ESQ. D. J. ALEXANDER DIED SUDDENLY THIS MORNING.

Esq. D. J. Alexander, of Almo, died this morning very suddenly at his grist mill in Almo. He arose as usual this morning and after completing the work about his home went to his grist mill in the rear of O. T. Weatherford's shop and while at work about the mill was suddenly stricken and died within a very few minutes and without ever regaining consciousness.

Esq. Alexander was one of the best known men of the county, and was about sixty years of age. He had been magistrate of the county and in the last Democratic primary was defeated for the nomination for county judge by the narrow margin of twelve votes. He had many friends and his sudden death will come as a great shock to the county.

I am now permanently located in Murray with H. E. Holton & Co. and would appreciate a share of your business when in need of first-class Insurance. —M. D. HOLTON, Citizens' Phone 250.

Langston Will Explain.

L. A. L. Langston asks us to state that he will next week give a detailed account of the matter that has been attracting the attention of the county board of education at their recent meetings, and will show that the indirect insinuation of the Calloway Times to the effect that he has been guilty of misappropriating funds is libelous. He promises to give the public all the information regarding the matter.

Hazel Happenings.

Thos. A. Lawrence's residence with all its contents was destroyed by fire Sunday morning at 3 a. m. The family barely escaping being burned not even saving their wearing apparel. The origin of the fire is supposed to be of incendiary origin. The house and contents were partially covered by insurance.

N. G. Wiseheart who has been visiting home folks for the past two weeks returned to Princeton Monday where he has a position.

Mary Thompson, little daughter of George Thompson Jr., died last week, and after funeral services by Rev. W. P. Prichard the remains were laid away in the Lebanon Cemetery.

Mildred, little 2 year old daughter of Ed Atkins died last Thursday and after funeral services by W. P. Prichard was buried in the Braswell Cemetery. The family has the sympathy of the community.

Large Crowd Attended Court.

One of the largest crowds ever seen in Murray was here to attend court last Monday. In many respects it was a record for several years. It was a good natured happy crowd and but little occurred to mar the pleasure of the big assembly.

The county's horses and jacks were here and attracted much attention. Owing to the crowded condition of the streets only a short parade of the animals was had upon the streets, after which a great number of the people went out to the Mason & Irvin stables and spent considerable time looking at the fine animals owned by this firm and watching the horses speed at the new track.

The most unpleasant feature of the day was the lack of water for drinking purposes. The gasoline engine which operates the pump in the court yard was out of repair and it was impossible to get a machinist to make the repairs and as a result but little water was to be had. The weather was quite warm and the streets very dirty, adding to the discomfort of the thousands in the city.

The W. O. W. band made its initial appearance before a large crowd and received many compliments for their splendid music.

Advertised Letters.

After one week the following mail will be sent to the Dead Letter Office:

W. B. Adams, J. J. Freeland, Clarence Phelps, Mrs. M. J. Ransom, Mrs. A. D. Slidham, Miss Steller Watson.

A. DOWNS, P. M.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS FOR CALLOWAY APPOINTED

District Census Supervisor Jones, of Princeton, has named the enumerators for Calloway county and notice of the appointments have been sent to the successful applicants in this county. Those appointments were:

Walker, South Liberty; Bert Smith, North Brinkley; G. L. Wrather, South Brinkley; L. C. Cherry, North Swan; Hunter Purchase, South Swan; S. A. Fakes, Almo; J. W. Clark, Jackson; E. R. Simmons, Hazel; Hardy Yarbrough, Fair.

Gasoline Ferry.

In going to Linton or Tobaccoport cross at Murray Landing. Ferry leaves Murray and Pine Bluff road at Brandon's Mill. New boats, good roads. Satisfaction guaranteed. —J. W. BARRETT. 3 mos*

Mrs. Kennon Edwards was thrown from a street car in Memphis the latter part of last week and sustained quite a serious injury. Her many friends here will be sorry to learn of her misfortune but hope that she will speedily recover.

Mrs. Lula Belle Hill and son returned to Murray last Saturday from Chickasha, Ok., where they have been located the past several months. They will remain here for some time.

Pottertown.

Dear Editor.—Thought I would give you a few items from these parts:

Plowing and fencing is the order of the day now.

W. K. and W. C. Russell are on the sick list this week.

Cleveland Russell and family visited M. M. Ellis and family Saturday night and Sunday.

Uncle Howell Hicks, of Cerry, visited his granddaughter, Mrs. Mrs. W. P. Russell, Friday.

Charley Hood, of Murray, transacted business in our burg this week.

Riley Fairwell has the gripple. Charley Clayton will move out on the farm soon.

Casco McKinney, of near Murray, visited home folks this week.

Cleo Smith's handsome, happy and jovial face is seen on our streets each Sunday morning at about 8:13, due to leave about 9:30 p. m.

Porter Clayton made a business trip to Hopkinsville and other points east last week.

W. D. Russell, Will Futrell and others went fishing Saturday evening—usual luck.

Success to the Ledger and its many readers. ANON.

CAUSES 95 PER CENT

Of Diseases. Advice Concerning Stomach Troubles and How to Remedy Them.

Do not neglect indigestion which leads to all sorts of ills and complications. An eminent doctor once said that ninety-five per cent. of all the ills of the human body have their origin in a disordered stomach.

A physician who made a specialty of stomach troubles, particularly dyspepsia, after years of study perfected the formula from which Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are made.

Our experience with Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets leads us to believe them to be the greatest remedy known for the relief of acute indigestion and chronic dyspepsia. Their ingredients are soothing and healing to the inflamed membranes of the stomach. They are rich in pepsin, one of the greatest digestive aids known to medicine. The relief they afford is almost immediate. Their use with persistency and regularity for a short time brings about a cessation of the pains caused by stomach disorders.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will insure healthy appetite, aid digestion and promote nutrition. As evidence of our sincere faith in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, we ask you to try them at our risk. If they do not give you entire satisfaction, we will return you the money you paid us for them, without question or formality. They come in three sizes, prices 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain them only at our store, The Rexall Store, Dale & Stubblefield.

HALE'S NEW PATENT HARROW

(Patented May 11, 1909.)

It is the most economical harrow on earth yet known, will do twice as much work in one day as can be done with any disc harrow with half the team. Any blacksmith can make them by a little instruction and a right to make. I sell a farm right to farmers for $2.50, to make his own harrow or have someone make it for him. If the first wears out make again all that he needs for his own use on the farm for farm purposes. No right to sell any of them to any one. Just put $2.50 in an envelope or get a postoffice money order to this amount and mail it to Noah C. Hale, at Boatwright, Ky., and I will send you by return mail a farm right signed up and instructions how to make the best and most economical harrow on earth. For turf and clods this harrow cannot be beat and it does not take six hundred ($600.00) dollars worth of team to pull it, which leaves the poor people almost out entirely. Try a Hale Harrow and I will guarantee that you will never regret it. Two horses or mules will drag one all day and be fresh at night. The man dearly loves to walk behind it and watch it cut up the sod. Leaves the land nice and level. For planting there is no trouble of plows choking up where this harrow has been used as it penetrates the soil very near as deep as it was broken up with the plow, cutting it very fine, and does not leave clods that after a week's good rain turn one over and find dry dirt under it, and gather corn over them next fall. You get the benefit of your soil if you use Hale's Patent Harrow.

I will also sell state, county or school district rights and anyone interested can write me for prices on same. Will sell for cash or exchange for real estate or live stock.

N. C. HALE, Boatwright, Ky.

Dr. Perry's Ordeal

By ROSE AMELIE KELLY

Dr. Perry closed his office door with a sigh of relief.

"It is hard for a doctor to snatch a holiday," the housekeeper said. "You must hurry, sir, or you'll miss your train."

Hearts and excitement lent animation to a face usually wooden in expression. Always a pleasure to visit his mother, Dr. Perry joyfully anticipated the present holiday because the girl he was to marry was to be a guest, also. He was stepping into the automobile when his housekeeper called him:

"Dr. Raymond wants you at the telephone."

Reluctantly he turned back.

"Can you come to me at once, Jack? I am in desperate trouble. Gordon is dying."

The boyish excitement vanished as Dr. Perry answered:

"I will be with you as quickly as possible."

"Dying!" he pondered as he sped onward. "Incredible! He was doing so well last night!"

Gordon was a friend who had fallen ill at a hotel and had been moved to the doctor's house. Raymond was Jack's best friend. He was greatly beloved and skillful, with one weakness, recurring at long intervals:

"I am in an awful position, Jack," were the doctor's first words. "I know you will help me. I dare not ask any one else." With a gesture that told everything, he pointed at two vials.

"The wrong one—I fear I've done for him!"

One glance showed Jack that the alcoholic craving had returned, hence the mistake. As they talked they heard the sickroom.

"You may rely on me, certainly, Raymond."

"Thank you. Nurse may suspect, but she's loyal."

Jack had a talent for rapid diagnosis. The holiday face was gone; the physician resumed mastery. The patient, at first glance, seemed to be past human aid. Heroic treatment would be necessary. Raymond and Nurse Anna felt the relief of trusting a strong will. In the absorption of science and the effort to save life, mother and sweetheart were completely set aside. Now they despaired; again they were rewarded by hope. At a critical moment Dr. Raymond collapsed.

Again the work went on. At mid night a servant handed Jack a telegram. Acute anguish convulsed his countenance as he read:

"Mother dangerously ill. Wants you. Dr. Montgomery with her."

"ELINOR!" His precious mother dying, needing him, and he pledged to help a stranger! It was terrible. If he could but wake Raymond. Going to the bed he shook him, only to see him close again under the influence of the narcotic.

"God help me! I've burned my ships," Jack groaned. "Oh! Mother, mother! I gave my word! You would bid me keep it!"

"Impossible to leave this morning. Critical case. Love to mother. Ask Montgomery to stay. JACK."

An hour later came a telegram from his fiancée:

"Come at once. Mother worse."

"AGNES!" Great beads stood on the son's forehead as he ministered to the stranger. Suddenly he responded to the treatment.

In the library of the homestead Agnes Armitage paced, paused at the French window to peer into the night, longing for the rumble of wheels bringing her fiancé.

"Elinor!" she raved. "This is cruel! I will never forgive him—never! To refuse to come to his dying mother! A 'critical case' indeed! Any one could attend to a stranger. There is absolutely no excuse for him."

"I was slipping into the dark, I told you," she murmured, faintly. "I'll stay now, please (nod)." Then Jack took possession of the room, sending doctor and nurse to rest. Alone with his mother, he stroked her hands. Contented, she slept. For hours neither stirred. With a wealth of love and gratitude her son watched. When the nurse relieved him he thought of Agnes, resting under the banyan tree.

He roused the family at breakfast. Agnes was absent. Dr. Montgomery talked of the patient. Elinor asked no questions. The old doctor, quick to read faces, saw trouble ahead. Agnes left the room. A maid let a new-hung, both men started nervously. Those who had been calm in a great crisis were unnerved. Jack followed Agnes to the library. It would be something to rest on her sympathy.

"Thank you," he said softly, laying a carving hand on the bright brown hair.

"Why did you not come, Jack? What patient in the wide world kept you from your mother?"

There was scorn in the tone, reproach and sadness. He who had been strong was weak before her.

"It was life—or death," he answered.

"And your mother hovered between life and death? Who was she preferred to a mother?"

The doubt stung.

"I do not discuss my patients, Agnes."

Yet, had she trusted, something might have been said without disloyalty to Dr. Raymond. The moment passed. She doubted, both were overwrought. It was not the moment for argument. So, with tempera tress, words were spoken to be bitterly regretted.

"Take back your ring, Jack. You are free."

The sweetness of summer came in, but it brought no soothing. Through Jack's set lips no reassurance came. Stern, severe, as youth can be, Agnes refused forgiveness.

"Then it's goodbye, dear! But I wish you could have trusted me—unproved."

Kneeling her forehead, he went out by the window, to disappear beyond the grapes. When he returned he did not see her. Again he became nurse. When next he came down stairs Elinor told him that Agnes had gone.

A month later Elinor motored with her brother to the golf club. Alone on a corner of the woods she came up to see Dr. Raymond. His face was beautiful. A new light illumined it. To himself and his friend he had kept the secret registered on that fateful night. Henceforth he was "master" of his own life. Elinor had always been his ideal. Hitherto he had felt that he had no right to seek her. Today he sank gladly into the seat beside her. Jack was on the lawn with a group of golfers. Dr. Raymond eyed

"What's wrong with Jack, Elinor? He's gone to a shadow."

Instinctively the girl knew she might speak.

"You know he and Agnes have broken their engagement."

"Impossible! They were made for each other. Surely it is a passing cloud."

"It's passing, I'm afraid. But if anyone of the words she spoke, you can know he and Agnes have broken their engagement."

"Impossible! They were made for each other. Surely it is a passing cloud."

WOMEN CAN KEEP SECRETS

Chicago Magistrate of Experience Offers Testimony to Shatter Old Tradition.

A Chicago police magistrate, after long years of observation, and expertly declared unequivocally that women keep secrets much more surely than men. In the philosophy and alleged history to the contrary notwithstanding, he avers that the smaller things, the relatively unimportant matters, it may be true that woman is the more loquacious; that she is naturally somewhat gossip, and her domestic status uneventful as is usually the case. Incline her to small talk. But when it comes to the things that actually count, the vital, compelling, tremendous things—woman is as far beyond man that comparison is all but ridiculous. Moreover, he says that nine out of ten police officers know this to be true, whatever the answer of the question may be in other walks of life.

Doubtless it is all as the Chicago man says. If so, it is likely enough, when contemplated in connection with certain characteristics of women that are universally admitted. Take the matter of bearing physical pain, for instance. There is scarcely a physician anywhere who will tell you that the average woman will bear without a murmur pain that would drive men to suicide. Woman shrinks shudderingly from the slightest impending danger, but she faces it with a courage when it is upon her in a way man rarely does.

If we could get the wives, sisters, mothers and sweethearts of Chicago to tell their secrets, we should soon clear up hundreds of seemingly impenetrable mysteries that have baffled us for many years. But we cannot do it. Much as that drug the miserable truth from men, time and again, fall utterly when applied to women. There may be a way to get them to tell the secrets we know they possess, but we have never discovered it, and never expect to.

All of which seems to ring true. It is like a woman, anyhow.

Romance of an Earthquake

As a result of the late disastrous earthquake at Messina a policeman at Messina station, Sciarini by name, has become the possessor of two wives. In the catastrophe he lost his wife and children, and every effort to find them, either living or dead, was fruitless. He gave up all hope, became resigned to his fate, and ten months later married a beautiful Mesinese. The other day a well-dressed woman arrived at the Messina station and inquired for Sciarini. He went to her, and was surprised to find him did not see her. Again he became nurse. When next he came down stairs Elinor told him that Agnes had gone.

SHOPS AND HOMES

New Model Structure Erected for Artisans in Vienna.

Small Manufacturers Provided with Good Rooms, for Dwellings as Well as for Work—Both Sanitary and Cheap.

Vienna. In the new jubilee work shops and model dwellings erected at a cost of $500,000, Vienna artisans are provided with excellent sanitary work shops and homes, convenient in every respect and obtainable at rents below those frequently charged for damp, dark, unhealthy quarters. The mass sively imposing square block in the Margarethen suburb has been provided at the joint expense of the city of Vienna and a special jubilee fund raised for improving the housing of the working classes. The building covers a considerable area, having a large courtyard. It is a seven-story high of steel construction, on the American plan, thus admitting a large window area. In all it comprises 150 separate workshops and 40 dwellings. The ground cost $100,000, and the building $400,000.

No expense has been spared and no detail overlooked. The construction is especially strong, so that the heaviest machinery can be safely installed on the top floors. There are elevators capable of carrying 2,000 pounds, every workshop has its own emergency stairway in case of fire or other accident. There is an abundance of lavatory and toilet room accommodation. The window casements are of wood, with a gutter at the bottom to carry off the steam from the glass. There is a plentiful water supply and capital ventilation. The basement dwellings are protected against damp and the top floors under the roof from heat and cold.

Special facilities are provided for furnishing tenants with electricity or gas for motor power, as, cheaply, as possible. And coal, coke and wood can also be obtained in small quantities at low price.

The workshops vary in size considerably, the smallest having an area of from 250 to 600 square feet. The rents work out at from 20 cents to 30 cents per square foot a year, according to the floor. The tenants are mostly small tradesmen employing from 10 to 15 workpeople. A few have only perhaps two or three helpers. While others employ 40 or 45 persons. At least half the tenants are women workers of various kinds, chiefly furniture makers, for whom the location is especially suitable, as the principal furniture stores are in the neighborhood. The other tenants include several metal trades workers, weavers, hat makers, bookbinders and glaziers. The 40 dwellings in the building are reserved primarily for the occupants of the workshops. The accommodation consists of only of living room, small bedroom and a kitchen, and the rent is from $4 to $7 a month.

Opened less than six months ago, more than three-quarters of the workshops are already occupied. Both from an economic and hygienic standpoint the new institution promises to be valuable. The workers now gathered there formerly lived in outside districts, so that much time was lost in the shipping out of goods and the collection of orders, materials and the like. Moreover, in many instances, work was carried on in miserable cellars, dark, damp and unsanitary, involving grave injury to the health and constitution of masters and workmen alike. In the jubilee workshops building the utmost attention has been

MME. KATHERINE FRENIKOVSKAYA, who pleaded not guilty to the charge of having been intimately active in the Russian revolutionary organization, the "Bolsheviks," at the opening of her trial in St. Petersburg, is popularly known as the mother of the Russian revolution and "the Russian Joan of Arc." She served 23 years as a hard labor convict in exile in Siberia, and for two years has been confined in the fortress of St. Peter and Paul, St. Petersburg. Mme. Frenikovsky has lectured in the United States, and a petition for her release was sent to the czar two years ago, signed by 50 prominent men in the United States. Mme. ## ABOUT ODD FODICES

STILL AN IMPORTANT ADJUNCT OF THE WARDROBE

Thin Stuff the Favorite Material for the Down-Colored Waist—Marital Trimming a Feature of the Garments.

Though by no means occupying the first place of interest, the odd bodice is still a very important adjunct to a comfortable wardrobe. It is absolutely required for the street suit of coat and skirt, and fashion requires that the bodice should match the gown material in color and be made with the utmost care.

White waists are plentiful, materials in these ranging from the coarsest linen to the finest diaphanous net, lace and gauze, yet even these charming garments fall in the elegance that the down-colored waist will give. Thin stuffs are the favorite for this, such as fragile textures as chiffon, crepe de chine and not being used, the garment showing what may be dubbed a tailored finish.

The jumper overblouse of children, lace or not, put over one or more interlinings, and low necked and short sleeved, is a model used for dressy gowns as well as smart odd waists. For the jumper portion of such bodices very little material is required, and when it is made of a fine lace or tulle, or of unlined gauze, it is possible to vary the effect by having several underbodices, in various colors, for a change. Remnants of material suitable for the jumper decking are now sold in all the shops at low prices.

One adventurous woman discovered a coarse white net, splashed scatteringly with thick irregular spots in various colors at a cents a yard. This had been reduced from a dollar and a half, and the buyer intends turning it into the blouse proper, this made in fine tulle and covered with a very low, short-sleeved jumper of pale gray velvet. A plaid skirt in the same material will go with it.

A very decided feature with the new waists on shirtwaist lines is the horizontal trimming, this being shaped with bands of lace or embroidery between tucks. Such up-and-down lines replace the yoke effects to a great degree, and as they induce the slight look still required for all raincoat trimmings are likely to have a great vogue.

For all waists, whether practical or fine, the belt is a needed detail, and since the beaded and plain rubber ones fit any figure and hold the waist snugly, they are in great demand, exquisite ones in evening shades appearing as frequently as the gray day effects. The wide soft ribbon or bias of velvet, that fastens with a jaunty bow or rich buckle of some sort, is the species of girlhood most used, however, for the dressier waist, and there is no end to the pretty possibilities of these.

JUST SUITS THE SMALL BOY

Useful Little Tunic That Looks Well in Several Materials—Choice of Colors.

For this useful little tunic, cashmere, serge, linen might be used; it is quite plain, with a box plait down the center of front, which is trimmed as far as the belt by buttons; the belt draws the fullness in just below the waist. The sleeve is left to a plain cuff at the wrist.

Turn-down linen collars are worn, or if a smarter effect were desired, white silk or embroidered ones might be worn.

Material required: One and one-half yards for a wide, nine buttons trained skirt for collars or dinner. At the shoulders the waist, which also fastens at the back, is fitted with tucks, the skirt is also an unshaped band, and cuffs six inches deep finish the small top sleeves.

Fine embroideries and linen lawns are materials eminently suited to spring and summer waists in this pattern, for when warmer weather is really with us the white waist which waist is bound to have its vogue. Point d'esprit or plain net, with an entire dour of lace, at 15 cents the yard, would make a smarter thing for now or later, and even with quite a pretty wide ribbon for the girdle, such a bodice would be a very cheap affair.

New Hat Brims. The novelty which well-known milliners have introduced in bonnets is the hat with the fly away brim. It is the left side of the brim that flares to the heavens above a moderate size crown. These shapes are in straw faced with velvet and worn well down over the head. The only trimming is a bow of velvet or a many-looped wired bow of mulline.

One of the best of these hats is of white straw bound with black velvet with black mulline bow in front. The hat pins are of jet.

Color on Negligee. Something new in embroidery is here for the lover of the dressing Parque and the negligee. The touch of embroidery upon the daintiest white garment is now done in colored linen floss.

Mark you, the white scallop is not abandoned on this color-touched garment, and aside from its ribbons and the effective showing of rather strenuous work, the negligee is as dainty as ever.

NOVEL IDEAS ON SHAMPOO

Put Forth by Specialist, and Are Decidedly Worth Being Given a Fair Trial.

A specialist who had had success with treating falling hair had novel ideas on shampoo that are easily adopted by the girl who washes her own hair.

Make a strong lather of soap suds by putting a cake of pure white soap in a pitcher that holds a couple of quarts. Pour a pint of boiling water over the soap and shake until a thick lather is formed, when the soap is removed.

Let the mixture cool to blood heat, or so that it will not scald the skin, and pour a little at a time over the scalp, rubbing it in with the tips of the fingers.

When scalp is well cleansed, pour the rest of hot mixture over the long hair, washing it gently down from the roots toward the ends.

Rinse with warm water, using a bath spray, and keep it up until no soap suds remain. Rub on scalp or long hair. Part hair and spray scalp, especially at sides of head and at nape of neck.

Have several smooth towels, made very hot, and dry the hair with them. When nearly finished separate hair into strands, thread with finger or comb to remove tangles, then draw fingers from scalp to ends of hair until it is dry, soft and fluffy.

This specialist does not believe in cold water rinsing, which most hair-dressers feel will prevent cold. The hot water gives more of a gloss and prevents harshness. She also avoids rubbing the hair when wet or pulling it when drying.

Poor, indeed! How poor are they that have not patience.—Shakespeare.

John Jacob Astor, Fred, Spends $25,000 on Friends.

Multi-Millionaire Follows Smart Set Custom of Celebrating Severance of Marital Ties in a Lavish Manner.

New York. The smart thing to do these days when one gets a divorce is to celebrate it with a dinner, theater party, supper, give presents to your friends and if you are a multi-millionaire also spend $25,000 on the entertainment. Of course if you can't spend $25,000 spend $25,000 or two bits.

Old John Jacob Astor set a merry pace recently in this city. The end of his entertainment cost $25,000. It was a good thing for it put money into circulation and that's what we need in this country. When a multi-millionaire turns loose $25,000 for favors it means that some poor work-man had something to do. Astor can afford such things, so what's the difference?

The Astor entertainment marked the end of the granting of the final decree of divorce obtained by Mrs. Astor.

Orchestra were keeping the feet of the guests (trotting with a dexter for the ballroom).

There were 150 guests. Under the old regime the two Astor houses, with a connection of one door, between them, were a matter of expense.

In the simple matter of expense simple at least to old Astor the night's entertainment challenged at least. There have been several more expensive affairs in New York. The Astor evening was made a matter of evening simplicity. There were no flumby decorations. Nothing but 140 dozen roses and a few incidental palms and ferns. Simplicity also ruled in the matter of the favors and the fact that they cost $18,000, and the entire evening's pleasure probably cost more than $25,000 was a mere incident.

The entire house was at the disposal of the guests, who wandered at will through the conservatory, the art gallery, the broad hallways and corridors, where a light lunch was waiting at every hand, and in which three them, often have greeted more than 600 guests, but 150 appears to be the new number.

It was not until about midnight that the guests began to reap with astonishment. Then the cotton began and the favors appeared. The most costly of these were the French parasols presented to the women. They had been made to order and were hand carved upon the finest of woods, with long handles and of silk of every color.

Guests never estimate the cost of such trifles, but a few outsiders valued the parasols at $50 each. Both men and women were provided with pumpadour ribbon scarfs and sashes fringed with gold and silver, and as quickly as they were round about the shoulders of the dancers the ballroom became a kaleidoscope of color at $15 per color.

Brass bells were among the favors given the men and they were kept ringing merrily so that at times the orchestra had difficulty in letting it be known that they still were at work. The Gardena boutonniere given the men were artificial, but they were perfumed in a manner to put nature to the test to keep even.

The directoire mirrors that were among the favors for the women were two feet in length, the handles of satinwood, and with 75 of them flashing back the lights of the ballroom from all angles they provided a figure of dazzling brilliancy.

If there were men present who never smoked a pipe they must have been tempted by the splendid combination of briar, gold and amber presented to them, with gold matchboxes and a gilt flashlight to complete the outfit. Those who insist upon nothing but cigars were delighted with a novel gift cigar lighter.

One of the last figures provided the men with bronze desk rulers and paper weights as a possible reminder that there might be work to do at some future time, while at the same time the women received bridge scores as a possible reminder that they cannot win all the time.

Supper time found all the large tables used for dinner gone and in their stead were dozens of little tables with a table scattered about the room, with waiters ready to inform guests that a breakfast would be served later, if desired.

GRANTED IN THE OFFICE

John of Maryanne President and a Friend of Roosevelt Took for Pinshot.

Washington. James H. Garfield, son of the martyred president, former member of Roosevelt's cabinet, the son and the real thing got into the White House a few days ago and his testimony before the congressional investigating committee wasn't complimentary to Mr. Hallinger. Mr. Garfield held the portfolio of secretary of the interior before the duties of the office fell upon the shoulders of Mr. Hallinger. He knows something about land claims and such things, and was regarded as an important witness.

Mr. Garfield described the three measures relating to Alaskan coal to the committee in Congress in 1908. The coal bill permitted combinations up to four sections at $10 an acre.

"What was the difference between your position as secretary of the interior and that of Mr. Hallinger?" asked Mr. Olmsted.

"Mr. Hallinger," said Mr. Garfield, "believed that the existing locations in Alaska should be permitted to consolidate up to four sections."

"Would the Cunningham claims come under Mr. Hallinger's proposed amendment?" asked Representative Graham.

"They would," replied the witness.

Mr. Garfield said Hallinger met him at his home in Ohio on September 17, 1908, and presented to him the Cunningham affidavit.

"I told him," said Mr. Garfield, "that the information the department had from the Glavis report on the Cunningham journal satisfied me the claims were illegal."

"Did Mr. Hallinger state to you that he was appearing as counsel for Cunningham?" asked Mr. Brandeis.

"He did not,"

Garfield said Hallinger had told him nothing about any option which the Cunningham had on the Cunningham claims dated December 7, 1907, as their representatives testified before the senate committee on territories last month.

Mr. Garfield said Mr. Glavis was one of the clearest and ablest officers in the service. He especially commended his record in the land office.

MOTOR BOATS OUST GONDOLA

Picturesque Vessels in Venice Canal Being Replaced by Speedier but Noisier Craft.

Motor Boat in the Canal.

Venice.—In Venice now-a-days romance and picturesque are fast giving way to the march of inventive genius. This is particularly the case along the Grand canal, where gondolas are being supplanted by motor boats. Several enterprising gondoliers, finding that they can make better time with less exertion by using gasoline engines, have put aside their gondolas and are using motor boats instead. The tourist who now goes to Venice is more likely to hear the chug-chug of a gasoline engine than the soft soothing song of a would-be Caruso.

Rapid Construction of Building. A ten-story building was built to New York city recently in 47 working days.

MAYOR OF PHILADELPHIA

They have been having some pretty hot times over in Philadelphia. Street-car strikes always are marked by violence and pistols, stones, policemen's clubs and, not infrequently, a stick of dynamite or two, play an important part in a day's happenings.

Philadelphia has had all of these, just as did St. Louis and Chicago when the car men went out in those cities.

But in get down to the subject, it is of Mayor John Edgar Heyburn, former school teacher, lawyer, state senator, presidential elector and member of congress, we intend to write.

When the strike started politicians went to the mayor and told him the stand he had taken, that of supporting the transit company and siding against the employees, meant political suicide but they were right or wrong in the stand he took, but it is certain that few men would have the courage to face public opinion as did Mr. Heyburn.

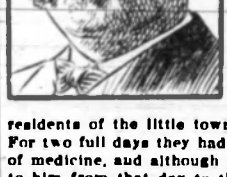

The mayor said he did not consider the demands of the car men fair and he refused to concur in the general opinion prevailing in Philadelphia, that the difference might be arbitrated.

Then came the riots. Cars were wrecked and innocent persons killed. Still the mayor stood to his guns and lent his influence to the side of capital.

Mayor Heyburn put his own opinion above the interests of the Republic, which has elected him to various posts of honor. A street-car strike is annoying to the people, to say the least. It is not pleasant to have to walk to work and then walk home again at night. Few cars can be run when mobs threaten. Business is affected and the whole city feels the effect of such a labor demonstration.

Consequently it took nerve on the part of John Edgar Heyburn to adopt the position he took. Few men have done it. The outcome is awaited with interest, but it is a safe prediction that Mr. Heyburn will not be a candidate for office again. The party bosses will see that he doesn't get on any ticket in Philadelphia.

NEW SENATOR CALLED "DOC"

William E. Purcell, Democrat, is now the junior senator from the State of North Dakota. The governor of Senator Purcell's state is a Democrat, and, pending the convening of the legislature it fell to his lot to name a senator. He gave his preference to Fountain L. Thompson of Cassida, a man of Illinois birth and education, who went to the Dakota a good many years ago.

Senator Thompson had been in Washington only a short time when his health failed to such an extent that he was compelled to resign his senatorial office and then Gov. Burke named Mr. Purcell.

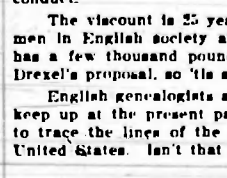

The new North Dakota senator was born and reared in the east country. When he went west he was very much of a tenderfoot. He landed in Dakota as a full-fledged lawyer, but it took the residents of the little town in which he alighted 48 hours to learn the fact. For two full days they had held to the belief that the newcomer was a doctor of medicine, and although they were undeceived the title of doctor has clung to him from that day to this. It has been abbreviated to plain "Doc," however.

While Mr. Purcell was on his way to his Dakota home a passenger on the train became seriously ill and an attempt was made to find a physician. When the man who is now senator found that there was no doctor on the train he turned to do what he could for the patient and in order that the sick man might not lose his nerve through lack of confidence Mr. Purcell did not disclose the fact that he was not a physician.

He used some practical means to make the patient comfortable and did everything in true hospital style. The man was taken off the train at the town in which Mr. Purcell had elected to live. From the time that he offered his services to the suffering man he has been called "Doc."

The Democratic senator from North Dakota comes from the town of Wahpeton, in which lives his Republican colleague, Senator McCumber. The two men have been political rivals for years, but also they have been firm personal friends, and their friendship is marked today when both are members of the United States senate.

SALARY FOR BEING HUSBAND

How would you like to be a husband at $50,000 a year?

If reports are true, that is the part the Viscount Maitland is going to play. Nor is he to get the full amount the first year.

Sometime in June the viscount is coming over to this country to wed Miss Margaretta Armstrong Drexel of Philadelphia. He is going to be placed on his good behavior by his papa-in-law, who reads the newspapers and knows something of what happened to Anna Gould when she became the Countess Castellane and to Alice Shaw when she became the Countess of Yarmouth.

So Papa Drexel has decided that it is well to be wary. He has devised an ingenious marriage settlement by which he will allow the viscount $10,000 the first year and will increase the amount $5,000 annually until it reaches $50,000—all conditional on the bridegroom's conduct.

The viscount is 35 years old, a keen sportsman, one of the most popular men in English society and the eldest son of the earl of Winchester. He has a few thousand pounds sterling himself and can afford to accept Papa Drexel's proposal, so he said.

English genealogists are now saying that if the Anglo-American alliances keep up at the present pace future students of genealogical trees will have to trace the lines of the British aristocracy back into the antiquity of the United States. Isn't that too bad?

COULDN'T BLUFF U. S. ENVOY

The United States has a minister in Colombia who is equal to an emergency. His name is Elliott Northcott. Mr. Northcott hails from the state of West Virginia and is a friend of Stephen D. Watkins.

Down in Bogota, the capital of Colombia, the street railway system is operated by an American company. The citizen of the United States who manages the affairs of the street-car company got into an altercation with a policeman, just like a citizen might do in this country. This altercation led to a riot.

The Colombians are a hot-headed people and after they had wrecked a few street cars and stopped the traffic they thought it would be the proper thing to stone the United States legation. They surrounded the place and threw their stones. Mr. Northcott wasn't the kind of man to stand anything of that sort. He promptly told the leaders of the mob and the authorities of Bogota that he would have part of Uncle Sam's army down in that part of the country in a jiffy if they tried anything more of that kind. Colombians have had occasion to look upon Uncle Sam's soldiers and they didn't relish the idea. They decided to let the American legation alone.

The city was quiet for several days and then the feeling against the street-car company boiled over again. But there was no attack on the American legation. The warning in good West Virginia English had had its effect.
