FULTON, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, JUNE 11, 1937.

NUMBER TWENTY-ONE.

TEXAS AND FULTON CARS IN SMASH-UP

Wednesday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock two cars crashed three miles north of Fulton on the Mayfield highway. One machine was a Fulton county car driven by J. F. Burchard and occupied by two other men, all of Hickman. The other auto was a Texas car bearing license number 308-223, and occupied by three women.

The Texas car is said to have been traveling north, and the Fulton county car was coming toward Fulton. Both machines were badly smashed and brought to Bob White Motor Co.

Burchard, driver of the Fulton county car and the other two men suffered injuries and were taken to the office of Dr. Bard at Walnut Valley. Burchard was picked up later by the State Patrol on a charge of driving while intoxicated, and lodged in jail at Clinton.

The women were brought to the Fulton Hospital, but suffered no serious injury. They gave no names, but registered later at a local hotel as a party from Gulfport, Miss.

Citizens Urged to Register Before July 10

Citizens of Fulton and Fulton county, who have not already registered, are urged to do so before July 10, which is the deadline, if they expect to vote in the August primary and the general election in November, according to Clardie Holland, county court clerk.

Those who are expecting to vote and have become of age or live in a different precinct since the last registration, should apply at the clerk's office and have their registration properly recorded.

T. J. Kramer Takes Part in Gala Festival

Miss Marjorie Galloway, of Gulfport, Miss., a student at the Bowling Green Business University, last week was crowned queen of the seventh annual Kentucky Mountain Laurel Festival at Pine Mountain State Park, Pineville, Ky.

Gov. A. B. Chandler placed the laurel crown on Miss Galloway's snowy brow and also planted a kiss on her forehead. She was selected as the most beautiful, the most graceful, and the loveliest from a group of participants representing eighteen Kentucky colleges.

T. J. Kramer, Jr., local boy who is a senior at Bowling Green College of Commerce, was Miss Galloway's honored escort. Mr. Kramer marched with Mrs. Chandler in the grand parade while the Queen was accompanied by Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler.

Efforts to curb this type of gambling have been underway for some time, a spokesman for the ministers states. An appeal was made to Flavious Martin, district attorney, and the attorney general of Kentucky in order to stop the operation of these machines.

Action was taken this week and slot machines have been withdrawn from operation.

JUDGE WALKER SEEKS RE-ELECTION

JUDGE CLAUDE L. WALKER INVITES FULTON COUNTY VOTERS TO INVESTIGATE RECORD — PROMISES FULFILLED

THE NEWS is authorized to announce Judge Claude L. Walker as a candidate for re-election to the office of County Judge of Fulton County, subject to the action of the Democratic primary Saturday, August 7, 1937.

In his message to the people of this vicinity Judge Walker points out the important achievements and strides that have been made by the fiscal court during his administration. The county has been placed on a cash basis, and everything is purchased by bids being submitted, thus saving the county and the taxpayers considerable money.

Judge Walker needs no introduction to the people, and his record of service during the past four years speaks eloquently of his business ability and integrity. He is a man who has had wide executive experience, having managed one of the county's biggest industries for many years.

Among the outstanding accomplishments that have been made by the fiscal court during Judge Walker's tenure of office are: The construction of nearly 150 miles of surfaced roads in the county—there were 264 miles of dirt roads when he was elected; Obtaining right-of-ways for road improvements at reduced figures; Economical and business-like operation of the county farm and jail; Placing county records in order, placing the county on a cash basis, and reducing the debt of this county.

Judge Walker wishes to complete the job he has started, and invites the people to review his record. He makes the following statement in his appeal to the voters:

TO THE VOTERS OF FULTON COUNTY

I am asking to be re-elected to the important office of County Judge in order that I may finish the work that I have started, which is well under way. From the minute I became your County Judge, I have given all of my time in the interest of the taxpayers and the people of Fulton County.

When I was sworn in and took office, I began immediately to re-

WORK ON FACTORY MAKES PROGRESS

Work on construction of the spacious three-story addition to the old cigar factory building is making steady progress. Carpenter and brick work are in charge of Frank Merryman and Don Hill. When completed it will be occupied by a large garment manufacturer.

Henry I. Siegel, head of the garment concern bearing his name, was here a few days ago inspecting the building, and expressed his approval of the progress being made. He pointed out to local officials of the Fulton Improvement Company that forty more feet on the addition would make it possible to employ some 200 more workers, and plans for more floor space are being considered.

Mr. Siegel stated that he would start training workers here just as soon as work on the new building had progressed further enough along. The factory operating in full force is scheduled to employ approximately 600 workers, with the annual payroll ranging in the neighborhood of $300,000.

Fulton parents should never teach their children to be good unless they are willing to set them a few examples.

America may have more crime than all the other countries, but she didn't raise all the criminals.

A statesman is a fellow who is willing to do everything possible for the dear public if it will help his political cause.

Physicians say the insane are happier than sane. Maybe that's because they don't have to worry over doctor bills.

A Fulton man sometimes marries so he will have someone to tell his troubles to, and he certainly has plenty to talk about them.

SOIL SHOW TO BE HELD HERE JUNE 23

The Soil Conservation Service U. S. Department of Agriculture is offering to present a moving picture on soil conservation at the Woman's Club building at Fulton Wednesday evening, June 23, at 8 o'clock. William S. Morgan, Engineer for the Soil Conservation Service at Clinton will be in charge of presenting the picture and explaining some features and why they are so adaptable to local conditions.

There are many ways of conserving the soil which permit us to retain the soil fertility that we now have and even improve this fertility and at the same time make a larger net income than is being made in some cases and have land for the next generation that they will be proud of instead of being ashamed to inherit and have to rebuild.

J. B. Williams, County Agent of Fulton county, heartily invites all the farmers and county agents of adjoining counties to join with the Fulton County farmers and business men in seeing this picture.

MILDRED GIBBS WEDS HILARY H. BUGG HERE

A single ring ceremony was performed Sunday at the First Methodist parsonage here uniting in marriage Hilary H. Bugg to Miss Mildred Gibbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gibbs of the Walnut Grove community.

The bridegroom is a well known business man of this city, and a director of the Fulton Baseball Association.

The ceremony was said in the presence of friends at the parsonage, which was beautifully decorated in spring flowers artistically arranged.

The newlyweds left immediately for Owensboro and other points in Eastern Kentucky for their honeymoon. They are now at their home on Walnut street.

One sure sign of better times is increased purchasing of goods in the "pure luxury" classification. Business Week says that estimates of 1937 retail jewelry sales run as high as $375,000,000—29 percent above last year. First quarter imports of gems, mainly diamonds, came to $14,507,000, which is double the total for the same period in 1936.

Business is still doing well, and is holding to the high production levels reached last winter and spring by most lines. Steel is operating at more than 90 percent of capacity. April construction in 37 states came to more than $108,000,000, and less of it was government building than formerly. Motors are running very close to peak production.

JUDGE CARR DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Funeral services were conducted here Monday afternoon for Judge Herbert Carr by the Rev. E. M. Mathis of the First Methodist Church, and the Rev. W. D. Ryan of the First Christian Church.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Carr; a daughter, Mrs. Leslie Weaks; a son, William S. Carr; his mother, Mrs. Kate L. Carr; a brother, Frank Carr, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Carr Johnson, all of Fulton.

In June, 1916, Judge Carr was appointed a member of the Kentucky board of control by Governor Stanley. He served as referee for the Kentucky workmen's board from 1933 to 1936. In 1932 he was a delegate from the first congressional district of Kentucky to the national Democratic convention at Chicago.

Judge Carr was a prominent attorney of Fulton county. He served two terms as city judge, and was active in law practice and politics for many years. He was born and reared in Fulton, the son of the late W. T. Carr and Kate L. Carr, pioneer citizens of this county.

LACK OF EROSION DOUBLES INCOME

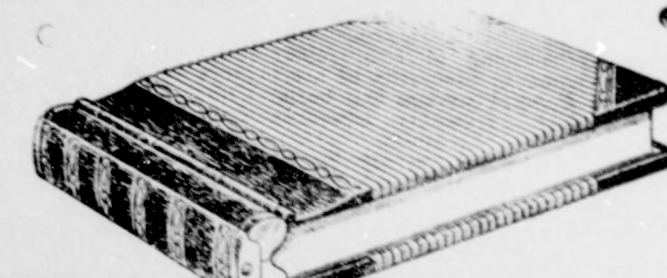

Farmers make twice as much money on land where there is little erosion as they do on land that is badly washed, according to a study made by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture of 58 Logan county farms.

The average income from the 58 farms was $855. On the 17 least eroded farms, however, the income averaged $1,226, and on the 17 most eroded farms the income averaged $552.

The good land produced more tobacco to the acre, and also weed of better quality, than was grown on the badly washed farms. Income organize the County Government and to put the County on a business basis. A detailed examination of the records will show that this has been done and that many changes have been made in the method of operation and in the keeping of the records. The same kind of examination will show a record during my administration of efficiency, economy and honesty in government, and I invite such an investigation.

JUDGE WALKER

I made several promises during my last campaign, all of which I have kept. One was that I would not play politics with the taxpayers' money. This promise has been kept one hundred per cent and thousands of dollars have been saved thereby. I promised several roads, all of which have been built and a great many have been built in addition to those promised. When I became your Judge, January 1, 1934, there were 264 miles of dirt roads. At the end of my present term, 150 miles of the 264 will have been rebuilt and surfaced, and if I am re-elected, I promise here and now, before my next term expires, to have all the remaining County roads rebuilt and surfaced.

During my nearly three and a half years in office, the County has lived well within its means and at the same time a material reduction has been made in the County's indebtedness. We have not only lived within our means but have accomplished more. There was a period of six months for which no taxes were levied. This condition was brought about by an Act of the Legislature changing the close of the Fiscal year from December 31st to July 1st. Counties were requested by the State Examiner and Inspector to levy a special tax for this six months' period and practically all of the Counties in the state levied this special tax. If we had done this, as the State Examiner and Inspector insisted on our doing, you would have paid last year at the rate of 75c per 100 instead of 50c per 100 for County taxes. The expenditures of the County over a two and a half year period were fully cared for with revenue of two years and at the same time $21,000.00 were saved to the taxpayers.

One of the first things that I did was to put the County on a cash basis and all purchases of materials and supplies are made on competitive bids resulting in a considerable saving to the taxpayers. There have been many other savings made amounting to several thousands of dollars other than the savings made in the purchase of materials and supplies, which is also due to the fact that the County has been put on a cash basis. Formerly it was the custom to issue all interest bearing warrants, and since I have been in office, there have been no interest bearing warrants issued. A saving has been effected by this procedure which enables us to save several thousands of dollars each year in interest. The cost of operating the Jail and Poor Farm has been greatly reduced and the cost of Right of Ways for roads has been reduced more than 75 per cent. There are many other items too numerous to mention where considerable savings have been made. When I came into office, the County's debt amounted to $599,470.56, which was caused by spending greatly in excess of the revenues. The old debt has been reduced to a great extent, and if I am given four years more, at the expiration of my next term, the debt will be reduced to the extent that the financial condition of the County will be 100% sound and the County government can be carried on in a satisfactory manner without any increase in taxation.

I desire to express my appreciation for the co-operation rendered me by the other members of the Fiscal Court, as the Court has given me full co-operation which has enabled me to accomplish the things that have been accomplished.

Respectfully,
CLAUDE L. WALKER.

Integrity

ACCORDING to the dictionary, integrity may be defined as "uprightness, rectitude, honesty, faithfulness." In Scriptural record we find the Psalmist praying for integrity, the wise man praising it as a combination of justice, faithfulness, and wisdom, and Job fervently valuing its possession.

In the twelfth chapter of II Kings we have a refreshing example of practical integrity. We read there that the temple at Jerusalem was in need of repairs, and Jehoshaphat, then king of Judah, ordered that the money which it came into any man's heart to contribute for this purpose, be used to repair the breaches of the temple wherever they were found. When this work was finally taken in hand, we read (II Kings 12:15), "They reckoned not with the men into whose hand they delivered the money to be bestowed on workmen: for they dealt faithfully."

What a lesson for posterity to profit from! The recognized integrity of the men entrusted with the funds dedicated to put the Lord's house in order, obviated the need for guarding against misappropriation, and excluded unworthy thoughts of suspicion and mistrust. The requisite amounts had been contributed with a willing heart, and they were disbursed in the same way. A suitable, harmonious condition thus, for restoring the house of the Lord, and for accomplishing His work, while preserving the sanctity of the temple.

Actually, is not every day the Lord's day, and every place His habitation? All men, therefore, may work happily in God-bestowed integrity, since God, good, is omnipotent, and make of their workshop a sanctuary. They may also enjoy the accompanying reward, which Isaiah prophesied in the name of God, in these words (Isaiah 62:12): "Behold, my servant shall deal prudently, he shall be exalted and extolled, and be very high." These Scriptural words apply to all who are obedient to divine Principle, no matter what their occupation, since "the earth is the Lord's."

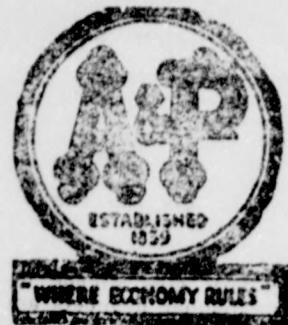

The servants of the Most High have always been blessed in the knowledge of their uprightness—in the consciousness of being faithful administrators in their Master's service. The conviction of his earnest endeavors to do the will of God furnished Job with the courage to exclaim, "Let me be weighed in a even balance, that God may know mine integrity."

Faithfulness and honesty alone are satisfying, in civil as in political life. Can an unfaithful, careless, dishonest worker be truly self-respecting and happy about his achievements? The answer must always be, No. In his innermost heart he knows his actions to be unworthy. In an address on the subject of "Godlikeness" Mary Baker Eddy, the revered and beloved Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, said in her Message to The Mother Church for 1902 (p. 17): "Happiness consists in being and in doing good; only what God gives, and what we give ourselves and others through His tenure, confers happiness; conscious worth satisfies the hungry heart, and nothing else can."

No maladministrator can possibly be proud and happy over his monetary gains. He, too, knows his actions to be unworthy, and must sooner or later suffer from self-reproach and regret. Self-examination is an invaluable aid in determining whether one is upright, honest, faithful; whether one justly and conscientiously applies these God-given qualities. If this test results negatively, our need is to improve. We also read in the same message: "Consult thy every-day life; take its answer as to thy aims, motives, fondest purposes, and this oracle of years will put to flight all care for the world's soft flattery or its frown."

What a delightful condition of government by divine Principle we should have in all departments of life, if persons would cease to value irregular financial gains, or uncertain worldly honors! Mrs. Eddy, who valued only that which would pass the test of divine approval, gave to her followers, the members of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, which she founded, "A Rule for Motives and Acts" (Manual of The Mother Church, Art. VIII, Sect. 1), which begins with the following: "Neither animosity nor mere personal attachment should impel the motives or acts of the members of The Mother Church. In Science, divine Love alone governs man." Should not obedience to these words ensure soundness of action, true integrity?

Higher Taxes— Or True Economy?

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

During the past few weeks there have been increasing demands on Congress for curtailment of reckless spending.

From official sources have come warnings that the choice lies between a program of reasonable economy and a series of fresh additions to the already heavy burden of taxes.

Which of these two courses will Congress follow?

Each has its advocates. To bureaucrats and politicians who must depend for their jobs and their popularity on a continued program of public spending, the decision will seem an easy one. Naturally they would have Congress engage any program of economy.

To the average citizen who, either directly or indirectly, pays the taxes which officialdom spends, the answer will be similarly obvious. He wants to see his Congressman reduce, rather than increase, the steady drain on earnings and savings which now consumes so large a part of his income.

Unlike the bureaucrat and the politician he believes that the way to balance budgets is not by raising his taxes, but by cutting down the bills which he must pay.

By its decision Congress can demonstrate whose vote registers stronger at Washington—the politician's or the constituent's.

And in that demonstration the voters and taxpayers of America can find effective guidance when they are called upon to decide at the polls who shall represent their interests in Washington.

PASSING INSTITUTIONS

FANCY BONNETS, ET AL

In the spring of 1935 I delivered a high school commencement address in a small town rather far away from the centers of population. At the conclusion of my address several people came around to speak to me, a custom that I greatly like. One sweet-faced old lady who greeted me wore a fancy bonnet, the first one I have seen since I was a child. Just what the other people looked like I have forgotten; that fancy bonnet brought back such a host of memories that I did not care to mar them by recalling how Mary or John was dressed or what Jim or Tom said. There passed before in memory many other sweet-faced old ladies in fancy bonnets, old ladies who long ago left us for other worlds. Even when I was a child, the fancy bonnet was a sort of passing institution, since only a few women in any neighborhood would own one. All the faces that I can recall under the fancy bonnets were peaceful and inclined to be aged with a strange feminine elegance and grace not always found in people of any age. Life had dealt about all it was to deal to them; they had reared their families and had often buried the major part of their sons and daughters; but life at its hardest could not take away the look of repose that they had inherited or acquired. Many of you will not know what a fancy bonnet is or was. I fear I cannot describe one, as my knowledge of such things is hardly professional. Ask the oldest people you know to describe one or to get one from the treasure-chest in the family attic.

And the snow that is lying on the ground as I write reminds me of another form of headgear that must have passed away in the last twenty years, the fascinator. When we used to go to the old country school in winter, every girl wore a fascinator, draped over her head and wound around her neck a time or two. When we boys went hunting in the snow, we often borrowed an old fascinator to keep our ears warm. I wonder now how my neck used to be so tender, when few people of our time wrap up so warmly. I suppose that since we have left off red flannels, we have toughened up a bit.

The winter of 1935-36, as you w, was very severe. Ear-muffs were used often than I had seen in the previous twenty years. Some of the college boys very appropriately went bareheaded in the zero weather, er, but sometimes they added a pair of ear-muffs to make up for the top exposure. I was reminded of the oldish boy whom I used to go to school with, who used to wear his ear-muffs in any sort of weather, even when he walked across the campus with his girl. Someone suggested that those ear-muffs ought to be a part of the museum of the school.

And that reminds me of another thing. Most of the men of my generation have ears that stand out to catch the passing breeze. Younger men rarely have such outstanding ears. If any one wishes to make an investigation of this strange phenomenon, let me answer all your questions at once. We boys wore caps that we pulled down over our ears. I had better say, a few months each year in such cramped positions would make any ears lean forward. Since caps that pull down have ceased to be common, ears have a tendency to stand in a less obvious position.

SHOULD TEST FOR SOIL PRACTICES

Guessing at any soil practice is never advisable, notes a statement from the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. Farmers are advised to make sure to what extent they have a lime problem. This can be done by liming a small strip across the field and measuring the results in crop yields; or it can be done by applying an acidity test to samples of soil.

Except on the highly phosphatic soils of the Bluegrass region, a phosphate fertilizer should be used with lime. In tests in Graves county, limestone alone increased wheat yields three bushels to the acre, while limestone and phosphate raised yields nearly 13 bushels.

This includes Christian Science Society of Fulton which holds regular services Sunday at 11 a. m. and testimonial meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p. m., with Reading Room at 211 Carr-st. open Wednesday and Saturday from 2 to 4 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend these services and to visit the Reading Room where the Bible and authorized Christian Science literature may be read and purchased or borrowed.

CULTIVATION

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture.

At the risk of appearing to prophesy gloom, but because it has happened in past seasons, dare the writer suggest that rains may become more scarce as the summer advances? This being likely, it may not be amiss to work toward plans for saving the soil moisture there is, through proper cultivation.

The most beneficial feature of cultivation is that weeds are prevented from robbing the garden vegetables of moisture and of plant food. The earlier the weeds are stopped, the better; that is to say, while they are still small. At that time, their roots lie close to the surface, and very little effort is needed to remove them.

Time was, when no gardener felt he had "worked" his garden properly unless it looked so, cut with deep gashes, "to give the roots air." If there were supporting evidence of rootlets laid bare, or handfuls of roots on the plow-points, so much the better. Such treatment, it was supposed, imparted fortitude to the vegetables, in that they were thus forced to recover. Although recovery was made in the event a rain followed, always there was interruption until the roots could take hold again; in dry weather sometimes catastrophic result.

In the past few years, experiment stations have been giving their attention to finding out just what cultivation was and what it could do, and their findings are briefly this, that when weeds stand, maximum crops result. The "cultivators" in the experiments were razor blades, and the weeds were shaved off just at the ground line.

Although razor blades are in no sense cultivating tools farmers or gardeners would use, the principal is applied in horsedrawn sweeps or in the beet-knife attachment on a wheel-hoe pushed by the gardener. The blades are tipped forward, so that when these tools are moved, the top half-inch of soil is penetrated, the small weeds lifted out, and those that go deeper, cut off. A hand hoe may achieve the same end.

This operation requires minimum effort, in contrast to deeper "working" or chopping, both of which are real labor. Also, no interruption occurs in the growing of the vegetables whose roots, lying at from 2 to 4 inches beneath the soil surface, are permitted to continue gathering moisture and plant food so essential. Furthermore, because these tools leave the soil surface level and make no ridges through which extra is offered to evaporation, upper soil moisture is conserved, and because the water level is not dropped below root level because of borrowing soil from the middles to make the ridges, deep moisture is kept available to the plants.

This sort of cultivation will not benefit much those soils that incline to "run together," but neither will deeper working. The remedy for this condition is to raise the humus supply, and to use thoroughness

STRAY MILK BOTTLES

Harry Barry, Sanitary Inspector, Fulton County.

With the arrival of spring and the customary house cleaning activities which occupy the time of many families, now will be an ideal time to turn over to the milk dealer all stray milk bottles that have accumulated in the cellar, garage or back room during the fall and winter months.

Perhaps it has never occurred to you that the dealer who supplies you with milk is not selling you the bottle. He is in reality only loaning it to you and inasmuch as it is his property he naturally expects it back. When you go to a grocery store and buy a jar of mustard, a glass of pickles or numerous other articles, the container belongs to you. The price of the food includes the cost of the glass container.

Is Fulton it has been estimated that about 3000 bottles are used daily to handle the sale of milk and cream. This, however, is only part of the pictures as it is necessary for most dealers to have on hand three or four bottles for every customer they serve.

You, as a customer, have one bottle in your refrigerator, on the route is another filled bottle, on this same delivery truck or wagon is an empty bottle collected from you on its way back to the dairy and in the dealer's refrigerator or storage is another bottle filled for tomorrow's delivery. You can readily see that it requires a large number of bottles for the average dairy to carry on its business.

Possibly you might be interested to know that at the present time milk bottles cost the dairyman $15 a gross or over ten cents each, so do not give the bottles to junk men or haul them away to the public dumps, and also refrain from using them for holding oils, paints, preserves, etc. Your milk dealer will appreciate your efforts in returning his property.

In preparing the garden for planting. The fact remains, though, that even in such a situation, shallow stirring is best, and certainly always, in a garden otherwise so conducted that maximum crops may be expected.

Up to now the dry-weather benefits of cultivation have been stressed; paradoxically, the same reasons may be brought forward, should moisture be present in ideal amount. Always, level, shallow cultivation is best.

The best place for most Fulton men to hide their money so their wives won't find it is to put it in the basket with their undarned socks.

A 100 percent American is one who orders ham and eggs when he runs into a lot of French words on a bill of fare.

Matrimonial bonds are like the other kind in one respect—they're not worth much unless the interest is kept up.

The average Fulton man never needs to worry much about his summer vacation. His boss tells him when he can go and his wife tells him where he's going. Maybe the Good Samaritan of Bible days did such fine work because a lot curiosity seekers didn't crowd around to tell him what to do and how to do it.

AINING CRIME

It is generally understood that the people of this country expect their officers to rigidly enforce the law. However, many are today doing everything in their power to break down the work of our judges. Through petitions and political pressure thieves and murderers are being turned loose every day to prey on their sentimental benefactors, and the parole laws of this country have become little more than a sham. Far more than one-half of the criminals now being arrested are found on investigation, to have been guilty of earlier crimes and to have gained their liberty through parole. It is not often that the citizens of Fulton are asked to attach their names to a petition for parole, but when they are it would be a good idea to weigh the matter carefully. Sentiment is a fine thing, but sentiment becomes dangerous if it leads to the release of still another menace to the peace and welfare of the general public.

ANOTHER CRUSADE

The action of the women of Virginia in sounding a battle-cry of freedom against unsightly billboards along motor highways gives promise of developing into a great national crusade, and before the summer is over you need not be surprised to find the women of Fulton enlisted in the fight. They declare that the signs not only mar the natural beauty of miles upon miles of highways, but that quite often they set up a serious hazard by attracting the attention of a motorist at the very second his whole attention should be devoted to the road ahead. In their fight for laws that will sweep away the objectionable signs with which practically every highway is now cluttered they have the support of thousands of motorists who feel just as they do about it. Heartened by this support they are lining up for battle, and Virginia's Legislative halls will be the battleground. It will be a battle, too, that will be watched with deep interest in every part of the country.

WASTE IN THE AIR

With the destruction of the dirigible Hindenberg still fresh in everyone's mind, it will surprise many to learn that Germany has already started laying out the framework of another giant aircraft exactly like it. The first to enter the lighter-than-air field, Germany proposes to stick to it, cost what it may. After Uncle Sam's sad experience with zeppelins, however, they are looked upon here in an entirely different light, and this country has ceased to build them. Mankind advances by the trial and error method, and maybe some day Germany will make a dirigible as safe from calamities as the modern ocean-going liners. But the average American, who pays the taxes and foots the bills for such experiments is not at this time willing to have any more of his money spent on them. He considers the building of dirigible airships a waste of money and he sees their operation so far as a terrible waste of human life. So Germany can, it appears, count on a very little little opposition from this country in that branch of the flying field for a long time to come.

FACTS—NOT GUESSES

If any general statement is repeated often enough, a substantial proportion of the public will eventually accept it as fact, whether it is true or not. Prime example of that is the claim that independent stores are doomed because of chain store competition. Fortunately, here is a question where adequate, incontrovertible figures are obtainable—figures gathered and tabulated by government bureaus and private research organizations. And the figures show on a national average, that independent stores are increasing in number, not decreasing, and are likewise tending to increase their percentage of total retail trade.

Going farther, a number of particularized surveys have been made in representative American communities, in order to answer the charge that national averages are often misleading when applied to specific communities. Recent survey concerned Texarkana, a typical city in its population bracket. The survey shows that, in proportion to population, Texarkana has as many independent food stores as it had 10, 25, or 35 years ago; that independent stores started in the city between 1925 and 1935 have had a longer average life than those started between 1907 and 1911; that the rate at which independents have gone out of business in the last 12 years is lower than during a 12-year period 25 to 35 years ago; that these facts are in agreement with facts gained from similar studies made in Fresno, Grand Rapids, Louisville, Mobile, Schenectady and Wichita—cities of varying size, in widely separated areas of the country. The latest complete figures indicate that 71 percent of the nation's retail business—more than they did four or five years ago. And, with the return of better times, independent stores are increasing their volume considerably faster than are chains. The supposition that independents are doomed has absolutely no foundation in fact.

A WORD OF WARNING

The time-honored family medicine cabinet has become an institution in this country, and we dare say there are few if any homes in Fulton that do not boast one. Since early days the medicine cabinet has served well in safeguarding health in the home. It has been a godsend in thousands of emergencies. And yet danger lurks in almost all of them.

Utmost care is used by the manufacturers of medicines containing poisons, and druggists are also careful in labeling bottles so there can be no reasonable excuse for mistakes. But as soon as poisonous medicines reach the home the safeguards seem to break down. The box or bottle is placed in the medicine cabinet along with a conglomeration of other boxes and bottles, and left where children of the household can easily reach them, or where an adult can get one by mistake while reaching for some harmless box or bottle in the dark. Many have been poisoned in this way.

The danger lurking in family medicine cabinets has become so great that the U. S. Health Service has issued a warning in which it declares that the average person "messes up everything from common baking soda to bichloride of mercury tablets, despite the fact that doctors have issued warnings about the danger of having poisons in the home." So if poison of any kind must be kept in the house the proper way is to see that it is out of reach of children. Equal care should also be taken to see that any medicine containing poison is so placed that there will be no danger of a grown person mistaking it for a harmless

LAND OF OPPORTUNITY

It's not unusual to hear the growing Fulton boy complain of a lack of opportunity in this country, and that a fellow has to have money or "a pull" to get on in the world. Parents now have an excellent chance to disabuse their minds of such belief.

Point out to them the case of William Knudsen, who was chosen president of the General Motors Corporation just a few weeks ago. Knudsen came to this country 30 years

Picked Up About Town

Rose Simpson says at forty a woman quits patting herself on the back and begins patting herself under the chin.

"Some men wake up to find themselves famous," asserts Gene DeMyer, "and others stay up all night and find themselves notorious."

If it took nature millions of years to develop a good one in forty years, C. J. Bowers says as a last resort a farmer can go to the city—where his sons and his profits went.

Speaking of the movement of youth from the city to the farm, K. P. Dalton says he thinks it should be limited—to about 45 miles an hour.

There are two kinds of fishermen around here. Those who fish for sport and those who catch something.

As Jess Jordan has it figured out, many a general who is covered with medals was never covered with guns.

"When company stays too long," suggests Buck Bushart, "just treat them like one of the family and they'll soon beat it."

As Lynn Askew sees it, many a man stays home nights because he has the house to himself.

"How times change," comments Willie Honra, "Once a rich uncle died and left it to us and now we die and leave it to a rich uncle named Uncle Sam."

"It's easy to pick out the thinking people in this community," says Tom Boaz. "They're the ones who think as you do."

According to A. G. Baldrige the doctors have typhoid fever on the run but they don't seem to be making much headway with spring fever.

No one should mind a tax on horse-racing betting. You're going to lose your money anyway, so what does it matter who gets it?

The Fulton young man who is chiefly interested in getting a short work week is not likely to get much of anything else.

ago, a poor emigrant boy, with but $30 in his pocket and not an acquaintance in the entire United States. But he had the determination to make something of himself—and the perseverance to stick by that resolve.

He started in as an errand boy, earning just enough each week to pay for his board and clothes. He spent his leisure hours studying in free libraries. Today he is at the top.

America is still the land of opportunity, and this latest evidence of that fact should be pointed out to every boy who feels that it's not.

There is still a chance for success awaiting any boy who is honestly determined to work for it, and willing to put the best of his life in whatever he sets out to do. But each must work out his own problems. Success is to be gained in no other way. There is always room in America for more Knudsens.

Enactment of pending federal legislation limiting the length of freight trains to seventy cars would, railway authorities say, increase by at least $125,000,000 annually the out-of-pocket cost of operation based on a normal volume of traffic and at the same time would impair service and adversely affect safety in operation. In addition, large capital expenditures would be necessary to readjust the plant to handle the increased number of trains.

Middle-age is that period in a Fulton man's life when he can look both ways without seeing much.

Another exciting game is to be riding at night, meet another car and guess which headlight is out.

Farmers to Inspect Mosaic Creek Project

The soil conservation service has announced that a three-day field meeting will be held to inspect the work that has been done on the Mosaic Creek Soil Conservation project.

Wednesday, June 16th, has been selected as Fulton, Logan, Livingston, and Marshall county's days. The farm that will be inspected belongs to Tuby Overstreet. Visitors should go to Lone Oak and follow signs to Overstreet farm.

"Unlike many farm tours the conservation week program planned at Mosaic Creek will be more of an outdoor farmers' meeting with very little touring and little time devoted to traveling from one farm to another," says T. E. Wilson. The program and trip around over this farm and an adjoining farm will begin at 9:30 o'clock. During the day various examples of erosion control work, done by the soil conservation service on these farms, will be explained. There will be object lessons in management of farm land from the standpoint of the best use for certain types of land; crop rotations, liming, fertilizing, and other phases of cropping and soil management will be studied. Engineering methods of soil and water saving, such as terracing, gully structures, and farm ponds, will be discussed. The farm woodland will be given considerable, Williams said.

At noon a country style lunch will be served by the Homemakers Club. There will be entertainment along with the serious study also Roy M. Davis, staff member of the Soil Conservation service, Mosaic Creek Area, will stage a wood chopping demonstration, and the correct way of plowing terraces will be shown by project engineer. A ball game between farmers cooperating on the soil conservation program and staff members of the soil conservation service will be a feature, and there will be a motion picture show at a night program.

Among several soil and water saving practices to be studied according to J. E. Wilson, in charge of arrangements for the farm meetings, are some good examples of terracing and contour cultivation methods of controlling gully erosion, woodland improvement work proper fertilizing and liming methods, contour furrows and contour stripping cropping.

McCracken county framers are to act as hosts to visitors from other counties for all three days.

The way most girls around Fulton are dressing these days there doesn't seem to be much excuse for Peeping Toms.

Free speech isn't enough for some orators. What they need is a way to make other people listen.

Stores Licenses Due Says State Department

The Department of Revenue announced this week that store license applications for the year 1937-1938 are being mailed to all persons required to procure such licenses who are known to the Department, and advised that such applications would be considered a request for payment, which must be made on or before July 1, 1937.

The law requires all merchants to secure a 1937-38 store license by July 1. Single store units are required to pay two dollars license tax. The tax is graduated as the number of stores under one management increases. A 20 per cent penalty is applicable to delinquent payments.

Assistant Attorney General J. W. Jones recently ruled that manufacturers were not subject to the Kentucky store license tax. In his opinion, General Jones pointed out that the court had distinguished between manufacturers and merchants and that the Kentucky license was imposed upon merchants only. However, a manufacturer is liable for tax if he sells merchandise he himself does not manufacture.

"THE NEWS" WEEKLY SCRAPBOOK

Week's Best Recipe
VEAL LOAF—Ham flavored 1 1/2 cups chopped cooked veal; 1 cup chopped cooked ham; 2-3 cup soft bread; 2 egg yolks; 1 tablespoon minced parsley; 1 teaspoon minced onion; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 1/4 teaspoon paprika; 1/2 cup milk; 2 tablespoons melted butter. 3 tablespoons catsup. Mix the ingredients and pour into a buttered loaf pan. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Unmold and serve hot or cold.

A Beauty Hint
 Necklines have almost the same effect upon the face and neck as a necklace. The principles involved are almost identical in both cases. The woman with the round, full face should avoid rounded necklines. For her the oval, or V-shaped necklines are far more flattering.

The Sewing Room
 When using buttons for trimming on a wash dress, place a toothpick or match stick across face of button and sew through eyes just as though fastening button to the dress, quite naturally catching the toothpick under the thread. Then remove the stick and use a small safety pin for catching the threads to the dress from the underside. When the dress is ready to be laundered the buttons are easily removed.

In The Kitchen
 When you make your next layer or loaf cake take out enough batter for four or five cup cakes. Bake them in small pans or paper cups and then save them to put in lunch boxes, since they keep better than individual pieces of cake and may be packed more easily.

Worth Knowing
 Rub the iron over a cloth which has been moistened with kerosene when ironing starched clothes. When starch clings to your flatiron, sprinkle salt on a piece of brown paper and run the iron over it. Keep a damp sponge at hand when ironing for dampening wrinkles or spots which have become too dry.

The Family Doctor
 To dislodge a fish bone from the throat, slowly swallow the juice of a lemon, which will dissolve the bone and allow it to pass down the throat. Or swallow the white of an egg.

FULTON COUNTY HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Charles G. Baker, M. D., Health Officer

Clean milk is produced only by careful inspection and care throughout every step from the time of milking until the milk is delivered at the home of the consumer. Even then, the milk should at once be placed in the refrigerator to insure it being in perfect condition when it reaches the table.

In order to have clean milk the producer must spend several hundred dollars for equipment, and even though every dairyman who has been granted a grade A rating has experienced an increased volume of business, he frequently finds the increase slow and gradual. These mer-

U. S. ELECTRIC COM-PANIES LEAD WORLD

The United States leads the world by a tremendous margin, in hydro-electric power development. This is the outstanding fact produced in a recent factual summary of the world's water power resources, made by the Geological Survey. In North America, which embraces 12 countries, there is approximately 26,000,000 developed horsepower in hydro plants. About two-thirds—17,119,610 horsepower—of this is in the United States.

In the entire world, developed horsepower totals about 60,000,000—of which this country accounts for almost a third. As against our 17,000,000 developed horsepower, for example, Italy has but 6,000,000, France but 5,000,000, the U. S. S. R. but 1,463,000, and Great Britain and Northern Ireland but 400,000.

It is probable that if similar statistics were gathered for electric power produced by other means, such as steam plants, our world leadership would be as great. In the United States we really live in the electric age—a fact which is largely responsible for our incomparably high standard of living. The development of electrical resources and the constant bettering and cheapening of service, has been one of the major achievements of private American industry.

expect to continue producing a high grade milk since they are making a business of it rather than a sideline. Such men are progressive and take pride in maintaining their plants in the best condition possible. While they expect to make money out of their investment they are also doing a public service which merits the approval of every citizen in the county. The best manner of expressing this approval is to patronize the producers who are willing to spend money to produce the fine grade of milk which is now to be had in abundance.

When milk bottles are emptied they should at once be washed and set in a dry clean place to avoid attracting flies and other insects. This will also aid your dairyman to keep his containers clean, which merits the approval of every citizen in the county.

Based on the United States Public Health Service estimates that Fulton should use 200 gallons more milk each day than at present. Grade A milk can now be obtained from the following producers: Fulton, L. Drysdale, Paul DeMyer, City Dairy, King Rose, H. B. Houston, Tom Jolley, J. G. Houston, Clarence Caldwell, Union Dairy Co.

Any person who would care to see a grade A dairy in operation will be welcomed at any of these plants. The public is urged to go through these plants and find out at first hand the care which is being taken to insure them a healthful milk supply.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

Clip pastures at this time for two reasons: 1. Clipping prevents weeds from going to seed and constantly reseeding the fields and also furnishes a nich for young grass. 2. Grass pastures that are not clipped get tough and unpalatable for livestock. Some spots will be overgrazed and others grow up and be tough and unclean.

Suggestions for caring for colts: Never allow a colt to follow its mother to the field. There is always danger of injury and the constant walking tires the colt and stunts its growth. Keep in a dark box stall during the day and turn on pasture with its mother at night. Feed good leafy hay and grain and never allow to nurse while the mare is hot and tired.

Twenty-one million acres of land in the U. S. have been ruined by erosion. This acreage is larger than the total acres of Japan.

The real purpose of cultivation is to keep down weeds; not to stir the land. Tilling actually injures most crops and the fewer roots that are torn up by cultivation the better the yield. Every one has observed feeder roots hanging to the cultivator and plants wilt after being plowed on a hot day.

Barley yields look good. William Johnston reports that he is receiving between 35 and 40 bushels per acre. J. B. Lattus believes he will get a 40 bushel yield.

H. P. Roberts has thrashed a field of barley and crimson clover and saved the seed of both crops at the same time. The barley will run through a cleaning machine and the crimson clover screened out.

This field has furnished an enormous amount of pasture all thru the winter and early spring and is now yielding better than thirty bushels of barley and about three hundred pounds of crimson clover.

Most farmers who sowed grass in small grain are reporting plenty of pasture.

Many farmers who have harvested alfalfa hay for the first time have more hay at the present time than they began the winter feeding with last year.

The surest way to win in this world is to be willing to suffer and sacrifice and endure more than the other fellow.

Wonder if it would be proper to say that these new sit-down strikes are among the "stern" realities of life?
