

MURRAY STATE UNIVERSITY

Murray State's Digital Commons

Kentucky New Era Tri-Weekly

Newspapers

11-13-1886

The Tri-Weekly Kentucky New Era, November 13, 1886

The Tri-Weekly Kentucky New Era

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.murraystate.edu/kynet>

Recommended Citation

The Tri-Weekly Kentucky New Era, "The Tri-Weekly Kentucky New Era, November 13, 1886" (1886). Kentucky New Era Tri-Weekly. 166.

<https://digitalcommons.murraystate.edu/kynet/166>

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the Newspapers at Murray State's Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Kentucky New Era Tri-Weekly by an authorized administrator of Murray State's Digital Commons. For more information, please contact msu.digitalcommons@murraystate.edu.

The Innocent Drummer. He had his wife a fearful good-by. "My love, my only one! The time will soon be here when I shall be in a position to snap my fingers at fate and set up as my own boss. Then we shall have no more of these cruel partings."

Base Burner Poison. The family of Mr. Tichenor, living at No. 1726 Walnut street, met with a narrow escape from being poisoned to death with coal gas this morning.

THOUSANDS of people suffer with back ache, not knowing that in most cases, it is a symptom of diseased kidneys and liver, which poisons and tortures cannot heal. The best and safest remedy is Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm.

For the next two weeks we will offer some startling inducements in our Cloak Department.

Short Wraps, Newmarkets, Jackets.

A gigantic bargain in Newmarkets at $8.50, would be cheap at $12.00, Astrican Jackets in all colors at $4.75, worth $7.50. One lot Ladies' Short Wraps, Berlin Twill, trimmed in Astrican at $5.00, would be cheap at $8.00. One lot French Astrican Bon Ton Jackets at $6.50, good value for $10.00.

We call special attention to our large assortment of Foreign Wraps at $20, 25, 30 and upwards. We positively guarantee to save you one-half on children's Cloaks at every price from $1.50 to $12.00.

Blankets! Comforts! Blankets!

10-4 White Alpine Blankets at $2.75 a pair, good value for $4.00; 10-4 Extra Heavy Blankets at $2.90 a pair, worth $4.50.

We are still selling that extra size comfort at 50c; a still better one at 75c. and the best in America at $1.00.

Remember we are headquarters for

LADIES' AND GENTS' UNDERWEAR.

METZ & TIMOTHY, LEADERS AND CONTROLLERS OF LOW PRICES.

Grissam's Old Stand, Hopkinsville, Ky.

J.G. Hord, NEW STORE. NEW STOCK.

Staple and Fancy

GROCERIES.

POSTELL BLOCK, 6TH ST., HOPKINSVILLE, KY.

Has just opened with a full, new Fall Stock of

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps, Trunks and Notions,

And will not be undersold by anyone.

AYER'S AGUE CURE

Is Warranted,

Never fails to cure every form of disorder peculiar to Malaria-infected districts.

EVANSVILLE

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE

INSTITUTE OF BUSINESS TRAINING.

INSTITUTED OVER ONE-THIRD OF A CENTURY.

Successful because meritorious. Many of the best book-keepers and business men in Christian county graduated at this old reliable Commercial College. We teach in the most thorough manner Book-keeping of every description, Book-keeping, Penmanship, Business Calculations and Mathematics, Business Terms and Short-Hand, Type-Printing and Telegraphy.

The young man of to-day cannot do justice to himself without making every effort to obtain a thorough business education. It is not to be either a Mechanic, Manufacturer, Banker, Merchant, Lawyer, Doctor, Farmer, Clerk, Book-keeper, or even an Editor, a clerk, or a laborer, that he can succeed in life without a thorough business education. This is an absolute fact. Ladies received upon equal terms. School opens all the year round. Students can enter at any time.

CURNICK & RANK, Evansville, Ind.

ADVERTISERS

Bryant and Stratton.

can learn the exact cost of any proposed line of advertising in American papers by addressing

Geo. P. Rowell & Co.,

Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 109 Broadway, New York.

Send 10c for 100-Page Pamphlet.

HOME STUDY.

No Text Books or Manuscripts copied and recopied by students. Has the largest home indorsement as to true merit. Graduate have little trouble in obtaining situations.

Instruction will be given by mail. Improve your spare hours and obtain a practical education.

Address College as Above.

No One."

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

TRAINS NORTH	10:15 A. M.	10 P. M.
TRAINS SOUTH	6:30 A. M.	5:30 P. M.

Personal.

O. S. Brown spent Friday in Madisonville.

W. M. West, Crofton, was in the city Friday.

Capt. Darwin Bell, of Garrettsburg, is in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Majors, Clarksville, were in the city Friday.

Miss Fannie and Corrie Phelps have returned from Clarksville.

Miss Lizzie Durrett, of Louisville, is visiting Mrs. Mary Durrett, on Walnut street.

Thos. W. Rider, the accomplished representative of Robt. Clark & Co., Cincinnati, is in the city.

Mrs. Mack Carroll, of the Fairview neighborhood, is visiting relatives and friends in the city this week.

Sundays Services.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Preaching Lord's day at 10:45 A. M. and 7 P. M., by the pastor, L. W. Welsh.

As the audience room is undergoing repairs, the services will be held in the basement. Subject of the morning discourse, "The Great Mistake of the Reformers." Sunday school at 9:30 A. M. Public cordially invited to all services.

Ohio Valley Railroad.

The Ohio Valley Railroad, constructed and under control from De Koven, Ky., to Cumberland River, has fifty miles of track ironed and fifty miles more graded. The road is located to Marion, to which place it will be completed in December. Bridges across the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers are to be located at once. The company is pushing forward its work with great energy and apparent solidity and promises to take an honorable position among the builders of lines of traffic and travel in the rich Southwest.

Wedding Bells.

The marriage of Capt. John R. Green to Miss Emma H. Campbell, at the Baptist church, Thursday evening, was one of the most beautiful wedding ceremonies ever witnessed in our city.

The church was tastefully decorated. The front center of the pulpit was covered with a bank of chrysanthemums relieved on either side with stands of gracefully nodding ferns. A statue of Cupid holding aloft a floral offering stood behind the center of the organ railing, while the little gold stood sentinel over a bed of roses blooming about him. At the appointed hour, 8 o'clock, the wedding march sounded and the young couple entered the church preceded by the ushers, Messrs. Henry Wallace, Web, Bell, Gus Moore and Henry Abernathy. The ushers came down the center aisle separating and assuming positions on either side of the pulpit. The bride and groom were in the center of the pulpit by Rev. J. N. Prestridge who pronounced a beautiful, solemn ceremony. The bride wore an elegant costume of white silk en train with front of crêpe de chine and side panels of pearl passementerie. She carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums and looked as lovely as brides of old. Capt. and Mrs. Green left on the 10 o'clock train for St. Louis and Chicago. They will return next Wednesday. They have both long been favorites in Hopkinsville society, and a multitude of friends bid them a happy voyage. The bride presents were beautiful and costly. The New Era extends the most cordial congratulations.

SHILOH'S will immediately relieve Croup, Whooping Cough and Bronchitis. J. R. Armstrong sells it.

The Oyster Not a Fish.

The U. S. Treasury Department has prosaically decided that an oyster is a fish. "This false." Now that the chill winds of November are stripping the leaves from the woods and causing the school girl to don her warmest jacket, the housekeeper to heap fresh fuel on the grate and tack on weather-strips around the doors and windows, it is a fitting time to protest against this inglorious misnomer of a modest creature of the good Lords which has done more for the realm of conviviality and good fellowship than the Thanksgiving turkey, the Christmas quail, goose, canary-bird and venison. Hail, oyster! Seraph of Saddle Rock! Cherub of Cherry-stone! Angel of Blue Point! whose silence is a chime of golden bells ringing out sweeter music at family supper, or midnight convivial repast than the song of Lallah Rookh pleading for entrance through the closed door of Mohammed's paradise; whose shell is a palace of pearl defying the painter's brush or sculptor's chisel to copy it; whose sterling excellence and blameless purity of life will some day assuredly win it a place on the United States coinage beside the eagle, for the oyster is king of the ocean even as the eagle is king of the air. Fish are rapacious, ravenous murderers and cannibals, delighting in carnage and violence; but the oyster lives and thrives by gentle suction, on the margin of reeds and inlets, even as the infant Moses thrived at the white breast of his Hebrew mother when hidden in the bulrushes of the Nile. The oyster is the gem of the sea, the jewel of civilization, the pearl of winter feasts. For particulars ask "Dixey" Wilson or Johnny Galbreath.

Syrup of Figs.

Manufactured only by the California Fig Syrup Co., San Francisco, Cal., is Nature's Own True Laxative. This pleasant California liquid fruit remedy may be had of Mr. H. B. Garner. Sample bottles free and large bottles at fifty cents and one dollar. It is the most pleasant, prompt, and effective remedy known to cleanse the system; to get on the Liver, Kidney and Bowels going, yet unroughly; to dispel Headaches, Colds, and Fevers; to cure Constipation, Indigestion and kindred ills.

Around Town.

Only a few days more of cloak display at Frankel's.

Cottage to rent. Apply at the County Clerk's office.

The Phoenix Hotel Saloon runs to the first of January.

Two good farms and city residence for rent. Apply to W. W. Warr.

The last chance to secure a bargain in wraps at Frankel's.

Three tuition certificates of the Evansville Commercial College, for sale at this office.

New corn is selling from wagons at $2 per barrel. The crop is lighter than usual in this county.

The grand sale of sample cloaks still continues at the mammoth emporium of M. Frankel & Sons.

Metz & Timothy furnish a pointer in wraps, cloaks, blankets, etc., in another column. Be certain to read all about it.

FOR RENT.—The store house now occupied by L. H. McKee & Co., on Main street, between Ninth and Tenth. Apply to Mrs. Belle Alexander.

CLOAKS CLOAKS in endless variety of Short Wraps, Visites in Plush, Astrachan and Broadcloth, Jackets of Astrachan, Bonecle Cloth and Jerseys at Frankel's.

Owenboro Inquirer: Mrs. J. E. Reno, the art teacher in this city, taught Gov. David B. Hill, of New York, in his early youth. She says she remembers him as a splendid boy.

Clarkville Democrat: The Hopkinsville New Era is offering some extra inducements to renewals and new subscribers, the principal inducement offered being a first-class paper.

It is a significant fact that the only murder committed in this county during the intensely exciting occurrence of the election on the 2nd inst resulted from a quarrel, at Lafayette, between two drunken negroes.

Madisonville Times: The last seen of Hop Holeman he was going to Louisville with a young lady and her mother. It is thought by many that a wedding would result, but we are informed that it will not occur until the 30th inst.

The new revenue law requires the owners of land who do not reside in the county in which it lies to file a written description of each tract with the county clerk, and the failure to do so subjects the owner to a fine of not less than $20 and not more than $100 for each tract, and $1 for each $100 of the value of the land.

Do you want the best weekly paper in New York—"The World"—and a fine gilt-edged, leather-bound history of the United States—and the Tri-Weekly New Era for one year, and a chance at our $1,000 worth of premiums to be given away next April? If you do, bring, or send us $3.40 and we will furnish you the whole "lay-out." See our "Inducements."

The handsome organ, worth $210, which heads the New Era Premium list is warranted to be first-class in every respect, and some one of our subscribers will get it on the 15th day of April 1897. It costs you nothing to try for it: you get the full worth of your money in the paper and the ticket in the drawing comes free. Read list of "Inducements" in another column.

Elkton Progress: Mr. J. E. Goodman, our efficient collector, made his report for the fiscal year ending last Monday. The total assessment for the year was $581.00. Amount collected, $653.45. Delinquent, $27.50. Number of delinquents 22. The delinquent report is about $60 less than ever before, which speaks well for the tax payers and also for Mr. Goodman, the collector.

The dedication of the Baptist church at Fairview is set for to-morrow week, Sunday Nov. 21st. The tobacco leaf in speaking of the dedication says: Hon. Jefferson Davis, upon the site of whose birth place the church is built, has been invited to attend this dedication, and from letters from that gentleman to his friend, M. H. Clark, of this city, it is not improbable that he will be present.

The good old man of the Democrat says kindly to the Clarksville girls: "My daughter, when you go to an entertainment at the Opera House, do your talking between the acts. People, as a general thing would much prefer to hear the actors, than to listen to a lot of silly talk from you and your escort. No, my daughter, church is not the place for flirtations. When you go to church always try to behave yourself and pay attention to what the good pastor is saying."

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

Miss Mamie Tandy, who has been prostrated with typhoid fever, is convalescent.

First class billed Timothy hay for sale at the Diamond coal yards, Ninth street near the depot.

We are glad to announce that Mrs. Andrew Hall, who has been ill so long, is now convalescent.

Company A, Bowling Green, is preparing to enter the great prize drill at Washington next spring.

Union thanksgiving services will be held at the Ninth Street Presbyterian Church Thursday, Nov. 25th. Rev. J. N. Prestridge, pastor of the Baptist Church, will preach the sermon.

How is this? The WEEKLY NEW ERA for one year with ticket in the $1,000 drawing, the WEEKLY New World drawing, and a handsome leather-bound history of the United States, all for $2.40. See of "Inducements" elsewhere in this paper.

A voracious citizen boasted that he could eat 12 pounds of cove oysters, whereupon an innocent grocery man proposed to set 'em up if he would accomplish the feat. The country man stowed them away in a few minutes and, Oliver Twist like, called for four more cans. The merchant declined to go further with the experiment.

Our attention has been called to the unbecoming custom men and boys are guilty of in standing around the Opera House entrance after performances. Ladies do not like to elbow their way through a crowd. A number of respectable people have asked us to call the attention of the guilty ones to this, hoping that we will have no more of it.

"What time is it?" you are often asked and offered to buy a watch? you can't afford to buy a watch? you will send you the WEEKLY NEW ERA for one year, and a chance at our $1,000 worth of premiums to be given away next April. It costs you nothing to try for it: you get the full worth of your money in the paper and the ticket in the drawing comes free. Read list of "Inducements" in another column.

The manufacture of books, papers, magazines, etc., has become one of the greatest industries in the world and the greatness of reading matter is really wonderful. As an illustration of it, we are now offering to our subscribers forty-five (45) well-printed, standard books for fifty cents (50 cts.) think of it! One and one-half cents each. In connection with this offer we give the New Era at the regular price and a chance to draw some article worth from $1.00 to $210.00. Read our "Inducements" in another column.

The Winfree-Anderson election contest is progressing slowly. Thursday, Clark and Brethitt discussed the law points in behalf of Anderson, and McCroft and Petree expounded the law on the Winfree side. The returning board is now engaged in reviewing the evidence assisted by the attorneys. Each case is taken up separately. All the testimony is carefully considered and the decision as to the legality of the vote is ascertained by ballot. This will take several days. In the ballot the majority rules.

Tobacco Leaf: Maj. Gordon and Ed. Baxter, the L. & N.'s attorneys, came down last Tuesday morning to arrange for the payment of the floating debt of the L. & N. & T. R. R. By the terms of the sale of this road to the L. & N. Maj. Gordon was to pay all except $1,000 of the floating debt. Claims for more than this amount have been filed. We understand that some of these claims will be contested. The others, we understand, will be paid as soon as some matters between Maj. Gordon and the L. & N. R. R. can be arranged.

Cadiz Telephone: Mrs. Wilson, the celebrated temperance lecturer, who planned the campaign and led it to victory on the 2nd inst., in Christian county in the interest of prohibition, spoke at Montgomery last Sunday morning to a very large crowd, and at the court house in Cadiz that night to a crowded house. Mrs. Wilson was warmly solicited to remain and speak longer, but she had other engagements ahead. She has promised to return the 2nd Monday in December and deliver a public address, at which time persons from every locality in the county can have an opportunity of listening to her, and have her visit every neighborhood in the county if they wish.

Cerulean Springs is on a boom. A correspondent says: The late additions in the way of improvements are one place for flirtations. When you go to church always try to behave yourself and pay attention to what the good pastor is saying."

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had hidden in his saloon while in the flesh. The widow heeded the oblique ghost's advice and found a bag in a pile of rubbish which contained $240 in double eagles. The commercial says that a number of Dewberry's old customers who left a large list of unpaid drinks on his slate have left town fearing that the ghost may turn collector on his next return to the old haunts. A Hopkinsville saloon keeper says that if all persons who have unpaid drinks down on his slate will settle promptly in his hour of distress, he will give his solemn pledge not to dun them after his departure to the "spirit" land.

The labor of love in the cause of good morals, performed by the Prohibition woman of Christian county on last election day and reported in the columns of the New Era has been republished far and wide by the public press which always feels a warm admiration for the heroic self-sacrifice of woman, when enlisted in a cause she believes to be pure and good. The light of her example will shine farther and longer than the blaze of the uplifted torch of Berthold's ocean statue at the entrance of New York harbor.

Elkton Progress: A good top buggy has been found in the woods out in the country. The buggy was partly concealed and had, evidently been stolen. The buggy can be obtained by its owner by paying for this notice and furnishing the necessary proof of property. Our neighboring exchanges would do well to clip this, as it is thought the buggy was brought some distance. Thieving in the buggy and harness line has broken out bad, and some man must be getting ready to open out a wholesale house for such merchandise.

The "spook" of John Dewberry, an eccentric saloon keeper, of Louisville, who died some time since, called on his widow a few nights since, and told her where she would find some treasure he had