Important Arrest.

Lafayette Jones, who seriously cut John W. Brown, at Fairview, December 25th, 1886, was arrested in Henderson last week. Sunday he was brought to this city by Deputy Sheriff Hicks and lodged in jail. Jones is charged with cutting with intent to kill and his case is set for trial at the March term. Brown suffered for a long time from his wounds, but finally recovered.

Dairy Stable.

Mr. John Morris is putting up the largest, best built and most commodious dairy stable in the county, on his dairy farm opposite the Western Locomotive Agency. His large herd of Jersey and graded cows will be comfortably housed and well fed during the winter, two things which insure plenty of rich milk to customers. The whole farm wears the appearance of thrift and careful management. It has made conspicuous improvement since Mr. Morris took charge of it, and we take pleasure in noticing the prosperous condition of an industry so valuable to Hopkinsville as well as to its proprietor.

Lovers Made Happy.

Edwin F. Dalbey, of Cadiz, Ky., and Miss Belle Moore were married at the Second Presbyterian church yesterday by the Rev. John W. Pratt. The bride was attired in an elegant traveling costume, and wore a corsage bouquet of roses and beautiful flowers. The only attendants at the altar were Masters Dan Moore, Norton and William Morning, the little brother and cousin of the bride, and Master Claggett Odell. Each of these carried a bouquet. The groom is the city judge of Cadiz and a rising young lawyer. The bride is the stepdaughter of Tibbalt Milson, deputy circuit clerk of this city. The couple, after a quiet reception at the residence of the bride's parents, left for their future home at Cadiz—Louisville Commercial of Friday, Dec. 10.

An Aerial Voyage.

Monday a week ago, Dixie Wilson, our hale and hearty correspondent, sent up a balloon at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The balloon, made of rubber, was white and blue stripes thirty feet long. It rose gracefully with the national colors revolving to the current of a northern breeze and drifted rapidly off to the south. The small crowd who saw the launch soon forgot the matter and nothing more was thought of it till Dixie received the following original piece of composition on his air ship:

Baton Rouge, Dixon Co., Tenn.

Mr. A. L. Wilson:
Your balloon reached here safe and anchored in the top of the highest oak tree of district No. 10, of this county. It got here about 4 o'clock of last afternoon. We want you to let us know when you started it, for we had a bushel of fun out of it. One of the fellows when he saw it coming with its mouth open said "Good Lord, I ain't ready yet" and ran and fell right under the tree where it lodged, crying with raised hands "Lord, have mercy on me." Another fellow said he wanted you to send a bottle of whiskey with the next one to wet his whistle for Christmas.

Respectfully yours,

A. B. BROWNING.

Dixie had taken the precaution to stamp his name and post office address on the balloon, hence the finder, know where to address him. It is over 75 miles to the point where it lodged and the winged ship made the aerial voyage in 2 hours.

A western exchange tells its readers how to mind their "P's in the following paragraph: "Persons who patronize papers should pay promptly, for the pecuniary prospects of the press possess a peculiar power in persuading toward public propriety. If the printer paid promptly, and his pocketbook kept plenteous by prompt payment, he puts his pen to his paper in peace; his paragraphs more pointed; he paints his pictures of passing events in more pleasing colors, and personal of his paper is pleasure to the people. Paste this piece of proverbial philosophy in some place where all persons can perceive it."

About $600 already made up on our premium list and $100 more to be added between now and April. How is this for a gift to subscribers? Subscribe for one year and get a chance.

An interesting meeting of the Christian County Bible Society was held at the First Presbyterian church Sunday night. The meeting was called to order by President J. L. Landers. After reading the minutes and transacting the ordinary business, the audience was addressed, in the absence of Dr. Savage, the district agent, by Rev. L. W. Welsh, of the Christian church. Rev. Welsh delivered a thoughtful, forcible discourse on the power and grandeur of the Bible. Remarks were made by Mr. R. R. Donaldson and others. The old officers were elected for the ensuing year, and a motion, made by Rev. A. C. Biddle, that all the members and christian in the county be invited to co-operate in the work, was unanimously adopted. A collection was then taken up and the meeting adjourned.

Mr. A. C. Morrison, father of Will and John Morrison who had the shooting scrape with the sheriff last week, called on the NEW ERA Saturday to "submit his side of the case." Mr. Morrison is a pleasant looking man, 50 years of age and talks well and fluently. As we will publish the testimony, as brought out in the trial Wednesday, we will publish Mr. Morrison's version till a future issue. Among other things he said that he had twice before been a resident of Christian county. In 1865 he lived near Allensville, Todd county. In 1866 he moved into the brick church neighborhood on Sinking Fork, and in 1869 he lived on A. P. Wood's farm near the Trigg county line. He then moved into Lyon county, returning here last January. He says he has abundance of testimony to corroborate his statement of the case.

Chas. Phippen, who with his son Henry, was killed in Stewart county, Tenn., last week, married a lady of this county and turns out to be a romantic character. A correspondent says: "Many years ago he was the hiring shepherd of a rich Englishman at Hatch House, Wilt, in England, named Fitzlow. Remaining there a few months, he won the heart of his master's daughter, and induced her to marry him and flee to America. About eighteen years ago Phippen and his wife appeared at Cumberland Iron-works, in Stewart county. He was employed as shepherd. Phippen was a rough, uneducated, burly Englishman, while his wife was a refined and accomplished lady. Phippen accumulated considerable personal property. He then leased a fine farm for a term of ten years. At the expiration of the lease he became the owner, and had added much to his worldly possessions. Phippen had made many friends, who believe that he was honest and correct, while other good citizens believe that many of his goods were obtained by dark and mysterious methods. In 1880 Mrs. Phippen died. About two years later Phippen married Miss Maggie Turner, of Lafayette, Ky., a most estimable lady, who survives him.

Hon. John Feland, of this city, is being prominently mentioned in connection with the Republican nomination for governor. Mr. Feland would stir up a cyclone of enthusiasm among the racials and preach the uncertain doctrines of Republicanism with as much fire and eloquence as any of them.

To see the most complete stock of everything in the jewelry line, call at M. D. Kelly's.

All the fun in town to-night will be concentrated at the Opera House where Rentfrow's Pathfinders will produce "Scraps." Among the celebrities with this party, besides J. N. Rentfrow, Jas. F. Green and Fred W. Scullman, Mr. F. Green and Jones, little fellow ten years of age, who will "own the town" after to-night. Everywhere he is a favorite—the pet of the public and the pride of the profession. He assumes the character of a little girl, and says the Nashville American, "is a veritable prodigy—a starry star."

The colored citizens of the city will hold a public meeting at the court house to-night in the interest of the State Normal School, now about to be located by the Board of Commissioners. They request all friends of popular education, white and black, to be present and counsel with them. Our colored citizens are making a noble effort to secure the school. Petitions have been extensively signed by our most influential white citizens appealing to the Commissioners to locate the school here. The influence of the community will be extended in their behalf, and the Board cannot resist the claims backed with such an endorsement unless some other town offers far superior inducements. We trust the meeting will be largely attended.

The Nashville American in republishing our paragraph concerning grave-robbing and the Paducah drift and gravel, basely seeks to perorate its veracity with the poisoned point of a malicious insinuation in the following headlines: "New Diamond Field—The Hopkinsville Newspaper Man Bound Not to be Outdone by Any Paducah Reporter." "The mere paltry envy. The American fears lest our cemetery may get ahead of Nashville's Olivel." That's all of it. Still we cherish no revenge to the American's malignant and forgiving. Even though his uncharitableness may exclude him from the "golden streets," he is welcome to come as near to them as he can by stroking free of toll, over our garnet-paved and be-diamonded walks of our City Cemetery.

The City Election.

The city election passed off quietly Saturday. There was a slight effort at "chustling" and in the morning, but matters soon quieted down. As was expected the new Board was elected by a decided majority. The vote on wards stood 204 for and 297 against. Had the friends of wards made an effort they would have carried the day. Harry Ferguson had no opposition for city attorney and polled 295 votes. The following is the vote for Councilmen, the first seven names having been elected: E. P. Campbell, 470; G. O. Thompson, 450; J. M. Starling, 470; D. R. Beard, 415; J. S. Brown, 385; A. C. Gill, 405; E. H. Irwin, 405; R. E. Petree, 114; F. J. Brownell, 97; W. M. Hill, 144; E. B. Long, 99; J. D. Howe, 54; John Brame, 9; J. M. Howe, 2; C. M. Latham, 2; R. M. Anderson, 3. The ward system was probably defeated because it was not understood. Its enemies gave out mystifying accounts of its operation. There was no effort made to secure the new board as a guarantee. Mr. Nobles and his fine supporting company will appear at the Opera House Saturday evening, December 18th. The sale of seats will commence Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, at Galbreath & Co.

Saw Mill Explosion.

Mr. S. E. Chaстан has been running a saw mill for the Weaver boys at their place, 5 miles South of the city. Friday all hands went to dinner and left the engine under a heavy pressure of steam. As they were returning the engine, unable to bear the strain, blew up scattering destruction for one hundred yards around. Had the men been at work every one of them would have been killed. It was a narrow escape and warns parties running engines to be careful and attentive to their duties.

The Wallace Defalcation of $50,000 to the Bank of Hopkinsville, Jan. 1, 1884, Compromised for $17,366.07.

The streets were alive with talk last Saturday evening and Sunday, concerning a rumored compromise of the defalcation of James A. Wallace, cashier of the Bank of Hopkinsville, for $50,000, three years ago next January, on the settlement between J. L. Landers and R. T. Petree, Wallace's attorneys, and the Bank. The ex-cashier being out of the country and leaving no assets of material value from which the Bank could expect to recover a portion of its loss, and the surties on his official bond being either dead or insolvent, all but one proposition for a compromise have been suggested or pending ever since the defalcation assailed the community, who in common with the officers of the Bank had implicit confidence in the cashier's fidelity. It was asserted by some of his friends from the beginning that he had been more weak than criminal in the affair, that there was documentary proof that he had been inveigled into the unlawful use of the Bank's funds by rash speculators; that he had not profited pecuniarily by the defalcation, the sole purpose of which was to extricate himself from the Gulf of ruin by forcing a compromise. Such were the surmises and speculations of friends pleading in extension.

A recent conference between the officers of the Bank and Wallace's lawyers resulted, last Friday, in the compromise of Wallace's entire defalcation and indebtedness by note to the Bank, aggregating $50,000 for the sum of $17,366.07. The settlement in detail is as follows:

$10,000 cash refunded to the Bank Dec. 10, 1886, by Wallace, through parties in Hopkinsville, in settlement of the suit against him and his surties on his official bond, pending in the Christian Circuit Court.

$2,046.07 paid May 4, 1885, accruing from policy on Wallace's life, in the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company and sold by Mrs. Wallace to the Bank.

$2,500 cash paid by H. R. Littell, surety on Wallace's official bond, the other surties being insolvent.

$1,325 policy on life of Wallace in the Southern Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Kentucky, paid up and payable in 1891 and transferred by Wallace to the Bank.

$2,495, paid up policy on life of Jared C. Gant in the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, transferred by Gant to Wallace and by Wallace to the Bank.

Total amount realized from all sources $16,365.07.

The Bank also holds notes of Wallace as principal, with J. K. Gant, Sr., deceased, M. Gant and Jared C. Gant surties, executed in 1880 and now amounting with interest at six per cent. to over $6,000. According to the agreement discharging the suit on Wallace's official bond Wallace is to be released from all pecuniary claims held against him by the Bank, growing out of the defalcation, or otherwise. The release of Wallace, of course operated as a release of his surties on the notes. The Bank surrendered the notes as the estate of J. K. Gant, Sr. was insolvent, and charged them off its books. The surties at the date of the execution of the notes were regarded good but became insolvent afterward. Mr. Wallace also at the time owned a half interest in Mount Hall and the hotel block adjacent, which were destroyed by fire, besides other valuable real estate.

It was expressly stated by E. P. Campbell, President of the Bank in a circular issued last spring and approved by a majority of the owners of Bank stock (in value) that there was no purpose to compound the defalcation for which the ex-cashier is indicted in the Circuit Court. A considerable minority of the stockholders declined to enter into a compromise. The withdrawal of the new cash of $5,000 offered by the Bank for Wallace's arrest was also made one of the conditions of compromise.

The compromise leaves a deficit to the Bank still of $38,634.41, after subtracting $17,366, repaid in cash or policies, $56,000 debt and defalcation.

Milton Nobles.

Hopkinsville theatre goers are soon to have a rare treat in a visit from Milton and Dollie Nobles and their excellent company of comedians. Mr. Nobles has enjoyed a popularity second to none in his line on the American stage and their appearance here should be a "red letter day" in our amusement history. Of course their consent to visit here was secured by a large guarantee from our energetic manager, Mr. Alexander Rodgers, and a rousing house should attend the approbation of his endeavor to secure Metropolitan attractions, should this venture prove successful efforts will be made to secure other first-class companies on a guarantee. Mr. Nobles and his fine supporting company will appear at the Opera House Saturday evening, December 18th. The sale of seats will commence Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, at Galbreath & Co.

CURE FOR PILES.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a sure attendant. Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which is perfectly safe, and the patient, feeling, absorbing the Tumors, allaying the intense itching, and affecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address Dr. Bosanko, Medicine Co., Piquette, O. For sale by G. E. Galtner.

Cabinet Changes.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The sensational dispatch from Washington, concerning probable changes in the Cabinet at an early day, has naturally excited general comment at the capital. The dispatch states that the health of Secretary Manning is so delicate that "it is likely, we are told, that the President will prove to the public, that they will soon lose the able and valuable services of the present Secretary of the Treasury."

Continuing, it says that it is believed that Attorney General Garland, will retire and seek the rest of private life, preliminary to becoming a candidate for the Senate from Arkansas two years hence. The dispatch further predicts that there is "one more possible retirement" in the Cabinet, but asserts that its information on this point "is not sufficiently definite to justify publication."

The dispatch was a bombshell. Who was the third member referred to? Was the first question which suggested itself. From private avenues of information I have reason to believe that Mr. Whitney, Secretary of the Navy, is the gentleman whose retirement is thus foreshadowed. I understand that the Associated Press to-night repeats the Star's dispatch. I am inclined to the opinion that there is a great deal more to it than appears at the surface. The propriety of the Star's report is made under peculiar circumstances.

Last Thursday Mr. Dorsheimer came to the city, and, I believe, had an interview with the President. The Star is the recognized organ of the Administration in New York. He avoided press interviews, but he was certainly closeted for hours with the President. He held there a day and suddenly returned to New York. The report was given, in a particular situation, for the naturalness of the coming of a metropolitan editor to the political metropolis of the nation need not suggest furtive designs.

"Let Me Go to Sleep."

Were the last words uttered by little Jarred (second son of E. and Belle Elliott), whose spirit was transmitted, on making a last table, to a credibly parent to the embrace of his Heavenly Parent. Little Jarred had only seen seven summers, and, if we are to take him, a child in his tender years, he had been a model man. I have never seen one of his age more obedient to his parents, with a more gentle nature, and more kind disposition towards all. One had but to know him to love him, and while we loved and appreciated all those noble traits in the nature of our deceased child, we could not but regret that he had been so young to die. The good above also loved him, and for some purpose, no doubt, which we can not see or understand, thought best to take him, a child in his tender years, to his own home, where he would be free from the trials and temptations incident to a life in this world of sorrow, disappointment and weep.

And now to father, mother and friends we would say, dry thy tears, weep not as those who have no hope, for what is our loss is little Jarred's eternal gain. When all had been done for him that loving hearts and tender hands could do, the best physicians in our country had exhausted their skill in trying to check that almost incurable disease, membranous croup, and when the hope was gone, the little fellow in a whisper said his papa to let him go to sleep. "That's sweet sleep that knows no waking."

—Sleep in peace, sweet sleep, from which none ever wake to weep—
