BUSINESS UP HERE SURVEY REVEALS

A survey of the business activities in Fulton during the past twelve months, shows that definite progress has been made in business, building and marketing of farm products. In the building field, figures reveal that a 41 percent increase was made in 1936 over 1935, with many improvements in the business, residential and rural districts of the community. Nearly a half million dollars was expended to repair, remodel or construct new homes and other property during the past year.

Carload shipments increased 17.7 percent from the Illinois Central System freight depot, rising from 6,668 cars in 1935 to 7,844 in 1936. A total of 16,116 shipments were handled, an increase of 1263 shipments over the previous year. Revenue for the railroad from carload shipments rose to $315,330.94 in 1936, an increase of $47,903.29 over the previous year.

Fulton is growing as a livestock center, as indicated by the sharp increase in shipments which totaled nearly a thousand cars in 1936. Producers of hogs, cattle and sheep realized a sum of $2,285,025.61. A resume of the past year's activities in the sale of farm products on local markets, disclose that approximately $3,335,321.27 was paid out to farmers for grain, livestock, buttermilk and poultry.

Deposits at the local City National Bank have shown substantial increase of $100,000 and dividends have been paid to holders. Stock and members of the Fulton Building & Loan Association have risen, as is also true in the West Kentucky Finance Company. Bank clearings for 1936 totaled more than $26,327,000 with an aggregate of 319,000 items having been handled.

Records at the local post office reveal an increase over 1935, with a 35 percent increase during the holiday period.

Fulton and South Fulton, twin cities with distinct business systems, showed increase in both high schools and grade schools, with the largest enrollment recorded.

Besides the addition of several new businesses during the year, others have expanded operations, enlarged quarters and made general improvements. The year 1936 brings a new industry, employing some 600 persons with a weekly payroll of $6,000; a new Warner Theatre, many new homes and thousands of dollars in improvements.

There is beauty in gleaming gold, But neither could imprison the splendor Which these bricks to us unfold. Our club home grew from toil and worry.

It began as an idle dream, Few granted it was possible, To most it was a "foolish scheme" But zeal and work have brought us To the paths we trod today. Our club home is really, not fancy. It's really here to stay. In reflection, we are grateful To those who made our dreams come true. May you your friendships renew And feel it's yours for the asking. That's what we hope you'll do. So lift a glass to the future. Of the club and its now new home May Heaven crown its efforts And memory enshrine each steen.

UNION CITY COURT OPENED ON MONDAY

January term of the Union county Circuit Court convened at Union City Monday morning, with Judge J. E. Eklund presiding, who charged the jury after they were organized. Several important cases were examined and court was expected to last through Friday.

Obion County Superintendent of Schools C. B. Fowler was re-elected Monday by a vote of 31 to 8 over his opponent, Phillip Wall of Glass, at the regular session of the Obion county court. The county high commissioner was re-elected with one exception, Charlie Everett of District 1 succeeded Frank Sellers of District 16. Other members re-elected are Knox Harper, Clyde Maupin, W. P. Beard, Jim Hickman, C. M. Montgomery and H. D. Smith.

Following a report of a committee on the proposed building of the new courthouse, it was decided to make arrangements to borrow the money for the new building or to remodel the old one, and a county-wide vote will be taken to decide the question.

It was recommended that the Legislature be asked to pass a law authorizing the county court to elect three farm commissioners and empower the commissioners to select two supervisors, one to supervise the county farm work, the other to have charge of the county home at salaries of $800 each per year.

BUILDING PROJECTS INCREASE IN 1936

Building activities in and around Fulton increased 36% to 41% during the past year, figures gathered here this week from lumber dealers and contractors revealed. It is estimated that approximately $450,000 to $500,000 was expended in the purchase of building materials, plumbing and electrical fixtures, paint, paper and interior decorations, and for labor.

Most of this amount was spent for repairing and remodeling, with a good many new homes have been constructed in the city proper and outlying rural districts. However, much of the building activities was confined to the surrounding rural section. Fulton proper has not shown as much improvement in building as some other communities of the same size in this territory. But real estate values here are showing steady improvement, and 1937 should bring further increases in the construction business.

The first large construction job in the new year will be the new $75,000 Warner Bros. theatre, work on which is to start in a few days. Another building project, if a tentative agreement is reached with a manufacturing concern, will be the erection of a $35,000 addition to the old cigar factory building.

Provided plans are completed for bringing this factory to Fulton, which will employ some 600 people at an annual payroll of approximately $200,000, other building activities will be launched in order to provide sufficient rental property which is now inadequate.

There is every indication that 1937 will bring definite progress in the building trade in this territory and throughout the nation.

COUNTY PLANNING MEETING IS HELD

At a meeting of the Agricultural Conservation committee on Wednesday, R. E. Proctor, Field Agent in Agricultural Economics, planned with the committeemen and County Agent, a system of land use and livestock production, which they believe would be ideal for the county.

The meeting was not for the purpose of setting up rules and regulations for farmers to follow on their farms but was for the purpose of outlining plans that are adaptable to general farming conditions of the county. The men in their discussion suggested that if the following practices were put into operation the fertility of the land would be conserved and the present production maintained and in many cases increased. These leading farmers said that we must plow less of the hill land and seed it to grass and legumes before it is too late. Either pastures must be improved or there will be permanent loss of that land from agricultural use.

1. All land that is cultivated be sown to winter cover crop to prevent erosion and leaching during winter.
2. Terrace, lime, phosphate and seed to pasture land that is beginning to erode.
3. Every farm raise enough alfalfa to furnish hay for all livestock during the winter.
4. Plan to raise enough high grade livestock to consume pasture and grain produced in county and market these products through live stock rather than as hay and grain.
5. Apply lime and phosphate before each seeding of legumes until all the crop land is limed.
6. Sow some grass with all seedings of legumes, rather than sowing legumes without grass.
7. 4-H club distributed over county accessible to every farm boy and girl in the county.

The above suggestions it is believed would make an ideal farm program for this county and these are farming more than the method of farming that is practiced by the farmers in the county who are considered the best farmers and have proven this by continuing to increase their yields of grain crops and improve the quality of their live stock and at the same time, keep the farms in repair and painted. All these things tend to make a well-balanced farm program and a prosperous agricultural county and a contented and happy population, with high ideals.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

One of the most interesting and potentially far-reaching phases of future stability for the nation is the increasing interest shown by industry—and especially large corporate industry—in matters of social, as well as economic significance.

Prime example of this was provided at the recent annual meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers, representative organization of most of the big goods-producing concerns of the country. The president of the Association, C. N. Chester (who, in business life is Chairman of the Board of General Foods Corporation) sounded the key note of the gathering when he said, "Industry cannot just sit back and enjoy the fruits of prosperity. We must understand better what has been happening since 1929. Now that the course of the depression is behind us, leading itself in its entirety to analysis, it is the job for industry, general business and all affected sectors of our economic life to join in creating a national depression study committee."

Mr. Chester then presented 11 specific suggestions which he believes industry should follow. Business Weeks briefs them thus: 1. To continue making better goods at lower costs, raising living standards but defending personal opportunities; 2. Put all possible unemployed back to work; 3. Keep its house in order; 4. Oppose monopolies; 5. Engender greater confidence in workers; 6. Promote public understanding; 7. Share the proceeds of industrial operations fairly among workers, management and investors; 8. Help create economic security for all; 9. While accepting its responsibilities, insist that all other interested elements, including labor or

A New Year— A New Congress

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

America at this time greets a New Year—and a new Congress.

What do the American people ask of each?

Of the New Year opportunity for longer strides along the road to recovery.

Of the new Congress, whatever action or restraint may be necessary to make such strides possible.

America is ready for those lengthened strides. The need exists for new buildings, new goods, new replacements, for many things that supply and serve the people. Industry and commerce—all our creative facilities—stand ready to meet that need. Workers in every field are eager for the employment that increased production assures. Talk of closer cooperation among all elements essential to a quickened program fills the newspapers.

All that seems necessary is Confidence.

Confidence that public rather than national advantage will sway the men chosen to represent us in our National Legislature.

Confidence that no new barriers will be placed in the way of work and production.

Confidence that constructive plans for the future will not have been scrapped overnight to meet the vagaries of every glittering economic novelty.

Confidence that the worker's income will not be wasted by political extravagance piled against his present and future earnings.

Confidence that throughout the nation humanitarian consideration will dominate political aspects of emergency measures to aid the unfortunate.

The Seventy-fifth Congress faces a glorious opportunity to inspire this confidence.

If it grasps the opportunity, it can earn the gratitude of a great and encouraged people.

If it fails, our wishes for a Prosperous New Year will have been in vain.

Organizations, be made equally responsible; 10. Co-operate with government; 11. Join other groups in a representative study of depression. These goals were approved by the delegates to the meeting. Most serious discussion arose over the Social Security Act which has many enemies as well as friends. But finally the promise of the Act was approved, though the Act itself was criticized in detail, a criticism that has been made so often before and will very possibly lead to some revision of the measure in the next Congress.

The meaning of all this is that all industry is making a determined effort to strengthen every phase of industrial activity to improve employment and safeguard steady jobs. The service industries are following suit. For example, the railroads and the electric utilities are doing everything possible to stabilize and increase their operations so as to employ the greatest number of persons and render the highest public service.

National political interest has naturally been focused in Washington during the past year. As a result local governments have come in for only a modicum of attention. In 1937, however, local politics will be of vital importance. During January, no less than 43 state legislatures will convene.

Before these legislatures will be many highly important questions. One of those questions is that of relief—Federal appropriations for this purpose funds to supplant the lost Federal dollars.

Only a handful of states have yet passed laws to bring their citizens completely under the Social Security Act. In the bulk of states such laws will be up for debate and considerable discussion is in prospect.

Furthermore, in practically every state local problems of more than ordinary significance will be an issue. The question of public economy and taxation is looming larger every day—and the collection and disbursement of public funds is being more closely scrutinized. In at least one state, California, revision of the state constitution is considered.

Thus, during the next month or two, more of the political news in your newspapers will be given to state activities.

Long debated has been the proposal that the President of the United States should be restricted, by law, to but a single term of six years duration.

Prime argument in favor of the proposal is that under the present conditions, Presidents are virtually forced to build political fences during their first term in an effort to assure their reelection. The single term would stop that long established practice.

A bill to pave the way for a Constitutional amendment making the proposal the law of the land will probably be introduced in the Congress.

TO OUR READERS

At this closing of an old year and the opening of a new one, we wish to again express our appreciation to our large circle of loyal readers and subscribers. It has been your interest in the paper that has enabled us to build up such a remarkable paid circulation in such a short time, and we thank you, one and all.

For 1937 we promise you that we will continue our efforts to improve the paper right along, to make it an outstanding community paper that you can be proud of and interested in. We have some definite plans for improvements that will be put into effect just as quickly as possible and we will strive with renewed energy to give you all the local news.

We want your help. We want you to give us your news and give it to us first. Mail, phone, or bring it to our office. We want to cover the news of the entire community and we want all of our readers to consider The News as their own paper and themselves as reporters for us. By working thus together we can put Fulton and its suburbs on the map. In return we pledge you that we will work always for your interest. We will do everything in our power to promote the community, to aid its growth and to foster the well-being of every man, woman and child in this section. We are here to serve you. Your interest and your help gives us courage to look forward into 1937 with confidence and a firm resolve to try to serve you better than ever.

HAIL TO 1937!

We embark upon a New Year. The year 1936 has been a good year on the whole, for both Fulton and the United States. But we look forward with confidence to 1937, as all indications point to the fact that it will be even better for all of us than was 1936.

Although it is merely a mark on the calendar, an arbitrary division of time, there has grown up around the opening of a new year so much tradition that it has come to be a very definite turning point for all of us. A time to take stock, to look over the mistakes of the past, and to plan for the future.

With a splendid location, a splendid population, we have in our hands here in Fulton most of the elements that make for solid growth and prosperity. We believe that Fulton is starting a period of such solid growth and prosperity that it will definitely show itself during 1937.

It is up to us to take the fullest advantage of our opportunities and use them wisely. This can only be done with the cooperation of every element in the community. It is up to every person living here to take an active interest in everything that concerns the community.

Individually we meet the New

Year in our own way. Collectively we must stand together as one unit, or the good of the community and the advancement of Fulton. We believe the New Year offers all of us greater opportunities and greater advantages. It will be up to us to grasp them and make the most of them.

A NEW ERA

Fulton is taking on new life. The past year has seen steady strides of progress in our fair city. We predict even greater improvements for the new year 1937.

There is not a finer community in the Southland, with greater possibilities than Fulton. Around us we have a fine agricultural section, and wonderful progress is being made in dairying, livestock and poultry-raising, and diversified crops.

Now comes the new garment factory, Fulton, which will employ some 600 persons, with the average payroll ranging around $8,000 a week. Those men who have labored constantly for securing a factory for our city, and business firms and citizens who are contributing to make it possible, deserve the commendation of the community.

1937 will make a new era for Fulton.

A MARKETING CENTER

Steady growth has been made in the past few years by which Fulton is becoming a greater marketing center for this territory. There is a reason back of this. This city is strategically located in the heart of a rich agricultural section, and has a five-point railway and highway system penetrating the surrounding territory. The highways make Fulton easily accessible for trucking and for shipment to eastern markets. Shipments from Fulton last year totaled 16,116 carloads, an increase of 1263 shipments over 1935.

Farm products marketed in Fulton during 1936, including grain, livestock, poultry, and butterfat, aggregated $3,835,025.61. Farmers are realizing the importance of Fulton as a marketing center.

HOLIDAY SPENDING REACHED RECORD PROPORTIONS

Indications of the tremendous monetary expenditure which featured holiday business in Kentucky and southern Indiana were seen in heavy gain made by Louisville bank clearings the past week, the increase running to 69 percent above the same week a year ago. Several Louisville business houses reported that some days during Christmas week, their sales exceeded any previous day's business in their entire history.

Retail trade throughout the country maintained its forward stride during the week preceding Christmas in proportions that brought the volume of business far ahead of the same period in 1935 and closely approached the 1929 figure, according to reports of the Department of Commerce from 34 key cities just received by its Louisville District office. In wholesale markets a quieter week was experienced although considerable fill-in business was booked and advance orders for Spring merchandise moved to higher levels. Total Christmas business for New York Department stores was estimated at approximately 12½ percent ahead of last year.

Louisville further reported that holiday goods buying ran as high as 39 to 49 percent ahead of last year with normal merchandising 15 to 20 percent ahead of same period a year ago.

Placements by National Reemployment Service in private industry now exceeding those in public works for first time in 39 months of service in Kentucky.

Sales of air-cured tobacco also considerably above year ago, market averaging $15.89 on Russellville floors. Day tobacco sold at Henderson averaged $11.76, highest figure since 1929.

Kentucky Cooperative Wool Grower's Association has sold its crop at average $11.76, highest figure in history, expected to start work on addition to penitentiary at Eddyville, Ky., to be built by free labor at cost of $600,000.

Mississippi Valley Barge Line Company reported river transportation business 30 percent ahead of 1935.

Western Kentucky farmers are planning to revive its million-dollar strawberry production, devastated by drouth the past season.

Congress Faces A Double Opportunity

By RAYMOND FITZGERALD

National Chairman, Sentinels of the Republic

Since its first session back in 1789 the Congress of the United States has represented to the world the American principle of Government by the People.

Through almost a century and a half it has remained one of the greatest Representative Legislatures on earth.

That is something for its members to remember during the session now in progress.

For the present Congress of the United States faces a double opportunity. It can translate into action the will of the public, and it can continue to prove to the world that Government by the People offers the surest road to the continued well-being of a nation and its individual citizens.

At this time such a demonstration could prove of immense value to both the Old World and the New.

To Europe it could emphasize the significant facts that nations rule the more less violently and men live in greater happiness where Public Opinion rather than Dictatorship rules.

At home it could remind us that under the American form of government, authority resides in our elected representatives—not in the horde of appointed Bureaus and Commissions which through recent years have increasingly expanded in size, in power, and in arrogance.

During past weeks official Washington has strongly indicated an intention to curtail both in numbers and in power our growing army of Bureaucrats.

If the 75th Congress backs up that promise it can win the widespread approval of the country. But this will not end the achievement. It can also take a significant step in strengthening throughout the world the principle of Government by the People—a principle on which our Nation was founded and has risen to greatness.

HOW you can have Meals that are MORE NOURISHING

USE ELECTRIC COOKERY

which retains valuable food elements

Mrs. HOMEFOLKS. . .

When you prepare meals the modern electric way, you cook vegetables and meats in their own juices in closed utensils, using little or no water.

This method retains all nourishing mineral elements usually lost in old-fashioned cooking. It retains all the appetizing flavors too—keeps in cooking odors—and prevents food shrinkage. That's why meals cooked electrically are better.

Of course electric cookery has many other advantages—such as cleanliness, coolness, economy. And if you'll stop at our store, or send word, we'll appreciate the opportunity to tell you the whole story.

The Neighborhood Boaster
Every neighborhood has its champion liar, a teller of tall tales. This sort of liar must not be confused with the kind that tells falsehoods to get people into trouble. The professional liar bears no malice toward anyone; he loves to tell impossible things just to keep in practice. Some of his yarns, though he would not like to admit it, are as old as the human race and have been merely reworked by him adroitly to fit local conditions. Occasionally, however, he makes up something that rings true. In my earlier days the neighborhood yarn-spinner was likely to regale us youngsters with great tales of his prowess during the Civil War. One such fellow used to tell how he hemmed up a whole posse of Yankees and captured them single-handed. "I gun!" Another had a marvelous horse that could outdistance every other animal in our corner of the world. I suspect that he had seen a picture of General Putnam in the school readers of that time, or else had studied the same picture as it appeared on Putnam's dyes. One of the earliest literary characters connected with Kentucky fiction was Captain Ralph Stackpole, a brave, loud-mouthed horse thief in Robert Montgomery Bird's Nick of the Woods, published in 1837. Captain Stackpole knew all the arts of the boaster, being as proficient as the contemporary, half-mythical Mike Fink. Each one, after giving a long rambling account of his ability, declared himself to be a Salt River horse whatever that might be. Mike Fink's boast might be, "I can out-run, out-hop, out-jump, throw down, drag out, and lick any man in this country. I love the women, and I am chock-full of fight."

I recall having heard several other boasts, such as "I can lick any weight in wildcats," "I'm wild and woolly and full of fleas; I've never been carried below the knees." Davy Crockett, of western Tennessee and later of Texas, declared himself "half horse, half alligator, with a touch of snapping turtle." Some of our neighborhood liars, however, do not rate themselves very highly. They quote eminent citizens, now fortunately dead and unable to contest the yarns, when they tell marvelous tales. Horrible crimes, miraculous happenings, ghosts, "haints," and such like are their stock in trade. Some one could make himself a reputation for scholarship by collecting in a single county these marvelous tales, with all the local flavor imparted by the quaintness of the teller. Here is a sample. All of you, wherever you are, remember the story of the man who stopped in a country church during a rain storm and was grabbed by some invisible something which later proved to be a crazy woman who had taken refuge in the same church. That story has been told me in several different counties by the descendants of the man who had this hair-raising experience only the church changes its name and even its county rather frequently. One man stoutly maintained that his father was the one grabbed and that only by shucking his coat did he escape. Now where did that story start? If it were true, crazy women were once pretty common in country churches.
