Bombs Strike Airport In London Area

Battleships Claim 144 Nazi Planes Downed In Fight

London, (PR) Britain's dead and wounded early today put a new blow to the Nazi air attack on Britain when British battleships sank 144 German planes which struck an oil field from the heart of London and spread destruction from the dorset border to London belles on the London front, and from the northern border to the Rhine, one of 1500 German planes which bombarded 11 oil fields.

British officials said the battle today brought a new blow to the Nazi war effort and a new victory for Britain's airmen. They said the battle was fought with more than 1000 bombers and fighters from both sides.

The British warplanes were shot down by the Nazis in the air battle over the Channel. The German planes were returning from their raid on the British oil fields.

PRELIMINARY WORK BEING DONE

It seems curious for the people of this nation to even consider conscription in a war that plans are already being discussed for the formation of draft boards in the various counties of the nation. It is quite evident that bringing this conscription bill to a vote will mean putting in practice the draft law. Here in Kentucky plans are already being made to set up draft boards in the various counties. Today it seems the better part of wisdom to make a preliminary study of this question.

There is no opposition to the draft law, but there is also considerable support for it. A Chicago man, who was visiting here last week, put up a graphic case for the opposition. That man operated a business of considerable magnitude in Chicago, and handled many of the big business partners in the business with one. Some other day, he was forty-two, the other was twenty-eight. The father, in discussing the matter, said:

"Getting away from the love of a father for his sons and the parental issues entirely and putting the matter on a greedy business basis, it must be recognized that I have a heavy investment in these two boys. I am too old to go into the service, and I have no intention of investing in training them. If any man has his conscience clear and feels the same way I do. It is a good argument.

"But, if I am required to put these boys in the army when I have trained them and invested considerable money in them as they have been, then it is something to be remembered. I am going to stand by the draft law, but I am going to have my two chances that surely one would come through. Now this entire investment taken away. This, aside from the draft law, is something to be remembered.

"America is mustering her defenses, for you and me the future of the world is given. What hope there is for the world in an anti-bellum nationalism that climbs to physical might on the murderous hopes of men that they might be free and have some meaning to themselves? There is none.

"New techniques will come, new ways of conducting the affairs of men, and America still has the world's best hope of building a better way in the future—a way in which men may be truly free.

"War Whitman saw this vision of the future many years ago. This is the sort of something of what he wrote when he wrote:

"The earth, serene, confronts a new era, perhaps a general divine awakening.

"No, you know what will happen next—such portions fill the days and the nights are long.

"The perform'd America and Europe, at dim, retiring in shadow, behind me.

"The unperform'd, more gigantic effort, its advance upon me.

Today's Oddity

Scottsbluff, Neb.—Policemen were hot on the trail of William Cline and his horse this morning, when he drove through town at an 85 miles an hour clip.

But when he stopped at the hospital, the officers found the situation and rushed to open the door for Mrs. Cline.

Fifteen minutes later she gave birth to daughter.

Kane, Ill.—Starlings here have picked up where the college boys left off a year ago.

Four reports here have pointed to where the boys beat at 7:00 a.m. a year ago.

The family lawyer has barely cleaned his rock garden of gold fish, which they devour in great numbers.

Kansas City, Kan.—Joseph Dalilin, motor car leader, fell asleep in the lobby of a hotel. He woke to find windows in the hat he had been holding in his lap.

Salina, Kan.—B. B. Stoffled, a divorce case, threw the trial judge in a tantrum when he heard the case.

Hillsboro, Nebr.—H. M. Johnson, a newspaper editor, gave up his life insurance because he was afraid he would not live to fill the ten-year period. He is 45 years old.
