NEWS BRIEFS

An exploding oil stove at the home of F. H. Edwards in the Highlands started a fire about ten o'clock Wednesday morning, which completely destroyed the home, chicken house and chickens nearby. Flames spread to the home of Moore Joyner on adjoining lot, but were extinguished before serious damage was done.

An audit of the city books is planned, in order that funding of the city's indebtedness may be carried forward. C. J. Coward, certified public accountant, now engaged at Mayfield, was in Fulton this week to discuss the matter with city officials. Work, however, cannot be started until about the middle of March.

Fulton Women in Automobile Accident

Mrs. Will McDade and Mrs. Walter Joyner of Fulton, suffered head and body injuries at 3:30 P.M. Wednesday when the automobile in which they were riding collided with another motor car at 113th and Madison in Paducah.

They were taken to the Clark Emergency hospital. Neither were hurt seriously, physicians said. Mrs. O. F. Croft, 60, Fulton, driver of one of the cars, escaped with cuts and bruises. Charles Butler, 17, of 1209 Hampton Avenue, Paducah, driver of the other car was uninjured.

New School Building Proposed at Fulton

The Fulton Board of Education is investigating plans for the construction of a new grammar and junior high school building here to replace Carr Institute, which is unable to accommodate the increasing enrollment. It is believed that federal aid can be obtained, but a bond issue would have to be made by the city to assist in the building program.

No More Rum Permits To Be Allowed Here

The mayor and city council of Fulton met in regular monthly session here Monday night. Following discussions of routine business matters, and approval of bills, an ordinance prohibiting the granting of further licenses to operate liquor dispensaries in Fulton was approved. Believing that the city has ample stores of this type, the council feels that the situation can be handled with more ease if no more permits are granted.

FULTON HAS ITS OWN SINGING MOUSE NOW

The "Singing Mouse" of radio and screen fame, which attracted so much interest for a while, but has passed on to "mouse heaven", now has a successor.

Mickey Mouse, named after the celebrated screen cartoon, makes his appearance at the Stephenson Grocery on Commercial, where he recently has been known by chirping like a canary bird. He is now in captivity, and is creating considerable interest here.

Mickey Mouse has longer ears and more whiskers than the mouse recently shown here on the screen. And when he sings he stands up like a squirrel. His popularity increases as his performances are heard and noted about the populace.

Slightly More Than 50% Cars Licensed

Slightly more than half of the car owners of Fulton County had purchased 1937 tags early this week, according to Claidie Holland, county court clerk. His records showed that a few over a thousand licenses for passenger cars had been sold, while the normal registration in this county is 1800 automobiles.

CITY DADS CAUCUS IN MEETING HERE

Following the regular session of the city council here Monday night, the board and mayor, went into a caucus to discuss plans for raising money to complete installation of the diesel plant here to provide water for the city. An interesting feature of the financial condition of the city, so money may be borrowed to complete installation of diesel engines, an audit of the city's books was deemed necessary before issuing bonds to pay off all notes and indebtedness.

Among other important business matters discussed, was the elimination of the street department, which could be operated as is done in several nearby cities. It was believed that this would save the city considerable expense, which saving could be applied elsewhere, and would eliminate the necessity of increasing taxes.

Installation of a diesel plant here is estimated, will save the city several thousand dollars each year in operation of the water works and on light and power used by the city. The council is endeavoring to work out a plan to carry forward construction work on the new plant as soon as possible. The plant would be erected across the street from the water works.

These checks are being paid to farmers for reducing cotton, tobacco and general soil depleting crops in 1936 and also for sowing of soil conserving crops on land that was taken out of cultivated crops.

This is about half of the checks that will be received in the county and all persons whose check has arrived at the county agent's office should receive their notice by the last of the week. If the person who receives a notice will bring this notice to the office it will be very helpful. The checks for farmers near Fulton will all be taken to Fulton on Saturday.

Farmers who did not make work sheets in 1936 and wish to enter the program for 1937 should come to the office at Hickman at once. This does not apply to those who participated in the 1936 program and later all signers will be notified to come and sign up.

Farmers wishing to make application for work sheets for the first time should bring the following information to the office when they come, total acres in farm acreage that was in cotton, tobacco and also the acres of all other cultivated crops that were raised in 1936 on this farm as well as the acreage that was growing grass and lespedeza.

All land should be tested before applying lime in order that the correct amount can be applied to grow the crop you wish to grow. This also might prevent some field being limed that is not acid and thus enable the person to use the lime on another field that would need the lime and thus pay much more for the money spent for lime. Experiments also show that where phosphate is applied with lime the crop yields are doubled in most instances.

Instructions have been received that farmers who have a Dark Fired tobacco base may now trade for a burley base if they wish to trade one acre of their dark tobacco base for one-half acre of burley.

Extra Care Suggested for Early Lambs, Pigs

Thousands of farm records have been studied in the farm economics department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture to learn how farmers succeed. One of the things which the investigators have found is that the best livestock raisers make heroic efforts to save early spring lambs and pigs. It is worth more to save an early lamb than one born later. From records studied, the following suggestions are made to sheep raisers:

Spend enough time in the care and housing of ewes and lambs during the lambing period to prevent chilling or freezing.

Separate the rams from the ewe flock before the lambing period.

Lessen the number of lambs born dead by providing enough space to prevent crowding of ewes when heavy with lambs.

The more prolific and profitable flocks are drenched periodically each year to prevent parasitic infestation.

Lessen the number of lambs born weak and starved to death by proper culling and selection of the ewes and the care of them before lambing.

From 2 to 6 years of age seems to be the most profitable period of ewes.

And here are the suggestions to hog raisers:

Know when the sows will farrow by keeping a record of breeding dates.

Provide adequate shelter at farrowing time.

Spend additional time in the care of the sows and pigs at farrowing time.

Follow sanitary practices, especially at farrowing and until the pigs are weaned.

Use care in feeding the proper ration just before and after farrowing. Alfalfa leaves make a good ration supplement.

"THE NEWS" WEEKLY SCRAPBOOK

FROM ISHTAR TO EASTER
CAKES

by Josephine Beardsley

In ancient Babylon, great feasts were held in the spring of the year to honor the annual homecoming of "Ishtar, Queen of Heaven." Ishtar, goddess of all growing things and the personification of the evening star we know as Venus, was worshipped by the women as the donor of beauty and all feminine virtues. Cakes made in her supposed image were eaten at her feast in the belief that those who partook of them would acquire her nature in some measure. When a Babylonian mother said to her young daughter, "Eat up all of your Ishtar cake, darling!" she was indulging in the same wishful thinking regarding curly hair, a clear skin, and a lovely figure that is associated in modern minds with spinach, carrots, and bread crusts—only Ishtar cakes were easier to put over.

The worship of Ishtar was never successfully stamped out by early Moslem leaders. The prophet Jeremiah complained bitterly about the "heathen" practice as follows: "Seest thou not what they do in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? The children gather wood and the fathers kindle the fire and the women knead their dough to make cakes to the Queen of Heaven; that they may provoke me to anger!" But, apparently, making cakes to the Queen of Heaven was such an attractive family rite that the Hebrews refused to give it up, for the making of Ishtar cakes continued far into the Christian era.

The name of the Teutonic goddess of fertility was "Austro" or "Ectre," whose feast was held in Nordic lands in April. The name of this springtime goddess is so like "Ishtar" that it seems probable that both names had a common origin in unrecorded history. At any rate, the coming of spring was so generally celebrated in the ancient world that when the annual commemoration of Christ's resurrection became an established custom in early Christian churches, the old pagan name clung to the occasion. Universal and timeless, human, rejoicing in the return of spring sunshine and the rebirth of all growing things may well be recognized at modern Easter feasts by a symbolic "Sunshine Cake," which we believe would delight even a Jeremiah.

SUNSHINE CAKE

1 1/2 cups sugar
6 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/4 teaspoon almond extract
1 1/4 cups egg whites (about 10)
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/4 cups soft wheat flour
Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Add flavorings. Beat egg whites until frothy. Add cream of tartar and salt. Continue beating egg whites until they point; fold one-half into egg yolk mixture. Add a little flour from the sifter, fold it in and repeat. Fold in remaining egg whites and pour batter into a large tube of spring-form pan and bake in slow oven (325° F.) about 1 hour. Invert pan and cool before removing cake. Frost with Easter Frosting.

EASTER FROSTING

2 egg yolks
4 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar
Grated rind of 1 orange
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons orange juice
Add orange rind and lemon and orange juice to egg yolks. Stir in the sugar until the mixture is of proper consistency for spreading.

GOLD CAKE

8 egg yolks
1 1/4 cups sugar
1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup milk
2 1/2 cups wheat flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder

Cream butter and sugar together until fluffy. Sift flour and baking powder together 4 times. Beat the egg yolks until thick and light, and add to butter-sugar mixture, stirring in thoroughly. Add flour alternately with milk, a little at a time. Add flavoring. Bake in 3 greased layer-cake pans in moderate oven (350° F.) 25 minutes. Put layers together with fruit filling and frost with Apricot Whip.

APRICOT WHIP FROSTING

1 cup apricot pulp
1/4 cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 egg whites
Pinch of salt
Put all ingredients into bowl and beat until mixture holds its shape. Chill and spread on cake. Other fruit pulp may be substituted for apricot.

HOW CAN I ???

Q. How can I drive a nail into plaster without marring the wall?
A. This can be done without crumpling the plaster if the nail is placed in a hot water for a few minutes, or dipped into melted paraffin.

Q. How can I launder a man's tie successfully?
A. Before washing the ties, bust them carefully to prevent the lining or padding from becoming lumpy. Remove the basting before ironing, and the ties will look as when new.

Q. How can I make a good toilet perfume?
A. A good toilet perfume can be made by mixing two ounces of alcohol with one-half ounce of orris root. Keep in a bottle tightly corked and shake well before using.

Q. How can I test eggs for freshness?
A. Place the egg in a pan of water. If fresh, it will lie on its side. If a few days old, it will tilt upwards. If stale, it will stand on end. If very old, it will float.

Q. How can I separate a water glass that has become stuck inside of another glass?
A. Pour cold water into the upper glass to contract it, and then immerse the lower glass in warm water to expand it. They can then be separated very easily.

Q. How can I make a good furniture polish?
A. A furniture polish can be made of one part vinegar, with equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine.

Q. How can I remove a broken cork that has slipped down into the bottle?
A. Pour in enough household ammonia to float the cork, let stand for a few days, and the cork will break into fine pieces, which can be removed without difficulty.

Q. How can I tighten the handle of an umbrella that has become loose?
A. Fill the hole in the handle with powdered resin, heat the rod, and then press firmly into the hole.

MAN PROPOSES

"Man proposes, God disposes." That ancient adage can be aptly applied to the problem of flood control.

First flood control measure in this country was taken by New Orleans in 1717. When a levee was built. First Federal action came in 1850 when Congress appropriated $50,000 for a survey of the Mississippi. Since that time billions of dollars have been spent by various units of government in attempts to curb the destruction caused by great rivers on a rampage. Since the great 1927 flood alone, several hundreds of millions of dollars have gone into dikes, levees, reservoirs. It was widely believed that the flood menace had at last been eliminated, at least so far as important centers of population were concerned. Then came 1937, and man-made devices again proved inadequate.

As a result, flood control, past, present and projected, has again become a national issue, is engaging the attention of public men and engineers alike.

Most flood control projects, as Nicholas Roosevelt writes in the New York Herald Tribune, "are dealing with results, not causes. They are seeking to curb the damage of the waters, not curb the waters themselves." If the waters are to be curbed, land now given to cultivation must be returned to grass and woods, in order to hold rain and prevent excessive run-off. Experiments have shown that where the run-off is a grazed cleared lot is nine percent, the run-off in a similar watershed is ungrazed and timbered will be as little as one-sixth of the percent.

Obvious question is, why, then, have we spent our millions for dams and levees and reservoirs when we might have curbed the water at its source?

In 1927, according to Time, army engineers pointed out that to reduce a Mississippi flood one foot would require the holding out of 7,000,000 to 11,000,000 acre-feet of water. If 8,000,000 acres of reforested land held back just a half-inch more water, than would flow off cultivated farm land, a flood would be reduced a half-inch and no more. Similar objections were brought out by the army to the building of headwater reservoirs—it was said that at least 1,000,000,000 would be required if spent for this purpose, to do as much good as $300,000,000 worth of levees.

This gives some idea of the magnitude of the problem. And the upshot is, according to Turner Catalogue of the New York Times, that it is now proposed to promote a coordinated, long-time program dealing with reforestation, up-stream control, prevention of soil erosion, etc. all measures which would steady the flow of water to the sea. The evidence is now complete that our past activities have been to scatter—rather than solve the problem—we must adopt the scientific approach. It is estimated that at least 20 years would be required to complete such a program.

In the meantime, 270 different control projects have been authorized, at a cost of $300,000,000 by the Flood Control Act of 1936. They will affect every state, and be located in 31 states. They include reservoirs for the Merrimack River Valley in Vermont and Massachusetts; levees along the upper Mississippi in Iowa, Illinois and Missouri; levees, reservoirs and debris basins in Southern California.

It has been widely forecast that this Congress would be quiet and peaceful, and would follow the President's wishes with little opposition.

But now the stage is set for one of the longest, most acrimonious and most important congressional battles in years. Cause is the President's message on changes he would like made in our judiciary system.

Certain phases of the message—such as the proposals to empower the Chief Justice to shift lower court judges about in order to expedite cases, and to lessen the time required to take cases involving Constitutional questions from lower courts to the Supreme—will meet with the agreement of almost everyone. But the big thing is the proposal that would authorize the President to appoint an additional Supreme Court Justice for every justice now on the court whose age is 70 or more.

That has split party lines wide open. Leading Democrat newspapers have come out against it. A Democratic bloc, under Senator Glass, has been organized to fight the measure. Influential Senator Norris, who sees eye to eye with the President in most matters, has expressed his disapproval.

It has long been known that the President has been considering various plans for curbing the power of the courts to annul laws passed by Congress. Now the issue is in the open at last.

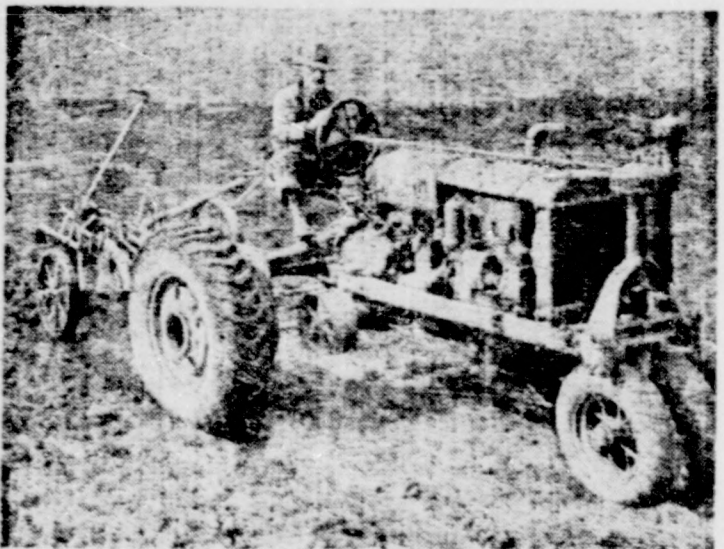

IT DOESN'T PAY

The average Fulton young man who is seized with wanderlust and a desire to wander and roam about the country most generally finds that such a life doesn't pay, and that he is far worse off when his spell of wanderlust wears off than he would have been had he remained at home. Roaming from one point to another costs him not only all the money he earns, but robs him of the permanent place he could have had in the society of his own people. It straps him an instable, and lessens his ability to secure a steady job. In industry he is rated as little better than a journeyman tramp. While effort to better one's condition is laudable, change is warranted only when a young man has mastered the job he has and is confident of his ability to do the next job better than it has been done. Only on this basis is one exempt from wanderlust. That familiar old saying that "a rolling stone gathers no moss" is just as true today as it was the day it was first spoken.

SAME OLD STORY

Not long ago a New York City girl wrote a letter to the editor of one of the newspapers there wanting to know why it is that young men and women "can come here from out west or down south can come here and get jobs when girls who have lived all their lives in New York cannot." Someone should tell her what a lot of people already know—that as long as energy, efficiency and ambition count, for anything these "out-of-towners" are going to keep right on doing it. Young men and women, ambitious for a larger life and fields that offer wider opportunities will continue to educate and equip themselves on the farms and in the smaller towns, and then when they are fully prepared they will step out and secure the best jobs. Writing to the newspapers can't alter that. Farm and small-town boys and girls have always been the backbone of this nation—and they doubtless always will be.

AUTOMOBILE STRIKES AFFECT EVERY STATE IN THE UNION

The automobile industry is one of America's largest buyers of raw materials and manufactured products. The map above shows a few of the principal products bought by motor manufacturers in each of the 48 states, at a total cost for 1936 estimated at more than $1,000,000,000. Significant as this is in indicating the nationwide effects of a strike, it is far from complete. Another map might show, state by state, the thousands of dealers and salesmen directly affected. There is no way to picture indirect losses in retail and government revenue through reduced taxes and increased

WATCH YOUR STEP

By I. B. Frank

I was told this week that all bids for contract to build the addition to the factory building to be occupied by the Henry I. Seigel Co., have been refused by the building committee because they were too high. Funds were found to be several thousand dollars short for construction work, and further action is temporarily delayed.

One public-spirited man proposed that he would prescribe the deficient amount, we are told, but nobody else poked up to make up the rest.

There's a rumor about town that Fulton will probably have a new ice cream parlor this summer. It is alleged that it will be strictly up to date, and a real cooling spot for the elite. It is said that only Swift ice cream—delicious—made-at-home in the local plant—will be served. Who believes in trade at home should find that interesting.

Fulton is to have a mill once more. This time a sawmill, where custom sawing will be done, and unfinished lumber will be turned out for patrons of Pierce-Cequin.

Found out the other day that South Fulton is paying for the take of a former administration, to the tune of $20,000 to $25,000. It came about when only 74.6% of the property owners were signed up instead of the required 75%. Before Central Avenue and another South Fulton street were surfaced. Therefore, the law by court test, said that property owners could not be charged front foot assessments. It all came about somewhere around 1923. It only goes to show that "the sure you are right, then go ahead."

Back in 1917 South Fulton issued $20,000 in school bonds. Up until 1931 when Clarence Stephens became Mayor, only $4,500 of that amount had been paid off, leaving $15,500 outstanding. Today there yet remain $6,000 of these bonds, and South Fulton Dads have on hand approximately $5,000 to clear up this indebtedness.

We are told that during the drive to collect taxes last November South Fulton offered a 2% discount, and rounded approximately $4,000. Then, of course, December showed a slump in collections; January was a little better; then February again brought the average up, for taxes become delinquent in March. Taxpayers in the south side are behind several thousand dollars, as most taxpayers are.

And speaking of taxes, outside of the Illinois Central, Swift & Co. is South Fulton's largest taxpayer, paying about 16% of the taxes, it is said. Maybe industries are getting away with some things in other cities, with free taxes, rent, power, etc., but South Fulton would indeed miss the support of Swift & Co., which is one of the twin-cities outstanding industries with a steady payroll. The poultry, dairy, and livestock interests brought better than three million dollars to Fulton in 1936, and that is the city's biggest asset.

Work stopped on the bridge across Harris Fork Creek on the street running from Lake to Third St. WPA work is being held up. But it seems that a certain WPA worker put in too much lip, when some cement was borrowed to get the job done. There's a lot of dirty work back of the business not yet revealed, but the City Dads are anxious to get the job done as soon as WPA work is started again.

A tip to merchants! Spring catalogs were mailed out to homes in this territory the past week by a large mail-order house, who believes in advertising. We might mention here, however, that local merchants have just as good values, and operate home-owned stores, and play a part in building our community. The thing for these merchants to do is to advertise the fact regularly through The News, your farm and home paper, where you readers can keep posted on merchandise and value.

Mayor Lowe of South Fulton recently announced the approval of the water works for South Fulton by the federal government. But work cannot be started yet because the project could not be completed by June. So further action depends upon whether the President adopts another WPA program.

PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN

Louis Kananow says children are losing their faith in fairy stories but their parents still believe in campaign promises.

According to Dick Hastings, the modern girl is always one of three things—hungry, or thirsty, or both. And the rains descended and the floods came and the man whose house was on high ground took care of his neighbor from the low water, as usual.

"It's easy to get rich quick," asserts Harry Reeves, "if you can find people willing to get poor quick." Uel Killebrew says maybe the reason some little girls are naughty is because they get a shingle in the wrong place. In this world, the good-looking women get talked about, and usually it's the ugly ones who do the talking.

"In running the government," says J. R. Graham, it's not the overhead that counts as much as it is the underhand."

As Charlie Stephenson has it figured out, every man is entitled to life, liberty and an automobile in which to pursue happiness.

It's a wonder high prices don't come down once in a while to on speaking terms with the country they are raised in.

Rural Retail Sales

Gain in January 1937

Daily average sales of general merchandise in small towns and rural areas for January were about 10 1/2 percent higher in dollar volume than for January 1936, and were 22 percent above those for the same month of 1935. These changes were revealed by preliminary estimates just received by the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department, based on rural chain store and mail-order sales. Sales for the year 1936 were about 13 1/2 percent above those for 1935.

BRIEF THOUGHTS

Another advantage in Fulton has over living in a big city is that here people come to see you when they don't want anything.

One snowflake is a creation of beauty, but a sidewalk full of them is an hour's work with a snow shovel.

Another thing worth remembering is that it's just as bad to be wrong at the right time as it is to be right at the wrong time.

Some Fulton husbands give their wives money allowances and others continue to leave their pants hanging over a chair.

A boom without increased production of wealth only means that one crowd is taking it away from another.

Visiting the sick is fun. They can't get away when you start in to tell about the sick spell you had.

When a Fulton woman can't find any place else to put a thing she holds it in her mouth.

An expert is a man who is able to explain things so thoroughly nobody can understand them.

A Southern editor declares that virtue is like a new car. After you get one dent in the fender a few more don't seem to matter.

One of the most miserable chaps on earth is the Fulton man with old-fashioned tastes and a very modern wife.

This day in time it doesn't pay to count your chicken—if you happen to live alongside a main-traveled auto highway.

The isms of the world seem to differ, but they all mean getting shot if you don't mind the boss.

Since a Chicago man claims to have proof that the world will come to an end in August our advice to Fulton people is to arrange to take their vacations in July.

The way the Chinese have been acting up we are in favor of China for the Chinese—until we can think of something worse.

Some Fulton men will brag on most anything, but you never hear one bragging that his conscience troubles him so he can't sleep at night.

PASSING INSTITUTIONS THE LINEN DUSTER

A few weeks ago a colleague of mine celebrated the marriage of her son by giving an infare, in the style of long ago. Many of the guests came dressed in old-fashioned clothing, but the one who received most attention was an elderly gentleman who wore a linen duster and carried a cane. The whole afternoon there fitted before my eyes visions of other men in linen dusters. Formerly all sorts of people wore linen dusters to protect their Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes, but by my time only preachers wore them. We children had not seen any priests in robes, but the linen duster took the place in our minds of all such regalia. We stood in awe of this robe, probably regarding it as the badge of sanctity. One retired preacher look particularly patriarchal in his duster, for he stood over six feet tall and had a long, flowing white beard like those of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the big family Bible that was never read but did form a decoration for the marble-topped center table and was useful for holding pressed leaves and flowers. When the presiding elder came, he was sure to be wearing a duster, too; and he needed one, for the roads in summer or winter were likely to be dangerous to the spotlessness of any kind of dress-up clothes. I recall still the shock I felt when the presiding elder, after an unusual denunciation of the Baptists, rather hurried out of the church and lit a strong-smelling pipe, to acquire a little more energy for the afternoon sermon. It was quite the thing for the country doctor and everybody else who represented the world, the flesh and that other fellow to pull on a cob pipe, but I failed to find any of the patriarchs in the Bible so engaged.

This mention of linen dusters reminds me of another institution that is passing, the circuit rider himself. Of course, the kind who rode over an area thousands of square miles in extent had practically disappeared before I could remember, but the holders of country charges still had some of the ways and illustrations of Lorenzo Dow and other famous wandering preachers. I suppose there were fat preachers, but I seem to remember only tall, angular ones, with flowing beards and piercing eyes. No wonder the wicked world trembled when they spoke of the worm that dieth not! We hear much of having faith, but no group of people we ever had depended more on faith than these traveling clergymen, who hardly knew a day ahead where they would be or what they should eat or what they should put on. They deserve some lasting memorial for the arduous work they did, often in rough pioneer settlements, where it was hardly safe to champion the right. Many a backwoodsman knew of the better things only through these picturesque missionaries of the faith. If they were taken rough-spoken, it seemed necessary to drive home their message to hardened hearts; if they probably affected a picturesqueness of gait or clothing, this helped to attract people to hear their messages. And thus a sight of a linen duster, lovingly preserved by descendants of a clergyman, brought back memories of strange old times full of dynamic forces and dynamic personalities.

LIKE STRIP FARMING

More and more farmers are shifting from old-fashioned farming methods that encouraged soil erosion to conservation farming practices that save the soil, says the Soil Conservation Service. A few years ago, some farmers needed a lot of encouragement to make the shift, but now they are beginning to alter their practices without any urging at all. For example, one farmer cooperating with the Service in South Carolina, recently requested a change in his agreement with the Service to allow strip cropping of 21 acres of his farm not required by the contract. Observation of results on neighboring farms had convinced him of the effectiveness of strip cropping.

IN MEMORY

In sad but loving memory
Of Our darling child,
Jackie and Carolyn Sue
Gambill who died Feb. 28, 1935.

Oh, Happy days we once enjoyed
How time their memory still,
But death came and left us lonely
That nothing can ever fill.
Nothing can ever take away,
The love our hearts hold dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps them near.
We still miss our dear children
from our home;
We miss them from their places.
A shadow over our lives is cast,
We miss the sunshine of their faces.

Devoted Parents.

noise they make in pouring it out—

TESTED RECIPE

By Frances Lee Barton

SINCE the blessed advent of up-side down cake, cooks have been busily inventing new varieties of this delicious combination of cake and fruit. Not the least inspired was the idea of cherry up-side down cake—the cake leavened to perfection with double-acting baking powder and crowned with a topping of luscious, juicy cherries.

Cherry Upside Down Cake

1½ cups sifted cake flour, 1½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar, 4 tablespoons softened butter or other shortening, 1 egg, well beaten, ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 4 tablespoons butter, ½ cup sugar, 1½ cups pitted and drained red cherries, fresh or canned.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and sugar, and sift together three times. Add butter. Combine egg, milk, and vanilla, add to flour mixture, stirring until all flour is dampened, then beat vigorously 1 minute.

Melt 4 tablespoons butter in 8-inch pan or 8-inch skillet, over low flame, add sugar and cook and stir until thoroughly mixed. On this arrange cherries. Turn batter out on contents of pan. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 20 minutes or until done. Loosen cake from sides of pan with spatula. Turn up-side down on dish with cherries on top. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired.

A RURAL PROBLEM

Few Fulton people realize that of 3,800,000 farmers in the U. S., 2,500,000 are "full tenants," renting the land they operate. Today Congress is preparing to remedy this, and to tackle what will probably be one of the toughest rural problems it ever sought to solve. With 42% of all farmers working land they do not own, Uncle Sam will seek some method whereby this high percentage can be reduced and while it is very desirable that every man who tills the soil should own all or a portion of that soil any plan looking to that end must be worked out and administered with due caution. Unless the greatest of care is taken, Uncle Sam will be left holding the bag and not only the tenants themselves but the land-owners as well will be in far worse shape than they are under the old system. It is a problem of vital interest to every taxpayer, and one that every taxpayer should watch with the closest interest.

THE FARM AND HOME

Money that is spent without a reasonable return in satisfaction is money wasted. Why should money that might be spent for recreation for instance, go for a light accidentally left burning all night, or for cheap dishes that were quickly broken.

A working library on homemaking problems is easily built up. Bulletins obtainable free from the late agricultural college, articles from farm magazines, and good advertising material may give a start. Many persons like to make a scrapbook or keep a card catalog of home beautification, gardens, foods, etc.

To be healthy means more than being physically fit. It includes mental reactions that are true, and having a wholesome, helpful attitude towards other people. Health depends on heredity and environment, but also upon a person's reactions to his environment.

To prevent food spoilage, watch the temperature, moisture and easy access to air where the food is stored. Cellars and refrigerators may largely control temperature. Foods such as milk and tomatoes, which spoil easily because of their large amount of water, must be handled carefully.

When children have a regular schedule of household work, they learn to plan for it and thus develop a sense of responsibility. As most people have to face difficult situations in adult life, it makes it easier if they have learned to carry their share of the load.

When laundering the baby's clothing, do it separately from the regular family laundry. A mild soap is preferable. Rinsing that is thorough removes all traces of the soap. The clothing of the older child may be washed with the regular laundry.

Governmental spending can be stopped any time Congress refuses to vote funds.

Obion County Held Series Farm Meetings

A series of farm meetings was held over Obion county this week to explain details of the 1937 Agricultural Conservation program. County Agent Franklin Yates said. Meetings were held at Bowers School Monday afternoon, Diele School Tuesday afternoon, Hornbeak School Tuesday night, Kenton School Wednesday afternoon, Elbridge School Thursday night.

A meeting will be held at the court house in Union City Friday afternoon, and another Friday night at the Moffat Building in Troy.

Farmers are expected, however, to visit the office sometime at their convenience, during the next few weeks to file their 1937 worksheet.

Little did I know that I was cut out to become an actor. The first sad thing that happened to me was the death of both my mother and my father. Here I was a real orphan, and I thank the good Lord for giving me wisdom of thought as soon as I was able to think. Some friend of my parents placed me in their grocery store as a delivery boy—when business was slow during harvest time he used to rent me out to some farmer. The bumble bees soon discovered that I was a stranger and they played on me like a flute—in fighting them with sticks I accidentally punctured a hornet's nest and right then I found out that I had made a mistake. No more farm life for me, said I to myself, and beat it to the railroad station—with one dollar in cash and a paid ticket I boarded the C. & A. for St. Louis. After getting a bird's eye view of a large city by working in a tobacco factory and seed store I started selling newspapers on a street corner near a theatre. Ah! That's the life! Soon I did small parts on the stage and later went into vaudeville when I became a headliner, playing all the leading theatres in the U. S. A., Canada and the principal cities in England, Ireland, Scotland and South Africa. I have been in every branch of the show business—from Burlesque to Opera, from Super to Star. I am seventy-three years old, still hale and hearty and have just completed a manuscript for a two reel comedy which I hope you good people will see on the screen of your home town theatre in the near future. It is entitled "What A Woman".

"Mr. Hart, let me interrupt you by asking a few questions—have you appeared in pictures in Hollywood?"

A. Yes, I worked in forty-nine talking pictures but haven't had a word to say yet.

Q. What were some of the larger pictures you worked in?

A. "The House of Rothschild."

Q. Why I saw "The House of Rothschild" but I never saw you in it.

A. Well, I suppose the day you went to see the picture I was in the House.

Q. Mr. Hart, I understand that you and the late Will Rogers were quite good friends?

A. Yes, for many years Will Rogers and I enjoyed a very warm friendship. Soon after I came to Hollywood I dropped Will a note, telling him of my arrival here and I have his reply through his secretary, and a postscript by Will himself.

Here is a copy of the letter:
November 9, 1933
Billy Hart,
Hollywood, Calif.
Dear Billy:
Your recent letter was brought to Mr. Rogers' attention and he asked me to write you and tell you he is not working on a picture just now, but is home most of the time, and for you to come out and see him.

Yours truly,
Secretary to Will Rogers
P. S. The gate is locked but the keeper is advised to pass you in.
Q. Mr. Hart, that is a privilege few enjoyed.

A. Yes, that is true. We have always exchanged courtesies in the many branches of our social and professional lives. No finer man ever lived than Will Rogers.

Do you know about
ELECTRIC COOKERY

IT GIVES you meals that are more savory and healthful because all nourishing juices and tasty flavors are retained in cooking.

It saves you much time and work in preparing meals because automatic controls relieve you of constant watching as foods cook. You can go away for hours and find your dinner ready to serve when you return.

It is economical because all heat is used to cook . . . because meats and vegetables are cooked in their own juices and do not shrink . . . because electricity for cooking is only 2c per kwh.

It is very clean because heat is produced without fuel, flame, fumes, smoke, smudge.

It is unusually cool in summer because the range is heavily insulated to retain oven heat . . . because surface "burners" apply heat directly against bottom of cooking utensils.

Whenever you say, we'll be glad to tell you the whole wonderful story of electric cookery . . . and how you can enjoy its many advantages as you pay for your electric range on easy terms. . . . Why not tomorrow?

Uncle Mack Pounds, who has been confined to his bed for several weeks, is slowly improving.

Friends and relatives of Hascol Smith were checked on last Saturday night, when they received word that he had been thrown from a horse, seriously hurt and died on the following day, having sustained a fractured skull. He was removed to the home of his mother, Mrs. MacArthur, near Latham, and was buried at Pagan on Monday. We as friends, extend our sympathy to the family.

Among the number delivering tobacco from near Dukedom last week were: Klyce Parker, Lesley Carter, Edith Nott, Chelsey Morrison, Charley Griffin, and Robert Woodruff. All received very good prices.

Welch school closed its grammar grade on Monday of this week. Think most of the teachers were glad, as they have been working under difficulties this year. The school building burned in September. We take this method of thanking the good people of the Methodist church of Dukedom for giving us permission to use the church for a school building this winter. We are looking forward to the Fall opening in a new brick building.

FULTON GIRL

WRITES ESSAY

LET'S BE SAFE

By Mary Ethel Allen, Age 13
Carr Institute, Fulton, Ky.

Statistics show that in our country more than 39,000 people are killed and wounded each year by automobile accidents. Many of these deaths may be prevented by strict traffic rules and regulations, and strict observance of them. One death in the form of a drunken driver may add to its own death the death of a whole family. The only preventative is wholehearted cooperation on the part of every man, woman, and child living in the United States.

The amount and nature of traffic is constantly changing, growing to larger and larger dimensions. To produce the maximum of safety, our traffic laws must "fit" or take care of this particular time. It would seem, as one examines the statistics of deaths, that many of the need- less and tragic deaths could be avoided by revising the old and creating new and better rules.

I would offer the suggestion that all persons who drive automobiles, who are in the habit of using intoxicating liquors should be forced by the state laws to pay a certain tax which shall be used to pay the hospital bills of persons injured in automobile accidents. This may prove embarrassing to the persons (whom I may concern), however, it is the duty of these drivers as a whole to prepare for the care of the persons who are killed and injured every day as the result of their drunkenness and carelessness. Surely they are responsible.

This would also save much embarrassment for the innocent victims of the poorer classes, who may be wounded, or killed, by a driver who has not the means with which to pay for the results of his own negligence. A spirit of mutual helpfulness and mutual benefit would do much to unite the people into a great cooperative force whose chief aim is justice for all.

To further safeguard against accidents, our street corners should be more carefully watched. On the corner where my home is located, a highway intersects a busy street. One of the stop signs from the street to the highway has been removed. This makes a difficult crossing. One can never tell whether to wait, or to cross ahead of the cars on the highway. There is an average of one wreck a week on this particular corner. It seems to me that both of the stop signs should be placed where the street intersects the highway, instead of one on the highway and one on the street, as this creates confusion.

We know of the needless tragedies which are enacted on our city streets and highways. We do not know but that tomorrow, it may be one of our loved ones whom death

Deliberation Versus "Rush and Jam"

By RAYMOND PETTICORN

National Chairman
Senate of the Republic

Probably the most widespread criticism of Congress during the past few years has been based on the eagerness of its members to speed new and unfamiliar measures through the legislative hall.

"Rush and jam" has too frequently been the method instead of careful study and consideration of all bills which influence the public welfare.

During recent weeks, however, Congress appears to have shown a different attitude. Measures affecting fundamental principles of our government are being subjected to scrutiny and study by various Senators and Representatives who have not hesitated to express either approval or disapproval and the reasons therefor.

Many have thus resorted to their right to express their own opinions and the opinions of the men and women they represent, regardless of party affiliations.

To all citizens who regard members of both House and Senate as their representatives at Washington, this evidence of politically independent judgment is encouraging. To all Americans it means a stronger voice in government.

Rushing a measure through Congress gives the people little opportunity to understand its purpose and effect, or to let their will be known.

Reasonable study and discussion, in contrast, clarifies the issues involved—not only to members of the Congress, but to the people as well.

After all, it is we, the people, for whom government is organized, and who are helped or injured by its actions. If it is we, the people, who bear its burdens and pay its bills, it is to us that our elected officials must answer. And Congress should realize that it will rise in public esteem to the extent that it recognizes these facts and lets us know just what our government is planning to do.

The business session was presided over by the president during which time reports were made by the different officers. The program was in charge of Miss Sue Clements who gave an article on "How the Band Grew Up." The following musical program was presented:

"I WANTED THE KIND OF STORY I'D GET A THRILL DIRECTING!"

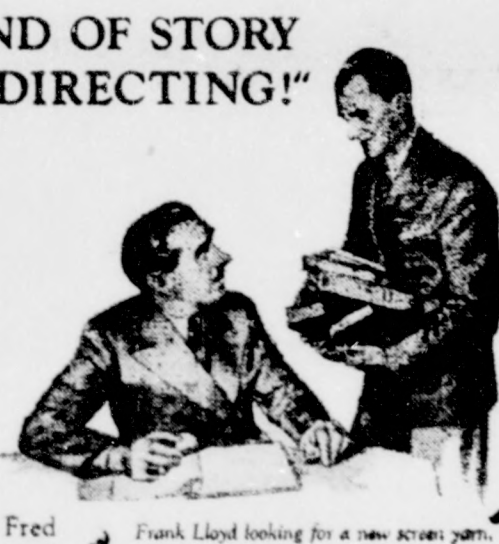

said FRANK LLOYD

(Director of "Maid of Salem", "Cavalcade", "Mutiny on the Bounty")

"Ever since 'Mutiny on the Bounty' swept the country I'd been looking for another yarn with the same sweep and power, the kind I get a kick out of. I found such a yarn... 'Maid of Salem'!"

"For its strong lead roles I was able to cast Claudette Colbert, as the stout-hearted little 'Maid of Salem', and Fred MacMurray, as her swashbuckling sweetheart."

"The result is, I think, the most powerful, most authentic of all my productions, and, I think you will agree with me, that for sheer entertainment 'Maid of Salem' tops them all."

A typical Frank Lloyd action scene... a bunch of hardboiled cowboys pitting their strength against one tough lad and his flashing sword.

Historical role since "The Texas Rangers", a swashbuckler Southern gentleman who can carve his way with a good steel blade.
