Work on Streets Will Start Soon As Possible

All Streets Included In Improvement Program. Some are Already Signed Up. Committees Hard at Work.

The street improvement project, dear to the hearts of all loyal citizens of Fulton, was featured at an adjourned meeting of the city council Monday night with Mayor Shankle presiding and all councilmen present. The meeting was largely attended by interested property owners and representative citizens.

To an onlooker it reminded one of a large family circle with each and every one expressing himself freely, even entering the "family closet" with pointed and direct questions which were freely answered, and before the meeting adjourned every one in attendance was more thoroughly acquainted with city affairs, as they should be.

It was thoroughly explained why the city could not go forward with their part of financing the street improvement program this year, being financially embarrassed, which was received with the full understanding that the property owners pay for all of the intersections instead of the city paying half the cost of intersections.

New street petitions were given the committees Tuesday, representing various streets throughout the city and are being signed up in an effort to lose as little time as possible in pushing the work through. It is hoped that all petitions will be in the hands of the city clerk to be read at the regular monthly session of the city council Monday night, June 4.

Paved city streets and improved highways leading to the city, affect the growth and prosperity of the community in many ways.

In the first place, cost of upkeep of an unimproved street or highway is much greater than if the thoroughfare were paved.

The entire surface of a paved street is usable; that is, there are not two lines or ruts which paving increases the capacity of streets and highways.

Paving enhances property values and acts as an inducement for home owners to improve the appearance of their grounds and houses, making that street a more pleasant place to live on.

Paved streets make a city more desirable from an industrial standpoint, for a factory or any business which requires hauling will naturally pick a town where hauling can be done most speedily and economically.

We are no longer living in the days of the old walled cities. Good roads, good streets and rapid locomotion have annihilated time and distance and virtually made the whole world kin.

On the threshold of a new era, Fulton rises to improve the golden moment of opportunity, to grasp the good within its reach and let's all work harmoniously together to make our city a more delightful place in which to live.

PROMINENT CAYCE CITIZEN PASSES AWAY

John Sloan a prominent citizen of Cayce, passed away Monday at 11 a. m. at the age of 67 years.

He is survived by his widow, four sons, two daughters and one brother. The funeral service was held Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the Methodist church in Cayce, conducted by Rev. Cooley, and burial followed in the church cemetery, in charge of the Fulton Undertaking company.

Second Annual

Opening of Fulton Country Club, June 7.

The second annual opening of the Fulton Country Club, Thursday, June 7, promises to be one of the most enjoyable event of the season.

Features of the day will be a gunshot in the morning and in the afternoon a golf tournament for the men while the ladies are engaged at bridge and croquet. Gypsy Tea at 5:30. In the evening a delightful dance with music by a splendid orchestra.

All stockholders of the Woodland Land Company and all members of the Fulton Country Club are allowed to invite one couple. The Fulton Country Club is one of the best in the country and the scene of many delightful social functions.

The golf course is better than 3300 yards long with nine holes, par 36.

Notice Democrats!

Notice is hereby given to all Fulton County Democrats that a convention will be held at the Court House in Hickman, Ky., on Saturday, June 9th, 1928, at two o'clock, for the purpose of appointing seventeen delegates to the Democratic State convention to be held at Lexington, Ky., on June 14, 1928.

BARD HOME BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bard on Jefferson street was badly damaged by fire Monday. All of the household goods in the upper story were destroyed and the furniture and household goods on the first floor badly damaged by water. Mr. and Mrs. McClain also suffered the loss of their goods which had just been unpacked. They are a newly married couple who had just moved into the Bard home.

KENTUCKY BOY WINS ORATORICAL CONTEST

Washington, D. C.—James R. Moore, of Somerset, Ky., Saturday night won the national oratorical contest. Elliott Norquist, Kansas City, Mo., was second, and Charles J. Olson, Worcester, Mass., third.

Moore's topic was "The Development of the Constitution." As a result of his victory he will represent the United States in the international oratorical contest in which nine other countries will compete.

Revival Meeting Starts Sunday at Riceville Church

J. J. Owen, well known church worker of Fulton, has made arrangements with the Rev. C. E. Horton, of Clarksville, Tenn., to conduct a Revival meeting at the Riceville Methodist Church, Rev. Walker, pastor, beginning Sunday morning, June 3, and continuing two weeks.

The Rev. Horton is not a stranger to the people of Fulton. He formerly resided here, but for the past ten years has made his home in Clarksville. He is a fluent speaker and all who attend the services will enjoy the inspirational messages he will deliver.

Mr. Wayne Lamb, who is also well known to the people of this vicinity, will direct the singing.

All are cordially invited to attend the meeting and receive a spiritual blessing.

Services at 8 o'clock in the evening and 2:30 in the afternoon.

DECORATION DAY IN FULTON

Fairview, the city of the dead, never presented a more beautiful appearance than it did on last Sunday. It was Decoration Day and practically every grave was remembered with fragrant flowers, expressive of love and sweet remembrance of the silent sleeper beneath the sod.

It is a beautiful custom—this one of decorating the graves of our loved ones. People came from far and near with lovely flowers to place on the graves and many eyes were dimmed with tears and hearts made to beat fast as thoughts of bygone days passed through the mind.

Predominating in the decorations was the crimson roses of love, the white ones of innocence, the pink and cream of devotion, the carnation of never dying memory, and the lilies of purity.

So Decoration Day in Fulton will long linger in the memory of all who visited beautiful Fairview Sunday.

SPLENDID SKILL SHOWN BY PUPILS OF MISS HUDDESTON

Pupils of Miss Doris Huddleston were heard in a thoroughly enjoyable musical program Monday evening at the Chamber of Commerce. An exceptionally well chosen program was beautifully given by the pupils displaying exceptional technique and true feeling.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Beadles assisted, and delighted the audience with her lovely soprano voice. The program included these numbers:

Miniature Valse (Mildred Adair) Ann Valentine.

Sparkling Fireflies (Jane Mattingly) Judith Hill.

The Little Toe Dancer (Matthilde Bilbro) Mary Moore Windsor.

Duet—West Wind March (Paul Bliss) Ann Valentine, Maurice Bailey.

Morning Echoes (Bert R. Anthony) Virginia Meacham.

Funeral March of the Dwarf King (Vernon Eville) Mary Betty Koehn.

Whippoorwill—Schottische (Keathly) Maurice Bailey.

Voice—The Bird with a Broken Wing (Golson), and The Star (Rogers) Miss Beadles.

Moonlight Barcarolle (Smith) Martha Brady.

Indian Smoke Dance (Metz) Rebecca Brann.

Russian Romance (Rudolf Friml) James Wallace Gordon.

Marche Barlesque (Ernest Adams) Almeda Huddleston.

Morning Mood (Grieg) Cordelia Brann.

Voice—If I But Knew (Wilson G. Smith) and Roadways (Edith Rose) Miss Beadles.

Noveltie in B Minor (Schumann) Agatha Gayle.

Juba (Nathaniel Dett) A characteristic Negro dance by a Negro composer. The orchestra probably consists of a single fiddler, who, forgetful of self in the hilarious excitement of the hour, does the impossible in the way of double stopping and bowing.—Mary Hughes Chambers.

Berceuse and Scherzo (Palmgren) Sarah Butt.

Quartet—Rondo Caprice First Piano—Mary Hughes Chambers, Agatha Gayle.

Second Piano—Sarah Butt, Cordelia Brann.

FORMER FULTON CITIZEN IS DEAD IN AKRON

Mrs. Jim Ross passed away Monday morning at her home in Akron, O. She was a daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ross who live on Cleveland Avenue. The remains were brought to her old home near Austin Springs for burial. Many friends who knew her in her old home, and in Fulton, regret her passing.

Strong Supporting Cast For Dix in New Picture

The complete cast of Richard Dix' new Paramount starring picture "The Gay Defender" directed by Gregory La Cave under the supervision of B. F. Zeidman and arriving at the Grand next Monday and Tuesday was announced today by Mr. Jones, manager of the Grand Theatre.

Dix has the role of Joaquin Murrieta, colorful bandit figure in early California history. Jerry Mandy plays his faithful servant, Chombo; Robert Brower, his uncle, Don Ferdinand Murrieta, and Harry Holden, the padre, Sebastian.

Thelma Todd is featured as Dix' leading woman in the character of Ruth Ainsworth, daughter of United States Commissioner Ainsworth played by Fred Esmelton. Frances Raymond has the role of Miss Emily Ainsworth, aunt to Miss Todd.

Villainy is represented by Fred Kohler, "the wolf of the screen" who portrays Jake Hamby, American desperado and gold-seeker. He is abetted by Ernie S. Adams as Bart Hamby, his snivelling brother.

"The Gay Defender" an original story by Grover Jones, was adapted and scenarized by Ray S. Harris, Sam Mintz and Kenneth Raisbeck. The story of California in the days of the "forty-niners" is one of the finest things that has left Hollywood in some time, doubtless due to the fact that Dix and La Cava who made "Womanhanded," "Let's Get Married," "Say it Again" and "Paradise for Two" were reunited for the first time in more than a year.

WESTERN ACE USES NATIONAL PARK AS MOVIE BACKGROUNDS

Tom Mix Believes in Spreading the Glory of America's Scenic Wonders by Means of Motion Pictures as Best Way to Reach all Classes of People.

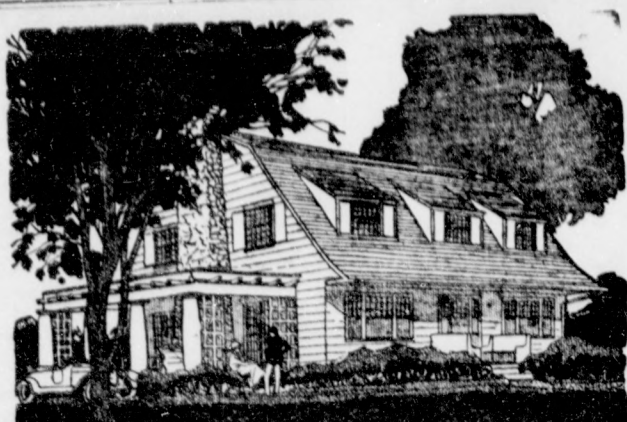

"See America First" has been the cry of travel companies for years, but it remained for Tom Mix, famous Western star, to open up the vast scenery of the Western states in such a manner as to enable rich and poor alike to enjoy the beauties of nature from an easy chair in a motion picture theatre.

It was during the filming of his latest Fox production, "Hello Cheyenne!" coming to the Orpheum Monday and Tuesday that Mix made known his intentions. He can in this way give everybody a chance to see the beauties and grandeur of America's scenery, creating a greater appreciation of their own country.

"Every location used in my pictures," says Mix, "will be given screen credit, stating just where it is. In this way every theatre patron will know just what he is witnessing."

Among the National Parks used in Mix productions are the Yosemite, Yellowstone, Rainier, Crater Lake, Zion, Glacier, General Grant and others having scenery adaptable to motion picture production.

"Hello Cheyenne!" his latest, is said to abound in scenic beauties, having been filmed in the rugged splendors of Arizona. Caryl Lincoln plays the feminine lead in this picture with much charm and distinction. Jack Baston, Joseph Girard, Al St. John and Martin Faust also have important roles. Gene Forde directed.

BELOVED GIRL IS VICTIM OF DEATH

After an illness of nine days, Miss Lurlyn Porter Goldsby, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Goldsby, fell asleep to await the resurrection morn. Saturday afternoon, May 19, at her home on Carr street, and today her wide circle of friends are grief stricken with her parents and loved ones.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at the First Baptist church, conducted by her pastor, the Rev. C. H. Warren, who paid a beautiful tribute to her memory. Interment followed in the mausoleum at Fairview in charge of the Fulton Undertaking Co.

The deceased was a member of the Junior High school and a favorite in her class. The following schoolmates were the pallbearers: Harold Howard, Robert Binford, James Warren, Clanton Boyd, Blount Trevathan, Avery Handcock, Juana Mays, Beeler Jackson, Harold Haywood, Gene Moon, Clyde Stephenson, Carl Jones.

The floral offerings were many and beautiful, but not more beautiful than the silent sleeper.

Besides her parents, she is survived by one sister, Miss Annie Lucile Goldsby, of London; one brother, Rev. Hoyt Porter, of Baltimore, Md., a grandfather, Rev. T. H. Porter, of Senatobia, Miss.

Lurlyn was a faithful member of the First Baptist church, and will be sadly missed in church circles where she was loved by the entire membership.

Luscious Strawberries

The editor was the recipient of a luscious box of strawberries Wednesday presented by Jack Matthews, of near Pierce, Tenn. They were of the Aroma variety and deliciously sweet.

Mr. Matthews will harvest two acres this year and says his crop is exceedingly fine. Next year he contemplates a five acre crop.

We appreciate the treat, Mr. Matthews, and wish you every success in growing berries. The box you gave us was finest of the season and the flavor delicious.

Mr. Matthews will have a continuous crop to gather throughout the month of June.

W. K. HALL PASSES AWAY IN CALIFORNIA

Former Fulton Citizen and Prominent Lumber Dealer

W. K. Hall, prominent citizen and lumber dealer of Fulton for more than 38 years, but for the past four years a resident of California, died at his home in Long Beach, Thursday, May 17. Funeral services and interment took place there Saturday.

Mr. Hall was a native of Columbus, Hickman County, Ky. Born in 1857. He came to Fulton in 1881 and in 1886 actively engaged in the lumber business. Four years ago he sold his business to the Kramer Lumber company and removed with his wife to California.

During his residence here Mr. Hall contributed as much towards the city's advancement as any other one man. He was one of the leaders instrumental in establishing the Fulton Building & Loan Association, today a $1,500,000 institution with an outstanding reputation as being one of the best in the entire state. Mr. Hall's long experience in the lumber business made him almost an indispensable counsellor in every building project here.

He and his estimable wife, who was Miss Anna McCall before marriage, were prominent members of the best social circles of the city. Mr. Hall was a leading member of the Christian church and took an active part in its activities. He was also a member of the Knights of Honor and other local organizations.

Fulton friends are deeply grieved over his passing and extend sympathy to the bereaved widow and his brother John Hall, of Louisville, who survives him.

PIANO AND VOICE RECITAL

Mrs. R. S. Matthews presented her class in a piano and voice recital at the Chamber of Commerce Saturday night at 8 o'clock. There was a large crowd out to enjoy this well rendered program. The room was very tastefully decorated with baskets of roses, peonies and ferns for the occasion.

Each one of the fifty members, which were comprised of piano solos, duets, trios and quartets (two pianos being used for several numbers) also vocal solos, duets, trios and quartets, were rendered with such expression and rhythm, as to be a source of pleasure to their hearers as well as their faithful teacher who, by her untiring efforts, made this program a success. The beautiful table and floor lamps in connection with the flowers, lent a soft glow to the surroundings.

"Romance vs. Real Estate," Martha Taylor.
"Polichinelle" (Rachmaninoff) Maudelle Jones.

APPROPRIATE DISPLAY

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week P. H. Weeks' Sons dry goods store is having a special window display for the American Legion, to help in the sale of the Poppy.

Looking at this display you are reminded very forcibly of the disastrous events of the World War, which are still going on in many a war veteran's home. Here in Fulton where we do not actually see the needs of these sick, non-compensated ex-soldiers, it is hard to believe such needs really exist, but where there is a Government hospital, where there is a little desolate farm, unworked because of a grave not so very old in France, or where there are men without their arms, eyes, legs, or with their health gone, casualties of the World War, here you'll really see the needs of these men. That is where your donations for the little red Poppy are going.

The Auxiliary wishes to take this opportunity to thank Messrs. Lewis and Leslie Weeks for their kindness in preparing this window and to express our appreciation for the aid it has been, and will be, to us in the sale of the Poppy on Saturday, May 26th.

W. F. Lamb Victim of Heart Attack

The friends of W. F. Lamb, well known piano dealer of Cairo, were shocked to learn of his sudden death, early Tuesday morning. He recently conducted a piano sale in this city at the Rucker's Music Shop, and had often visited Fulton.

BEELERTON

Several came out to see the play last Saturday evening that was to have been given at the Beelerton High school auditorium by the Pep Show Co., of Mayfield. But the players did not come, which was quite a disappointment to a number of people.

A great deal of interest is being shown in the Wesley Sunday school. A contest is now running between the Blues and Reds and last Sunday the Blues were one ahead in attendance. Everyone come out and boost your side.

Mrs. Robert Vance, of Tucson, Arizona, is now visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Hardin. Mr. and Mrs. Vodie Hardin, of Fulton were also guests there Sunday.

Mrs. Joe Duke attended the bedside of her little grand-daughter, Norma Joyce Kimbro, in Mayfield last Thursday. Little Norma Joyce had bronchial pneumonia but is improving now.

Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Bushart spent Thursday in Paducah at the I. C. hospital, where Mrs. Bushart is under treatment of a specialist.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Dixon, of Shiloh, spent the week end with relatives here. Mrs. Josie Phelps accompanied them home for a short visit.

Mr. Enoch Walker has returned home from Louisville, where he has been engaged in work for the past few months.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bowlin are the proud parents of a boy born Tuesday, May 22.

Miss Ima Fite was the Saturday night and Sunday guest of Misses Mary B. and Margaret Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. John Pharis had as their guests, Sunday, Mr. Robert Floyd and family, from near Croley, Mr. Virgil Pharis and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bennett.

Mr. and Mrs. John Howell and children were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Hicks.

Mrs. R. W. McAlister is still greatly improved at this writing.

Mr. Otis Bushart and family were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alzo Hicks, Sunday. Mrs. Will Pillow visited with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fite, Sunday.

Miss Nelle Wright is spending a few days in Hickman with Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Nall. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Robey, of Fulton, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. John Robey. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fite were Saturday night and Sunday guests of her mother, Mrs. Edd Bryan.

Mr. and Mrs. Rich Gardner had as their guests, Sunday, Mr. Ben Clifton and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fate Byrd had as their guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Bratton, of Clinton, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Byrd, Mr. and Mrs. Linward Pharis and daughter, Maloi.

Miss Pauline Brown has been spending a few days in Murray, with her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Drua Raymer and attending the commencement exercises there. Miss Jewell Robey also visited her sister, Rebecca, there, and attended the graduation exercises.

Children's Day services will be held at Wesley church, Sunday morning. Everyone come and see the little folks in what they really enjoy.

Saving Time

The speeding up of freight transportation is a notable example of the many improvements made in railway service in recent years. Nowadays nearly all freight trains operated between important commercial centers move on fast schedules, and ontime arrival at destination is a rule to which exceptions are few.

Time is an important element in business. Faster freight service has the effect of bringing buyer and seller closer together. It lessens the amount of material tied up in transit at any given time, and it speeds up business in general. Moreover, when railway freight service is both fast and dependable, as it now is, the necessity for storing large stocks is obviated. Producer, manufacturer, merchant and consumer benefit.

On the other hand, the cost of providing dependable fast freight service is greater than the cost of providing no less dependable but slower service. That is because the fast train must carry a smaller load in order to maintain its schedule and because it must run as scheduled whether a maximum load is available for movement or not.

While the railroads have been striving to improve their service and increase its efficiency in this and other ways, a sustained effort has been made by shippers and the general public to have railway freight rates reduced. This effort has been largely effective. Through rate adjustments, here on one commodity and there on another, the whole trend of freight rates in recent years has been downward. It is obvious that these adjustments downward cannot continue indefinitely without seriously affecting the ability of the railroads to give fast and otherwise good service.

As the principal beneficiaries of good service and low rates, shippers and the general public must make an important choice. If further rate reductions are most desired, there must be a sacrifice in the quality of railway service. If good service is most desired, there must be a postponement of further rate reductions.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

Clean heat

No black kettles
to scour!

How much pleasanter cooking is, when there are no black pots and pans to scour afterward! Every woman who cooks with a Perfection Oil Stove is spared that horrid nuisance.

There is never a speck of soot. For in the long chimneys, every drop of oil is completely burned before the heat reaches the cooking.

Soot, as you know, is half-burned kerosene—just wasted heat. With Perfections you have real fuel economy, as all the oil is changed into cooking heat. They burn only kerosene, the safe household fuel.

Miss Allen says—

"Utensil bottoms are free from soot when cooking is done on the Perfection Stove."

POULTRY

CHARCOAL OF BIG VALUE TO FOWLS

We have been told by Dr. D. E. Knapp, V. D., poultry nutritionist and avian pathologist, North Carolina university, that charcoal has a purpose of preventing digestive derangement, as is so well recognized not only in human but also in veterinary science. It has its part in preventing harmful fermentations, absorbing poisonous gases, and thereby holds in check diarrhea.

"There are many flocks of hens that have a tendency to diarrhea or looseness of the bowels. Such flocks should benefit from charcoal treatment. In many flocks of brooding chicks bowel trouble is prevalent. There may be an unnatural fermentative condition of the stomach and bowels and a tendency to indigestion as shown by the fact that the feed remains in the crop instead of passing on, and diarrhea may follow, or the chick may die of indigestion. Here is another case where I would recommend charcoal as a digestive corrective. There is no question, either from a scientific standpoint or from a practice feeding standpoint, but that the presence of charcoal in the digestive tract has a corrective effect upon digestion."

Now hear what Dr. W. F. Holst, nutrition specialist, poultry division of the University of California, has to say:

"Much investigational work has been carried out in order to demonstrate the benefit of charcoal feeding, but with no success. It is certain that the absorbing power of charcoal has been much overemphasized. Even if present the absorbing power would be of questionable value. Charcoal feeding for poultry should be given up as an unnecessary expense, just as it has been abandoned in human dietetics, where it was formerly recommended."

Ventilation Essential in the Poultry House

Ventilation is an essential in the poultry house if the flock is to be kept healthy and in production. Ventilation is best provided through an open front on the south side. For the average farm poultry house one square foot of opening on the south is sufficient for each ten square feet of floor space in the house.

Care must be taken in ventilating the house that no drafts are permitted. The birds can stand a lot of cold, but they soon develop colds and rump if exposed to drafts.

Properly ventilated houses will be free from ~~pests and diseases~~. If these conditions are present it will be well to look to ventilation.

Inbreeding in Mating Turkey Flock Is Bad

It is considered safest to avoid inbreeding in mating flocks of turkeys, and it is a general rule to use unrelated stock in an effort to produce poults with as much natural vigor and resistance to disease as possible. However, mating a vigorous young turkey tom back to the old hens might produce poults of good quality. Of course, he would only be closely related to one of the hens in the flock. The amount of inbreeding that can be carried on safely can only be determined by the breeder himself as he knows the pedigree and the vigor of the flock.

Poultry Notes

Good heavy oats make a fine feed for poultry, and especially if mixed with a little corn and wheat.

The roup season is on. Guard against dampness, and drafts. If you would keep your flock healthy and on the job.

Cabbage is rich in the green material needed by laying hens. About six pounds of cabbage may be fed per hundred birds per day.

Hens in the breeding flock should be allowed out of doors in direct sunlight during the winter and encouraged to take plenty of exercise.

One of the important essentials for high egg production in the poultry flock is that the hens be kept comfortable.

To insure absolute dryness the poultry house should be located on porous well-drained soil on a slope, preferably to the south or southeast.

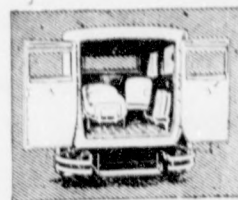

Hens can withstand extremely cold weather if their house is dry and well ventilated. The floor should be well littered so that the birds do not come in contact with the cold floor.

Electric lights in winter is a way of making things natural for hens, who do more work with longer days.

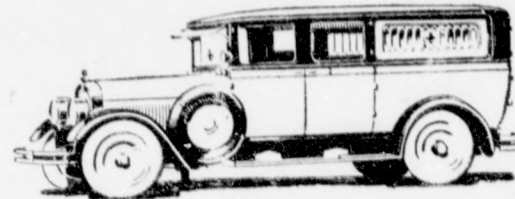

Egg laying is the prime object for which poultry is kept. The females must possess the egg-laying characteristic if we wish our poultry to pay.

Roup acts like a bad cold. There is first a watery discharge from the eyes, with an offensive smell, then the eyelids stick together and swell and there may be sores on the face and comb.

KENTUCKY FOR SMITH BUT IS SILENTLY SO

Democrats Expected to Send Uninstructed Delegates

Louisville, Ky.—What will Kentucky Democrats do with respect to a presidential selection at their state convention on June 14? The question must remain unanswered until that time for the matter remains in the realm of speculation and the situation is not expected to clarify until the party gathering is held at Lexington.

A good guess at this time would be that Kentucky will send an uninstructed delegation to the national convention at Houston, Texas, with supporters of Governor Alfred E. Smith predominating in the membership.

That plan meets with the approval of the Smith adherents and as a move of party expediency it is being favored as the best way to avoid or minimize friction in the convention. The situation is extremely ticklish and while being handled with gloves is for the most part being allowed to take care of itself.

Admittedly Al Smith is the overwhelming choice of Kentucky Democrats who have voiced an opinion in the presidential race, but the politicians seem unable to gauge the silent element that while it is counted against Smith, appears to be for nobody else.

Little Cordell Hull Strength
Naturally Kentucky Democrats might be expected to warm up to Congressman Cordell Hull of Tennessee, as their presidential favorite, but his name rarely is mentioned, and if he has any strength it is being kept under cover. Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, has only a negligible following in this state, a Woodrow Wilson stronghold, due to the fight he waged against the late president.

Kentucky has a block of 26 votes that may play an important part at Houston, but if anybody is making any serious drive to get them it has never appeared on the surface. If any money is being spent in Kentucky no one seems to have seen the color of it. All of this contributes to make the pre-convention situation in Kentucky the most secretive and unusual in the political history of the state.

Apparently it is the strategy of the Smith supporters not to arouse the opposition to the New York governor that in Kentucky would come chiefly from the uncompromising "drys" and those influenced by religious prejudice and concededly there is plenty of both in the Bluegrass state. On the other hand what opposition there is to Al Smith, perhaps for the same reason seems unwilling to make an open fight or may be waiting until the closing days to launch an offensive.

Drys Also Fearful
There is another angle to the "dry" opposition to Smith, according to some observers. It is pointed out that the "drys" in face of the adverse outcome of the pari-mutuel reform issue last fall, would not care to risk an out and out fight on prohibition at this time that might result in an instructed Smith delegation being sent to the national convention and that might be construed as a "dry" defeat and that Kentucky Democrats were through with prohibition.

Every Democratic congressman from Kentucky with one exception is rated as a "dry," and they are exerting an influence to keep down any fight that might seriously affect them in running for re-election in the fall. Some of them are fearful of what may be the reaction in their districts in the event of the nomination of Gov. Smith at Houston. Their anxiety is based on the long-existing religious prejudice in the rural districts. Others contend that the extent of religious prejudice in Kentucky is much overrated, and that the opposition to Smith on that ground is negligible.

To sustain the view that religious prejudice is on the wane, it is pointed out that the last two state elections Catholics were elected to state offices on the Democratic ticket. It remains a mooted question, however, that enters into the puzzling equation. In probably no other state are the conditions similar to those in Kentucky, and that in a certain contingency may put it down as one of the most doubtful of the doubtful states.

For a month what was in the nature of a "tempest in a teapot" raged over the wording of a section of the official call for the Democratic county, district and state conventions. The section aimed at and excluded from participation in the party gatherings were those who bolted J. C. W. Beckham, the Democratic nominee for governor last fall. It was adopted at the meeting of the state committee in April by the vote of State Chairman Charles A. Hardin breaking the tie in the committee.

Charging that it was aimed at party harmony and an effort at disruption the opponents of proscription, who claimed it would exclude 50,000 Democrats, forced a reconsideration of the matter. The state committee reconvened the other day, and while the phraseology of the section was revised, it did not meet with the approbation of those who insisted that the party doors should be thrown wide open without respect to former party defections. Again the vote in the committee was a tie and Chairman Hardin stood by party discipline on paper. It is generally admitted that the exclusion cannot be enforced in the conventions and will be a dead letter.

United States Senator Alben W. Barkley, who first favored the exclusion clause, was among those who recommended that it be rescinded in the interest of party harmony. One effect of the proscription may be to exclude from consideration as delegation to the national convention of any but "straight" Democrats.

Raising of the question also is expected to have a direct bearing on the selection of members of the Democratic state committees to be chosen at the coming state convention. Under the party law the state convention may even exercise a veto upon any choice made by a district convention. That is another matter that is bothering the leaders in districts where thousands of Democrats "ran out" on the party nominee for governor at the last election.

SHUN THE PEDDLER

The summer season, now at hand, brings with it an economic ill that annually takes a toll of thousands of ill gained dollars. It is the itinerant peddler, the house to house door bell ringer and those of his kind who travel from place to place plying their trade and imposing on the credulity of the unthinking, offering bargains in this and that which most always turn out to be inferior merchandise sold at higher prices or in short measure. It is well to beware of these fellows, and the plausible stories that they tell, to engage the interest and confidence of their prospects.

They are of many varieties and with as many kinds of merchandise to sell.

Inferior articles of many kinds are peddled about hither and yon during the summer months. The automobile has been a great aid to this kind of chicanery for after he has landed a few gullible prospects a day's journey will take him far away and beyond the reach of the buyer who discovers that he has been victimized.

What better insurance can there be than buying from the home town merchant. If for any reason the article proves unsatisfactory he is ready and willing to correct the trouble and satisfy his customer. Not so with the peddler—he is gone tomorrow or yet today if the chase gets too hot. He is not seeking to satisfy his customer—he is after the money alone. The home town merchant stakes his reputation and his success on his record for fair and honest dealing. He may be found at his place of business day in and day out, year in and year out. There is nothing elusive about him.

When folks want support and contributions for this and that, they know where to find him and he gives willingly and generously. Did anyone ever hear of the itinerant merchant contributing a single cent for the advancement of a local cause? There is one real way of insuring good goods at reasonable prices, one way of getting good value for the dollar expended and that is to buy of the reputable home town merchant.

STIFLING COMMERCE

When you hoard money away, you assist in stifling the commercial activity of your home community as well as the whole country at large.

If you put it in the bank, the banker lends it to someone who uses it to produce something. That keeps other people at work and keeps the money in circulation.

If you lend it on a mortgage or buy bonds, it serves the same purpose. It keeps circulating and everybody is benefited.

When money keeps moving, it enables many people to move. And the fellow who can't move ahead is in sorry straits. The dollar that is hidden away is in a bad place. If you have any such dollars, bring them from their hiding place and put them to work.

GOOD ROADS AND FARMERS

The government has gone into the motion picture business, but this time it happens to be a project of illustrating by use of motion pictures, the value of good roads in every community and the relations of the good roads to the farming business.

The film compares the highway transportation for farmers of 30 years ago, with that of today, with the title of the picture being "Wheels of Progress."

Tremendous strides have been made toward rapid and individualized transit throughout the country due to road improvement and development of the motor vehicle in all branches of business, especially that of farming.

The educational film will cause many a chuckle when the scenes are shown of the road and streets of the nineties, and of the farmer with his truck wagon on his way to the city.

But today all has changed, due to the wheel of progress that is turning and as the picture proceeds it turns faster and faster. Probably in the next 25 years even more revelations in our progress will result.

In rural communities, there will no doubt be a demand for farm organizations for this motion picture, which is a part of the free service that the U. S. Department of Agriculture offers in its work to keep the farmers in line with the times.

THE VALUE OF GOOD READING

Two-thirds of the states now have laws permitting taxation in support of county libraries, according to a survey made by the government, in the interest of promoting a library movement for rural sections of the country.

The report of the government is interesting in that it shows that 82 per cent of the rural citizens do not have public library service and only six per cent of the town dwellers are without it.

A public library is regarded as an essential to the democratic form of education and cultural advance, used in this country. The American Library association estimates that more than 45,000,000 persons in this country are without library service, with the greater majority of them being people in the rural sections.

Progress in farming, efficient agriculture, increasing contact with the world through the telephone, free mail delivery, the phonograph, radio and automobile, have stimulated the rural population, so today there is no barrier between the country and city folk, as far as these things are concerned.

If the farmer wants his children to continue in the farming business, he wishes them to be better equipped in education and in modern farm methods, than he was able to be at the same period in life. The circulation of good books in every community of this land, is a great step forward for our entire civilization.

Al Smith's published list of expenses were announced at $95,000 and he said he had not done any campaigning. If most of us had that much money we wouldn't start to campaign either.

If some one would invent a way to keep a fool and his money from parting, the swindlers would probably get control of it.

Our heads are like gasoline tanks in one respect. They won't take you any place if they are empty.

The season of the year is nearing when they will be coming up for the third and last time.

Doing your share is a lot more important than taking it.

It is easier to work yourself out of a job than into one.

Farm Notes

By H. A. McPherson,
County Agent

Insects are doing a lot of damage to early vegetables, but fortunately, most insects are easily controlled. They are classified in two groups, biting and sucking. All biting insects are controlled by arsenic poison, and the sucking insects by a contact poison.

Calcium arsenate is probably the best all round poison to use; it is cheap, and it has been diluted so it is safe to use on all the best all round poison to use; plants. Paris green is one of the most effective poisons known, and it should be used as follows. One pound thoroughly mixed with twenty pounds of cheap flour, and dusted lightly over the plant, or if a spray is used one pound to one hundred gallons of water. When arsenate of lead is used for a spray, first thoroughly mix two pounds of arsenate of lead to make a thick paste, and then mix the paste with fifty gallons of water.

For sucking insects, such as lice, etc., the following formula should be used: Coal oil, two gallons, rain water, one gallon, soap, (laundry) one half pound. Dissolve the soap in the water by boiling, take it from the fire while hot, and pour it into the coal oil and churn hard for about five minutes. Before using, dilute with from six to nine parts of water. The slack solution of oil emulsion may be kept for a long period of time if placed in bottles or stone jars before diluting. It is safe to spray or dust all kinds of vegetables as there is very little poison left on the plant, and that is easily washed off.

THE I. C. FAMILY

WOMAN CLAIMS FOR- TUNE OF JAMES RUSSELL

Files Document, Purported to Be Last Will, Written on Back of Letter

Union City, Tenn.—A holographic will, purported to be the last will and testament of James M. Russell, who died in November, 1926, was filed for probate last week by Miss Sarah Flannery, who claims that she found the paper recently in an envelope which she mailed to Mr. Russell while he was in a Memphis hospital some six months before his death.

Miss Flannery dismissed a suit for $75,000 damages, which she had in circuit court vs. W. D. Lannom, administrator of the Russell estate, and filed a bill in chancery court enjoining the administrator from making any settlement as such administrator awaiting the probate of the above mentioned will.

Miss Flannery claims to have found this will, which was written on the back of a letter she had sent Mr. Russell, when he was in a Memphis hospital, in some papers that were in a hand bag she had loaned Russell.

Miss Flannery's attorneys, T. O. Morris of Ohio, and Judge R. E. Maiden, of Dresden, have filed the bill in chancery court. W. D. Lannom, administrator, is being represented by Attorneys H. H. Lannom and W. M. Miles, this city.

For a short time we will accept subscriptions for this paper and the Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal—both papers one year for only $1.25.

Lesson for June 3

JESUS FACING BETRAYAL AND DEATH

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:1-42.

GOLDEN TEXT—Not what I will, but what Thou wilt.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Last Supper With His Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Last Supper With His Disciples.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty in Times of Testing.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—"The Fellowship of His Sufferings."

I. Judas' Bargain With the Chief Priests (vv. 10, 11).

This black crime was committed immediately following the beautiful act of devotion by Mary (John 12:1). The motive actuating Judas was avarice.

II. The Last Passover (vv. 12-25).

1. The preparation (vv. 12-16).

In reply to the disciples' inquiry as to where they should prepare the Passover for Him, Jesus told them to go into the city where they would meet a man bearing a pitcher of water, whom they should follow. In the house to which they were thus led would be found a guest chamber, a large upper room where they could make ready the Passover.

2. The betrayal announced (vv. 17-21).

The betrayal was to be by one of the disciples who was eating with Jesus. This betrayal had been predicted.

3. The sacrament of the bread and cup.

These were symbols of His broken body and shed blood by which He had made atonement for man's sins.

III. The Cowardice of the Disciples Foretold (vv. 26-31).

In spite of their cowardly turning from the Savior, He assured them that after His resurrection He would go before them into Galilee. Peter protested against such an act of disloyalty by the disciples and assured the Lord that though all the rest would forsake Him, yet he would not. The Lord showed him how little he knew, even about his best resolve, telling him that on that very night he would deny Him thrice.

IV. The Agony in Gethsemane (vv. 32-42).

1. Jesus Christ's suffering (vv. 32-34).

(1) The place (v. 32).

The Garden of Gethsemane, an enclosure containing olive and fig trees, beyond Kidron, about three-fourths of a mile from Jerusalem. Gethsemane means olive trees. Edersheim says, "It is an emblem of trial, distress and agony."

(2) His companions (v. 35).

He took with Him the eleven disciples that they might share, so far as possible, this sorrow with Him.

(3) His great sorrow (v. 34).

This is the same as the "cup" in verse 36. It was not primarily the prospect of physical suffering that was crushing him; it was His suffering as the sinner—the sensations of His pure soul coming into contact with the awful sin and guilt of the world.

2. Jesus Christ praying (vv. 35-42).

His only recourse in the hour of supreme need was prayer.

(1) The first prayer (vv. 35-38).

a. His posture (v. 35).

He fell on His face to the ground.

b. His petition (v. 36).

"Take away this cup from me." By the cup is meant His death on the cross. It was most grievous to Him to face this shame, but He pressed on, knowing that for this cause He had come into the world (John 12:27, 28, cf. Heb. 2:14). He prayed that the hour might pass from Him. The burden was so great that it seemed His life would be crushed out. His prayer was heard (Heb. 5:7).

c. His resignation (v. 39).

He knew that His death on the cross was the will of God, the Father, for He was the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.

d. The disciples rebuked (v. 37).

He singled out Peter, since he had been the most conspicuous in proclaiming his loyalty (John 13:38).

e. Exhortation to the disciples (v. 38).

Watch and pray lest ye enter into temptation.

(2) The second prayer (vv. 39, 40).

He withdrew the second time from His disciples and uttered the same words in prayer. This was not vain repetition, but repeated request.

(3) The third prayer (vv. 41, 42).

He uttered the same words in His third prayer (Matt. 26:44). He told the disciples to sleep on and take their rest as the hour had now come for His betrayal.

Jesus Talking With You

There are times when a strange warmth takes possession of our hearts as we pore over the pages of the Bible. What does it mean? Simply this: Jesus is talking with you. And oftentimes He does it "by the way."—R. A. Torrey.

Great Peace

A compromise—half obedience, half rebellion—is never found to be the way of peace. "Great peace have they who love Thy law."—J. H. Jowett.

TO THE VOTERS OF FULTON COUNTY:

Realizing the impossibility of personally interviewing every voter in the county in the short time remaining before the August primary election, I am taking this method of making a personal appeal to you and earnestly solicit your support in my race for County Judge of Fulton County, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary on August 4, 1928.

You have heretofore honored me by electing me your representative in the Legislature for one term and two terms as Clerk of the Circuit Court. I am duly grateful for such past favors and at all times while in office I tried in every way possible to show my appreciation by rendering to you the best service that the circumstances permitted of and in furtherance of your interest, I introduced and worked for the passage of the bill which became the law controlling the levee district below Hickman. I have always stood for law enforcement and while in the Legislature I conceived it to be my duty to lend my assistance to the enactment of such laws as would insure the enforcement of the prohibition laws of this state and advocated and worked for the amendment of the election laws, prepared and introduced the bill which is now the law of this state, which has for its purpose a fair count and a fair election illuminating as far as possible the defeat of the will of the people by an unfair count of their votes in all elections.

I have always been an advocate of woman suffrage and supported and worked actively in the General Assembly for the passage of the bill giving to the women of Kentucky the right to vote. My work in that respect was recognized by Mrs. Breckenridge of Lexington, the State Chairman and by the late Mrs. Hubbard, Fulton County Chairman of the Woman's Rights Organization.

As Clerk of the Circuit Court I endeavored at all times to transact the business in a competent and business-like manner with all courtesy and promptness and to faithfully discharge every duty pertaining to that office.

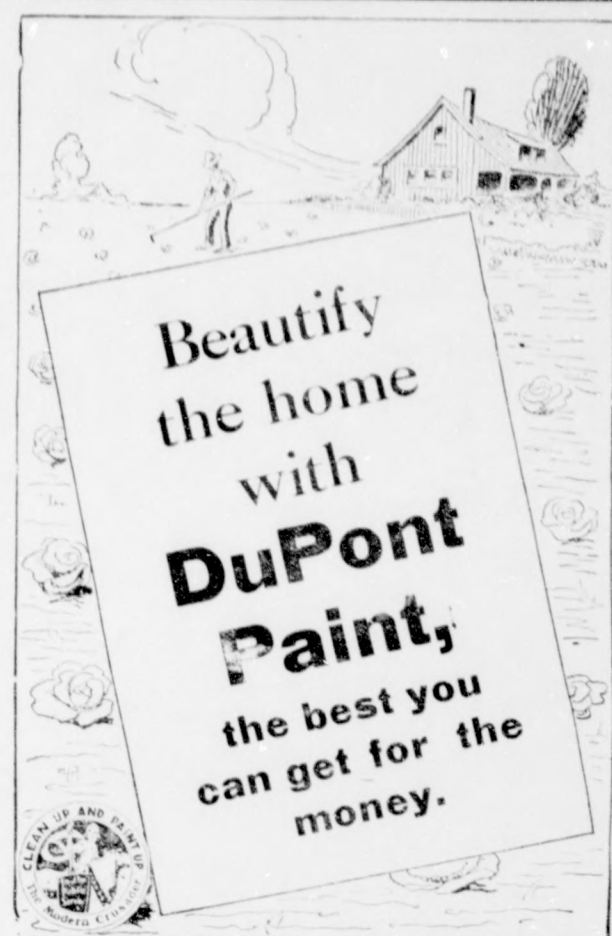

In referring to my record as your servant, I feel that I can truthfully stand upon the same and offer it as evidence of my fitness and ability to perform all the duties devolving upon the County Judge and if elected to this office, I feel that it would be my duty to do all within my power for all improved roads that we can pay for and to adopt a policy of strict economy in the administration of the business of the county to the end that the outstanding indebtedness be taken care of at the earliest possible moment and so far as may be possible to keep all the dirt roads and bridges in the best condition possible so that all the people may be enabled to use them in all seasons of the year. If elected County Judge, I propose to keep the tax-payers informed each year as to the condition of the financial status of the county by publishing financial statements truthfully detailing such facts.

I am convinced that a County Judge should be first of all, a law-abiding citizen himself and to enforce such laws as come within the jurisdiction of his office, to properly administer justice to the rich and the poor alike and to protect every interest of the orphan children of the County and to see that the administration of all estates is conducted according to law and without loss to the parties interested.

Trusting that you will honor me with your vote and support and earnestly solicit the same at the Primary Election on August 4, I remain,

Yours very respectfully,

W. L. HAMPTON.

into ten acres"

"I can get more pasture from four 10-acre lots than from one forty," says G. W. Hewer, Cape Girardeau, Mo. "Grass is fresher, cattle eat more." Floyd Newman, Creighton, Pa., converted 100 to 15-acre fields for hogging down. He writes: "Hogs did better, corn lasted longer, no waste, manure was left on the field and I saved picking expense." For fencing hog-tight we recommend

MONARCH Hinge Joint

With it you can hog-down corn, run stock after harvest, rotate crops, keep weeds down, fertilize the land, etc. Its hinge gives under shock and strain but springs right back again. Copper mixed in the steel plus a heavy zinc coating, keeps rust out far longer than ordinary galvanized wire. Come in and look this "Red Brand" fence over.

When death enters your home you want a service that is complete; and you want that service rendered by those who are competent, and who hold the confidence placed in them, as a sacred trust.

Our ambulance service is the best that can be had, and has been for the past four years. Our hearse is the most modern in this community. Our funeral home, located at 218 Second Street, is by far the most beautiful and complete in this section, with ample sleeping rooms for family of deceased should they be needed.

Our embalming is done by Paul Hornbeak, with Mrs. J. C. Yates as lady assistant.

We answer ambulance and death calls for any distance.

CLINTON MAN DIES

Clinton, Ky., May 28.—Heart trouble is believed to have been the cause of the death of Beck Porter, a well known resident of Clinton, who died suddenly at Spring Hill, near here, today. Mr. Porter, who had been in ill health for about a month, went to Spring Hill with a relative, Jim Porter, to arrange for a fishing trip which had been planned for tomorrow.

STAND BY YOUR TOWN

If you think your town is best, Tell 'em so.
If you'd have it lead the rest, Help it grow.
When there's anything to do, Let the fellows count on you— You'll feel bully when it's thru, Don't you know.

If you're used to giving knocks, Change your style;
Throw bouquets instead of rocks For a while.
Let the other fellow roast, Shun him as you would a ghost. Meet his hammer with a boast And a smile.

When a stranger from afar Comes along, Tell him who and what you are —Make it strong.

That Kind of a Girl

By ADELAIDE D. HUFF

"THERE are thousands of other girls in your life," said Mrs. Derson soothingly. "In fact, I've known some girls who never had a beau in their lives."

"And even that doesn't make me a bit the less lonely," said Lillian, dabbing a moist handkerchief to her red eyes. "I want beaux and fun and happiness. I could have stood it if John Nelson hadn't quit coming."

"Well, he didn't come long," Mrs. Derson remarked, "and it's over a year since he quit. Surely, you didn't fall in love in that short time."

"He came until he found out I didn't go in for petting, then he walked off. They're all that way. No use telling me they aren't."

"Lillian, you must be out of your mind," remonstrated Mrs. Derson. "Nothing else could make you talk the way you do."

"But, mother, I did love him and then the minute he tried anything I froze up like a prissy old maid and he left me. Now, I can't stand this little hole any more. I want to go away where nobody knows me and try again. I've earned my own living for two years. Let me go, mother, do let me go. I'm so wretched and lonesome here."

"If you think it would make you any happier to live in the city, I shan't interfere, dear," said Mrs. Derson, putting a sympathetic arm around her daughter's shoulders. Once having gained her mother's consent Lillian took little time in getting ready to leave home. She had a friend, a girl whom she had met in the business world, who had made her promise that if she ever decided to leave home she would come straight to Philadelphia to her and share her apartment while getting a start, so it was to Lucy Nelson that she went.

"Got enough of the old town?" greeted Lucy without surprise.

"I guess I did. I'm so lonesome I could die."

"Well, we'll have to hunt you up a few beaux. That's what kills the blues—and, Lillian, don't be too stiff. It's all right in a small town, but it doesn't go here. Let's hurry through supper. Some fellows are coming over this evening. I want you to wear my green georgette. You'll look lovely in it with your red hair."

They had hardly finished supper when Harold Goodby and Joe Summers and Lloyd Forester and a girl came in. Lucy's baby living room was the coziest thing with divans and soft lights and incense laden air. Seductive was the word Lillian decided.

After the introductions Harold came across and dropped on the divan beside Lillian. He put a careless arm around her shoulders and instinctively she drew back. She hated herself a second later but it was an involuntary gesture. She had been Lillian Derson too long.

"Say, Lucy is your friend a flat tree?" called Harold.

"No," laughed Lucy from Joe's arms. "She only likes to make believe."

"I've got such a terrible headache," Lillian apologized. "I—"

She burst into tears and rushed into the tiny bedroom. What a fool she was! She didn't think it would be like that, but she just couldn't go it. Now, if it had been John—her John whom she adored.

After the guests had left Lucy burst in and gave Lillian a good lecture. "I never was so outdone," she ended at last as she finished undressing and snuggled off the light.

Lillian cried herself to sleep and the next day who should appear at the door but John Nelson himself.

"Be a sport," kept ringing in her ears, as she greeted him.

"Oh, hello, John," she said nonchalantly, as she led him to a divan and dropped down beside him. She put an arm around his neck and kissed him.

"If I didn't know you so well, Lillian," he said, after a moment of stupefaction, "I'd swear you were fast. Quit this foolishness and be your own sweet little self."

"Foolishness?" hissed Lillian wildly. "Didn't you quit me when I wouldn't go in for petting? Didn't you drop me that? Then you've got the nerve to come here and lecture me for petting. What do you want anyway?"

"I want to take you home and put some sense into your silly little head. I had planned to go over to your house and ask you to marry me. Last year when I quit I thought—maybe you were getting serious. I knew I had nothing to offer at the time. Just by luck I made an unexpected real estate deal that's put me on my feet, and when I heard you'd left I followed you up here to tell you the news. Now, will you marry me?"

"But why did you quit me when I wouldn't pet?" persisted Lillian, still clinging to the one idea—tears standing in her eyes.

"I don't know exactly," he said miserably. "I guess it's because we men generally go with the quiet kind of a girl when we are serious. She's the kind that never has many beaux but usually gets married."

"Men are too much of a riddle for me," sighed Lillian as he took her in his arms. And after that they had a perfectly wonderful petting party and Lillian's once lonely little heart just sang for joy.
