FULTON, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, JANUARY 23, 1937

NUMBER ONE

CHAMBER COMMERCE MET MONDAY NIGHT

The regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held Monday night at the First Methodist church, with Ernest Fall, president, presiding. He reported that two floors of the old cigar factory building were ready for the Henry I. Seigel Company, and that the third floor will be finished within the next week.

This company already has some $15,000 worth of machinery in Fulton for installation in the factory building here. Blue prints for the new addition, which is to be slightly larger than the present building, have been completed, and construction of this addition is expected to start shortly.

Applications have been taken at the Women's Club building this week, and more than 300 have signed up for employment. However, only a limited number of workers will be employed at first, during the period of training and until the new addition is opened. It is estimated that it will be at least two weeks before work in the factory will start.

Louis Kadow, treasurer, made a brief financial report, and stated that a fuller report would be made at the next meeting. A committee, composed of Paul Hornback, Veda Hardin and Ira Lipe, was named to select 18 candidates from which nine will be elected to form a board of directors, at the February meeting.

ARCHITECT AND ENGINEER FOR WARNER THEATRE HERE

The architect and engineer for the new $75,000 Warner theatre was in Fulton early this week going over plans and specifications. Jake Schwarz, head of the construction department for Warner Bros., of New York City, stated that with a few changes in the plans, the contract would be ready for letting. Actual work on erection of the new building will start shortly.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT INAUGURATED AGAIN

Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicated himself anew at the start of his second administration. Wednesday to the removal of "cancers of internal medicine" that cause want in the midst of plenty. Speaking before a throng of thousands, he immediately after renewing the oath of office administered by Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes, he declared, "we are determined to make every American citizen the subject of his country's interest and concern."

Progress in recovery is obvious, he president said, but the "new order of things" brought about since 1933 means more than that. Informed a large crowd was on the capital plaza, President Roosevelt refused to take the oath inside the capitol saying, "if those people can see it, I can too."

The president in his address said in taking again the oath of office as president of the United States, I assume the solemn obligation of leading the American people forward along the road over which they have chosen to advance."

Many students from Fulton county and vicinity are expected to enroll in Murray State College for the spring semester, which will open for registration Monday, February 1. Class work will begin Tuesday, February 2. With the training school and extension centers, the enrollment is expected to reach 1500.

The spring semester will offer more advantages than any other in the College's history, both in academics and in entertainment. The new health building will be completed and its physical education gymnasium, swimming pool, classrooms and health offices in full use. The home demonstration house will be ready to accommodate, in every phase of home management, the home economics majors. Honorary scholarship fraternities have been approved recently by President J. H. Richmond and his regents. Traffic regulations approved by president and regents will make the campus drives safe. New hard surface boulevards will connect the college from the men's dormitory via the stadium to Five Points, then back again to Wells Hall. Bailey Woodson, director of state parks, says Murray may get a state or national park honoring Nathan B. Stubblefield, radio inventor. President Richmond has announced that special attention will be given students in meeting certification obligations.

DEMONSTRATORS REVEAL PROFITS FROM POULTRY

A survey of demonstration poultry flock records has established one primary thing: "The more they lay the better they pay," says Stanley Caton of the poultry department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. A total of 218 flock records were studied. They covered the three-year period of 1933-1936 and took in a total of 27,000 hens.

Flocks were put in five groups according to the average annual egg production of 120 eggs or less per hen; 121 to 140 eggs; 141 to 160 eggs; 161 to 180 eggs; and more than 180 eggs. The labor income was computed for each group. Labor income is the amount of money left to the farmer, after subtracting all expenses, including feed cost, wear and tear on equipment, taxes, insurance, etc.

Eleven percent of the flocks were in the group laying 120 eggs or less per hen, and paid the flock owner 62 cents per hen for care and management. The second group, laying 121 to 140 eggs, returned a labor income of 98 cents; the third group paid their owners a net income per hen of $1.62, and the fourth and fifth groups, which were the best producers, paid $2.07 and $2.01 respectively.

Retail Trade Continues To Rise Despite Weather

Retail trade, although retarded to some extent by unfavorable weather conditions and labor disturbances, continued to show a fair margin of gain over the same period last year, according to reports to the Department of Commerce from 37 cities for the past week, just received by its Louisville District office. Wholesale lines displayed additional momentum as the season advanced toward the Easter period which this year falls two weeks earlier than last. Wholesale trade also was stimulated by the possibility of advancing prices for many commodities.

Louisville reported that despite unseasonable weather retail sales continued on upgrade in district, running 10 to 15% above year ago. Preliminary sales satisfactory. Influx of orders from tobacco sections maintained volume of wholesale orders well above year ago. National Reemployment Service reported total of 6,280 placed in positions during December, 1935, and month. Placements in private industry exceeded those of any other month since establishment of service in May, 1934. Total placements last week 965.

Bank clearings practically unchanged from same week year ago. Auction sales of barley tobacco running somewhat lower in price since reopening of markets after the season's figures. For some grades reduction is as much as 24 per 100 pounds. Much depression felt in Western Kentucky and Tennessee. Dark tobacco sections over low prices for that variety. Some exporters are advising farmers to abandon Dark tobacco in future and devote attention to barley culture. Absence of French and Spanish buyers noted on dark markets.

Real estate in the district continues on the upgrade. Bourbon county, Ky., 201-acre farm sold for $225 per acre. New law building at University of Kentucky, Lexington, to be constructed with $50,000 expenditure. Ashland, Ky., firm awarded contract for new building at Catlettsburg, Ky., at bid of $41,937. Louisville brewery announces plans for new addition to cost $40,000.

Kentucky highway commission awards $189,935 road contracts in seven western Kentucky counties. Work has started on $75,000 construction of new distillery in Jefferson county, Ky., near Fisherville. $15,000 being spent on construction of new co-op in Nelson county, Ky., to accommodate many distillers in that section. BUILDING CONFIDENCE

Everyone knows that if you have confidence in yourself you can do a lot more and go a lot farther, than if you are doubtful of your own ability. The same applies to anything with which you are concerned.

This is also true of a community. The people that make up the community must have confidence in the community if it is to grow and prosper. Having confidence in your community is merely a form of having confidence in yourself, for you are the community.

If all the people in a community have confidence in it, there is naturally created an atmosphere that gives the outside world confidence in the community. Before you know it the community is showing vigorous signs of forging ahead.

There are many different ways of showing confidence in your community: by willingness to invest in it; by willingness to give time and energy to community enterprises; by boosting it on any and all occasions, etc. But the best and most concrete way is by spending all the money you possibly can in your community.

There is a motive of self interest in spending your money at home, of course. Part of it will come back to you directly or indirectly sooner or later. For you are helping yourself when you buy at home. But also you are helping the community, which is partly you, and that is the best way you can create real confidence.

Only a community where trade is flourishing can have confidence in itself and create confidence in others. Only in that way can the community be built up, be made to prosper. Trade attracts trade and money attracts money and community prosperity soon spreads around to every individual in the community, in one way or another.

So you are helping yourself when you help your community by buying everything you can in Fulton.

DISTRESSED DEBTORS

RR SUPERVISORS

G. C. Dyer, County Supervisor in charge of the Rural Rehabilitation Program of the Resettlement Administration in Graves, Calloway, Fulton-Hickman Counties feels that there may be farmers in this section in danger of losing their property from foreclosure, or otherwise in distress on account of debt, who could be helped by the Farm Debt Adjustment Service which is now a part of the Rural Rehabilitation Program of the Resettlement Administration.

"While thousands of distressed debtors in the nation and hundreds in this state have been helped to clear up their debt entanglements—land and chattel—to the satisfaction of both creditor and debtor, recent studies indicate that there are still those who do not take advantage of the friendly debt conciliation services offered by the Resettlement Administration," Mr. Dyer said.

All one has to do to address a postal card or apply in person, to his nearest County Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor who will talk over the applicant's problems and advise him whether it is possible to assist Mr. Dyer's office is located in the Stovall building, South Street, Mayfield, Kentucky, or WPA office, Murray, Ky., on Monday of each week, Clinton WPA office Wednesday of each week, and Hickman, County Agent's office Thursday of each week.

Mr. Dyer calls attention to the fact that voluntary committees composed of public spirited citizens working without pay, other than actual expenses, have been organized in every county to help with this Farm Debt Adjustment Service. These committees meet with the debtor and creditor, try to have the debt reduced in accordance with the debtor's ability to pay, or to get the debtor more time in which to pay off the debt, or to find a new creditor.

To work with the Rural Rehabilitation Supervisors and with the county committees, and especially to handle the knottier problems, one or more Farm Debt Specialists have been assigned in each state. These Specialists are versed in the problems of debt and the intricacies of refinancing. They are prepared to make a careful study of the more difficult debt problems. Particularly are these Specialists called in where there is an emergency situation threatening immediate foreclosure. Mr. Cavanaugh is the debt specialist or Farm Debt Adjustment Supervisor, as he is technically called, covering this and several adjoining counties.

Resettlement Administration

During the depression, many small farm operators have not been able to keep up their farms or to replace their farming equipment and livestock. The Rural Rehabilitation Division of the Resettlement Administration is in a position to extend small loans to such farmers on the basis of farm and home management plans for the following purposes:

1. Purchase of livestock or feed for livestock.
2. Purchase of farming equipment, fencing, or building materials.
3. Pay for seeds, fertilizers, and other operating expenses.
4. Purchase of materials for soil improvement such as lime and phosphate.
5. Purchase of home equipment and food or clothing for the family.

Persons eligible for these loans are small farm owners, or farm tenants, share-croppers and other farmers who need financial help and who can not obtain reasonable credit elsewhere, provided they have sufficient land on which to make a living and who show integrity, managerial ability, and resourcefulness.

If you are interested in securing this type of loan and services, get in touch with your County Agricultural Agent and he will direct you to Rural Rehabilitation, or see me at Mayfield, Kentucky, Stovall Building, Clinton, Ky. on Wednesday of each week at WPA office, Hickman, Ky. on Thursday of each week at County Agent's office, and Murray, Ky. on Monday of each week at WPA office.

Illinois Central System Experiences Nice Increase

Progress is one word which sums up the 1936 record of railway transportation. There has been continued progress in the improvement of service, in the increase of business and in the recovery of employment.

Among the service improvements that have been made during the year on the Illinois Central are the system-wide introduction of free pickup and delivery service on less-than-carload freight, the extension of free pickup service on livestock, the further speeding up of both passenger and freight schedules, the use of air-conditioned passenger-train equipment, the increased use of Diesel-electric locomotives in Chicago switching service, and the introduction of the Green Diamond stream-line passenger train in daily service between Chicago and St. Louis.

The business handled by the Illinois Central System has been on the increase since 1933. For every dollar of revenue received from the sale of transportation in that year, the Illinois Central System received $1.04 in 1934, $1.11 in 1935 and $1.29 in 1936. This upward trend reflects primarily the continuing gain in business activity on the whole and also the public response to the numerous improvements that have been made in the service.

With the increase in traffic volume there has been more work for trainmen, shophmen, trackmen and other railway workers. In fact, the recovery of employment has almost exactly paralleled the increase in business. On the Illinois Central this year we have had roundly 35,000 employees compared with slightly more than 25,000 in 1933.

The outlook for the railroads at this year-end is truly encouraging. Their prestige has been greatly enhanced by a record of continuing progress and achievement, and they are prepared to meet the demands of the new year.

FOLK HEROES

A whole book, and a very interesting one, could be written about the folk heroes of America as they have existed in tradition and even in literature. The frontier hunter and trapper is one of the few immortals in literature because Cooper created the Leatherstocking hero. Similarly, the Indian, even among the very men who had known the horrors of Indian warfare, had assumed the character of an idealized hero before he appeared in literature. Major Robert Rogers, who helped to put down Pontiac's conspiracy, wrote, within a year of that great outbreak of the Indian war, a drama that glorifies the Indian almost as much as anything that has been written since then. The Pike, or professional pioneer, early became a type though John Phoenix introduced him into literature when California was being settled. The loud-mouthed boaster or teller of tall tales seems a part of the early pioneer days, so long has he been known. Early in the nineteenth century, before slavery assumed its uglier phases and before abolition was talked of, the Southern Colonel came into being and soon turned to literature account in John Pendleton's Kennedy's Swallow Barn. The bad man, or desperado, grew up on the borders of civilization, but he was merely a modernization of Robin Hood and many another likable outlaw. Jesse James has become for many persons in America a symbol of outraged manhood rather than of outraged law. It is still easy to glorify the hunted man, regardless of his crimes. The twenty thousand people who went to "Pretty Boy" Floyd's funeral attest the appeal of this type in our own time. Our most persistent folk is the poor boy who overcame almost impossible conditions and became famous or rich or both. The rivers, when the steamboat or the flatboat or the raft held sway, contributed the riverman, varying from picturesque fugitives from justice to a homely philosopher like Huckleberry Finn. And every where there is a typical Negro of the Jim Crow or Uncle Remus or Mammy kind, just as every neighborhood has its wiseacre. The prairies have contributed the cowboys, in many ways the best known of them all.

So much do people cherish these conceptions that it is nearly impossible to convince them that there might be a Negro unlike any of the literary portraits or a Southern plantation-owner that does not have a goatee and does not wear a slouch hat. Kentucky has several folk heroes, so far as many of the other states are concerned. Regardless of geography, Kentucky is made up of two distinct areas, if we are to believe the magazine writers; the Bluegrass, where everybody owns fine horses, and the mountains, where everybody is a hilly-billy and has been a feudist. I have had considerable difficulty in trying to explain to people in distant states that these two areas are only the eastern part of a rather long state and that many Kentuckians have lived long lives without ever having seen a mountaineer or a horse race. Kentuckians themselves are often taken in by their beliefs in our typical folk conceptions. One of these folk beliefs is that Kentuckians are genuine Anglo-Saxons, whatever that might be. A very little reading of early history would show that Pennsylvania Germans and French Huguenots came in large numbers at the very beginning of the history of our state and that many another racial element has been added since then. But history has a slight chance to overcome conceptions.

Glory Vs. Undernourishment.
SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Because their dictators are piling up armaments and building up armies at a rate unprecedented, the German people must, it appears, go on rations, cutting down their daily consumption of breadstuffs and fats, with the prospect of still more stringent restrictions.

But their overlords—a reasonably well-nourished lot, to judge by their photographs—keep right on preaching that such compulsory undernourishment is all for the greater glory of the Vaterland.

I know of but one historic parallel to match this. It is to be found in Mother Goose, where it is poetically set forth:

There was a piper
had a cow
And he had naught to give her
So he pulled out his pipes and played her a tune
And bade the cow consider.

Signs of Disapproval.
ONCE, in Montana, I heard two cowboys talking about the father of the sweetheart of one of them. "I've got a kind of a sneaking idea that Millie's paw don't care deeply for me," said the lover. "What makes you think so—something he said?"

"No, because he don't never say nothing to me, just sniffs. But the other night I snuck over there to see Millie, and, as I was coming away, I happened to look back and the old man was shoveling my tracks out of the front yard."

The archbishop of Canterbury is likely to wake up any morning and find the British public shoveling his tracks out of the front yards.

International "Messifications."
JUST about the time the contesting groups in Spain lose the twenty or thirty confusing names the correspondents have hung on them and resolve themselves into the army that's going to take Madrid not later than 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and the army that's going to keep Madrid until the cows come home, a fresh complication breaks out in China. General Chang gets into a mixup with General Chiang, possibly on the ground that he's a typographical error, and the red forces of the north get all twisted up with the white army of the north and the pink army of the north by northeast and so on and so forth, until the special writers run out of colors.

Just one clear point stands out of the messification. When the dust clears away some small brown brothers wearing the Japanese uniform will be found sitting on top of the heap. China's poison is Nippon's meat, every pop.

Rationalizing the Calendar.
THE plan to adopt a rational calendar is finding favor in administration circles at Washington, as in European countries.

Every time this proposition—which is so sensible and seemingly unattainable—bobs up, I think of the little story of the venerable Alabama pessimist who dropped into the general store just in time to hear the proprietor reading aloud from the newspaper that the project for thirteen months of twenty-eight days each had been laid for consideration before the League of Nations.

"I'm ag'in' it," declared the aged one. "It'd be jest my luck for that extra month to come in the winter time and ketch me short of fodder."

Stunts in the Films.
FOR ordinary film stunts, current prices are:
Tree fall, $25; stair fall, $50 (each additional fall, $35); head-on auto crash, $200; parachute jump, $150; mid-air plane change, $200; high dive, $75; being knocked down by auto, $75; being knocked down by locomotive, $100; trick horse riding, $125; crashing a plane, $1,500.

It doesn't cost a cent, though, for practically every slightly shopworn leading man, on or off the screen, to crave to play "Hamlet" on the stage. But it is almost invariably expensive for the producers who occasionally satisfy these morbid cravings.

Washington. — When President Roosevelt took office for his first term, one of the outstanding observations that he made was to the effect that the American people "feared fear" and of this condition was born instability. It was a remarkable statement and the truth of it may not now even be denied. It accurately presented one of the fundamental influences disturbing American life and if that psychology could have been completely swept away, I believe things would have been different now.

As I remember, I commented at that time upon the new President's remark. Subsequently, I called attention to the conditions of administration policy under the New Deal that were necessarily causing a continuation of that "fear of fear" instead of calming the nation's nerves.

As Mr. Roosevelt closes his first term and begins his second tenure, I believe it is entirely proper again to advert to his significant and truthful observation of 1933. We can look at this picture only in retrospect, regrettable as it is that we cannot see into the future. It would then seem to be an entirely permissible thing to do to examine the basis of Mr. Roosevelt's observation and see what has been done to correct the condition about which he complained.

I shall not attempt to go into the various phases of the four-year term. Indeed, I think it is neither advisable nor necessary to analyze conditions beyond those that are basic, fundamental, in our national economic and political structure.

For that reason, and because of recent developments of administrative policy, I am writing something about money in this report to you.

The Scripture quotation is: "The love of money is the root of all evil." In treating of the subject of money from our practical standpoint, "the love of money" takes on quite an unusual definition. For, may I point out in candor, there never has been a national administration, so far as my research goes, that has so thoroughly loved the spending of money. I believe Mr. Roosevelt himself enjoys it but Mr. Roosevelt is not the chief offender of his administration in this regard. The two men whose records stand out with an absurd willingness to throw money around as I used to throw pebbles when I was a boy on a Missouri farm are Harry Hopkins, Works Progress administrator, and Secretary Wallace, of the Department of Agriculture. I am quite convinced that Mr. Hopkins is the worse of the two. My conclusion is based on a conviction that Mr. Hopkins is the more wasteful. I am afraid that when the history of this great depression is set down in the cold light of facts as they will appear a quarter of a century from now, Mr. Hopkins will have a place in that spotlight that will not do credit to the hundreds of people who have the real welfare of the poor at heart.

Printing bills amount to no more than a drop in the bucket when compared to the waste that goes on in the enormous relief set-up of which Mr. Hopkins is the head. It has been shown too many times to need elaboration here.

Since Mr. Roosevelt has taken note of the departmental printing bills, however, I would like to make the suggestion that there is no valid reason any longer for excluding relief appropriations from the regular estimates of expenditures as included in the annual budget. Like many other items, the relief totals may have to be revised later, but that does not excuse the rather careless practices that have grown up in the calculation of relief expenditures. It does not exclude the necessity for a real protection against heedless spending nor does it prevent the formulation of intelligent policies.

Individually, I do not quite understand why the administration should fuss about a few millions of printing bills and toss out half a billion or three-quarters of a billion, as the case may be, with reckless abandon when such tossing is done without any evident continuity of sound policy.

I referred to Secretary Wallace's spending proclivities. Mr. Wallace has been going about the country lately talking of the necessity for soil conservation and the payment of a subsidy to farmers to accomplish that end. He has been talking about money in sums as large as a billion dollars a year for crop insurance—a program in furtherance of Mr. Wallace's "ever normal granary" idea.

In theory, there is much to be said in favor of spreading unpredictable losses of farming through insurance. A large part of the distress found in agricultural regions is due to the destruction of crops by causes over which the farmers have no control. If the consequences of these hazards could be minimized by adjusting losses over wide areas, and by using the surplus of one year to offset the shortage of the next, one major farm problem would be solved. But, as matters now stand, there is a natural tendency to regard this move with a skeptical eye. This is necessary because, like so many theories, the Wallace crop insurance, ever normal granary plan seems to omit the one element that is necessary to be included. If this proposition is to be successful, there simply can be no doubt that it must have almost unanimous support. It does not have it and never will. The reason is that it calls upon the government to pay part or all of the cost and human nature inevitably resents taking from one to give to another.

Mr. Wallace's ideas were adopted by the President's crop insurance committee. That committee was supposed to have the interest of agriculture at heart. Its recommendations indicate that it had not only such an interest but an even greater interest, namely, making sure that the farmers were given everything.

From all of the discussions that I have heard, I believe it is quite apparent that the committee went too far. It went so far, indeed, that it is arousing resentment from the consumers who think that they will have to pay the bill. Therefore, by proposing a program that is too extreme, the crop insurance committee and Mr. Wallace have forced a cleavage between producer and consumer and that is likely to result in a renewal of warfare between these two segments of our national life. It will cause a revival of an age-old quarrel instead of a healing of old wounds.

To advert to the original theme, Mr. Wallace likes to pass out money. He knows, as all others in public life know, that the government will be generous with agriculture and I am afraid that fact has caused the otherwise genial secretary of agriculture to lose his perspective—to forget that he is fostering a program that will change traditions and practices on the farms of America as surely as the sun shines.

Farmers are human as everyone else is human. Some of them, like some of us, who must exist among modern cliff dwellings of concrete and steel, entertain a fear that a policy of government payments equivalent to a dole, may have the effect in the end of destroying rather than saving the business of agriculture.

The latest development concerning Mr. Hopkins in his public statement that there must be at least three-quarters of a billion new money appropriated for his relief work. President Roosevelt previously had said he would ask congress for only half a billion. It is difficult to reconcile these two statements or the reasons therefor. Some slipshod thing has taken place or else Mr. Hopkins again is indulging in his favorite sport of spending and wasting taxpayers' money.

Now, the figures reveal that relief operations, as managed by Mr. Hopkins, are costing about $165,000,000 a month. If Mr. Roosevelt intends to use only $500,000,000 for relief, curtailment in sharp fashion must take place. If no such curtailment is intended, even the Hopkins figure is too small.

Thus, we are brought face to face again with a question: What is to be the policy? I hear more and more discussion as congress gets under way that some definite statement ought to be made, some commitment given, so that the nation would know what it is proposed to do with all of this money and how much of it is to be used.

Incidentally, Mr. Roosevelt recently spoke rather curtly to some of his departmental heads about their printing bills. He thought they were too large and that money should be saved in that direction. Now, it happens governmental

Jim and the others did draw back. It would not do to get too close to those clicking teeth, those blazing eyes.

"Why, he's hurt! Look at that leg! Here, Tip..." Again Jim tried to get near but a shrill razing and the flashing of those strong, white teeth set him again in retreat.

"Mad, I tell you!" "Here, Tip! Let's see."—Ezra Adams trying, now, but the dog drove him back, too.

Advice, warnings, speculation; confusion. And then Nan Downer pushed through the circle.

"What's wrong?... Oh! Tip! Why, Tip..." The tall topped heavily, the dirt smeared tongue lolled; the dog panted and whined. The girl dropped to her knees beside him and he put his nose in her lap. . . . The eyes closed and Tip drew a quivering sigh. He had come to Nan at last.

Now he could be touched; now the hurt could be examined.

"Broken!" gasped Ezra. "And... Good Lord, sergeant, this dog's been shot!"

The words echoed from a dozen throats. "Shot!"

"He was with Kerry!" Nan cried. "He was with Kerry, I'm sure..."

"Ezra! Where is Kerry? Where is..." "That," snapped the policeman, "is what we've got to find out! Come on, you trailers! Look! You can see every step he took in this road!"

Mid-afternoon, now, and his head rolled drunkenly as Young fought off that cloud of darkness. He could not hold it much longer. The cabin was beyond his range of vision. . . .

He had one cartridge left. He remembered that. For weeks, it seemed, his intermittent firing had kept West within that cabin. He had only one more shot to fire, and he could not see the head of his sight. That was all blurred, like other matters: pain and sickness and his manner of getting here. . . .

His face drooped heavily against the stock. He was so weary. He wanted to sleep. . . . Just a moment. . . . Just a second. . . . One little wink of respite. . . .

And then he knew that for ever so long voices had been in his ears. Voices, saying over and over: "Here he went!" . . . Or was it just once that the words had been said? Just once?

"Here he went!" It must have been Jim Hinkle saying that. Jim's voice, saying it just now, just once! . . . "Here he went!"

And Jim was standing there in the road, bent over, with a group around him. . . . And Nan with her hand on Jim's shoulder, and the sound of glass breaking. . . .

Glass breaking! Window glass breaking before the thrust of a rifle barrel through the pane; tinkling as it spilled over the sill. . . . And a man with his shoulder slammed tight against the window casing sighting that rifle, and . . .

"Tod West, that, taking his final toll. One, two, three. . . . They'd drop there in the road before the crash of his repeating weapon. One, two, three. . . . West in sight, exposed to Young! Oh, how well Kerry could see now. He could see the head of his front sight, could see it flash true against that bulky breast and the recoil did not hurt, that time. He did not even think of it. . . . He saw that other rifle barrel fly upward, saw Tod West spin about, back to the window. . . . Saw him stand there a moment and then, in the terrible silence, saw him disappear with the crash which loosed torrents of cries and words and sounds of running feet. . . .

Then Kerry Young put his cheek down on the cool, moist earth and drew a long breath. . . .

They had him back at Nan's in an hour. Ezra had the bullet out before sundown. It was midnight when he opened his eyes.

At first, he thought he was alone in the room and then realized that he could not be alone; a man alone cannot have that sweet sense of peace and permanence and well being which spread over him like a mantle. . . .

He moved his head slightly and saw her sitting there, straight and stiff and expectant, her face gentler than ever beneath the shaded light.

"Nan," he breathed and she came quickly close.

"Oh, Kerry!" The words were a sob. "And you're . . . all right?"

"Right! Every thing's right!" He closed his eyes.

"Tip?" "Ezra says he's done the best job of bone setting he's ever done for man or beast."

"Helt?" "Here,"—in a whisper. "Waiting to thank you . . . before he goes."

He cleared his throat feebly. "And . . . West?"

"Already gone,"—gravely. "And forever."

He stared hard at the ceiling through a long moment.

"Nan . . . I guess . . . I guess I'm all right, but a hand never can . . . just tell. There's something I've . . . got to say. . . . Put it off for the . . . right time . . . right place. . . . Excuse . . . little groggy. . . .

"But I've got to . . . say it . . . now. . . .

"Sh!" Gently she placed small fingers against his lips. "You mustn't talk. You'll be all right. Ezra swears it. But now . . . And I'll say it for you, dear, dear Kerry! I'll say the thing you want to say. I love you . . . Is that it? I knew, you see. And I love you, Kerry. . . . Love you, love you, love you."

Her lips were living warmth on his cheek.

Health-Wrecking Functional PAINS

Severe functional pains of menstruation, cramping spells and jagged nerves soon rob a woman of her natural, youthful freshness. PAIN lines in a woman's face too often grow into AGE lines!

Thousands of women have found it helpful to take Calotabs. They say it seemed to ease their pains, and they noticed an increase in their appetites and finally a strengthened resistance to the discomfort of monthly periods.

Try Calotabs. Of course if it doesn't help you, see your doctor.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxines. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

Sore Throat Pains DUE TO COLDS Eased Instantly

1. Crush and stir 3 Bayer Aspirin tablets in ½ glass of water.

2. GARGLE thoroughly—throw your head way back, allowing a little to trickle down your throat.

3. Repeat gargle and do not rinse mouth, allow gargle to remain on membranes of the throat for prolonged effect.

Just Gargle This Way with Bayer Aspirin

Here is the most amazing way to ease the pains of rawness of sore throat resulting from a cold we know you have ever tried.

Crush and dissolve three genuine BAYER ASPIRIN tablets in one-third glass of water. Then gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back.

This medicinal gargle will act almost like a local anesthetic on the sore, irritated membrane of your throat. Pain eases almost instantly; rawness is relieved.

Countless thousands now use this way to ease sore throat. Your doctor, we are sure, will approve it. And you will say it is marvelous.

Get the real BAYER ASPIRIN at your druggist's by asking for it by its full name—not by the name "aspirin" alone.

Health Experts Find Food Poisoning Germ; It Is Same That Causes Boils

Human guinea pig experiments that helped to discover the germ that causes food poisoning were reported at a meeting of the American Public Health association in New Orleans. The germ has the scientific name of Staphylococcus aureus and is the same one that causes boils.

The germ produces a poison which causes the sickness, notes the Kansas City Star's Science Service.

This germ was first found in custard filling sponge cake by Dr. G. M. Dack of the University of Chicago. Before his discovery, scientists had believed food poisonings were caused by other kinds of germs.

Cream puffs and other custard filled cakes are not the only kinds of food that harbor this germ, Dr. Dack pointed out in his report. The germs have also been found in many common foods such as cheese, gravy, doughnuts, milk, ice cream and meat sandwiches. Because these germs are always found in the air, it is extremely difficult to keep them out of food when it is being prepared.

Both Dr. Dack and Dr. George A. Denison of the Jefferson county, Alabama, board of health reported experiments in which they fed some of the suspected germs to human volunteers. Some of them drank the germs in a glass of milk. They all had typical food poisoning symptoms.

Some persons are more susceptible to this germ than others, the investigators also reported. Both scientists believe that food poisoning from Staphylococcus - infected food occurs much oftener than is suspected. Refrigeration of the food may help somewhat to prevent food poisoning, but it is possible for the germs to remain dormant or even to grow slowly while the food is in the refrigerator.

Vancouver, B. C., Had Two Names in Earlier Times

Before the coming of the railway Vancouver, B. C. was a tiny settlement, known as Gastown, after a somewhat disreputable character named Gassy Jack, who sold liquor to the loggers and fishermen, and also as Granville, the designation chosen by one of the earliest inhabitants who had claimed most of the waterfront as his own.

The name was changed to Vancouver in honor of the young British midshipman who had sailed under Captain Cook on his third voyage of discovery into the Pacific and who subsequently did a great deal of exploring on his own account. Vancouver was one of the first white men to glimpse the great landlocked harbor that today welcomes the flags of every maritime nation.

Like many another pioneer city, Vancouver went through the ordeal of fire shortly after its birth. Flames swept the entire community, but the disaster served only to stir the imagination of her people and hasten reconstruction along bolder and more carefully planned lines.
