FARMER WASHINGTON HELD HIS SOIL WITH "RUBBISH"

"My countrymen," wrote George Washington in 1782, "are too much used to corn blades and corn shucks, and have too little knowledge of the profit of grass land." H. H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service says "Washington was among the first to recognize the dangers of a single-crop system of agriculture and the benefits of a vegetable cover in protecting the soil against erosion." "On his own farms Washington used vegetable rubbish" as he called it, to check the spreading of gullies and prevent soil erosion. For nearly every acre of his land he had a system of crop rotation, and sometimes several alternate systems for a single plot.

The practices which Washington used to control soil erosion on his farms now seem somewhat inadequate. Scientific farmers today employ these practices in a more advanced form and supplement them with methods which in Washington's time were virtually unknown. But the Soil Conservation Service maintains Washington was on the right track and was far in advance of most farmers of his day, both in theory and in practice.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shaw had as their week end guests, Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Wiley and Mrs. Kennedy of Murray.

PIERCE-CEQUIN TO OPEN SAWMILL HERE

Plans were announced here this week by Clarence Stephens, manager of the Pierce-Cequin Lumber Co., for the installation of a modern sawmill just south of their present office on McDowell Street. It is expected that the mill will be in operation by April 1. The mill will be in charge of M. S. Grison, who has had 19 years experience in this kind of work. He was born and reared near Fulton and has been connected with sawmills in this vicinity for a number of years. Installation of a mill was necessary, Mr. Stephens pointed out, in order to meet demands for lumber of this type. Logs will be purchased from farmers and loggers in this territory. The mill will be equipped to do all kinds of rough sawing, and will cater to custom sawing.

Speed Construction On Hickman Refugee Centers

Five of the 23 buildings authorized by the Red Cross for housing flood refugees are roofed this week as a result of day and night construction work of 300 men. The new barracks will be built to accommodate 1,000 people and be complete in sanitation and hospitalization facilities. There will be two hospital quarters and an isolation ward, and other building facilities to take care of large families for an indefinite period. The construction is being done by WPA and the materials are furnished by the Red Cross.

U. S. GROWS MOST APPLES; ALSO IS LEADING EXPORTER

The United States is the largest producer and exporter of apples in the world according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. On an average, during the 5 years 1931-35, approximately 31 percent of the world apple production of 500 million bushels was produced in the United States. Of the average of 155 million bushels of apples produced in that 5-year period in the United States the Bureau reports approximately 94 million bushels (54 percent) were consumed as fresh fruit, about 6 million bushels (4 percent) were bottled, roughly 3 million bushels (2 percent) were used for making brandy, about 7 million bushels (4.5 percent) were dried and evaporated and about 55 million bushels (35.5 percent) were used for other apple products, including vinegar and cider, used on the farm, fed to stock or left unharvested. There are an total of roughly 450 million apple trees in the world, one-fourth of which are in the United States.

The trend of apple production in this country has been downward for several years, but world production outside the United States is on a slightly upward trend, particularly production of apples for dessert purposes. World trade in apples in the last few years amounted roughly to 33 million bushels, of which the U. S. supplied approximately one-third. Canada, supplying about one-fifth of the total exports.

South Fulton Council In Meeting Friday Night

Mayor and board of aldermen of South Fulton held their regular monthly session at the city hall last Friday night with all aldermen present except Bill Baucum. Routine business and bills were read and approved. The board discussed back taxes, strays dogs running loose on the streets, and stated that cinders have been hauled and put on many of the South Fulton streets. It was decided to retain Mr. Counts as night policeman until further action. The matter of cleaning out the creek on the south side, which is filling up and overflowing, was discussed, but no plan affected.

RAILWAY ACTIVITIES INCREASE IN FULTON

The Division Office of the Illinois Central System has been a busy place since the flood struck Paducah and other points along the lines. J. W. ## HAVE YOU FULTON CLUB LAYS PLANS FOR SEASON

Officers and directors of the Fulton Baseball Association held a meeting last Friday night at the office of Atkins Insurance Agency, to discuss and lay plans for the 1937 season. A connection has been made with the Nashville Vols, who are to furnish seven players for the Fulton club. It was decided that the price for box seats should be advanced from $5 to $7.50 for a couple, and from $3 to $4 for a single seat. Considerable cost will be incurred this year to improve and enlarge the grandstand, build showers and lockers for the visiting teams, and additional revenue must be obtained to operate the local club. Two committees were appointed: A bus committee, composed of Bailey Huddleston, chairman; H. H. Bug, Dr. M. W. Hawes, was named to arrange transportation of Fulton players to and from other parks. A finance committee, composed of H. H. Bug, chairman; Bob White, Frank Beadles, Smith Atkins and Kellie Lowe, was named to direct the financing of the club. Contracts to players are to be mailed out this month. All players with Fulton last season will be given the option of returning, with the exception of Kid Elberfeld as manager, Watts and Shaffey. Spring training will start in the middle of April, with Fulton furnishing twelve players and the Nashville association eleven. From this number fourteen men will be chosen to start the season here on May 11. Efforts are being made to obtain Ned Porter of Apalachicola Fla., as manager of the Fulton club this year. Concession rights have been let as yet, pending further action.

REFUGEES ARE MOVED FROM SCIENCE HALL

The refugee camp located at the Science Hall, composed of about 150 persons, was removed to the old Moose Hall this week, in order that school might be reopened. During the emergency period here a total of 2825 refugees registered at the Fulton Red Cross headquarters. Most of these were sent to other points. Today there are about 750 refugees in camp here. The Red Cross kitchen, which is being operated by the local American Legion Post, has been feeding about 700 a day. Gradually refugees are leaving to return to their homes or locate with friends.

A total of 39 patients are in the Emergency Hospital at the Elks Club with most of the cases being flu and ear aches. Two were pneumonia, both subject to dismissal. Of the 39 patients, 11 are women, 13 men and 15 children. Day nurses, Miss Lula Mae McKeown of Memphis, Miss Willye McJelge of Greenville, Miss. Night nurse, Miss Elvive Parrish of Savannah, Ga.

At a table covered with a lovely white cloth and centered with a bouquet of red carnations, The Valentine was carried out through the luncheon and games of bridge. At bridge Mrs. Abe Jolley held high score and was presented a lovely guest prize. Mrs. Tom Franklin will be hostess to this club next week at her home on Third-st.

LIST PAYMENTS IN 1937 FARM PROGRAM

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 10. A statement issued at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture calls the attention of farmers to ways in which they can cooperate in the agricultural conservation program this year. In brief, farmers can receive payments for diverting soil-depleting crops to soil-conserving crops, and for the use of soil-building practice. Burley tobacco growers will be paid 5 cents a pound for the estimated yield on land diverted to other crops to soil-conserving crops, and bacco base. Dark tobacco growers will receive 3 1/2 cents a pound up to 30 percent of the base and cotton growers 5 cents a pound up to 25 percent of the base. About $9 an acre will be paid for changing general soil-depleting crops to soil-conserving crops. Under soil-building practices, farmers will receive 75 cents per 100 pounds of 20 percent superphosphate used, and $1.50 a ton for lime-stone applied, except in certain eastern counties where the pay will be $2 to $2.50 a ton. The pay for sowing alfalfa will be $2.50 an acre; red and mammoth clovers and sericea lespedeza, $2 an acre; crimson, alsike and sweet clover, orchard grass, vetch and annual lespedeza, $1.50 an acre; white and blue clover, redtop, timothy and mixtures, $1 an acre; for plowing under green manure and cover crops, $1 to $1.50 an acre; for setting trees, $3 to $7.50 an acre, and for thinning and otherwise improving old stands of trees, $2.50 an acre.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

It is exceedingly difficult to present a fair appraisal of industry's condition these days. There are so many conflicting factors, so many diverse influences, that it is next to impossible to use the ordinary barometer of manufacturing actual achievements and failures.

One school of business commentators holds it for granted that continued prosperity is assured, and another school is convinced that the road to the New Deal lies through work and economic advances that have been made. The third school attempts the difficult job of analyzing conditions without bias for either side, and is usually in such matters, this school is usually correct.

Mr. Roosevelt's second inaugural has naturally caused comparisons of 1936 conditions as they were when he took office in 1933, and conditions as they are today. And the picture, in the view of hard-headed commentators, is mixed and unglorious.

The United States News recently made a neat summarizing up of Administration assets and credits as they apply to industry. In the first four years of the present Administration industrial production made remarkable gains. Some industries even exceeded their boom-period capacities and are operating at record production levels. The national income has been increased 50%—from $20,000,000,000 to $30,000,000,000. The national income is approximately 10% above the pre-depression ratio for total national income. Commodity prices are not far from the 1929-30 level. Bank deposits have advanced more than 50% from $40,000,000,000 to $62,000,000,000.

As this is on the credit side, on the debit side are a number of vital problems which have not yet been solved. Unemployment still hovers around the 15,000,000 mark—at the end of 1935 it reached an estimated 15,000,000. In spite of better business and increased consumer income and spending, relief expenditures are practically as great as ever. The Federal debt is at an all-time record figure and the budget is as yet unbalanced. Taxes on industry as well as on individuals are at record levels.

So as the Administration enters its second term, it can look back with satisfaction on various accomplishments made during its first four years—but it must also look ahead to issues and conditions that are unadjusted, and that are as serious now as they were in the worst of the slump.

First indication of what the President for the second four years of the Administration, is found in his inaugural address. This speech was considered on its financing and eloquence. Newspapers which are generally opposed to the Administration found much to admire in its content. There is a growing feeling that the Administration will not go farther left this term than it has—some think it is taking a right turn.

Interesting fact is that the much-famed "Brain Trust"—made up of so-called liberals and radicals—is curiously disarmed. All of the major causes of this once powerful group are out of public life, a number having accepted high-salaried, private enterprise jobs.

Business Week has made a study of advertising expenditures during 1936, finds that they were well ahead of 1935. And it forecasts 1937 will be a good year for publication so far as advertising is concerned—partly because of the undistributed earnings. Reason for that is that businesses would rather spend money for space than for taxes—in effect, the tax creates an "advertising discount" amounting up to 32%.

During the last half of 1936, the increase in advertising spending over the same period in 1935 was substantially greater than the percentage improvement in business generally. Big gains in advertising lineage was made by magazines—33.31%. Newspapers went ahead 19.79%. And chain radio made the greatest gain of all—31.99%.

The average rates charged by magazines declined in the women's and farm fields. They advanced in general, special and weekly fields. The largest increase in revenue—40.94%—was registered in the special field, where the rate increase, 11.43%, was also greatest.

Biggest magazine advertisers was General Motors, which spent $7,231,200 in 1936, followed by Chrysler, $3,395,500; Reynolds Tobacco, $2,231,100; Proctor and Gamble, $2,440,100; and Helmut Meyers, $2,305,000. Standard Brands and General Electric spent around $1,500,000 each. Advertising income reported for 1936 runs from about $1,200,000 to $1,200,000 in United Lumber, Ford, Campbell Soup, General Electric and Lever Bros.

HAVE A HOME GARDEN THIS YEAR

This is the time of year to begin looking to the making of plans for the 1937 home garden. To those persons who have been growing their own vegetables, it is not rare that this is a most prosperous season in 1937 year, but even in those it should be pointed out that, with high food prices now prevailing and these adding to the cost of living, the home garden will be of special value. Also, besides alleviating food-budget difficulties, a home garden furnishes vegetables of freshness and quality impossible to find even in the best markets.

To those persons who have ground space, but who have not been busy with their practice to have a garden, may we paraphrase the slogan, "Get the man who has one." New comers into the home garden, if they are assured they will find it advantageous and pleasurable, too, to raise their own vegetables.

The best material for this purpose is a stable manure, but where it cannot be had in adequate quantity, tree leaves, lawn clippings, composted manure, and other materials may be used. Good, too, is to turn under a small amount of manure to soil in the fall, or a cover crop of rye, wheat or barley. In fact, a soil or a cover crop serves the extra purpose of preserved plant food that would otherwise have been lost through winter soil-washing, and thus become a loss in a way, fertilizer as well as soil conditions.

In order to make sure that breakdown will have progressed to the proper degree, the matter should be checked under at least a month before actual sowing, even though conditions are quite wet, no harm will result provided thorough freezing follows.

The fertility requirements for vegetables are partly met where manure is used, but always phosphorus should be applied in conjunction, and for the early plantings of cabbage, radishes and lettuce, and sometimes onions, commercial nitrogen should be used as dressings. Where the humus material is anything else than manure, the vegetables' fertility needs must be met with complete commercial fertilizer, such as 3-8-9, 4-8-8 or 5-12-5.

The way to apply phosphorus is a broadcast 20 percent superphosphate at the rate of 100 pounds per quarter-acre, just before the land is sown over for the last time. Thus, it will be worked into the soil at vegetable root depth. Complete fertilizer is broadcast a few days previous to planting. The rate of application is one pound per 50 square feet of garden space, or to conserve it, it may be sown down the rows, in a strip 12 to 15 inches wide, at the rate of one pound per 30 running feet of row. The fertilizer should be chopped in with a hoe.

HAVE A TELEPHONE OF YOUR OWN

HAVEN'T you and your family often felt the need of a telephone in your home? Children, especially, are likely to feel keenly the lack of such a convenient means of communication with their friends. And when emergencies arise, the lack of a telephone in your home might prove not only costly, but serious.

A telephone, you will find, widens the horizon of possibilities for a happier and more comfortable life for the whole family.

Your neighbors and friends who have telephones will be glad to learn you have one, for they know from experience the many advantages of being in quick, easy telephone reach. Then too, with a telephone of your own, you will avoid the embarrassment of having to borrow a neighbor's telephone.

When you weigh these and the many other advantages of a telephone against the small cost, don't you agree that it really doesn't pay to try to get along without one? Why wait longer to enjoy the many advantages that a telephone in your home provides? Order yours today.

GET RID OF THE "IFS"

The President's budget address provides considerable food for thought. It is unfortunate that its technicalities and statistical details—inescapable in any message of this kind—will prevent it from being widely read.

Briefly the President said that the budget will be balanced for the year beginning July 1, 1937, if statutory payments toward reduction of the debt are not considered, and if relief and other emergency appropriations do not exceed $1,537,000,000.

There are other "ifs" in the message, but these are the most important. And it is now the duty of Congress to see to it that emergency spending is held to the lowest possible point, that every conceivable cut be made in the overhead cost of our multitudinous bureaus—some of which have outlived their purpose and have no excuse for their existence—and that a scientifically planned program of economy permeate the entire Federal structure.

The President is also said to be working on a plan whereby various governmental departments will be consolidated in the interest of efficiency and economy. This has been a vital need, and it is unquestionably true that wise consolidations would save the taxpayers untold millions without eliminating or reducing government services. Congress should give every aid to the Executive in attaining this end.

In brief, the people must demand that the budget be balanced, and that no "ifs" be allowed to stand in the way.

DAILY MIRACLES

The American people take good railroad service for granted. They have been so long used to constant improvement in our basic transportation medium, that they have lost sight of the fact that every day the lines perform a "miracle" of the first magnitude.

For example, last year the two million freight cars operated by American railroads traveled more than 19,000,000,000 miles. Yet every minute of every day the location of every one of those cars is known and recorded by the railroads! That is an inconceivably intricate job—but it is accomplished without trouble or excitement.

Other startling facts are easy to find in the story of railroad operation. The rails haul a ton of freight a mile for less than a cent! Out of every dollar they take in, 45 cents goes to labor! The school taxes they pay educate 1,000,000 children a year. You are safer on a railroad train than in your home!

Railroad efficiency doesn't need argumentative support—it is a clear-cut, undeniable fact. And the lines' record becomes all the more remarkable when it is considered that they have not been able to earn even so modest a net profit as 5 1/2% in any year since the war, and carry heavy regulatory and legislative burdens that are not borne by their competitors. The railroads provide one of the brightest chapters in the magnificent history of American industry.

THE CORNFIELD PHILOSOPHER

From the very earliest times the English people have liked a rustic philosopher; our earliest known poet, Caedmon, was reputed to have been an illiterate monk at Whitby, on the east coast of England, who retold in verse the stories of the Bible. Bede, the historian of Old English times, says that Caedmon's gift was divine, since he had no education and learning and could not even write his name. Ever since that time we have delighted to honor the wise man who somehow had acquired more wisdom than circumstance would seem explain. Our earliest American philosopher of this type but wise young chap from the hills of New England. Just before the Civil War we had many ignorant wise men who laughed at our sectional follies: John Phoenix, Artemus Ward, Petroleum V. Nasby, Mark Twain was a later product of this same tradition. Throughout his long literary career he drew on his knowledge of folk life; his greatest creation, Huckleberry Finn, is certainly a wise person who knows more than most of his contemporaries.

The folk philosopher of every section hates sham and often resorts to horse laughter to make all forms of hypocrisy ridiculous. In our own time no one has made more people laugh and think than Will Rogers. Until his death a few years ago, Abe Martin brought us daily the thoughts and reactions of a southern Indiana farmer. Ring Lardner created a whole folk grammar for whom could be regarded as philosophy's numerous characters, many of pher.

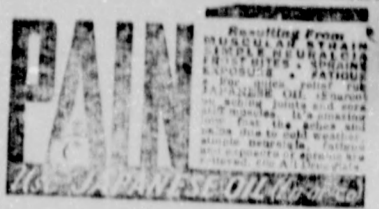

Probably the wisest rustic philosophers have not yet got into print. Sitting by some village store today is a wisecracker who can ridicule sham as effectively and as picturesquely as any literary character we have ever known. You have not quoted these rural wisecrackers all our lives, conscious that what they say in their own way is often the essence of wisdom. I can recall nothing funnier than the remarks made around the stove of the general store nearly half a century ago. Few of the actual remarks would bear printing, but the wisdom behind them pher has departed.

Efforts to convey the speech of the on several large buildings in the area distorting and cracking the structures—a serious damage requiring costly repairs. These reports, however, were largely from the region where glacial till provided the parent soil material. Any such damage is unlikely to occur where there is a solid-rock foundation near the surface of the soil.

One of the easiest things in the world is to reorganize somebody's business in casual conversation. A real baseball fan thinks that the new year begins when the big teams go into the training camps.

This is the time of the year that advertisers on calendars think they are getting a fine return from their money. Don't take the world too seriously—some of these days you will die and get away from it. The trouble with the prophets is that they do not agree.

Reverend Holly Mobley who has been receiving treatment at Outwood, Ky., returned to his home here last Friday night.

Dr. C. B. Bard reports that influenza is gaining headway in Graves county.

Mrs. Jim Hawkins and infant son was moved from the refugee quarters here Tuesday to the Mayfield hospital for treatment.

Mrs. Jodie Williams of Old Bethel is quite ill.

The funeral services of "Uncle Henry" McKinney, 36, were conducted at the home of Will Linder Sunday morning. Interment was at Pension cemetery.

Plans are being made to have only two refugee camps in Graves county.

The medical director for refugees was in our town a short while Tuesday.

Lila Bradley of this community was inoculated for typhoid fever two weeks ago at Mayfield. It was a case of mistaken identity.

Over 9,000 refugees have been inoculated by the Graves county health department.

Plans are made to move the refugee camp here to Mayfield by the latter part of the week.

Dr. C. B. Bard called Washington D. C. to put a World War Veteran in a local hospital for emergency treatment.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Prather Adams on the birth of a son.

Mrs. Earle Bard and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Bard went to Paducah Sunday.

Miss Gene Cannon of near Kingston is visiting Mrs. Eva Cannon of this town.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Thomas of Paducah are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Tarpley.

Rev. Joe Clapp of Fulton conducted services for the refugees here last Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Copeland, Misses Rachel and Mary Rhodes Copeland of North Carolina left Tuesday after several days visit with Mr. and Mrs. M. S. McCastlain and Mrs. Rachel Copeland.

At the conclusion of serial games of progressive bridge high score among the club members was held by Mrs. Lawrence Holland who received lovely hose Mrs. Mason Davidson was presented a novelty cigarette holder as guest of honor.

Late in the evening the hostess served a delectable salad course.

Therefore this one hundred cockerels are not only free but the buyer saves one dollar to buy chick feed in buying two hundred straight chicks instead of one hundred pullets. The brooding cost for this two hundred will be no more than for the one hundred baby pullets. Under conditions like these if the poultryman only receives ten cents per pound for his broilers, he will make a profit over buying baby pullets.

Now, as a summary, who will profit by buying sexed chicks? The big commercial poultryman, who is in the commercial egg business and keeps a thousand white leghorn hens or more. Even if this man has a fair market for his leghorn broilers he cannot afford to buy sexed chicks.

DO SEXED CHICKS MAKE MORE MONEY?

Poultry like many other industries is affected by fads and trends. These fads are an advantage to some, but a disadvantage to others. A very good example of this is the buying of sexed chicks.

Now, let's take a moment to consider "Who will profit by buying sexed chicks instead of straight run chicks?" In any industry we find the most efficient and practical methods are used by those men who are in that industry as their major business. Therefore chick sexing is used most by those who profit by it most.

Where do we find chick sexing used most and used least? The February publication of "The Poultry Tribune" state as follows: "In the middle west where the bulk of the hatchery industry is located about ten to fifteen percent of the 1936 chick output were sold as sexed chicks. In California there was a much larger percentage of the chicks sexed."

Now let's consider the conditions in these different sections. In California, where chick sexing is popular, the bulk of the chicks sold are white leghorns. These go to the large commercial egg ranches, many of whom keep several thousand hens on a single ranch. The California market has such a prejudice against Leghorn broilers that they are almost worthless in many cases.

That is quite a contrast to the conditions in Western Kentucky and Tennessee, where there is only two or three cents difference in the price of Leghorns and heavy breeders. In this territory the greater percentage of chicks raised are heavy breeds. With early chicks, the cockerels sold as broilers almost pay for the pullets.

In the middle western section chick sexing is not very popular. Here the bulk of chicks sold are for farm flocks. A few large commercial egg flocks will be found and some of these buy sexed chicks. There seems to be no advantage to the ordinary farmer of the middle west in buying sexed chick.

Now, let's look at the eastern section of the United States which has the largest broiler industry in the world. Do the poultry men buy sexed chicks? No! They use straight chicks. In many cases, the pullet chick make a more desirable broiler than the cockerel. In this section there is the lowest percentage of sexed chicks sold anywhere in the United States.

There is another factor in chick buying. Hatcheries that sell sexed chicks double their straight chick price for their pullet chicks and usually add a sexing charge. Therefore, if their chick prices were ten dollars per hundred, baby pullets would cost twenty-one dollars per hundred or one dollar more than two hundred straight run chicks.
