A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Lighting Is Totally Inadequate for Good Seeing

Now is the best time to Light Condition your home economically with new 1938 Better Sight Lamps

LIGHT conditioning makes seeing so much easier that it reduces eye fatigue and strain, even after hours of reading, sewing, or other "close work." It helps make a cheery atmosphere because it floods the rooms with "gentle" light that is without harshness, glare and deep shadow.

You can light condition your home at very moderate cost with Better Sight Lamps—or even by using the proper size Mazda bulbs in the lamps you already have, or by minor adjustments in existing fixtures. A free demonstration of the advantages of light conditioning is yours for the asking.

The new 1938 Better Sight Lamps cost no more than old-fashioned lamps, but they're much more efficient. A great variety of models and styles awaits your choice.

Sassafras Tea

Just as pumpkin pie is appropriate to November and plum pudding to Christmas, sassafras tea is the ideal thing for early spring. The earliest visitors to America were struck with the aromatic tree they found growing here and at once believed it endowed with great medicinal virtues. Some of the early explorers carried a cargo of sassafras. If these people could have come inland a few centuries later, they could have found enough for several cargoes, especially on worn-out hill land where only sassafras and persimmon trees are hardy enough to grow. Europeans were thus introduced to sassafras, and the tea that we enjoy every spring became well known. Charles Lamb, in his essay, "In Praise of Chimney-sweepers," praises highly this beverage which, he says, is a favorite with the small boys who clean out chimneys. It is effective in washing down the soot they have acquired in their dirty task. However much this beverage may be liked by chimney-sweepers it is better liked by plain Americans, who annually must go through the process of thinning down their blood after the winter has waned. Burdock bitters will help in this process, but nothing turns the rick like sassafras tea. Coffee is a good beverage and is suited to all seasons, tea is the national drink of Great Britain, but sassafras tea is the brand of the real American. Not to like it subjects one to a strong suspicion of disloyalty to the principles for which our ancestors fought. Some Americans would prefer to replace the red stripes of our flag by stripes colored like sassafras leaves in the fall, a queer blend of pink and orange.

Tea is the poetic side of sassafras; the unpoetic side of sassafras bushes to be cut in the spring before the plowing starts. Look around you today and take note of the great men; nearly every one of them got his start by cutting sprouts, persimmon and sassafras sprouts. The skill required and the patience started these eminent men on the way that led to fame. Undoubtedly the fathers to these same boys were greatly surprised when fame arrived, for keeping boys at cutting sprouts is one of the harder tasks of farm life.

There is still another side to sassafras that few people associate with either tea or sprout-cutting. In the fall no bushes have such exquisite colors. Old fields that are too poor to produce crops of value suddenly blossom out in pinks and yellows and oranges that mock the artist's best efforts. Fence-rows are outlined with brilliant bushes. Long ago the sassafras trees have disappeared from most places; now we associate the name only with bushes along the fences and out in the upland fields. No color of autumn is more distinctive than that of sassafras leaves; no flavor is more distinctive in spring than the aromatic sassafras tea. Just why the bush and its various virtues have never found their way into poetry is a puzzle to me.

Picked Up About Town

Lynn Phipps says two-faced people are generally accepted at the value of the worst face.

"There are several things in life to be thankful for," asserts Billy Atkins, "and one of them is that we don't have to eat spinach unless we have to."

Instead of complaining when it rains, we ought to do like they do in Borneo. Let it rain.

According to Gene DeMyer the only time most fishermen will admit they are lying when they are talking to a game warden.

"When a father says that he doesn't want his son to have to work like he did," asserts Raymond Peoples, "he can be sure that his son endorses the statement."

The worst mistake the circus owners ever made was to think that any of us would ever get too old to enjoy a parade.

Roy Cummings says that some young men do not amount to anything because their parents do not give them a chance to show what they are worth.

John Earle has it figured out that a man can live and prosper with the handicap of a broken leg but that getting through the world with a wooden head is next to impossible.

dairy cattle sires in America last year were owned in Kentucky. Both were in the herd at Berea College.

A Guernsey and a Holstein sire in the Berea herd had the highest transmitting index for bulls of their respective breeds, measured in terms of the production of their daughters as compared with the production of dams of the daughters. The Guernsey sire stood at the top of 294 bulls on test, and the Holstein sire made the best record among 869 bulls of that breed. Another Guernsey bull, which had been sold before the testing of his daughters was finished, stood second in the nation. He was in the herd at Walnut Hall farm in Fayette county.

The annual report of the Blue Grass Dairy Herd Improvement Association shows an average production of 383 pounds of butterfat for 676 cows in 19 herds, which is one of the highest records ever made for so large a number of cows. Three cows produced over 600 pounds of butterfat each; 29 more than 500 and 130 more than 400 pounds.

The highest producing herd, owned by Howard Oats in Fayette county, averaged 468.9 pounds of butterfat per cow. Six herds averaged more than 450 pounds per cow. Six herds averaged more than 450 pounds per cow, and 17 of the 19 herds averaged more than 300 pounds.

PLAYING WITH MATCHES

Now and then we read of a tragedy in which lives were lost, or persons seriously burned and property destroyed, through children playing with matches. The first thought that arises is that the parents have failed to teach their child the meaning of "safety first." But the real cause belongs on the shoulders of the person who leaves matches where children can get hold of them. And yet, children are not alone in "playing with matches." Many grown people light them, use them and then carelessly toss them aside as though all danger from them had passed. Recently a smoker in one of the larger cities of this state dropped a match he thought was extinguished into a waste basket and two hours later he had burned down the plant in which he worked, and thrown himself and several hundred others out of employment. We want no serious fire loss in Fulton this year, so let's be extremely careful where we toss our matches when they have served their purpose.

A GOOD EXAMPLE

When one town sets other towns a good example, then the town which does so is entitled to a little free publicity and the other towns are entitled to profit by following that example. The latest instance is offered by the town of Fulton, Mo., and its people are to be congratulated upon the development of a sound idea, one that the residents of Fulton might do well to take advantage of through working out a similar program.

As a nation we are lacking in the common courtesies that prevailed among the older generations. We have either forgotten how to be polite or we do not take the time to do so. Nowhere is this growing lack of courtesy more evident than behind the steering wheel of an automobile. A large percentage of the highway accidents are due to this lack of consideration for other people, and all the propaganda turned out does not seem to make us any more polite on the road. Since they can't change the oldsters, Fulton citizens believe it will pay in the years to come to concentrate on the youngsters, so each year four cash prizes are awarded the four children adjudged by a committee of local citizens to have been the most polite and courteous in the community during the year. Since every child in town is anxious to win the coveted honor, as well as the cash prize, the result on the general politeness and courtesy of the town can easily be imagined.

The example is passed on for what it is worth, but it is of interest to note in passing that the children, who win the prizes each year are those who are taught courtesy and politeness by their parents in their own homes. That is the place for such lessons, and parents are the best teachers. But in more recent years both the homes and the parents have been somewhat lax. Maybe the example set by the Missouri town will go far toward remedying this.

"SMALL TOWN STUFF"

Put out the lights in the farm houses and the small towns of this country and Broadway, New York, would soon be as dark as pitch. That is because the money which makes Broadway's lights possible comes from outside of New York. The big city resident does a lot of talking about "small town stuff" and yet he is always eager to head his auto toward the small town where he knows he will find hospitality, good wholesome food, clean air and noiseless sleep. He knows he will find the one thing the city lacks to make it worth living in—friendliness and a regard for one's fellowman. So more and more each year toward the small towns the big city autos are headed, carrying the sons and daughters of men who originally came from such places. For after all it was small-town men who made the big city possible, and small-town men who are still largely responsible for their prosperity.

VANISHING HIRED HANDS

It has not been so very many years ago that practically every farm home of any consequence around Fulton had its hired man. He was not regarded as a paid laborer; he was a fixture and could be taken into confidence as readily as any other member of the family. He seldom proved to be a "floater." He came out of nowhere, and no one cared about his past. He was content with board and lodging and a little money now and then for chewing tobacco and a change of shirt and socks. He was a jack-of-all-trades, could fix anything that went wrong about the farm, and was an indispensable member of the family.

Times have changed. The hired cherisher has been melting into oblivion, and there is a vast difference between him and the farm laborer of today. Today's farm hand generally migrates with the season; he isn't content to spend his life in the employ of one family. Today he is nothing more than a man working for wages—and always as high wages as he can get. The old-time hired man has succumbed to the lure of the city. He couldn't resist the dream of big salaries and wages and the fascinating life of the city. If he has found happiness there, all right. But when he left he took away from the farm a lot of sentiment and happiness that can't be put back by the hired man of the present day.

RED FLANNEL DAYS

"Women of the red flannel days were more sensibly dressed than the women of today," declared a Fulton merchant a few days ago. But he doesn't want his name mentioned for obvious reasons. "In those days," he goes on to say, "we used to sell 20 yards of silk for one dress. Now a woman buys three yards and considers that more than enough. Then there were only three or four shades of silk; now there are hundreds. The men of fifty years ago were superstitious in the matter of what they wore. In winter it had to be red flannel underwear and only a few people of the richer class could be induced to wear white merine. Today manufacturers tell us, there are 4800 different articles of women's underclothing and 1800 different kinds and shades of stockings. Today it is as hard to find a red flannel garment as it is a needle in a haystack. And yet some of the old timers often wonder if in the matter of comfort the old red flannel days did not, after all, have it all over these more modern times."

"THE NEWS" WEEKLY SCRAPBOOK

Week's Best Recipe—

Steamed Apple Pudding—Two cups flour; 4 teaspoons baking powder; 1-2 teaspoon salt; 2 table-spoons butter; 3-4 cup milk; 4 apples cut in eighths. Mix and sift dry ingredients, work in butter with tips of fingers, add milk gradually, mixing with a knife, toss on floured board, pat and roll out. Place apples on middle of dough and sprinkle with 1 tablespoon sugar, mixed with 1-4 teaspoon each of salt and nutmeg. Bring dough around apples and carefully lift into buttered mould of five pound lard pail, or apples may be sprinkled over dough and dough rolled like a jelly roll; cover closely and steam 1 hour and 11 minutes. Serve with lemon sauce.

Winter Flowers—

Germination of seeds planted in the house is hastened by spreading burlap or cheese cloth over the boxes and leaving it until seedlings appear. Water applied on the cloth will seep through and provide moisture without danger of washing the seed out of the soil.

The Sewing Room

Triangular tears in garments may be neatly mended if the edges are first worked with a buttonhole stitch, then caught together through the stitches instead of the material. To clean grease spots from silk, rub cake magnesia into the spot. Let stand a day and brush off with clean brush. It is advisable to keep cake of magnesia on hand as it is very effective as a cleaner.

Kitthen Kinks

To freshen salt meat, put it into cold water, quickly bring to a boil, then simmer. Save all lamb fat, for it makes an excellent shortening for ginger bread and cookies. If a small piece of butter is added to cocoa it may be substituted for chocolate in cake recipes. To vary your usual waffle recipe add one teaspoon of cinnamon and a quarter of a teaspoon of cloves to the batter.

The Family Doctor—

A patient can be given much better attention on a single bed than on a wide double one. Place the bed so patient will be shut off from all drafts. Do not allow lights to glare in patient's eyes. A bare floor with a few small rugs is more sanitary than carpeting. Remove all heavy drapes and upholstered chairs. A large pail of water placed in a sick room will absorb gases.

AN INSPIRATION—"Thrift is the foundation if success in business; of contentment in the home; of standing in society.

They say that potatoes grow wild in Chile, but up here it is only the prices that get that way.

It's still difficult to believe that the fellow who picks you up for a ride on the highway isn't getting ready to run for office sometime.

Patriotism is the ability to believe that tires would be cheaper if the rubber trust was operated by Americans instead of British.

Wouldn't there be a lot of yelling if some fellows could come back and find how much their families had to pay in inheritance taxes.

Maybe the reason more of us are not famous is because some of us still have to work for a living.

Some Fulton men are in favor of for women all the time—and others only when kindness fails.

No farm movement is successful in the eyes of the politician unless it creates more jobs.

Progress Must Go On

This has been an era of great improvements in railroad service. Such improvements as streamline trains, air-conditioned travel, new power, high-speed schedules, pickup and delivery of package freight.

Progress must continue. Railroads need to give better service today than yesterday, still better service tomorrow than today.

It takes research, invention and determination to make continued improvements. These the railroads have.

Three things more are needed. One is adequate rates. Another is patronage. The other is freedom from handicaps. These the public must provide.

FULGHAM NEWS

I am glad to join the News correspondents, and bring you news of Fulgham and community. Your help will be appreciated.

Fulgham basketballers paid a visit to Sassafras Ridge last Friday night and won by the top heavy score of 48 to 20. Sassafras Ridge got off to a good start in the first quarter, but the Blackcats turned the tide to sweep to an overwhelming victory. A return game between these teams will be played February 11.

An old fiddlers contest will be given here February 5th in the auditorium of our new building. Numerous contests will be held starting at 7:30, and contestants have any kind of talent are urged to participate.

Rain has made the new highway from Fulton, which is now under construction, almost impassable at some places, but when completed should make a much needed route for people of this vicinity.

Again, I want to say that I will appreciate your help in reporting news of this community, and would like for you to tell me the happenings.

Distressing cold in chest or throat, never safe to neglect, generally cases up when soothing, warming Musterole is applied.

Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong. Approved by Good Housekeeping.
