BUTTERFAT BRINGS $292,627 TO FARMERS

Farmers of this section received approximately $292,627 for butterfat sold to local cream stations during the year 1936, a survey made here this week by THE NEWS indicates. It was revealed that approximately 975,000 pounds of butterfat were sold during the year 1936, while the average price paid for butterfat during 1936 was also higher than in 1935.

Having the amount received in cream checks by farmers on the total pounds of butterfat purchased and multiplying the number of pounds by an average price of 30¢ per pound, an estimate ranging from $292,627 was reached by adding of cream during the past year. The lowest price paid for premium butterfat during 1936 was reached in May when the market dropped to 25¢ a pound, and the top price was reached in February when the price soared to 35¢ a pound. The average price paid for cream in 1936 was from two to six cents higher than during the same period in 1935, when 20¢ a pound was low, and 30¢ a pound was high. It is estimated that nearly 10,000 cans of cream were sold in Fulton during 1936.

Dairying is steadily increasing in this section, and definite efforts are being made to improve the grade of butterfat. Cream buyers here encourage farmers in improving their dairy herds and adopt approved methods of handling their cream. It will be remembered that the price of cream during the years of the depression was lower than prevailing now, reaching the low level of 12¢ at one time during 1934. Farmers are learning that a steady increase in the price paid for their cream by raising the standard of the product by introduction of better grade of dairy cows and by care in handling.

Despite the drought conditions which prevailed during the summer of 1936, and a shortage of feed, revenue from sale of milk products in this territory was higher by volume. Production and profit, however, showed a decline due to the high cost of feed.

BLKS AND LIONS GIVE CHRISTMAS BASKETS

Christmas was made merry for many needy families, when the local Elks and Lions Clubs gave baskets to nearly 200 families the day before Christmas. Other organizations assisted in the charity program, netting this Yuletide, and good cheer was carried into many homes.

Besides the baskets of food, including also candies, nut and fruit, hundreds of toys were delivered to the little children. These toys had been recontributed by the N.Y.A. He is under the supervision of Mrs. Nora Alexander and Miss Gloria French. The Boy Scouts aided in the program, by gathering up old toys about town to be repaired by the N.Y.A.

DEATHS

MRS. MATTIE GRAHAM BURG

Mrs. Mattie Graham Burg, age 63, died Tuesday at 8:30 a. m. at her home on Walnut street following an extended illness. Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon from the Westminster Funeral Home by Rev. E. M. Mathis, pastor of the First Methodist church. Interment followed at the Clinton cemetery. Ray Graham, Walter Graham, Robert Graham, Lawson Boser, Elbert Lowery and Miss Belle were pallbearers. Mrs. Burg, daughter of the late J. H. Graham and Ruth Hays, was born March 13, 1873. She was one of ten children. Seven of these survive as follows: J. H. Graham Sr., of Fulton; Mrs. R. A. Brady of Long Beach, Calif.; Mrs. Wade Jackson of Artesia, N. M.; H. H. Graham and D. B. Graham of Clinton; two sons, Graham, Louisville, K. J. Graham, Caraway, Ark.

On November 18, 1933, she married Dr. Thomas Dawson Burg, who preceded her death twenty-two years ago at Whiteita Falls, Texas. Five children were born to this union. Leonard, Hilbert and Ruth Burg of Fulton; Graham of Clinton; Paul, a member of the Methodist church, and one extra clerk were required to handle Christmas packages and mail. Holiday shopping and mailing started much earlier this year than the previous year, and over 25,000 one and one-half cent stamps were purchased.

4-H CLUB TOBACCO AVERAGE $22.91 AT LEXINGTON SHOW

Two hundred and forty-seven club members from 22 counties made exhibits at the Central Kentucky 4-H club tobacco sale at Lexington. The 120,380 pounds, which they cultivated and sold for an average of $22.91 a hundred.

The championship of the show based on crop average and record book went to Reginald Prather of Paducah, whose crop of 998 pounds averaged $73.31. Donald Toubine, Nicholas county, sold 48 pounds for 80 cents a pound.

Highest price paid at the sale was $12.25 a pound, for 34 pounds given to Bobbie Montgomery of Woodford county. Donald Toubine sold 48 pounds for 80 cents a pound.

The best ten crop came from Woodford county and the average price for this tobacco was $72.58 a hundred. Jesse, whose crop averaged $72.58, followed by Johnson, fourth, Fayette, fifth, Clark, sixth, Garard, seventh, and Robertson eighth.

In the record book class, Thomas and Reginald Prather of Woodford county were first and second respectively. Homer Hanes, Clay county third, and Otis Wright and Nat Mullolland of Scott county, fourth and fifth respectively.

In the Dyer club division, Monroe Morgan, Clay county, was first, Jack Lynch, Fayette county, second, and Ray Wilson, Jessamine county, third.

Reginald Prather will receive trip to Chicago for winning the championship, and a total of about $500 was divided among exhibitors. The show was held by the 4-H club department of the State College of Agriculture and the Lexington Tobacco Board of Trade.

DISTRICT FARM BUREAU PARLEY AT MAYFIELD

Representatives from the eight counties of the purchase area attended a farm bureau meeting at Mayfield Tuesday. All members attending the meeting, some four from each county, were enthusiastic in a piece of legislation suggested and before this legislation will be accorded favorable action by the state body and also the legislature, when properly brought before them.

Principal topics of discussion sessions were: 1. Freeing of state-owned bridges from taxation; 2. Inclusion of all county roads in the highway road system; 3. Passing of legislation abolishing the employment of relatives and members of the families of legislators and state employees; 4. Consolidation of the counties; 5. Investigation of the estate of fertilizer in Kentucky, which costs 50¢ more a ton than in Tennessee.

JOHN M. POOL, PRESIDENT OF CENTRAL WESTERN DIVISION OF A. & P. FOOD STORES, ANNOUNCED HIS INTENTION TO VISIT THE INDIAN, KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE, AND MR. DELAMONT'S ELECTION TO THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE DIVISION.

John M. Pool, President of the Central Western Division of the A. & P. Food Stores, announced his intention to visit the Indian, Kentucky and Tennessee, and Mr. Delamont's election to the Board of Directors of the Division.

Mr. Delamont has been associated with the A. & P. Food Stores for twenty years, starting as clerk in the branch store located at Princeton, Tenn., and later as district manager in 1916. The appointment of Mr. Delamont is in keeping with the company's policy of promoting men from the ranks.

CARLOAD SHIPMENTS SHOW BIG INCREASE

Business has shown a definite increase in the territory during the past year and carload shipments rose from 544 cars in 1935 to 843 cars in 1936. In 1936 13,116 shipments were handled in comparison with 12,547 shipments during the same period in 1935, an increase of 1,263 shipments.

During the past year a total of 267,326 tons of livestock was shipped from Fulton, while in 1935 a total of 257,326 tons of livestock was shipped from Fulton, an increase of 10,000 tons over the same period the previous year. Total carload shipments brought a revenue of $267,326.75 in 1936, while in 1935 the revenue was $257,326.75. Fulton showed an increase of 17.7 percent during 1936 in comparison with the same period in 1935.

FULTON GROWING AS LIVESTOCK MARKET

Since the opening of the Kennett-Murray & Latta stock yards in Fulton three years ago, this community has shown a steady gain in shipment of livestock, and during 1936 figures compiled by THE NEWS reveal that approximately $2,253,051 worth of livestock have been handled through local stock dealers. Besides the Kennett-Murray & Latta Company, the following local buyers have been active: Neal Ward, Gilbert Moon, Weldon Knox, Wes and Ben Davis and Lee Peaches.

Kennett-Murray & Latta purchased during 1936, 71,565 head of hogs, 1,011 head of cattle, 16,792 calves, 12,251 head of sheep. The hogs brought $1,219,107.65, the cattle and calves $390,156.32, and the sheep $135,761.34.

POULTRY RAISING HOPE ONLY IN 1936

It is still hard to send New Year's resolutions on poultry products during the past year, definite strides of progress were made by poultry raisers in this vicinity.

Interest in poultry raising, improvement of the breed stock, and care in handling is steadily increasing, and 1937 should prove a more profitable year.

Poultrymen are urged to be more quality conscious by poultry experts, for when the standard of the breed stock is raised, and approved methods of handling adopted, the quality of eggs is better. Eggs of a regular income to farmers, but special care must be taken of frequent candling and storage of eggs in a cool place.

RAILWAY EXPRESS SHIPMENTS INCREASE, REVENUE DOWN

The Railway Express Agency reports the following comparison of business and expenses for the years 1935 and 1936:

Despite the fact that shipments increased 1354 or 0.53 percent over 1935, there was a decrease in revenue of 1922 or 0.53 percent. This was due to an increase in salaries and to a corresponding decrease in the number of employees. Any time employees were allowed a vacation with pay during 1936. The same number of employees worked during 1936 as in 1935.

County agents will supply inventory blanks and advise with farmers regarding inventories and accounts.

FULTON GAINS AS MARKETING CENTER

Fulton is steadily growing as a marketing center for grain, livestock, poultry, and dairy products, with the year 1936 ranking well above 1935 in the value of farm products marketed here. A survey made here the past week by THE NEWS revealed that approximately $2,253,051 was paid out for grain, livestock, butterfat and poultry during the past year.

Features were compiled by gathering reports from the various firms dealing in their respective business: livestock, poultry, butterfat, and grain. Livestock sales led the compiled figures with $2,253,051 estimated to have been paid out during the past year.

BUSINESS IN 1937

Everyone is interested in what the new year 1937 will bring in business and governmental activities. Many predictions are being made, all of which indicate favorable prospects for business in the new year.

Considered as a whole the year 1936 has been the most encouraging to business since the advent of the depression, and it closes with the general prospect more favorable than it has been at the end of any other recent year. The Guaranty Trust Company of New York, in a review of business and finance, has the following to say:

DOCTOR

STAY SHARP AND EVER-READY RAZORS

"The principal economic problem that faces the country as it enters 1937 is that of possible over-expansion in the field of money and credit," the statement continues. "If the public finances can be promptly placed on a sound basis, if the problem of credit control can be satisfactorily solved, and if effective co-operation can be maintained between government and business there is ground for the confidence with which business in general apparently views the outlook for continued recovery."

"Not only has the general level of activity during 1936 been the highest in six years, but for the first time since the beginning of the depression the trend has been strongly upward throughout the year, with only minor interruptions. Although 1935 also marked a substantial net gain toward recovery, the advance took place almost entirely during the last quarter. In the year now closing, the upward trend has been both steadier and more rapid."

A CITIZENS COMMITTEE

Mayfield is taking definite steps to check criminal activities, and their effort is worthy of imitation by other communities in this section. Robberies, stealing, pilfering and petty larceny have been increasing despite the efforts of the police, and something must be done to stop it. At Mayfield a secret committee composed of four Mayfield citizens has been named to aid the officers in local law enforcement.

Appointment of a citizens committee to aid in law enforcement is not new, but it has not been necessary in this section until now. The fight against the crime wave in Mayfield will be watched by other communities with an eye on the results of adoption of such a method.

Advertising Sells Commodities. Before Thanksgiving this year, progressive food stores of the country carried on an aggressive turkey sales campaign. More turkeys were sold than ever before, and at prices that were attractive to customer as well as producers.

Sales methods varied somewhat in different localities—but the participating stores seemed to appreciate the value and necessity of newspaper advertising. For example, here is an excerpt from the report of one large chain system: "Newspaper advertising was carried in all the principal metropolitan and rural newspapers in our territory Before our Thanksgiving demands had been filled there was a decided scarcity of turkeys of the top grade in our market." Another chain reported: "We have advertised turkeys in approximately 250 newspapers this week as well as 750,000 circulars which were distributed to the consuming public's homes. Present indications are that we sold about 30 percent more turkeys for Thanksgiving this year than a year ago."

Newspapers have been a potent factor in other food sales campaigns such as the recent beef and veal drive. Similar future campaigns—of which the first will feature grapefruit—are planned. It is apparent that this is good business all around—for the farmer, for the merchant, for the newspaper and for the consumer. In the past some retailers have attempted to eliminate newspaper advertising—and they have usually found that it was the poorest kind of economy. "The paper"—whether it be a daily or weekly—is a fixture of the American home and finds an eager audience.

Food stores—chain or independent which have not yet joined in special selling campaigns would do well to take a leaf from the book of the stores which have. Pay the farmer a fair price, charge the consumer a fair price, advertise extensively, and consumption of commodities soars.

They offer the following advantages:

- 1 Self-Energizing Operation... gives greater stopping power—with easier, softer operation of the brake pedal.
- 2 Cable-and-conduit Control gives sure, all-weather operation of brakes—the safety of steel from pedal to wheel.
- 3 Big 12-in. Rib-cooled Drums . . . give extra large braking surface per lb. of car weight, and long brake-lining life.

You can't judge brakes until you drive the 1937 FORD V-8

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS

As primary shoe "A" is applied against the moving brake drum, the drum helps to apply pressure on secondary shoe "B." As a result, about one-third less pedal pressure is required of the driver.

Four of these brakes, with a total area of 186 sq. ins., give 1937 Ford V-8's greater braking surface per pound of car weight than any other 1937 American-built car. No wonder these new Ford V-8 brakes are called "Easy-Action Safety Brakes."

YOUR LAYING FLOCK

The Fulton County News has published a poultry column for several months. Most of the important factors have been discussed concerning problems of getting your pullets into condition for winter production.

If you have followed these suggestions and fed plenty of laying mash and good yellow corn your flock should be in good condition. If you have neglected your birds, improve the management at once or sell them. At least now is a very good time to check the flock and decide if the management is correct. Now let's start 1. Examine a few birds closely for lice. If you find lice get rid of them at once. 2. Are the hens well fleshed? Pullets should be fat for best results. If your flock is only average or below in flesh, feed them more yellow corn. Pullets of dual purpose breeds require about a pound of corn per day for each 100 birds. Let pullets have about 15 pounds of corn per day for 100 birds.

Here over one year old do not feed over two-thirds this amount of grain. These figures are for feeding during the four winter months of November, December, January and February.

3. Do they always have plenty of fresh water?

4. Do you keep oyster shell or ground limestone before them?

5. Have you fixed the house so it will be warm during bad weather?

Is the floor covered with litter?

Check these five points and start your flock out for profit during 1937.

NOTED SPEAKERS AT 25TH ANNUAL FARM HOME CONVENTION

Noted speakers at the 25th annual Farm and Home Convention to be held at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture the last week in January, include W. L. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration; H. R. Tolley, administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration; Gov. A. B. Chandler; Chester C. Davis, member of the Federal Reserve Board; E. G. Nourse, director of the Brookings Institution; Judge Camille Kelley of the juvenile court, Memphis, Tenn.; Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, noted pastor; Miss Fannie Brooks, University of Illinois; and Bess M. Rowe, farm journal editor.

The convention, which is expected to attract several thousand farm men and women, will be January 26-27-28 and 29. The homemakers sessions alone will include 800 to 1,000 delegates from 40 to 50 counties. The women will meet in the Memorial building on the University campus. Farmers will meet in general sessions during the mornings, and in groups in the afternoon. The livestock pavilion on the Experiment Station farm will be their assembling place. Organizations meeting during the week include the Kentucky State Horticultural Society, the Kentucky Beekeepers Association and the Kentucky Rural Pastors Association.

There also will be sessions for live stock raisers, farmers especially interested in crop and soil problems and other sessions to discuss problems and the agricultural conservation program.

MUST HAVE NEW LICENSE TO HUNT QUAIL AFTER JANUARY 1 IN STATE

Game Warden J. O. Bugg and County Clerk Clardie Holland announced this morning that the new 1937 hunting licenses have been received and are ready for sale in all counties of the state. With the third season open until the night of Saturday, January 9, those who desire to hunt after the first of the year must have 1937 license or be subject to arrest and fine. The game warden and clerk, therefore, urge that you get yours before you hunt in 1937, as Mr. Bugg does not want anyone to be hauled into court for failure to secure license.

With the close of the bird season January 9, there will be no open season for hunting, with gun or dog until the opening of the squirrel season, August 1. But the warden warns all hunters to have their 1937 licenses if they go into the fields after Thursday, Dec. 31.

Herman Freeman spent a few days during the holidays with friends and relatives in Millington, Tenn.

New Year's Day LONG DISTANCE CALLS AT REDUCED RATES

THIS YEAR you can express your holiday greetings to out-of-town relatives and friends by telephone any time New Year's Day at the low night rates.

The regular low night rates for both Station-to-Station and Person-to-Person calls will extend from 7 P. M. December 31 until 4:30 A. M. January 2.

This will mean a substantial saving for those who will want to send New Year's greetings in the personal, friendly way that the telephone alone affords.

With these rates in effect New Year's Day, you can talk 100 miles on a Station-to-Station call for as little as 40c; five hundred miles, $1.15, or one thousand miles, $2.00, and greater or less distance at correspondingly low cost.

Take advantage of this opportunity to give your relatives and friends the thrill of receiving your good wishes from you in person by telephone. Ask the long distance operator for rates.

THIS WEEK

From Old China
She Wore Boy's Clothes
The Long Farewell
Dangerous Gold, in Russia

Arthur Brisbane

A roar comes from the great Chinese dragon, the 400,000,000 that live, labor, die and are exploited. The Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, attached to the ancient Chinese belief that right is so powerful that it does not "require to be supported or enforced by might," is arrested by his mutinous troops demanding "an immediate declaration of war against Japan; recovery of all Chinese territory, including Manchuria."

This outbreak worries Tokyo, and it might, if China had a few fighting leaders, with enough airplanes and good pilots. China now is like Niagara Falls before the turbines were put in, much power going to waste. What could military genius and modern weapons accomplish, backed by a nation of 400,000,000?

Helen Coberly said she "never liked girl's clothes, wanted to be a boy."

Millions of other girls have said that. Helen lived up to it, put on boy's clothes, went through the boys' high school to the senior class, earning her way "digging ditches, mending fences."

Known to be a girl, expelled from the class, she weeps. Some intelligent young man with blue eyes and a kind heart, marrying Helen Coberly, might some day be the father of a great American.

The former King Edward has bid farewell to England, and England and the rest of the world bid farewell to the young man, who told his people: "I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility without the help and support of the woman I love."

A good many men might say that who do not realize it.

Whoever wrote, or helped to write that broadcast, it was a sincere, touching farewell to the world's highest position, and well done. There is no doubt that the young King inspired it.

Russia's production of gold increases rapidly, with 144 gold fields active; the total production not less than $200,000,000 a year, and according to some estimates nearly $500,000,000.

Russia already surpasses Canada and the United States in gold production, and expects soon to surpass the British South African gold fields, and all the gold goes to the government. Prospectors and miners get "praise."

This gold production does not mean greater power for bolshevism. Quite the other way, it may be the worst thing that could happen to the Karl Marx-Lenin-Stalin theory.

As nations and individuals become rich they become conservative.

There is still reverence for English kings in "democratic America." In New York clubs of "aristocratic" membership all rose when the broadcast began, and not one sat down while the King was speaking. In England they sat down. They are used to kings there.

Mrs. C. H. Wilson of Columbia, S. C., went farther; her house was on fire, she told firemen, let me know if you think the roof will fall, and went on listening to Prince Edward, while the house burned.

It takes a long time to breed out of human beings that which is inbred into them through ages; hence the persistence of our various superstitions.

Intelligent Dr. Craster, health officer of Newark, N. J., starts a needed campaign against kissing babies, suggesting the use of bibs embroidered with these words:

"I don't want to be sick—do not kiss me."

He says:

"A kiss can be more dangerous than a bomb."

Consumption begins in infancy; babies usually get it from tubercular mothers who kiss them on the mouth.

Congress resumes work soon; what will it do, and try to do? How will it interpret the 46 to 2 vote, "all present" except Maine and Vermont; how will the unwieldy Democratic majority deal with its problems?

It will probably try to do whatever President Roosevelt tells it to do; that last election seemed to intimate that the President has the public's permission to do as he pleases.

And that makes the situation extremely difficult for the President. There is such a thing as TOO MUCH approval, too much POWER.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart

Washington — Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming has prepared a bill for introduction early in the new congress that will set up, if it becomes law, a comprehensive mechanism to control and regulate some of the principal activities of business corporations. It is a far reaching proposition, as it now stands, and it cannot be passed off lightly. There is support for it in a number of quarters. While it undoubtedly will not become law in its present form, it must be regarded as the opening wedge.

The Wyoming senator's principal idea is to require businesses of an incorporated character to take out a federal license. If they do not comply, the proposed law would deny them the right to ship goods into retail trade between states.
While the main theme of the proposition does not seem anything about which one should get excited, it is the things that can be done behind such a general requirement that must and will be examined by congress and the country before it takes a step of the kind advocated by Senator O'Mahoney. For example, if the federal government is permitted to require businesses to obtain a license to charter from Washington, those businesses may be compelled to meet all manner of requirements before such a license or charter is granted. In the reverse, if after they have the license, they fail to observe the provisions laid down either by congress or bald-headed bureaucrats, revocation of the license is the penalty that may be exacted. It should be added that exacting of a penalty of this kind, once the license provision is established as a federal government right, becomes a powerful weapon and the limit to which that power may be exercised is scarcely to be forecast.

While, as I said, the O'Mahoney legislation may not be expected to become law in its present form, its terms and provisions give a hint of what can be expected of any legislation of a similar character.

Take this provision, for example:
"Rates of pay shall be increased and hours of work shall be reduced in accordance with gains in the productive efficiency of the industry, arising from increased mechanization, improvements in technological methods, or from other causes, to the end that employees shall have an equitable participation in the output of industry, and that employment and mass purchasing power
may keep pace with industry."

It seems quite obvious that under such a basic statement of principles, a business
Dictatorial
Powers
could easily be made to agree to collective bargaining among its employees, to establish minimum wages and to follow the dictates of some bureau or commission in Washington in actual management and promulgation of policies. Indeed, it is set forth in the O'Mahoney draft that the federal trade commission would be authorized to obtain all "relevant and detailed data as to production costs,
prices and profits."

As I see this sort of thing and from the views of experts with whom I have consulted, I cannot escape the conclusion that such legislation simply extends to the federal government dictatorial powers over virtually all private business.

It means, moreover, that politics and politicians would be the guiding force and that if union labor leaders were in control of the agency having supervisory powers over business or if communists or conservatives or any other class were in control, business would be directed in accordance with the economic views of that particular school of thought.
Since our nation frequently hands
the responsibility of government control from one political party to the other, the implications of such legislation as this are tremendous,
to say the least.

Constitutional questions enter into this legislation and it may be that the basic theory advanced by the Wyoming senator will not hold at all. As I understand it, Senator O'Mahoney is holding no prior of authorship as to the language of his bill but to the principles he strongly adheres. So, it is made to appear at least, as I said above, that this proposal constitutes an entering wedge on an entirely new theory of government's relation to private business. For that reason, it is one of the most significant propositions to come forward in recent years, more significant, I believe, than the ill-fated NRA. It certainly is a proposition that should be watched closely by all citizens.

Affairs of the heart are all right privately, our American Department of State
Mixing in Love Affairs
holds, but it reserves the right to horn into any love affair that involves an American foreign service officer. It is all perfectly open and above board. The Department of State has put its conclusions into writing, into an official regulation, and hereafter no foreign service officer can marry an alien while he is in the foreign service unless he gets the consent of "father" State department.

It is immensely interesting but not significant in an international way that the State department's order concerning international marriages should have been promulgated during the heat of the British constitutional crisis over King Edward's determination to marry the American-born Wallis Warfield Simpson. It simply happened to come along at the same time, but since all the world loves a lover,
in Washington one hears reference to the Simpson-Edward affair mentioned many times in the same breath with the State department decree. This obtains because nearly all of our foreign service people have relations or friends in the national capital and the decree forbidding international marriages set many tongues to wagging.

But the State department ruling ought to be treated with utmost seriousness and sincerity. It is important. It is necessary to stretch the imagination a great way in order to assume that international marriages of the type banned by the State department would "shake an empire" after the manner of international marriages among royalty. On the other hand, it seems to me to be quite fair to say that international marriages among official representatives of a nation can very easily prove embarrassing to the government by which the foreign service officer receives credentials. In fact, there are instances on record where such marriages have proved to be serious obstacles in the settlement of disputes between governments.

Then, it must be considered that there is a genuine possibility of war in Europe in the next few years.
A tremendous tragedy is being prepared there. While obviously any governmental decision that has the effect of keeping lovers apart arouses antagonism, a sympathetic feeling among all with tender hearts, in this circumstance, the rule seems well justified. In addition to following the lead of other nations on the point, our State department has banned these international marriages largely in order to keep our nation free from any possible entanglements in event of that European tragedy that looms like red fire on the horizon of the future.

I have heard criticism of the State department's order on the ground that affairs of the heart are private affairs—which indeed they are. But it must be remembered that where an individual accepts the rights, prerogatives and privileges of official position, he accepts at the same time certain definite responsibilities. In the case of a foreign service officer, his acceptance of the government title makes him at once and the same time a part of that government in a most peculiar way. Because foreigners do not understand our government any better than we understand foreign governments, when an American speaks actually as the American government. One need not amplify this further than to say, therefore,
one of that official's responsibilities is to carry out policy. National policy can be arranged only at its proper sources, namely, the President and the Department of State.

So, while budding romances may be blighted, heartaches may arise, soft lights in the eyes of men and maiden may be dimmed by the cruel and cold words of official regulations, it needs must be said that the welfare of a great nation must supersede the personal desires of a lonely man for a mate.

Thus, where any of our American diplomats or consular officers hereafter feel they cannot tread life's highway without the accompaniment of a foreign-born princess of the dreams, they simply will have to resign from their jobs and bring the lady home.

"West kills Downer and catches away the money. Only just now, he's dared to use a little of it, some that he didn't know could be identified. When the first of it showed up, on the same night I happened to hit the Landing, Ezra came to me and let me in on it. I've been busy ever since."

Rapidly he narrated what they had learned and suspected; what they had found today; his encounter with Bluejay and the very obvious fact that his own arrest had been made on Tod West's suggestion.

"You see, he had a double motive with you. Likely he, too, thinks that Nan... well, likes you a lot. He wants you out of the way. You were in a bad spot the night of Downer's murder; he plants the box with just a little money, gets Bluejay ready to swear to this story of his and figures that'll dispose of you."

"Me, though; he figured he'd better hire me killed and he missed by a hair. The next best thing is to keep me behind bars as long as he can because he knows damned well neither Ezra nor I fell for the Bluejay lie about you and that cash box."

"Here we are; the two of us in jail, something over twelve thousand dollars still missing and West on the loose."

"Did you notice that West's head and neck were swollen up? You did! Am I crazy, or did I hear somebody say he'd been stung by a hornet?"

"That's what he told!" Stuart was trembling, infected by Young's intensity.

"Check! That's no hornet sting. That's bee sting. He's been fooling around bees somewhere; he gets stung and gets all daubed up with honey because there's honey on the box and honey on the crowbar he used in making the plant!"

"The hell you say!"

"Fact! Do you know anybody that keeps bees?"

"Bee! There isn't a hive of 'em in the county. I know all these settlers and—"

"But there are wild bees in the woods... Oh God!" he muttered, rising and slapping a hand to his head. "Why the devil won't a man's brain work when he needs it most? ... Honey and money! Money and honey!"

"We should be out of here tonight, but there isn't a chance. And controlling county politics as he does, you can bet West'll see to it neither one of us gets loose in a hurry... Money and honey... Holt, the thing's just too damned hot to let drop... How in the name of high heaven can we get out of here?"

He swung out of the cell and tiptoed to the window before which he had stood. The heavy bars were set in stone. Even with a hack saw, it would take hours to cut through...

Back he ran to the panel of steel which made the front of their prison. Bars, heavy and thick, ran from ceiling to floor; the lower ends were set in a steel plate; the plate was held to the concrete floor by heavy lag screws, square headed, solid...

On his knees he felt along that plate. "Lord, here's a short section of it!" he whispered. "Look; the thing's in three sections—running his hands along the bars. This door and its steel frame is one... And one, two, four... seven lag screws hold it to the floor. With those out..."

"But how?" Holt whispered, voice shaking now. "How the devil'd you get 'em out? Where'd you find a wrench?"

"Wrench? ... Wr... Why... King Christopher! Holt, on the way in, d'you hear?"

He gripped the other's arm so tightly that the boy winced. He strained to listen and put his lips close to Stuart's ear.

"Stand here and if anybody comes talk or whistle or sing... Whistle if you can! For the love of God, walk up and down and whistle... No, never mind why... Let me alone... I'm going to try to pull a fast one... Got any string? Search yourself! Or a shoe string'd do... Yes! Get one out... And cover me up, boy, if you ever did anything in all your life!"

Ducking into a cell he felt along the base of the brick wall, scraping up fragments of plaster. With these, he went quickly to the rear window and peered down. A tip lay there, still panting from his long, hard run.

"Hi, chum!"—cautiously. The dog rose and stood looking upward, tail busy. "Tip, fetch!"

On the command Kerry tossed a bit of plaster toward the car.

The retriever went out with a great bound, running in short circles, sniffing, looking up, whining.

"Fetch!" Again he tossed a fragment and it struck the fender. Breaking jail would be damned serious for you. With me, it's a lesser offense. And, besides that, we'll need information about Bridger's plans, perhaps.

"Give! Now... fetch again! In the car, boy, in the car!"

Behind him, Holt Stuart was pacing and whistling lowly, ragedly; not a musical whistle; a rather dry and husky one, to be sure, but still, it was sound...

Mystified, Tip trotted out to where he had found the plaster and sniffed and pawed, looked back, trotted around the car, stopped and lifted his nose high, drinking in scent from the seat.

"Right! Good dog! Up, now! Fetch."

Lightly, the dog leaped within, bunting the half opened door wide. He investigated at length, sniffing here and there, pawing, and then, on a blanket which spread across the cushion, he found his master's scent and immediately began tugging at it stoutly.

"No! Not that! Not the robe!" Young moved his feet up and down to relieve the nervous tension which racked his body. "Stay there... And fetch... Fetch, old timer!"

Tip abandoned the rug. More sniffing, more pawing, and then he came trotting toward the jail wall, a limp glove in his jaws.

"Fine! Give... That's a boy! And fetch again!"

He turned and beckoned Stuart closer with a jerk of his head.

"Working fine! Get a blanket and cut it into strips, about so wide"—measuring with thumb and finger. "And keep whistling! For the love of God don't stop whistling! It means more to us than you'll ever realize."

And now Tip was fetching a tire iron and next he brought a pair of pliers, handling the metal gingerly, head bent far to one side as the grip necessary to holding them hurt his teeth. As he deposited each against the wall he looked up and threshed his tail and panted.

"Fetch!" whispered Young harshly. "Clean! her out! Bound to be a wrench!"

But it was an S wrench, and then the other glove and a screw driver; next a Jack handle and then...

Young was laughing excitedly as he waved an arm wildly for Holt because Tip was advancing, a monkey wrench held gingerly from the side of his mouth.

"Good god! Take!... Hold it, now! Steady..."

"How's that?" muttered Stuart, thrusting the rope made of a ripped blanket into Kerry's hands.

"Whistle!... Stay by the door and whistle!"

He scanned the darkness beyond the lighted area anxiously. Any passer, seeing the dog, could upset his plan. And Nat Bridger might have his vanity saluted by now by the gang at the pool room. Time was precious.

The blanket rope was long enough. He bent the shoe lace to it and made in it a running loop. Then cautiously he thrust the string through the bars and carefully paid out the strands of woolen.

Tip stood there obediently, wrench in his jaws, rolling his eyes toward that descending noose. It swung and swayed; the loop touched the dog's head, dangled near the wrench and...

... then closed off its own weight!

With a muttered curse, Kerry jerked it upward again, improved the knot and tried once more. Thrice and a fourth time he was forced to open the loop before it finally swung over the end of the wrench. Then, holding his breath, he drew it taut and with a muttered, "Give!" swung the wrench free.

It touched the wall with a dull clink; it came up and he drew a great gasp of night air as his hand, thrust between the bars, closed upon it.

How they worked on those tightly set lag screws! On their knees, close together, ready to throw themselves back into the cells at the first alarming sound, they toiled. Two of the seven came easily. Two more yielded to their combined strengths. The fifth and the sixth finally moved but the seventh... Ah, that seventh!

With Stuart's hands gripped over Kerry's they put their weights on the wrench handle until Young thought the flesh would roll from his palms. They sweated and panted and cursed in whispers and then, without warning, it gave, letting go so suddenly that Kerry lunged noisily against the cell bars.

And on that sound came another: steps approaching; feet at the entry and they scuttled for their cells.

"Any calls, Ma?"

It was Bridger's voice and a woman answered from somewhere.

He came on and peered through the door, trying the lock. Young held his lungs flat for fear the whole panel would move.

"You boys all right?" he asked. "What d'you mean, all right?" Stuart growled.

The sheriff laughed and turned away. For an hour, then, they lay still and not until a muffled, regular snoring heralded the fact that rest had come to the county's servant did they leave their cots.

It was the work of a mere moment to remove the last screw and, with his shoulder to the panel, Young shoved carefully.

The bottom plate grated on the concrete, gave, squeaked a trifle and then... swung free! A man c old roll beneath it to the jail corridor and be on his way.

But he let it swing back and crouched there on the floor listening. Abruptly, he said: "After I'm gone, you set the screws back and cover the heads with dust." Stuart looked at him blankly. "You mean... That is... You're going alone?"

reason. Good enough, to be sure; but knowing Stuart for a hot-headed, impulsive boy, he did not dare risk liberating him now, when so much and such careful, patient work lay before him.

"But I know just what's got to be done, outside. Can't you see that maybe you'll be... you'll be helping Nan by sticking here and keeping your eyes and ears open?"

"Of course, if you put it that way..."

His consent was not without reluctance. Kerry rolled beneath the out-swung panel.

"Good luck!" They gripped hands through the bars. "Toll Nat the furies came for me... And when you've got the screws back, duck that wrench down the sewer."

And silently he made his way into the sheriff's office, down the side steps and with a low whistle to Tip, leaped into the car standing ready.

He opened the choke wide, stepped on the starter and the motor caught and droned. Then, quickly, he slipped in the clutch and turned down the jail drive to the street.

Once there he looked over his shoulder. Lights showed above two entrances to the jail but windows of the sheriff's living quarters showed blank. Nat Bridger was deep in dreams of continued grandeur while a prisoner used his car for escape and as Kerry bounced across the railroad tracks, leaving even the outskirts of town behind, he headed for the Mad Woman he beat Tip's ribs resoundingly with one hand and laughed until the muscles of his belly ached.

CHAPTER XIII

Jim Hinkle had not slept. Too much had happened at Nan's headquarters and too much speculation had gone on at the Landing that night to let his senses sink into unconsciousness. Besides, he had had Tod West to watch, until West took to his bed. He had promised Young he would watch West's every move and was doing his best to make his word good.

So when that light rapping came on his door he was out of bed with a stealthy bound.

"Young, Jim," came the cautious whisper in answer to his query. "Come out here!"

"My God, Young, how'd you—"

"Never mind anything now, Jim. Where's West?"

"Asleep"—peering toward Tod's house. "I watched until long after he'd gone to bed. He came to the store pretty well tanked up. I'd say. That was 'n hour after they took you to town. He seemed more like his old self 'n he has for a long time. He laughed 'nd visited 'nd then went home. I watched through his window 'nd saw him hit a bottle right hard. Then he went to bed."

"One other item about West. Where was he yesterday? Friday?"

"That's something I dunno. All day Thursday he hung here. I seen him talk to Hineley the evening 'nd—"

"Check!"

"—he turned in right after that. Friday he made a lot of fuss about going 'fishin'. He drove to Big Beaver 'nd set up his rod 'nd got ready to fish, but he didn't fish! He cached his rod under a log 'nd hit out. I followed far's I could but lost his trail, it bein' so dry that—"

"Which way'd he go?"

"North 'nd west."

"That checks, too. And when he came back to town, what?"

"All puffed up. Said a hornet'd stung him."

"Fine!" whispered Kerry. "That all ties in."

"That's enough of West. I've got to talk fast. Back down the road half a mile you'll find Nat Bridger's car—"

"Nat's?"

"Yeah. It... It helped speed his departing guest to the sheriff's office. I don't want him to know what direction I hit, of course. I want you to drive his bus back to Shoestring, cut east on the trunk line highway, go as far as you can without making too much of a walk for yourself, let the air out of a tire and leave it."

"But what are you goin' to do, Kerry?"

"Going bee hunting."

"Bee huntin'?" The man's incredulity was explosive. "What do you want of—"

"I don't know. That's the devil of it! I'm on my way. You get back, fast as you can, and stand by to watch Tod."

"My gosh, Kerry, I don't understand."

"And neither do I maybe. Good night!"

At Nan's, Young also encountered sleeplessness. He could see the girl and old Ezra sitting together in the light of a single lamp and from the doorway he halted them cautiously.

"Careful, now!" he warned as their amazement became articulate. "I don't want to be seen."

I'll need a pack sack and some stuff from the shanty."

He was back in a moment, sack on his shoulder, rifle in his hand and quickly stowed away the other articles.

"Ezra, we've got to keep Bridger as far in the dark as we hope we can keep West. We didn't dare trust Nat with the bullet identification; no more can we on the finger prints. You'll find Jim Hinkle home by the middle of the forenoon, anyhow. My suggestion is that you write a telegram and send him out with it; away out; I wouldn't even trust the Shoestring operator. Get the state police in here as fast as they can come and until they are on the job you sit on the stuff we brought in last evening and don't let a soul hear it, much less touch it. Am I right?"

"Right as rain! I'd wondered what to do and this is it!"

He turned to Nan, then, and his strained excitement subsided. He looked down at her, smiling in the faint light. She was more appealing, more desirable than ever... and Holt Stuart's words, with all their incredible implications, came back to him. He felt suddenly humble.

"There are so many things to say to you, Nan," he said gravely and saw her eyes drop at the quality of his tone. Ezra noted it too, likely, and ... moved softly away. But Young did not follow through. "Tonight, though, there's only one thing for us to think about, to work and hope and pray for: that is to reach the end of this trail we're on. After that..."

She looked up almost timidly and gave him her hands. He stooped on quick impulse, and pressed them to his lips. Then he went hastily out.

With Tip at his heels he disappeared in the night, taking the road he had traveled thrice yesterday, once on foot and twice in Ezra's car; the road where he had seen bees working in wild bloom...

An early northern dawn was already dimming the stars when he reached the place. He was drenched to the hips with the dew that clung to the grasses.

He spread his one blanket and, rifle against his side, Tip's warm body for a pillow, slouch hat over his eyes, snuggled down for what sleep he might have. A vireo was already singing but he dropped off and it was the sun on his cheek two hours later which awakened him.

Fireweed grew all about, rank and tall, with its light magenta blossoms drooping and aglisten with dew; drops of dew that gleamed like jewels in the slanting sunlight. The sky was cloudless, the morning very still and he muttered a word of thanks for that.

A fire of dry cedar twigs which three little smoke made his breakfast tea and broiled his bacon. As he ate, he watched the flowers begin to nod gracefully under the slightest of breezes, saw the dew disappearing from them, saw the petals spreading wide. As soon as he had eaten he took the cracker box from his sack and cut a hole an inch square in the cover.

He smoked his pipe thereafter and waited, listening, looking, the dog sitting before him with a puzzled expression, stirring now and again and whining lowly and licking his chops and gapping. After all that had happened yesterday and last night, Tip appeared to be thinking, this was a devil of a way to start the morning!

"Ha!... Here we are!"

Young was on his feet, then, bending over a blossom that sagged slightly under the weight of a bee. Busily the striped insect explored that flower and crawled to another and still a third and finally, locating what he wanted, squeezed his head and fore parts into the petal fringed nectar cup.

"Shove 'em, old feller!" Kerry chuckled as the hind legs braced and the bee twisted and strained mightily to get nearer the precious product of the bloom. "If a bee can grunt, Tip, he's grunting! Look at him work!"

He shook the bottle of diluted honey and poured some carefully inside his box. Then, holding the open receptacle beneath the working bee, he struck the spike smartly, knocking him free, down into the box, and clapped the cover in place.

With his hat, he covered the top and waited, squatting while the bee buzzed within, bumping sides and top and bottom, angered and frightened at the strange, dark imprisonment...

The buzzing was constant for an interval then stopped... began again; halted... hesitated and was still.

"Found it!" he chuckled. "Just like we found good old Nat's car last night!"

Pleasure Giving—

Talking to Advantage of Others
and Joy to Ourselves in 1937

TALKING is the recognized medium of communication between persons who are together or who, being absent, use a telephone. It is unfortunate having such a marvelous medium at our command that we so often fail to put it to the use worthy of its value. It is possible to send a glow of happiness through the lister words of appreciation. It is possible to solace those in sorrow by words of comfort spoken from the heart. It is possible to make joy doubly glad some by expressing our happiness in the good fortune of others. Through talking to our children we can spur them, on to fine things, or encourage them in worthy resolves. In short the good we can do by talking in the right spirit is incalculable. By talking in the right way we bring good to others and joy to ourselves.

"Too Much Talk"

It is when we swerve from the best use of the spoken word that we drag it down and harm both ourselves and our hearers. There is an expression "too much talk" which is significant of this very thing. The words speak for themselves, declaring that it would be advisable to cease saying the things we are. It is never said of good words. Of them we could say let us have more talk of the same sort, it is need.

Many Words

Have you ever considered how much is said when derogatory talk is going on? Words are spoken and reiterated over and over

Tomorrow Disappoints

Tomorrow always promises well, but remember there is reasonably certain to be one disappointment.

One loves even a precocious little boy with his front teeth out. He's meeker for the time being.

Some men have great patience, but Henry D. Thoreau put it another way by saying they lived a life of quiet desperation.

Bills that you run fall due and fail due and fail due; but if you pay as you go, you forget all about your expenditures.

We have to go along from day to day, even when we know we are frequently treading on toes. Some become indifferent.

Dangerous Meddling

Never meddle with a hornet or a man who is minding his own business.

A placid blue lake may arouse your emotions, but it takes a storm to stir its surface and your feelings.

Women trust to their intuition. So do men, but they won't admit it.

A man says "I am the captain of my soul" and wonders what to do next.

Keep Your Knowledge

There is perhaps a little too much absolute and outspoken honesty employed in talking about others. One need not tell all he knows.

Education is "finished" when one can learn no more.

It's a rare occurrence when a close person gets next to himself.

again, as if by repetition the unpleasant things would be increased. Unfortunately this is what happens. Unkind or unfriendly conversation, by some perverse twist of human nature, is sure to be repeated, and usually with embellishments. Either the one who repeats it cannot believe her ears, and wonders if anyone else knows about the unfortunate circumstances, or else she finds a strange pleasure in repeating slander. It may be the derogatory words are against someone she dislikes. It may be they are about a total stranger. If the talk was commendatory repeating it would foster fine things. Good things should be given frequent repetition.

Pleasure Giving in 1937

We all could add so much to the pleasure and joy of living during the new year 1937, if we would set a watch on our talk, and by a wishful determination use this great means to our command to help others. It is one of the things that costs nothing and yet which can do such an endless amount of good. It is a way open to all alike.

Simple, Elegant, Practical

TIME and Sew-Your-Own fashions march on. Today's trio have the simplicity, elegance and practicality so vital to the up-to-the-minute well-groomed woman—and so within reach of the modern, progressive members of The Sewing Circle.

Pattern 1812—Little Miss Two-To-Five can manage her own dressing with the aid of this frock that buttons down the front. She will be the picture of daintiness too, with such clever aids as princess lines, puff sleeves and an intriguing little collar. The one piece step-in is the essence of practicality—a great boon to the youngster's comfort. This ensemble is available in sizes 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. Size 3 requires 2½ yards of 35 or 39 inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting.

Pattern 1998—This new dress "belongs" in almost any company. Its great simplicity will endear it to homemakers, and business women alike. It is a combination of charm, good lines and youthfulness. You'll want two versions of this style—one with short sleeves, the other with long. Pique, silk crepe velvet will serve nicely as the material. It is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 35 inch material, with long sleeves 4½ yards.

Pattern 1938—Daytime distinction takes on a new meaning in

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Add chopped pickles, pimientos and olives to regular cabbage salad and you will concoct a tasty relish suitable to serve with fish, fowl or meat.

Parchment shades, if they are shellacked and varnished, may be washed with white soap and water. A little furniture polish applied after washing helps to brighten them.

A little salt added to an egg before beating makes it light and easier to beat.

When making pastry, roll in one direction only if you want it to be light. Rolling first in one direction and then in another is almost sure to make it tough.

Try cleaning denim chairs with moist bread one day old. The end pieces will hold together best. Window shades and rugs can also be cleaned by rubbing with bread.

A cracked egg can be boiled if the shell is first rubbed with lemon juice. The acid coagulates the albumin and prevents it from cooking out of the crack.

When a roast is in the oven, don't stick your fork again, and again, into the meat, and so let out the juices and flavor. Don't flour the roast at all. Sprinkle with salt only.

Moisten the pastry bag with cold water before adding cake or frosting mixture and the bag will be more easily cleaned and there will be less waste of the product.

To remove ink from linen, dip the article in milk and let it soak for about two hours; then take out and wash with soap while the milk still remains on the spot.

STAR DUST

Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

ONE of the best of the many special Christmas broadcasts this year will be one that brought pleasure to thousands last year—Lionel Barrymore's appearance on the airwaves on Christmas evening with a dramatic version of Dickens' "Christmas Carol."

The part of "Scrooge" has always been one of his favorites. And his performance last year was received so enthusiastically everywhere that CBS signed him to a five-year contract. Whether he likes it or not, he's become a tradition.

There's one man in Hollywood whom all the male stars go out of their way to be friendly with—and all because they don't know when he may take a shot at them. Not a shot with a camera, either—a shot with a gun. His name is Sid Jordan, and you've seen the effect of his work in a lot of pictures. In "The Prisoner of Shark Island" he nicked fragments from the stone walls of Fort Jefferson just over Warner Baxter's head. In "Loyals of London" he shot bits out of the decks of Nelson's flagship. And when you see "Banjo on My Knee," you'll see Joel McCrea swimming the Mississippi with shots hitting the water near his head—shots fired by Sid Jordan.

After Fred Allen appeared in "Thanks a Million" he declared that he was through with acting in the movies. Radio was enough for him (it should be, since he writes his programs as well as acts in them). So he turned down a contract to make more pictures and retreated to New York in good order, with "Town Hall Tonight" his main activity.

Now he's been talked into changing his mind. He's signed a contract with Twentieth Century Fox, and so has his wife, Portland Hoffa.

The Spanish revolution has seriously affected the lives of Grace Moore and her husband, Valentin Parera. They had planned to adopt Mr. Parera's four-year-old niece, who lived near Madrid, but for some time now they have had no word of the child, or of Mr. Parera's mother, brother and two sisters.

It seems pretty funny, but it's true. When Anna May Wong arrived in Shanghai six months ago for a visit she could not speak a word of Chinese. Now that she's off for London she speaks it very well indeed—but in England she's not likely to need it.

There's still a lot of argument going on about Leslie Howard's performance in "Hamlet" on the New York stage. Hollywood stars arriving in New York make a bee line for the theater; whether it's good or bad, they want to see it for themselves. The general public seems to feel the same way. The dramatic critics, with a few exceptions, have taken their axes to the Howard "Hamlet." They feel that it's pretty bad, and have not hesitated to say so. Mr. Howard has been moved to defend himself in certain speeches. This "Hamlet" production has been dear to his heart for a long, long time, you know. Apparently he was not prepared for the roasting the critics gave him. But anyway the box office receipts are good.

Screen idols, undaunted by what happened to them the last time they spent a vacation in New York, plan other ones there in the immediate future.

Their principal hazard is autograph hunters. It's a curious thing about autograph hunters; they seem to have a sixth sense that tells them when a celebrity is in the vicinity. It's hard on the celebrities, of course, but take from me it's harder on the friends or relatives of the famous ones, who have to stand by and wait while the signing goes on. The fans just elbow them out of the way. The expression on Mrs. Gary Cooper's face while her husband obliges the fans is something to remember!

Odds and Ends—Homer Rhoades, who leads that Wednesday night Community Sing on the air, commutes from Indiana to New York to do it. Slim Summerville has a new five-year contract. You'll like Joan Crawford and Clark Gable in "Love on the Run" and John Boles, Texas born, has been made a member of the staff of the Governor of Texas. When Zasu Pitts sailed for England she wore that gorgeous mink coat of hers—one of the most beautiful in the world—which she really bought so that later she could give it to her daughter!

Home Heating Hints

By John Barclay
Heating Expert

How to Check "Chimney Loss," Greatest Waste in Home Heating

WHAT is "chimney loss"? Well, that's a term we heating experts have for heat that goes up the chimney and is wasted.

Yet it's really a simple matter to save money by reducing this loss—convert "chimney loss" to "useful heat," as we call it. Here's the remedy:

Next time you refuel the fire, move the handle of the turn damper (that disc or plate-like damper inside the smoke pipe) 1-16th of an inch toward the closed upright position. Then, if the fire keeps on burning too freely, turn the damper another sixteenth of an inch. Repeat this operation until you find the correct adjustment—one that will deliver the greatest amount of useful heat with the least "chimney loss."

Once you have found this ideal adjustment of the damper, mark the position on the smoke pipe with a piece of chalk or something that can be plainly seen, and leave the damper set at that mark.

Bear this in mind: The nearer the turn damper is set to the closed position the smaller the "chimney loss" and the greater the volume of "useful heat" that goes to properly heating your home. And, of course, the lower your fuel bills.

Add ¾ cup grated cheese and mix well. Beat 1 egg yolk and add to ½ cup milk. Then add to dry ingredients and mix until soft dough is formed. Cut dough into small pieces, mould into balls and place 3 together in each muffin pan. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 20 minutes. This recipe makes 1½ dozen Cloverleaf cheese biscuits.—Adv.

City of Canaries

Norwich, England, is a city of canaries. People there discuss the fine points of the birds just as Kentucky men discuss those of horses, and were one to walk through the streets with a new specimen, traffic would stop to see the sight. Some dealers in Norwich have as many as 5,000 canaries and export them all over the world.

Don't Irritate Gas Bloating

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just dosing your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria. If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable. You can't eat or sleep. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED. Thousands of sufferers have found in Adierka the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adierka rid you of gas and cleanses foul poisons out of BOTH upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka. Get rid of GAS. Adierka does not grip—it's not habit forming. At all Leading Drugists.
