THE BENTON TRIBUNE.

VOLUME 6.

BENTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 22, 1894.

NUMBER 43.

IN CHURCH.

Across the aisle I see her kneel,
While her pure thought to heaven
wings.
There is no sign upon her brow
Of worldly care or temporal things.
But I am sure she would not kneel
Quite so demurely if she knew
The sunlight through the painted glass
Had dyed her features green and blue.

WRESTED FROM PROTECTION.

WHATEVER has been gained has been wrested from a protective body. The country concurs in Mr. Wilson's report. The senate has a majority for protection. There are 37 republicans, 3 populists and 7 democrats who are champions of prohibitive tariffs on articles produced by their friends and therefore for all prohibitive tariffs—protection consisting in being for the other fellow's tariff if he will be for yours.

From this protective body the tariff reform democrats have wrested a reduction of sugar duties, free wool, lumber and jute, and a great curtailment of tariffs on the textiles which the masses must buy for clothing. An income tax is secured, which relieves taxation on the household and places a share of federal expenses upon the wealth whose concentration has been favored by federal laws.

Not all that the house contended for and the country desired has been obtained. The Sugar Trust has not been severed from government partnership. Iron and coal are still taxed, and the commodities into whose cost they enter are still to bring higher prices than the people should pay. But, as the chairman of the Ways and Means committee, himself as brave a champion as a cause ever had, says to his friends, when men have done their best, according to their capacity and judgment, they must fall back on the consciousness of duty done. For the democrats of the house the voters of the party have nothing but approval. What obligations came to them under the laws and the instructions of their constituents they have discharged with promptitude. There has been no departure from principle. In their proposition to reform the revenue they were moderate and business interests were never left in doubt. The contest for a better bill than the measure offered by the senate they have fought as long as there was the slightest chance to succeed and have abandoned it at the demand of business when success against a protective senate majority was a demonstrated impossibility.

That atrocity, the McKinley bill, is about to be wiped from the statute books by democratic votes. The pledge of 1892 to the people is redeemed as far as the people have conferred the power. The tariff reformers could not control a senate to which a majority of real reformers had not been elected. The house has shown what honest reformers can do by passing bills for free sugar, free iron, free coal and free barbed wire. Having placed the blame for the incompleteness of the reform where it belongs, the house democrats can adjourn in the "consciousness of duty done."

Now that tariff legislation is at an end for this congress, business men owe to the country an increased activity and confidence. The elements of prosperity are all with us. Set everywhere the example of faith and energy. Doubts about the laws are at rest. There is nothing else for business men to doubt except their own strength of will. Matters will not come right of themselves. Men must make them right. It is just about a year since the acute financial trouble began. It is just about time for the year of sharp revival to begin.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

CREAL SPRINGS, ILL., Aug. 17.—We have heard more or less of Creal Springs, as a watering place for several years, but never visited it until now, and we find here a very nice little town of 1,000 inhabitants.

All of the land upon which the town stands, 11 years ago, belonged to a Mr. Creal, who died here only a short time since. His farm extended all over the territory where the town of Creal Springs is now located.

The efficacy of the water was discovered by a traveler and his family, who came this way with chills and other sickness. He camped near where Spring No. 1 is located, but then it was only a hog wallow, but he got clean water enough to drink and his family had used it but a short time before every one was cured of the chills and were hale and hearty. Soon another traveler chanced to stop near by a few days and he was sorely afflicted with sore eyes; he used the water and soon his eyes were healed and he went on his way rejoicing. These and a few other cases were enough to attract the attention of the people to the water for its healing qualities, and several other springs were sunk near by, until now they number five. Far malarial disorders, rheumatism and dyspepsia these waters have no superiors in all this section of country. Creal Springs are now the most noted waters for health in all Southern Illinois.

The Ozark hotel, which is a fine brick, three stories high, with all of the modern improvements of a first class hotel, is the most popular stopping place in the city. There are, however, four other hotels and any number of boarding houses and restaurants, where people can stop and enjoy the healing of the waters. There are four churches, two saloons and quite a number of other business houses in the city. There were over 100 houses built here last year, but there is but little improvement going on now. The Baptists have a female seminary here, besides there is a fine free school taught here each year.

This place is situated in one corner of Williamson county, whose county seat is Marion. In politics the town is pretty evenly divided between democrats and republicans. There is a big encampment of the Grand Army here, 100 of whom draw pensions and are supported in that way by the government. The pension business is a big thing in this county and the people get along all right rain or shine. There is a good country surrounding Creal Springs; the farmers raise corn, wheat, oats, potatoes and vegetables. The town is hilly and has an unseemly appearance, yet it is a good business point. There are a large number of persons here for health, and the Ozark has been crowded all summer with men, women and children from all sections of the country. The waters seem to be a sure cure for rheumatism, sore eyes and dyspepsia.

NOTES.

Mr. Ben Smith, of Lyon county, has a brother residing here; so also has Mr. John L. Smith, of Lyon county.

While here we met Mr. John D. Morefield, a rabid republican, and a $17 pensioner, who came here from Graves county in 1864. He is a cousin to the Morefields of both Marshall and Graves counties, and remembers his old Kentucky friends in a way that is so common with all Kentuckians.

While here we met Mrs. Salina Holland, who is engaged in the millinery business. She has a very nice store and the indications are that she is doing a nice business and will do much better when the times pick up a little. Her husband, Mr. Gen. Holland, is engaged in the grocery business, 25 miles from here at Thompsonsville. He intends soon to sell out and come here and engage in some business for a livelihood. Mrs. Holland has only been here for a short time and she and her friends think it will only be a short time until she will be enjoying a good trade.

The drouth in Illinois, like it is in Kentucky, is simply terrible, and to pass through the country and see the thousands of acres of fine young corn burning up is distressing, indeed. In coming out 50 miles from Paducah there are two sections or small strips of country in which is as fine corn as a crow ever flew over, but it has just happened that plenty of rain has fallen on these particular spots. But there are thousands of fields that will not produce a peck to the acre.

A PROBLEM IN THREES.

If three little houses stood in a row,
With never a fence to divide,
And if each little house had three little maids
At play in the garden wide,
And if each little maid had three little cats
(Three times three times three),
And if each little cat had three little kits,
How many kits would there be?

And if each little maid had three little friends
With whom she loved to play,
And each little friend had three little dolls
In dresses and ribbons gay,
And if friends and dolls and cats and kits
Were all invited to tea,
And if none of them all should send regrets,
How many guests would there be?

THE IDEAL DIRECTOR.

Our readers will appreciate the following extract from a paper read by Thomas Gay at a recent teachers' meeting: "I will tell you of the very best director I ever saw. He is in heaven now, and when you all get there I want you to hunt him up. You will like him although perhaps some of you have said in your heart, of directors, 'There is none that doeth good; no, not one.' You will find him by this legend over the door of the best mansion on the Fifth Avenue of the New Jerusalem: 'H. A. Gray, the good director, formerly of Little Philadelphia, Pike county, Illinois.' The most timid of you may carry your heart in its normal position while in the presence of this angel director, and if you are to be teachers there, don't be afraid to ask him for good terms, and you may tell him from me, if any of you get there before I do, or if I miss it entirely, that I trust he is filling the office in heaven as satisfactorily as he did on earth. He is an old man as the world goes, and I wished that he could have lived on earth to convert his brethren that they also might be fit for heaven. It was the last year of the unpleasantness. Our regiment had been recently discharged and I was seeking a position as teacher to mend in a small way, my fortune and keep me in fighting trim.

I called on Mr. Gray with my credentials. I had been sent to him with the assurance that whatever he did was all right with the rest. I found him sitting in the rear of his residence near a staff on which floated the stars and stripes. As I came up he arose and said: 'Young man, salute that flag.' You may be sure I did, and profoundly, too. I think the earnestness of my salutation led to one of the sweetest of all my friendships. He was full of inquiries in regard to my antecedents, and then gave me to understand the peculiarities of the neighborhood, and the difficulties of handling the school. Then he said, 'Now, what is your price?' I had said $40.00 in my mind, but when I found him so much interested, and so optimistic, and so kind, I tremblingly said, 'I think about $45.00 would be the correct figure.' 'Well,' said he, 'come back at such a time and I will see.' So in a few days I came tremblingly back to hear my doom. This time I walked out and saluted 'Old Glory' without invitation; which tickled him immensely. Then happened the strangest event of all my school experience, and from that day to this, whatever I might have been before, I am happy to say that I have been a believer in humanity. That is, notwithstanding all the thoughtless gossip of evil in others, if you can but touch the proper chord in each other, they will vibrate with the sweetest melody and blend in a harmony of delightful friendship and trust.

Now, this is what he said: 'We will not mention the proposition you made as to compensation. I am sure with the work you will have to do it will not be sufficient. I will make it $50.00, and you shall board with me, and read me the evening papers and we will call it square.' Now this dear old gentleman was not wonderfully attractive physically, but if there is a country teacher here today that would not have felt like falling on his neck and sealing the contract with a resounding smack, you are harder hearted than I was, and I would not exchange the memory of the revelation of just, sweet, noble humanity and the good that it has wrought in me for the beauty and wealth and glory of the White City."

Progress in France.

The changes now working in the Catholic church are among the encouraging signs of the times in France. Where that great organization had once impressed upon the mind its immutability, all are struck by its power of transformation. The college of the Sorbonne, which once burned Protestants, now has a Protestant at its head. The people are thinking about religious questions, thousands are looking toward Protestantism with expectation, and the outlook for a religious revival is very bright indeed.

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 22.

A FARMER IN THE SECOND.

Dr. J. D. Clardy was nominated for congress in the Second district the other day. He is a prominent farmer in Christian county and had no trouble in knocking out three lawyers for the nomination for congress, and is now ready to knock out two more, one a populist, the other a republican. See the difference in the two districts; this and that! In this the democrats retired a fine farmer and in his place put a lawyer; in that they put out a lawyer and took in a farmer. In that district the populists put away a farmer and nominated a big corporation lawyer, but in this district they have a farmer with which they are trying to defeat a democratic lawyer. So it is clearly seen how inconsistent are the farmers in both parties and in both districts. The way the thing stands now the pot in the populist party can't call the kettle in the democratic party black. After all the two districts will balance accounts; the farmer lost in this district will be gained by a farmer in the Second.

The tariff bill has been passed and is now in the hands of the president at Gray Gables. Whether he will sign it or let it become a law without his signature is a question. The "pop-gun" bills that were passed in the house have been laid to rest by the senate where they will remain perhaps for all time to come. The work of this session is now over and it is before the country for the people to approve or reject. The democratic party will lose many votes at the coming fall elections because of a few men in the senate that would not yield their ideas in favor of protection in order to carry out the principles laid down in the last national platform made by the democratic party. The democratic party should not be censured because of a few men who love trusts and corporations better than their party. Congress has done all of the legislation that was required by the party and ere this is being read over the county it will be adjourned. The tariff bill may not be as radical, in the direction of tariff reform as some would like it, but it is so much better than the present McKinley law that every American lover of just legislation should rejoice and be glad. The democratic party should feel proud of the work done by the first congress under its control, although it may not feel exactly satisfied with the work that has been left undone. The tariff bill will soon be a law and the better it is understood by the democrats the more they will and the better the entire country will like it. The work of the present congress will not be so unpopular after all, when it is properly understood by the county.

The Crittenden Press last week was a dandy, as well as a credit to Mr. Walker and his people.

President Cleveland is out for his health at Gray Gables, but will return to his post of duty in time to sign the tariff bill.

The Louisville Southern Railroad company was sold last week at Louisville under the hammer for a cool million, notwithstanding the hard times.

We are just in receipt of the first Bardwell Star since the election. Carlisle county's going for Stone so weakened the Star that it takes it at least three weeks for it to get here. Bro. Hugh, don't let a little thing like that bother you.

We see an article in the News from Mr. Jim Browne, showing that he was guilty of telling the truth in the late campaign, but got no credit for it by the opposition. Now, Mr. Browne, do you not know that there were over 6,000 men who were for Capt. Stone, and yet some would try have you believe they were all liars? The people know in whose camp the liars were.

"What fools we mortals be." There is a county in this state named Breckinridge, and a few cranky women up there have got it into their minds that the name of the county should be changed, and they are circulating a petition to that effect. Some man with plenty of the old time "hoss" sense has ventured to suggest to them that in the event they succeed in getting the name changed that it be named "Pollard." This, we think, is a fine suggestion to such a silly scheme and should be met with just such an argument. There would be just as much sense in the women of this county trying to have its name changed because a certain man named Marshall at one time got drunk and was caught kissing a girl on the veranda.

Very Particular.

There is no telling how far a man will let his prejudices lead him. There is an old gentleman whose name is James Vaughn that lives about two miles west of town. He was formerly a republican, but is now a member of the populist party. He is honest and clever but he has a bitter hatred against primary elections. He has brooded over them that have been held in this county until he will have nothing to do with anything of a primary nature. The common school began in his district the other day and the teacher sent word that he must buy a primary history, a primary grammar, a primary geography and a primary arithmetic for some of his children, but when he received the note from the teacher he was simply furious, he was so mad. He ripped and cavorted, he cursed and he swore by the heavens above and the infernal regions below, and by the holy St. Patrick, that his children must stop school; "that before he would be dictated to by these primary election fellows he would let his children grow up in ignorance." He sent word to the teacher to let his children study all the books but "these infernal primary election books;" he "just be d—d" if they should study them. He is so mad that he won't accept the primary meaning of a word in the primary dictionary.

Perfumery!

To the Memory of Judge Bennett.

The earth may ring from shore to shore
With echoes of a glorious name,
But he whose loss and tears deplore
Has left behind him more than fame.

For when the death frost came to lie
On Bennett's warm and mighty heart
And quenched his bold and friendly eye,
His spirit did not all depart.

His words of justice from his pen
Were written upon the lucid page,
Still more, still pleased the hearts of men
Amid a cold and wicked age.

His love of truth, too warm, too strong
For hope or fear to chain or chill,
His hate of tyranny and wrong,
Burn in the bosoms, he kindled, still.

A Correction.

Ed. Tribune.—I notice a piece in your paper in regard to the death of C. W. Cox, better known as Boone. It is not with ill feelings toward any that I write this; I only want the people to know the facts.

In Calloway county, at Smith school house, about the first Sunday in July, the Baptists began a meeting and asked the christians to take part, and all parties came together and built an arbor for that purpose, but the Baptists refused, and so it was a Baptist meeting, nevertheless all attended. C. W. Cox was a member of the Christian church, and had been for about two years, and was a devoted member. I must say in behalf that he did not try to take his sister from the mourner's bench at any time, nor he did not forbid the preacher from talking to her. He did not raise any disturbance at all, and as for the preacher telling him that he had a presentiment that he would not live long it is false, and any reasonable person is bound to know it is false. It was only a serious accident and not a judgment. If they should call this a judgment why not call all accidents by the same name?

It is a fact that his sister was at the mourner's bench, but he (Boone) did not persuade her nor take her from there. But Bill Cox, knowing the nervous condition of his sister, and knowing that she could not stand excitement, went and sat by her and would not let them shout over her and tell her all sorts of death-bed stories and unenvied the dead, but did not object to anyone praying or preaching the Word to her. He did not make any attempt to take her from the bench. If either one done wrong it was Bill and not Boone, and Bill is still living; so he has not received the judgment yet. Bill and Boone Cox neither one did anything that sensible people would blame them for if they knew the straight of it. I wish all truth-loving people would see for themselves where the blame is, and they will see it rests on a few who claim to be church members.

There is never a day but what we can hear of some serious and sad accident, (why not call them all judgments) but out of all the accidents and all the deaths in our land the strangest thing is that the Rev. Hargrove is the only one who has ever had such a presentiment of any death.

With good feelings toward all and ill will to none, I write this only to do justice to Boone, who is sleeping the sleep of death.

L. M. Cox.

DIED.

In Benton, Ky., July 28, 1894, J. W. Tidwell departed this life. He was born Feb. 10, 1876. Human nature would tell us that this sad death. Young and active, full of vigor, just blooming into manhood. But when we look beyond death we can see that this was an opportune time for our young brother's demise. His moral character was unspotted; his early training in moral deportment had not been neglected, and he had not lived to that age in which so many young men have cultivated habits of vice. His religious training that was given him by pious and christian parents was a comfort to him on his dying bed, and was an immensely greater solace to them than any earthly sympathy. His last words of admonition, as heard by the writer, just a short while before death claimed the body, were, "Tell mother not to cry, for I am saved," and "I hope we will all meet in heaven." The death of such an one can not be so sad as it could otherwise be. No dark spot on his moral character, and not a blemish on his religious escutcheon. Then let us bow submissively to the mandates of Him who doeth all things well, for He hath said: "Thou knowest not what I do now, but shall know hereafter."

Farmington, Ky.

Dear Editor.—As I promised, before I left Benton, that I would write you a letter, I will now try to do so.

I have been teaching music a week today and I enjoy it very much. I have a class of thirteen scholars and the promise of two or three more.

I like this place very much. It was very dull to me when I first came, but the more I get acquainted the better I like it.

I went to Antioch Sunday. It is a Christian church. I went home with a friend of mine, Miss Della Mayfield, for dinner, and never was treated nicer in my life.

I am boarding with Mr. Tom Hendley. It is a very nice place; I like it ever so much.

Prof. Wright has a large school. They enrolled 120 pupils this morning (Aug. 20th.) Miss Lillie Morehead is the first assistant and Miss Lizzie Skinner the second assistant. Both nice young ladies.

We still need rain up here. It rained a little last Friday, but not enough to do much good. I hope everything is prospering at Benton. Yours, respectfully,

LUNA LEMON.

Religious Revivals.

One of the greatest and most successful religious revivals ever held in Birmingham closed last Sunday night. It was conducted by the Rev. A. J. Bennett, assisted by Revs. C. Atchison and J. W. Morefield. There were 36 conversions and 21 that professed sanctification. Large crowds and intense interest attended each meeting. With this meeting closes the third year's work by the Rev. Bennett among our people, and this will also be his last year, for the conference will, in all probability transfer him to a work in the blue grass part of the state. The meeting was a great success and much good was the result. Such religious upheavals produce a marked effect upon communities and we are glad that Birmingham has been visited by such a one as the one just closed.

Another Death.

Elisha Luter, a former and well known resident of this county, died at his home in Paducah last Saturday night of a throat trouble. His remains were brought out here on the early morning train Sunday and carried across the river and were buried in the old family burying ground. He was a good quiet, honest man. Away back soon after the war he was married to Miss Jane Wyatt, a good christian woman, with whom he has lived ever since. He was a member of the Methodist church and his funeral, perhaps, was preached by his pastor before his remains left the city.

That Tired Feeling

Hood's Sarsaparilla Makes the Weak Strong.

"I cheerfully announce the facts of a course of treatment with Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was troubled with a dull headache and that tired feeling, I am employed by the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway and was out in all kinds of weather. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking six bottles I felt perfectly well and had a good appetite. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a great blood purifier and I highly recommend it."

A Sudden but Peculiar Death.

The family of Mr. Jas. B. Heath is now in deep sorrow over the death of one of his boys, about 12 years old, which took place last week under sad but peculiar circumstances. Mr. Heath and some friends, together with his two little boys, came to the river, near town, one day last week, for the purpose of catching some fish, but after they had been there some time he and his friends concluded they could get along better if they had some whiskey; so they sent to town for it, and after they had been drinking a little, Mr. Heath asked his boys to take a drink, which they did, and soon another was given them and presently another, and it was but a few minutes until the little fellow began to show signs of intoxication. He acted in such a strange way that his father soon decided to take him home, but it was too late, the poor boy never recovered from the effects of the terrible drug. In less than 48 hours he was dead, and his father a heart-broken man. Mr. Heath is our friend, but how many such awful lessons will he and others have to learn before they will stop giving whiskey to their poor innocent boys. It looks like the little boys will soon have to teach their fathers lessons, instead the fathers setting the proper example before their boys. We hope Mr. Heath will learn a lesson from the sad death of his beloved boy that will last him until the day of his death, and that never again, during his life, will ask another boy to take a drink of whiskey.

Teething Children.

Nothing on earth will take children through the trying ordeal of teething so pleasantly, and so very surely and safely, as Dr. King's Royal Remedy. They all like to take it, and it acts like magic in meeting the troubles of that critical period. It is perfectly harmless, containing no alcohol or opium in any form whatever. Thousands have tried it and it has never been known to fail. $1.60 for $5. For sale by all druggists.

Who ever had the road fixed in Clarks river bottom beyond Mr. Parkers made it narrow enough, but we presume it was built for the exclusive use of bicycles, as it is about wide enough for two such vehicles to pass each other. There were two men on foot tried to pass each other on that part of the road near Watch creek, the other day, and one got knocked into the creek.

Cholera Infantum.

The most dreaded summer complaint occurring mostly among children from six months to three years of age, is quickly cured by the use of Humphreys' Specifics 4 and 6. For sale by all druggists 25c each.

The work on the new Baptist church and the depot is now progressing very rapidly, and it will not be long until the brethren will have a new house of worship and the people a new depot.

"Says Good Old GRANNY METCALFE"

I am 85 years old and have used about all of the cough and lung remedies that have been sold during my life; and for the benefit of the suffering, I will say that I have never used any remedy equal to Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey. It gives quick and permanent relief in grippe, as well as other coughs.
