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill.

Germany wants to trade with South America, a spokesman emphasized. He said Germany wanted a trade war and that such a move could only be conjured up by others.

Coal Men Expect Delay On Price Law

Washington. —Postponement of the effective date for minimum prices on sale of soft coal at the mines appeared likely to coal producers Thursday.

The coal division already has extended until August 30 the date for filing appeals with Secretary Ickes from prices fixed by the division. Persons conversant with the situation remarked that this would leave only three days—one of them a Sunday—for action on last minute appeals before September 3, the date originally fixed for prices to become effective.

Findings of fact on which the division's minimum figures were based have not yet been made available for study by operators. Sentiment has developed among coal men for a deferment of the effective date to permit a study of findings, and some predicted that unless the division announced a postponement within a few days petitions requesting it might be submitted to Ickes by some large producers.

London Happy As "Der Tag" Draws A Blank

London. —Germany's heralded "Der Tag" for the conquest of the British Isles called forth this comment today by the British Press Association:

"August 15, the date on which Hitler was to make his triumphal march into London, is here.

"In a few hours it will be gone. One newspaper seller humorously with Britain still mistress of her own fate, of the seas and of the air around her coast."

One newspaper seller humorously chalked on his bulletin board "Today, August 15—his only at Madame Tussauds." He referred to the fact the only Hitler now in London is at a wax-works exhibition.

897 Persons Leave Finland On U. S. Vessel

Helsinki, Finland. —The United States Army transport American Legion took on 897 passengers, including Crown Princess Martha of Norway and American diplomatic officials, and prepared to sail immediately today from Petsamo, in far Northern Finland.

Mrs. Florence Jaffray Harriman, Minister to Norway, and Mrs. Frederick A. Sterling, wife of the American Minister to Sweden, and the three Sterling children were passengers.

The passengers were vaccinated against smallpox and typhoid. All were forbidden also to talk politics before sailing.

The American Legion reached Petsamo August 5 under orders of President Roosevelt to return Americans stranded in Scandinavia.

D. C. May Have Congressman, But His Job Won't Be So Soft

Washington. —The proverbially busy one-armed paper-hanger got ready to toss in his brush today when he heard of a job they're talking about on Capitol Hill.

It is representative in Congress from the District of Columbia. The job may not materialize but a lot of legislators are saying they favor giving voteless Washington a voice in Congress.

Political wheelhorses shoulder at what lies ahead for the gentleman or gentlewoman from the District of Columbia.

His 630,000 constituents will be only a street car ride from his office door. His House will be next door to their houses.

Those who do have federal jobs will look to him to get them and those who have them will look to him to help them keep them.

House Passes Guard Bill By 342 To 33

Conscription May Be Delayed Until January, 1941

Washington. —The House passed the National Guard mobilization bill by a whopping 342 to 33 vote today after crushing an effort to restrict the service of militiamen and reserve officers to the continental United States and its possessions and territories.

The measure went back to the Senate for action on minor amendments. It found that chamber busily debating the peace-time conscription bill and discussing a report that Great Britain had offered to lease Caribbean naval base sites to the United States in return for much-needed American destroyers.

As it stood, approved by both branches, the National Guard bill would exempt men with dependents, but other militiamen and reserves would be subject at the call of the President to a year's compulsory service anywhere in the Western Hemisphere, the American possessions and the Philippine Islands.

Early Approval Seen
The changes made in the measure by the House were of such an unimportant nature that leaders predicted either ready approval of them by the Senate, or quick action in conference to bring Senate and House bills into agreement. In either case they expected the bill to be in President Roosevelt's hands in a few days.

With his signature, the administration bill will be in a position to start the first phase of its general program for getting an Army, eventually to number 1,200,000, into uniform and under training. The second phase, as outlined by War Department officials, is selective compulsory military training, such as is contemplated in the legislation now before the Senate.

U. S. May Ask For Recall Of Nazi Envoy

Washington. —The State Department today is to be considering asking the German Government to recall one of its consular officials from this country because of his past activities in Brazil.

Summer Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said the case of Friedrich Reed, recently transferred from Brazil to New York, was under active consideration and he planned an early announcement in the matter.

In other quarters, it was reported the action probably would be a request that Reed leave this country in the interest of inter-American solidarity because of his activities in Brazil.

But His Job Won't Be So Soft

In the House he'd have but one vote against some 435 others.

Inasmuch as Congress runs the district he'd have to entertain all kinds of delegations—like neighborhood groups demanding a new traffic light.

More than 300,000 automobile drivers might badger him to get their traffic tickets fixed.

Taxi drivers—who have been clamoring for meters for years—will beseege him to get them. His colleagues—who like to ride cars for 30 cents a ride—will tug the other way.

He'd get one break—he wouldn't have to make up lightning talks for visiting constituents. On the other hand, he wouldn't be able to collect the 25-cent-a-call telephone tax which many business men have been reluctant to pay.

PRELIMINARY WORK BEING DONE

It seems curious for the people of this nation to even consider compulsory military service in time of peace, but so prevalent is the belief that this nation may soon be engaged in war that plans are already being discussed for the formation of draft boards in the various counties of the nation. It is quite evident that backers of the conscription bill so firmly believe it will be passed that they are taking time by the forelock, so to speak, and getting machinery started for quick carrying out of the draft law. Here in Kentucky plans are already being made for setting up draft boards, and before many months we may see things we have not seen since the hectic days of 1917. The only difference will be that there will be no war to send the boys to at the moment, but many believe that war will claim them before many months.

There is bitter opposition to the conscription bill, and there is also considerable support for it. A Chicago man, who happens to be visiting here, put up a graphic case for the opposition the other day. This man operates a business of considerable magnitude in Chicago, and has two sons who are partners in the business with him. One son is twenty-four, the other is twenty-eight. The father, in discussing the matter, said:

"Getting away from the love of a father for his sons and all sentimental issues entirely and putting the matter on a purely business standpoint, it must be recognized that I have a heavy investment in these two boys. I have put them through high school, paid their way through universities and spent considerable money in training them to carry on this business of mine. They are directors in the business, and I have been looking to them to carry on the business if I happen to be incapacitated or wish to retire. For years my hopes have been centered on them for this work, and I have trained no one else for the job. I figured that with two chances that surely one would come through. Now this entire investment is threatened, and if the draft takes both these boys away, I will be left just where I started, with my investment taken away. This, aside from all fraternal feelings I have for these boys. It just doesn't seem like good business when no war is actually under way."

Well, that is a good argument and this writer can see the man's viewpoint. On the other hand, the other side of the picture is clear also. It is a certainty that armies are trained better before a war breaks than after the fighting starts. It is a certainty also that if huge new fleets of ships, planes and tanks are built, as planned, that millions of boys will be needed to man those new fleets. It would be folly to build these machines of war and then find that we had no man power to operate them. Likewise, we who remember 1917, and the haste with which we worked, and the raw men who were thrown into battle half prepared, can easily see that building an army is not a matter of days, but rather a matter of months and years.

Certainly no one can say what the future has in store for us, but in a world which is changing so swiftly it seems the better part of wisdom to make

RENDEZVOUS WITH DESTINY

The command is forward!
Forward marches America is a new destiny. It is no less than the creation of the greatest and finest civilization the world has ever seen!
Our task is bigger than a mere miserly defense of what we already possess. That we can do, and will do, but that is not enough. The mere negative defense of what we have and what has been, is not enough. France knows that.

Why has this sudden determination arisen to defend America? Not for what America has been. Not for what it is. We defend the America that is to be.

There are divisions of opinion which seem to obscure the essential unity of America. Have you heard a man say, "I do not believe the United States should defend itself"? No. Differences exist in the manner of defense—whether it is better to defend a frontier on the Thames, on the Amazon, or at the seaboard—whether it is better to make all liable to service at once—what stress shall be laid on this or that defense arm, this or that plan.

But behind all this lies the inspiring response of all America to the question, "Are you resolved to defend yourself against whatever force tries to intimidate or assail you?" The small bickerings over details of means are lost in the chorused response, "We are!"

America is mustering her to defend the future. For unto us the future of the world is given. What hope is there for the world in an anti-hill nationalism that climbs to physical might on the murdered hopes of men that they might be free and have some meaning to themselves? There is none.

New techniques will come, new ways of conducting the affairs of men. But in America still lies the world's best hope of building a better way in the future—a way in which men may be truly free.

Bearded Walt Whitman saw this vision of the future many years ago. Today we feel something of what he felt when he wrote:

"The earth, restive, confronts a new era, perhaps a general divine war;

"No one knows what will happen next—such portents fill the days and nights;

"The perform'd America and Europe grow dim, retiring in shadow, behind me.

"The unperform'd, more gigantic than ever, advance, advance upon me."

Today's Oddity

Scottsbluff, Neb.—Policemen were hot on the trail of William Cline as he drove through town at an 85 miles an hour clip.

But when he stopped at the hospital, the officers seized up the situation and rushed to open the door for Mrs. Cline.

Fifteen minutes later she gave birth to a daughter.

Kane, Ill.—Starlings here have picked up where the college boys left off a year ago.

John Freer reports the—birds have nearly cleaned his rock garden pool of gold fish, which they devour in nearby trees.

Kansas City, Kan.—Joseph Dahlin, motor car leader, fell asleep in the lobby of a bank. He awoke to find 29 cents in the hat he had been holding in his lap.

some preparations in advance. Perhaps our national leaders are wrong in believing that we should prepare, but there is a good chance that these fears may be based on the solid rock of facts. If so, it will be a good thing for us if we do make preparations. It is tragic, no matter what we believe about it, but adequate preparations now may make the tragedy less bitter.

ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN IS PREPARED TO BOOST VOLUNTARY ENLISTMENT

Washington.—Preparation to accelerate further the Army's drive for volunteer recruits already coming in at the record rate of more than 1,000 a day were announced today by War Department officials.

A Philadelphia concern was put in charge of a $250,000 advertising campaign to reinforce recruiting methods already being employed with the aim of expanding the Regular Army's enlisted strength to its full authorized limit of 375,000 by January 1.

The enlistment campaign, it was made clear, will be pushed regardless of the fate of the selective legislation now under debate in the Senate.

The bulk of the $250,000 available for advertising was earmarked for newspapers. Only about $19,000 was expended last year for promotion.

FEDERAL EMPLOYMENT IS ABOVE MILLION MARK FOR 1ST TIME

Washington.—Civil Service Commission reported today that the expanding defense program had pushed federal employment above the million mark for the first time.

The number of workers in the executive branch of the government in June was 1,011,066, a jump of 33,076 or 3.4 percent from May.

This compared with the World War Peak of 917,760 on Nov. 11, 1918 and the previous peacetime record of 987,857 reached last December 31.

Nature's Danger Signal

How much easier it is to keep well than to get well. In these strenuous times so many people have fagged out "feeling." They are tired all the time. They think they are all run down when they are more apt to be all wound up. And they do not recognize this as nature's danger signal that something is wrong.

MISS SARAH HELEN WILLIAMS AND ALEXANDER GENTLEMAN ARE WED IN BEAUTIFUL CEREMONY AT FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH YESTERDAY

Miss Sarah Helen Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde P. Williams of this city, was married yesterday afternoon, August 15, to Alexander William Gentleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Gentleman of Chicago, at the First Christian Church. The ceremony was read at five o'clock by Dr. Don P. Hawkins, pastor of the church.

For the occasion the church was beautifully decorated in the green and white color scheme carried throughout the wedding, with all attendants dressed in white. Huge floor baskets of white gladioli were arranged among a number of candleabra holding tall white tapers. Southern smilax and ferns were also used.

For the lighting of the candles, done by Miss Mary Jane Owen of Fulton and Billy Creason of Mayfield, the pianist, Mrs. Lloyd Emory of Paducah, played "Ave Maria." Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Kirkpatrick Byrns of Mayfield, soprano, sang "At Dawning" and "Sweetest Story Ever Told," accompanied by Mrs. Emory. For the processional Lohengrin's Wedding March was used and during the ceremony Mrs. Emory played "Leibersraum" softly. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used for the recessional.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin falling at the back in a long train with full length veil fastened at the head with orange blossoms. Her flowers were a solid white shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her sister Miss Margaret Williams, was maid of honor and wore an ivory satin gown similar to that of the bride, with a short train and a small bouquet of carnations.

Koslo Holds Tigers To 4 Hits In Last Paducah Game

After taking the first two games of the series from the Indians, the Tigers dropped the third and last game there last night by the score of 7 to 0. Dave Koslo, Paducah's ace southpaw, pitched a masterpiece in setting the Tigers down with only four hits, one a double by Moon Mullen, the others singles by Peterson and two for Quackenbush. Only six men reached base, the other two being bases on balls.

Jim Gentry went the route for the Tigers and the game was a pitchers' duel between Koslo and Gentry until the eighth inning when Mel Ivy smashed a home run with two men on base. This started a rally which produced five runs for the Indians. The Indians collected fourteen hits, including a home run, a triple and five doubles. Ralph Jesh was credited with the only error of the game, playing first base.

The Tigers begin a series with the Mayfield Browns, playing in the Mayfield park tonight and returning to Fairfield with the Browns tomorrow night. Sunday afternoon's game will be played in Mayfield.

With hunter and hunted bearing a striking resemblance to each other, Keith assumes the role of Sergeant Conniston, after the latter dies of his wounds suffered in a fall.
