City Council Meets Tonight

Tonight the City Council will meet in adjourned session to hear the second reading of the street improvement ordinance before its adoption and to transact any other business of importance. After adopting the ordinance, the council will advertise for bids on the street improvement project naming several different types of material.

While we have utmost confidence in the street committee in selecting the type of material to be used, we believe it would be wise and not out of order, for all property owners interested to express themselves and give the committee some hint as to what material they want used. We feel that expressions from the property owners would be helpful to the committee and council, and also be appreciated. Selecting the type of material to be used on Fulton's resident streets is no little task and we know that many property owners are not overburdened with cash. Their bank accounts as well as credits are limited. Some are trying to pay for their home and don't care to be placed in a position where they may be forced to give it up. Therefore, now is the time to use economy and get the very best streets constructed for the least money.

In our judgment the residential streets can be constructed for much less than the streets constructed in the business section last year. The engineers have said so and it was good advice.

We still believe that much of the material on streets to be improved can be used to excellent advantage. It would be nothing short of a wanton waste of money to destroy it and put in a complete new pavement, and it may be that some of the curb and gutters could be used at a great saving. Yes, we want all streets improved, and we want good streets that will stand the test of time, but we also urge that diligent care be taken to save the property owners every cent possible on the construction of Fulton's contemplated new streets and we believe our street committee and the city council will do this, but why not give them a hint as to what type of streets the property owners want and let the majority rule.

If any one has any preference of material now is the time to let it be known and not after the contract is let.

ONE OF THE GREATEST ROMANCES EVER FILMED

Ingram's "Garden of Allah," a Spectacular and Thrilling Drama of the Desert

One of the greatest desert romances ever filmed, "The Garden of Allah," a Rex Ingram production for Metro-Goldwyn, of Robert Hichens' famous novel comes to the Grand Theatre, Monday and Tuesday.

Filmed in the sand wastes of the Sahara, the locality in which the story takes place, it has authentic reality. It tells the tale of a Trappist monk's love for an English girl, of his marriage to her, and of his subsequent return to the monastery after three months spent with her on the desert.

Alice Terry in the role of Domini, the girl who sends her lover back to the rigid seclusion of his cell even though she is rapturously in love with him at the time, has the greatest opportunity of her career. She is supported by Ivan Petrovich, a Serbian leading man new to American audiences, and a cast of continental players. Petrovich will doubtless become the new screen favorite on the strength of his portrayal of the monk who is torn between love for a woman and faith to his trust.

"The Garden of Allah" is a haunting romance filled with passion, heartbreak and thrilling adventure.

FULTON POULTRYMEN GIVEN INSPECTORS' LICENSE

Messrs. Norman Terry and Hunter Whitesell have returned from Lexington where they took the short course in Poultry at the State Experiment Station.

We understand that the course dealt mainly with problems of breeding, feeding for production and culling for standard and production. All other important phases of the industry were taken up in order.

When the course was completed, all who had had practical experience with poultry were allowed to take the examination for "State Accredited Culling Inspector's License." Both Mr. Terry and Mr. Whitesell received this license.

DETROIT EVANGELIST TO CONDUCT MEETING HERE

Evangelist John T. Smith

The regular annual gospel meeting of the church of Christ is to begin next Lord's day, July 1, with Evangelist John T. Smith, of Detroit, doing the preaching. Mr. Smith has preached for some of the largest congregations in the United States, both as an evangelist and local minister. He is now doing local work for one of the largest churches of Christ in Detroit. He has a winning personality that convinces one of his sincerity and ability. Not only is Mr. Smith a fluent and interesting speaker, but he is an excellent singer. He was song director in one of the big meetings Nashville, held in the Rhythm Auditorium where several thousand attended. We are sure that Mr. Smith will take well with a Fulton audience.

Mr. Wilson of Memphis returns again for the purpose of conducting the song worship. For some time he has been employed by the Union Avenue church of Memphis to direct their regular song worship. Those who heard him before will want to hear him again.

There will be two services daily, afternoon and night. The meeting is free to all visitors, no collection being taken except at regular worship on Lord's days. We trust that the people of Fulton will make their plans to enjoy this spiritual feast.

SMITH NOMINATED On First Ballot With Votes To Spare.

Texan Says Four Years of New Yorker Means Fifty for Democrats

By Paul C. Yates in Houston Post.

Belief that Governor Alfred E. Smith, if elected president, will enforce the national prohibition law fearlessly and to an extent limited only by the willingness of congress to appropriate funds for the work, was expressed Thursday by Judge Adolphus Ragan, of New York, one of Governor Smith's campaign managers and closest personal friends.

Judge Ragan a native-born Texan, is a member of the small group of men constituting the Smith Board of strategy. Politically and personally he has been closely associated with the New York executive for years. He is high in the councils of the Tammany hall organization. He is credited with the remarkably skillful handling of the Smith campaign in the South, this task of the Smith strategy board having been entrusted almost entirely to his leadership.

"Governor Smith's nomination is absolutely certain, his election highly probable," Judge Ragan declared after a series of conferences with the Smith state leaders Thursday. "Four years of Smith at Washington, and the nation will be Democratic for the next half century. He is a master builder. And he is a man of destiny. He is the idolized leader of the great Democratic hosts of the Atlantic seaboard. He is my political mentor and my warm personal friend."

The former Texan asserted his belief that Governor Smith will be elected president of the United States by possibly 395 electoral votes out of the total of 531.

"He will carry Massachusetts with its 18 electoral votes, Rhode Island with 5, Connecticut with 7, New York with 45, New Jersey with 14 and Delaware with three, states which I believe no other Democrat could possibly carry."

"I believe he will carry Pennsylvania with its 38 votes. Among the border states he will carry, in the opinion of myself and other Smith friends, are Maryland with 8 votes, Kentucky with 13, Missouri with

Wants To Represent First District In Congress

GARTH K. FERGUSON

ANNOUNCEMENT

To the Democratic Voters of the First Congressional District:

At the primary election to be held August 4 of this year, the Democratic voters of the First Congressional District will choose a nominee for election in November to represent the district in the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States.

As will be recalled, I made the race for this office in the primary election of 1926 and upon the face of returns was defeated by 184 votes, after having carried nine of the thirteen counties comprising the district over my successful opponent. I have always recognized that credit for the generous support which I received in that campaign was wholly due to the loyal activity of my friends throughout the district, who gave so unselfishly of their time toward forwarding my candidacy and in espousing the issues upon which I stood, and for that and the magnanimous expression of confidence by the people of the district, I have been and shall ever be profoundly grateful. During the year 1927 it was my happy privilege to come in contact with many friends throughout the district and to add to my acquaintance among the constituency and through these contacts I found it generally believed, in view of the circumstances surrounding the last congressional primary, that I would submit my candidacy again at the next primary election. In view of this apparent general thought, the warm assurances of support received, the evident genuine desire on the part of those who previously supported me as well as many others throughout the district, that I become a candidate, I definitely determined to submit my candidacy to the Democracy and made formal announcement on December 31, 1927.

Being a member of the State Senate from the second Senatorial district, immediately following my announcement I went to Frankfort to attend the 1928 session of the General Assembly, where my duties held me until March 15, and required my entire time and attention with no opportunity afforded, or facilities furnished, to forward my interests as a candidate, and I could therefore give no attention to my candidacy by correspondence or otherwise until after the adjournment of the General Assembly. Since that time I have entered actively into the campaign, endeavoring to see as many of the voters of the district as possible and shall continue actively to solicit the support of the First District Democracy for the high honor and opportunity to serve the people of the First Congressional District which I seek at their hands; and it will be my purpose through the press, upon the stump and by personal contact to acquaint the people of the district not only with my position on public questions but also with the compelling reasons which have caused me to again become a candidate.

I have served two sessions as a member of the State Senate, to which office I was elected without opposition. It is not my idea of becoming modestly to undertake in a formal announcement a resume of my record as a public servant. I am profoundly grateful to the people for such opportunities as I have had to serve. When opportunities to initiate or take active part in legislation of a constructive and beneficial nature have presented, I have embraced them with thanksgiving, that I might contribute something toward promoting the interests and welfare of the people of my district and state. With what degree of credit I have acquitted myself and what evidence I have manifested relative to my qualifications and witness in a legislative capacity, and wherein my acts have given assurances of devotion to duty and an abiding and faithful interest in the promotion of good government and beneficent legislation and with what fidelity I have stood for principle and the inherent rights of the people, is not for me but for others to say. I can, however, say for myself that which I have said before and which above all things I want ever to be able to say, that I have not shirked a duty, evaded a responsibility or broken a pledge, and that it has been my constant and unswerving purpose to serve my district and state honestly, faithfully and with whatever degree of intelligence I am endowed. I believe nothing more was expected of me, and I could be content with nothing less.

In announcing my candidacy, I desire to earnestly ask the support of the Democracy of the district without regard to previous alignments, and I do this with the confidence that the electorate will weigh and consider the issues raised in the campaign, phases of which to my mind are fundamental to the preservation of our institutions and the inherent right of the people to choose their public officials which was so dearly bought by the Fathers of the Republic and bequeathed to us as a sacred and inalienable heritage.

I desire to thank the Democrats of the district for the support which may be given me in the campaign. I shall always most gratefully appreciate and value the interest and support of every one, and if in the sovereign judgment of the district I am chosen to speak for you in the National Congress, I promise faithful service and that I shall speak as your interests and voice give me utterance. I pledge you that I shall devote myself diligently to the performance of the important duties devolving upon me as your representative to the end that legislation shall be enacted by the Congress looking to the greatest good to the greatest number.

Very truly yours,
GARTH K. FERGUSON.

PUREBRED POULTRY

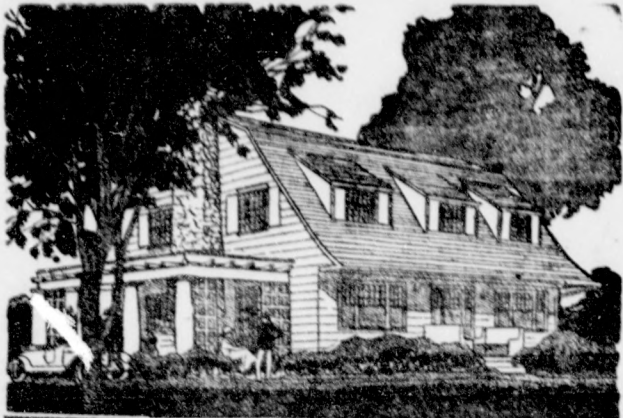

For a great many years the average farmer has gotten only a small return on his investment and some are only breaking even.

The day has come when he must take advantage of every opportunity whereby he may add to his income.

In the last two years, in this section, people have invested in purebred cows to an extent never before known. Why? Because they realize that even though these cows may cost more in the beginning, that later they produce so much better than average cows that a good profit will be left. The same is true with hogs, sheep and other farm animals including the much neglected poultry.

Last year people of this county turned to the poultry with a rush. Many thousands more were sold than in the previous years. Next year the business will be even greater.

It is a matter of only a short time before the demand will be for high grade thoroughbred poultry only, just as with our other farm animals. This year the state of Kentucky has taken up the task of improving the flocks, and is sending inspectors over the state to cull the flocks of its accredited hatcheries. This means that the state will recommend only such hatcheries as will furnish high grade chicks. At intervals inspectors will be sent to inspect these hatcheries and the flocks supplying them. This is a great step forward and eventually will mean that the scrub flock will disappear just as is the low producing cow.

Kentucky Delegates Instructed for Smith

At the State Convention in Lexington last week, Kentucky Democrats went on record as favoring the nomination of Governor Smith, New York, for president, by deciding to cast their 26 votes for him at the national convention in Houston.

The convention adopted the report of the resolution committee endorsing Smith after James D. Black, former governor, read the report.

When D. H. Kinchloe, permanent chairman, placed the question before the convention a unanimous chorus of "yeas" sounded.

After the report had been adopted Senator Alben W. Barkley announced the nomination of Herbert Hoover by the Republicans and the Democrats cheered this announcement, as cries of "He won't be hard to beat" sounded over the house. Barkley Appeals for a United Party

Senator Alben W. Barkley in his keynote address called upon all Kentuckians to join hands to defeat the common enemy—Republicans.

"For the past thirty years we have been fighting among ourselves and now is the time to unite and fight the enemy," he said. He welcomed all Democrats back into the fold and said "there is now just one Democrat and that is the Democrat who is fighting for his party." He said he had heard that a new kind of Democrat—a Sampson Democrat, had developed, within the party but was unknown to the party councils.

He made frequent reference to the Teapot Dome oil scandal and called upon the Democrats of America to support "the party that is looking out for the voiceless masses."

When he made mention of the religious freedom of the party and said that both Catholic and Protestant were welcome, a great cheer went over the auditorium and cries of "Smith, Smith," were heard on all sides.

Several other times his address was interrupted with cries of "Smith."

Results of the district meeting: First District: W. F. Bradshaw, Paducah, and Heber Finch, Fulton, delegates to national convention; H. C. Burnett, Caldwell, and Noble Harris, Crittenden, alternates; P. J. Blackburn, Caldwell, and Mrs. R. R. Neville, Arlington, state central committee.

HOMRA BROTHERS SUFFER LOSS BY FIRE

Saturday afternoon while the big double store of Homra Bros. on Lake street was crowded with shoppers, and the streets filled with Saturday visitors, fire broke out in the upper story of the building, causing quite a panic before the store was cleared of the surging crowd.

The fire had gained considerable headway before being discovered by outsiders seeing smoke issuing from the roof, and through the upper windows.

The alarm was given and the fire department made a quick dash for the scene of the conflagration. Through quick and heroic work, the flames were soon subdued. The damage to building and stock will probably amount to $15,000 or more.

Homra Brothers carry a large stock of dry goods, clothing, shoes and furnishings, and is one of Fulton's substantial business firms.

Mrs. Abernathy, who occupied part of the building with her millinery, also suffered a big loss.

The flames were held in the upper story, but the stock below were drenched with water.

Graves-Lowe

Miss Nelle Graves, formerly of Fulton but who has made her home in Memphis, while visiting her aunt, Mrs. William Conley in St. Louis, was happily united in marriage, Monday, June 18th, to Mr. Kelly R. Lowe, son of J. H. Lowe of this city. Both are popular young people who have a large circle of friends to wish them a long and happy life of wedded bliss.

The newlyweds will be at home to their friends at Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith's on Fourth street where they have apartments.

Beloved Woman Passes Away.

Mrs. Ada Marie Hodges, wife of Cecil Hodges died at her home a few miles east of town Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock, at the age of 22 years. She is survived by her husband and one small child.

The funeral service was conducted Wednesday afternoon at Pleasant Hill church, Rev. A. N. Walker officiating, interment followed immediately in charge of Winstead & Jones Undertaking Company.

HICKMAN STAGE RISES

Mississippi Flooding Many Acres of Bottom Land

Hickman, Ky., June 24.—The river rose seven inches here last night, a tremendous rise with the river at its present high stage, and the end is not yet in sight. The people of this section are facing the possibility of the highest flood ever known in the month of June.

While they often have June rises, they very seldom reach the height this one has already reached. The spring flood last year was the highest ever known, with the one this year the highest June rise.

The river had begun falling several days ago and it was thought that the crest had been reached, but the incessant rains started another rise and the river report today from Cairo, which gauge governs Hickman, did not state just how much more water might be expected.

The crest a few days ago drowned almost every acre of land in the upper bottoms, with just a few acres here and there above the water, but this rise will get the few remaining acres. That section is unprotected and low but with good years excellent crops are raised. Every crop on the outside of the levees will also be drowned out with possible damage from seep water to many of the crops behind the levee. There is ready much standing water from the heavy rains behind the levees.

BENNETT-MADDOX

Miss Margaret Alene Maddox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Maddox, and Mr. Sterling McKeen Bennett were united in marriage Sunday morning at seven-thirty o'clock at the First Methodist church in the presence of a few friends and relatives. The Rev. H. B. Vaught officiated, using the ring ceremony.

The bride, who is a very attractive and popular young lady, wore a becoming dress of rose-beige georgette trimmed with wide bands of lace, and picture hat and accessories in harmony. She carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas and Sweetheart roses.

Mr. Bennett is the son of Mr. Boyd Bennett of this city and is at present connected with The City Garage.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for a motor trip and on their return they will be at home on Walnut Street.

TENNESSEE HIGHWAY NEWS

Union City.—In a final letter to C. G. Guill, finance commissioner of Union City, Highway Commissioner Harry S. Berry, has repeated that the department's policy of stopping all highway work at corporate limits will be strictly adhered to, whatever the pleas by particular towns.

Mr. Guill has besought the state highway department to pave 600 feet of East Main Street to the corporate limits of Union City, so as to connect with the paving work on State Route No. 3. Because of other similar requests, Commissioner Berry consulted the attorney general, who ruled that if the highway department did street work in one town it would be obligated to do work in all, this entailing the paving of the principal streets of the largest cities through which state highways pass. The only alternative was to stay out of all towns, and this the highway department proposed to do. Commissioner Berry has notified Mr. Guill. The same statement has been made to officials of other towns that have besought state aid in local street work, because of low taxation or other reasons. The only exception will be that Commissioner Berry will carry out any contracts with towns made by his predecessor, he wrote. He also denied that the state highway department had done any work on city streets in Memphis which was intimated by Mr. Guill in a suggestion of favoritism.

NATIONAL DAIRY EXPOSITION TO FEATURE 4-H CALF CLUB EXHIBITS

An outstanding feature of the present dairy development in the South is the interest being taken in this development by the 4-H Agricultural Club members and their sponsors.

During the past winter and spring many carloads of high class registered dairy heifers have been brought to the Mid-South and distributed to Club members who are planning to become real dairymen.

The importance of this Dairy Club work is being recognized by the National Dairy Association which organization has arranged for a prize fund of $6,450.00 for Calf Club exhibits at the National Dairy Show to be held at Memphis in connection with the Tri-State Fair, October 13-20. Of this amount $4,100.00 is offered for exhibits from the United States as a whole and $2,350.00 for exhibits by Club members residing in Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas, Kentucky and Alabama.

Five breeds of dairy cattle are eligible to compete in open competition but only three breeds—Jerseys, Guernseys and Holsteins will compete for the Mid-South prizes. These prizes are so arranged that practically every Mid-South exhibit will receive some part of the money.

$1,450.00 of this prize fund is for groups of five calves from a single county. $300.00 is for the best individual Jersey Calves; $100.00 is for the best fitted calves and $100.00 for the best Club Showmen.

$400.00 of the fund is donated and offered by the Memphis Press-Scimitar, and is for the three best club exhibits from each of the five named Southern states.

Mr. and Mrs. Binford Drysdale, of Dresden were the Sunday guests of relatives here.

Considerable damage was done by the wind and hail storm in this section Sunday afternoon. One barn was completely wrecked and others somewhat damaged. Many fruit trees were blown down. Tobacco, corn and vegetable gardens were torn by the hail.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Finch and family, of Ruthville spent Sunday as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Watkins.

Mr. Herbert Moore had his tonsils removed at the Mayfield hospital Wednesday.

Miss Elizabeth Craddock spent Saturday night and Sunday with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Everett.

BOAZ CHAPEL

There isn't much farming going on in this community on account of so much rain.

Mr. J. F. Butler and family attended Children's Service at Mt. Zion Sunday morning.

Mr. Elbert Carver from Detroit, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Goulder last week.

Mr. Curt Muzzell is very ill at this writing.

Mr. Ernest Grissom came home from Detroit Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Oliver spent Saturday night and Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wiley.

Mrs. Ada Moon is still on the sick list.

The niece of Mrs. W. W. Batts is visiting from Missouri. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Sisson spent Sunday with Mrs. Annie Oliver.

Mr. J. F. Butler and family spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Hughie Butler of Fulton.

Mississippi River Falling.

Reports come from Hickman that the Mississippi River is falling after reaching the highest mark ever recorded in the month of June. Much damage in the upper bottoms to crops and on the low lands are reported from Hickman.

SMITH SEEN AS PARTY MOSES

18 and Indiana with 15.

"He will carry Illinois, which has 29 electoral votes. He will take Wisconsin, with 13; South Dakota, with five; Wyoming, with three; Utah with four; Montana with four; Nevada with three; New Mexico, with three; and Colorado with six—although this is a doubtful state also.

"There is a possibility that he will carry Nebraska, with its eight votes. With Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia—giving a total of 126 votes—and taking into consideration, of course, the doubtful and border states, Smith piles up on paper the total of 395 votes.

"The electoral college has a total of 531 votes. The winner requires 266 votes."

Judge Ragan believes the vice presidential outlook is highly encouraging to the party, since a number of men who would add strength to the ticket are in sight. Among the vice presidential possibilities, with Smith as the standard bearer, he mentioned Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, who is the likely choice for permanent chairman of the Houston convention; former Governor John M. Parker of Louisiana, Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee, now a presidential candidate; Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, who is known to be favored by some of the most influential party leaders of the Middle West, and Senator John B. Kendrick of Wyoming, a native-born Texan loved throughout the West. To this list might be added the name of Governor G. W. P. Hunt of Arizona, who would receive very careful consideration were it not for the fact that his state is geographically a little too far west to meet the logic of a Middle Western running mate.

Mid West Boom Looms

Representative Rainey's name has not figured in pre-convention speculation regarding the vice presidential choice, but Middle Western boom of surprising strength may develop in his favor before the convention gets round to the task of choosing a running mate.

Judge Ragan expressed the belief that Governor Smith would be willing to accept a strong dry enforcement plank in the national platform, but made it plain that he was speaking only from his long association with the governor. He also expressed belief that Governor Smith, in case he is nominated, will re-state his own personal views toward the dry law issue in plain language, to the end that nobody can say he is putting himself in a hypocritical attitude; and then will let prohibition fall into the background and turn his campaigning talents to a vigorous offensive warfare against the Republican party.

"I am confident that Governor Smith would give the country a type of enforcement that would amaze and disconcert some of his critics," Judge Ragan said.

Rebirth at Battlefield

Judge Ragan gave out the following prepared statement dealing with the political significance of a "Democratic political rebirth" achieved almost within sight of the battlefield of San Jacinto:

"There is something of a thrill in the thought that we are this year to nominate our candidate for president almost on the very site of the battle of San Jacinto. Here the Republic of Texas had its birth. Here the blood of heroes was shed. Here we treat on holy ground. Here the last vestige of tyranny and oppression was swept from that portion of the North American continent which lies above the Rio Grande. Here, may be not expect, our party will experience a rebirth of the spirits of Jefferson and of Jackson and of Wilson? This will mean for our country a new birth of freedom—freedom from corruption, freedom from intolerance, freedom from bureaucratic murder and intolerable insolence, freedom from the paralyzing influence of $10,000,000 daily paid in bribes to circumvent the enforcement of the law of the land.

Favorite Sons Worthy

"And the Empire State comes South prepared to offer to the party and to the nation a former newsboy from the sidewalks of New York who long ago dedicated his life to the service of mankind. We have no quarrel with any state that wishes to honor a favorite son and a number of them have sons worthy of all honor.

"It has been the policy of Governor Smith's friends from the very outset to encourage rather than to discourage the recognition by the several states of their distinguished sons. We have felt that the future historian of some of the states could not possibly justify a failure by the present generation to accord such recognition.

"On the other hand we have been fully conscious from the beginning that Gov. Smith's popularity alone among these men was nation-wide in its scope."

Leader in New York

Judge Ragan was born at Hemphill, in Sabine county and was reared in the piney woods of East Texas. He moved to New York to practice law 20 years ago and has risen to prominence in legal circles of the Empire state, in New York city politics, and in humanitarian work and social service.

He is one of the group of men who have brought about the regeneration of Tammany hall and endowed it with new aims and ideals. He characterizes Governor Smith as the "most lovable men I have ever known; generous, fearlessly honest, a genius in statecraft, superbly endowed as an executive, and with a heart brimming over with compassion toward the underprivileged, the poor and the unfortunate."

The former Texan was accompanied to Houston by his nephew, Cooper Kirby Ragan, of Newton. This young East Texan recently graduated with high honors from the law department of Texas university, at the age of 22, after receiving his academic degree.

REPUTATIONS ARE EARNED

Little more than a quarter-century ago, we established our present business in Fulton. All, naturally, but founded on the idea of looking toward the future and anticipating the requirements of a growing community, seasoned with plenty of ambition and energy to back us up. During all these years it has been our ambition to render the very best service possible, adding new equipment to our plant from time to time until we are now classed among the leading laundry, dry cleaning and dyeing establishments of the South.

Today we number our customers by the thousands—every one of whom look to us for satisfaction. They know that we have earned the reputation of dependability. They know too, that we being members of the Master Dyers and Clearers National Association, we keep informed with the very latest, scientific methods of handling garments entering our plant, and that we are in a position to render a distinct service that no other plant can give between Paducah and Memphis. We prize our reputation highly. Deeply we cherish the friendship that is developed through our satisfactory service to the public in our dry cleaning and dyeing. Our patrons feel that their garments we work on are their most intimate and prized possessions and with our long experience and latest, scientific methods, we will give excellent service at the following prices.

Heaven Help Us! Another Saxophone Has Been Born!

Not content with spring house cleaning, presidential campaigns, senate investigations and nine saxophones, the Fates have thrust upon us another saxophone, making ten. We just received this bad news from the Conn Music Center, Elkhart, Indiana.

That will increase the suffering of the public ten per cent, according to the reports of the country's best statisticians. The latest perpetration is a saxophone in "F". We don't know what that means but it is reported to mean "Saxophone in 'F'." If it is true that this is the last saxophone, we're humbly thankful. Providing no more saxophones are made, we guess we can stand just one more. Hospital records will tell.

According to the latest United States census, the saxophone family, from smallest to largest, consists of the following: E flat soprano, C soprano, B flat soprano curved, B flat soprano straight, mezzo-soprano, E flat alto, C melody, B flat tenor, E flat baritone and B flat bass.

Count 'Em and Weep

Count 'em, gentlemen. Count 'em and weep. Ten of 'em, now.

What makes it worse is that the new instrument in F is to be a lead instrument. You know what that means. Remember when you used to sing in the choir? Everybody wanted to sing the solo parts. It wasn't so bad when most of the choir was set to work singing alto, baritone or bass, but when they broke forth into the lead it was terrible. With the resourcefulness of the Spanish Inquisition, the makers of this instrument have doped out a new design which is different from all the rest. It looks the same but it sounds different. We're not interested. It can't sound any worse. Ho hum.

"Cross fence into ten acres"

"I can get more pasture from four 10-acre lots than from one forty," says G. W. Hower, Cape Girardeau, Mo. "Grass is fresher, cattle eat more." Floyd Newman, Craigton, Neb., crossed four 10-acre fields for hogging down. He writes: "Hogs did better, corn lasted longer, no waste, moisture was left on the field and I saved picking expense." For fencing hog-tight we recommend

MONARCH Hinge Joint

With it you can hog-down corn, run stock after harvest, rotate crops, level woods down, fertilize the land, etc. Its hinge gives under shock and strain but springs right back again. Copper lined in the steel plus a heavy zinc coating, keeps rust out for longer than ordinary galvanized wire. Come in and look this "Red Brand" fence over.

A FEW LOOSE FEATHERS

By J. T. Watkins
 More rain, more drowned chicks, more grief, more worry, when will it end?
 There is only one thing that will prosper in the chicken business when weather conditions are like they are now, and that is lice.
 We were out in the country with the county agent the other day to cull a flock of hens, and I want to say I saw more lice and mites at this place than I have seen in many a day. The mites were hanging in clusters beneath the roosts and were red as fire, which showed they had a good feast the night before.
 Get busy. Paint all roosts with a good oil emulsion, be sure to daub all cracks, knot holes or any other place where a mite can hide, with all the oil you can get into them. Grease the legs and feet good with the oil. Repeat the dose every week for a month, the hens will appreciate it.

 Well, the premium list will be out in a few days, and if you don't get one soon, write in for it. To my opinion this is the best premium list ever gotten out by this fair association. Every department has been enlarged.
 The poultry and dairy departments are as good as the Jackson, Tenn., fair, and they claim to be the "West Tennessee District Fair," and receive several thousand dollars aid from the State. A few more years and Fulton fair will be as big as Jackson fair.
 A good slogan to adopt for Fulton county, "A registered Jersey cow, and a flock of Standard bred poultry on every farm in Fulton County."

WOULD JOHN'S FIT?

The widow of a farmer was being consoled by a neighboring farmer, who happened to be a widower. "Cheer up, woman," he said, "Ye're young yet and good looking, an' ye could soon get another husband."
 "Oh, no, no," she replied; "who would take me?"
 "Why, if I had a better pair o' boots on, I'd run away w' ye myself!" said the widower, gallantly.
 The widow, lifting her face and wiping her eyes, said, earnestly, "I wonder would John's fit you?"

FARM POULTRY

BREEDING STOCK GOVERNS POULTS

The flock of young turkeys will be governed by the breeding stock. To produce healthy stock the breeders must be strong and vigorous. Weak or diseased birds will only produce their kind, so it is necessary for the turkey grower to exercise great care in selecting his breeding stock, writes W. D. Neale in the Idaho Farmer.

The breeders should be well fed. A daily ration of equal parts of oats, wheat and corn will be essential if birds are allowed free range, otherwise they should be fed twice each day. A green food, such as cabbage and beets, will be enjoyed, and sweet milk or clabber or buttermilk will take the place of bugs and meat foods. Plenty of grit and oyster shell should be kept before the birds during breeding season. Good foods mean eggs strong in fertility.

One gobbler to a dozen hens is sufficient. If more hens are kept, it will be necessary to have another gobbler. Do not let the gobblers run together for they will spend much time and vitality fighting. Let one gobbler from the pen each day.

If the hens are inclined to stray away and hide their nests where they are hard to find, it will be best to confine them to a small pen enclosed by a six-foot chicken wire until after they lay each morning. One may have a covered pen if they are bad to fly.

Salt barrels, laid down and filled with straw, make an ideal place for hens to lay. The hen that begins to lay about the fifteenth of March will have finished and be ready to sit by the tenth of April. It is best to break her up and let her lay another month before allowing her to hatch a brood. The first eggs can be placed under a broody chicken hen. A large hen can cover ten eggs nicely.

If the turkeys are allowed to range the eggs should be gathered each day. Skunks, crows and dogs will rob the nests if they can locate them. A crow will sit around and watch a turkey hen an hour or two. As soon as she leaves the nest it will swoop down and get the egg. The eggs should be kept at a temperature of 50 or 55 degrees. They should be kept in a box lined with cotton batting, so they will not be jarred when handled.

Turkeys Profitable in Many Parts of Country

Farmers in practically all parts of the country have found that modern methods of raising turkeys are profitable. It was formerly considered necessary to have a lot of land and turn the turkeys loose; the old turkey hen stole her nest and more often than not the poults died rather than fived. The secret of raising turkeys is in raising them away from chickens on ground on which chickens have never run. They are kept confined to one yard or run, about 125 poults being placed under one regular sized brooder stove in a 10 by 12 foot house. Artificial methods of incubating and brooding have proved very satisfactory.

Strict sanitary measures must be followed, such as frequent cleaning of the house, clean water vessels and feed troughs and an occasional spraying of the house. It used to be the idea that grasshoppers and other bugs could be relied on for a good share of the turkey diet. Modern turkey raisers, however, do not rely upon these foods, but feed a regular scratch and dry mash, just as is done with chickens. Wet grass will not do for as long as the vitality of the turkeys is kept up by proper feeding.

Prevent Accidents

Chicks deserve a chance to be healthy. If the brooder is kept so hot that they cannot get a breath of fresh air, or if the house is so small or overcrowded that they cannot get away from the brooder and thereby regulate the amount of heat they receive, the result will be no better than if the chicks were chilled. The good mother either of chickens or of children provides warm quarters for her offspring but allows them some liberties.

Turkey Dangers

One of the most important dangers the turkey grower has to avoid is bare ground about the coops and feeding places. This is particularly important where losses in former years have been heavy. If the young turkeys are kept on a good soil and never allowed to come in contact with bare earth, particularly about the barnyard, where a degree of infection probably is always present, there will be vastly fewer deaths from diarrhoea, black head, etc.

Feather Eating

Feather eating usually results from idleness while the hens are in winter quarters as well as a craving for material not in their ration. Adding 20 per cent beef scrap to the dry mash may satisfy their appetite. Try lining a piece of raw beef in the poultry house for the birds to peck at. Feed their scratch grain in litter to keep them busy. As soon as the weather permits turn the flock on range so they can become interested in other things.

All Simply Good Business

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"I WANT to save the old place, sir," said young Phillip Moreland to the family lawyer.

"You cannot do it merely on your salary in Humbert's," said Mr. Trask. "No—the Humbert job is merely to pay my living expenses now. Before I went abroad, I always expected to live in the home on my return, but I didn't count on that crash in stocks—I ought to have known better. But I want to save the old place for my children, Mr. Trask."

"You are married, Mr. Moreland?" and the lawyer's grizzled brows rose inquiringly.

"Good heavens no, sir. Haven't even met the right girl—I never was interested much in girls, you know. Mr. Trask—too busy with mountain climbing and exploring for that."

"A good thing for you, too. Well, Mr. Moreland, I think I can help you out in the matter of the house. You say that you will take all the green houses, and so forth, and start a fashionable florist business. You still have that Scotch gardener, MacLaren? Good for you. You can live in the large house if you want to. The small lodge cottage at the south gate is wanted by a young woman who'll open a tea shop there. The price I am charging her will take care of the interest on mortgages, and pay something on principal. What your florist business does is still more profit for the house. In two or three years you will be free and clear."

"Good! Now tell me what to do next."

"Stay here half an hour and meet the tea-room lady."

"Not on your life," said Mr. Moreland, seizing his hat. And he went out.

Mr. Trask smiled amiably. "He hasn't seen Miss Fenby yet?" he murmured.

Phillip Moreland got into his car and drove back home along the smooth Long Island roads to the splendid inheritance that was his. He carried in the car pockets, all kinds of reading matter that would help him solve the problem of saving the place for his children if he ever had any! He entered by the south gate and scanned the small brick lodge, with its wide porches and pretty grounds.

"I will have Meadows erect a heavy wire fence behind the place and so cut off this south entrance from the house and grounds," he mused, and the next day there was begun a very tall and very strong wire stockade.

"That is just what it is, auntie," averred Irene Strong Fenby. "A tall stockade! I am glad it is there. I shall plant Jasmine and clematis and other things so that it is covered over. I suppose that Mr. Moreland is a rather snarly old bachelor, and I am more than glad that he has put the fence up there. Makes us feel quite independent, auntie."

Two weeks afterward Mr. Phillip Moreland was driving past the south gate of his estate on his way to dinner three miles away. There came to him a delicious fragrance of fried chicken and hot bread. He stopped and stared at the "Briek Tea House" and then he parked his car within the space of the open gate, and went into the building.

The first thing he saw was a charming wide veranda set with small tables with an elderly woman, in a charming lavender frock, knitting and rocking gently in a chair.

"Perhaps you would rather sit in a chair," she told him.

"Thank you," said Phillip, and entered.

It was all green tables and wicker chairs and pretty flowered delft. Guests were seated at all the tables excepting one. There Phillip seated himself.

And Miss Irene Fenby herself, chatting in flowered silk, with her black hair satin smooth, and her soft black eyes shy, and yet businesslike, brought his delicious dinner. She waited on him, once a little awkwardly, when she explained that their regular waitress had burned her hand. Phillip could not keep his eyes off of her. He stared as long as he politely could over the meal, and then went home to dream about the girl.

"Look here!" he told himself sharply. "This affair is strictly business—and so I forbid you to eat there again, 'young feller-me-lad.'" He remained away a week and went there once more and had more fried chicken and hot bread, and fell deeper in love with Miss Fenby than before.

When he saw her quick flash of recognition at his second visit, he flung out himself and came every day. Then at last one day Miss Irene Fenby came aware of his identity.

"I cannot bear him," she told her aunt solemnly. "He means about putting up that fence, eh, auntie, I ought not to say that for the old place is adorable and I know if it were mine I wouldn't let anyone open a tea shop here!"

Then, in the fall of the year, Mr. Phillip Moreland went to his lawyer again and told him that now that the mortgages were all paid, he thought he would turn out the tea shop.

"What will become of Miss Fenby?" asked Mr. Trask.

"We are going to be married!" reported Phillip joyously. "And Irene's aunt will live there, too. That is all simply good business," he added contentedly.

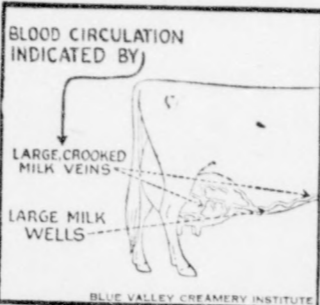

VOLUME OF MILK DEPENDS ON BLOOD

Tortuous Mammary Veins and Milk Wells Sure Indication of Productivity.

The milk-making ability of a dairy cow is determined to large extent by the circulation of blood through her body, declares the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. In a recent study of the dairy cow.

If the volume of blood is great and the cow fed well, the volume of nutrients will be great, dairymen believe. And, in turn, if the milk-making coils are efficient and numerous, the volume of milk will be large.

The volume of circulating blood and the direction in which it flows are indicated by the mammary veins and milk wells which are found passing forward along the underline of the cow from the udder toward the shoulder pits. Every cow has two of these veins, one on each side. On some cows these veins are short, straight and small. On others they are large, long, crooked and branched. In the first case only a small amount of blood is passing through the udder, according to dairy experts, while in the other instance the indication is that there is an extremely large volume of blood flowing in the proper direction for milk production.

At the end of each vein there is a hole in the abdomen through which the blood passes back on its way to the heart and lungs for purification and to be pumped back again on its former route past the digestive apparatus and around through the udder to other portions of the body where it carries nutrients for the maintenance of the animal. These small holes in the abdomen are called milk wells. If the vein is small, only a small milk well will be found at the end. If the flow of blood is sufficiently great, the mammary veins become developed and in turn the milk wells are large. Invariably, the greater the development of the mammary veins and the larger and more numerous the milk wells, the more productive the cow, provided, of course, she possesses the other four essentials for good milk production—a strong constitution, a big capacity for feed, nervous temperament, and an inherent ability to make milk.

GOLDWEATHER CUTS COW'S WINTER YIELD

Abundance of Water of Comfortable Temperature Essential to Production.

An abundance of water of a comfortable temperature is essential to profitable winter milk production, says the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. A cow milking 30 pounds a day drinks about 100 pounds of water each 24 hours. If the water is too cold in a tank, no cow will or can possibly drink this much water in a single day. Consequently she will not give 30 pounds of milk even though she has the ability to produce it and is fed with that end in view.

FOR GREATER WINTER COW PROFITS

Provide Cows With Plenty of Warmed Water Several Times a Day

The milk flow may be cut down quicker by a lack of water or by the use of ice water than by poor feed. Therefore, the wise dairymen makes provision for an abundance of water from which the chill is removed. Where individual drinking cups are used, even if the water is not warmed, the cow will take such small amounts at a time that no harm results from drinking it cold. However, when cows are watered from a tank in which the water is too cold, it pays to install a water heater of some kind. Under such conditions it is much cheaper to warm the water with fuel than by giving the cow extra grain to warm it within her body.

A GUARANTEED CURE FOR CHILLS AND MALARIA

After suffering with chills and fever for more than a year and trying most every conceivable remedy, without a cure, I was persuaded by a friend to take Mendenhall's Chill Tonic by directions, and after taking half a bottle, I have never had another chill, and that was 29 years ago. I am pleased to give this testimonial in behalf of suffering humanity, and feel confident that Mendenhall's Chill Tonic saved my life as I was in a terrible condition.

R. S. WILLIAMS.
Mothers, if you have never used "Mendenhall's" for your children, cut this ad out and mail to Dr. J. C. Mendenhall, Evansville, Ind., and he will send you a 50 cent bottle free by mail.

Clean heat

No black kettles to scour!

How much pleasanter cooking is, when there are no black pots and pans to scour afterward! Every woman who cooks with a Perfection Oil Stove is spared that horrid nuisance.

There is never a speck of soot. For in the long chimneys, every drop of oil is completely burned before the heat reaches the cooking.

Perfection flames stay at the height you set them, so you need never fear they will "creep up" and make the kitchen sooty.

Soot, as you know, is half-burned kerosene—just wasted heat. With Perfections you have real fuel economy, as all the oil is changed into cooking heat. They burn only kerosene, the safe household fuel.

Miss Allen says—
"Utensil bottoms are free from soot when cooking is done on the Perfection Stove."
MISS LUCY G. ALLEN
Principal, Boston School of Cookery.

With Perfection you will have wonderful cooking results, and your utensils will stay shiny as new. See the newest Perfections at any dealer's—1 to 5 burner sizes. Priced from $7.25 to $130.

Teaching You Thrift

Practice makes perfect. Schoolmasters of today as well as yesterday constantly repeat that truth. Pupils learn by applying it.

Application of that principle to our everyday habits proves its practical help. We learn by practicing, whether it be a good habit or a bad habit.

This bank teaches you thrift by leading you to practice it. The lesson is easily learned once it is begun. To become perfect in it requires constant practice. A savings account is the most consistent method of practicing thrift.

The Company You Keep

Just as a man is judged in a personal way by the company he keeps, so is he judged in a business way by the banking connection he makes.

A checking or savings account with a good reliable institution like this one reflects good business judgment. It builds prestige.

So choose wisely and soon.

Lesson for July 1

THE EARLY LIFE OF SAUL

LESSON TEXT—Deut. 6:4-9; Phil. 2:14; Acts 22:3, 27, 28.
GOLDEN TEXT—Remember also thy Creator in the days of thy youth.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Story of Saul as a Child.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Boyhood of a Great Preacher.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Saul's Training for Service.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Influences Shaping Saul's Early Life.

I. Israel's Responsibility With Reference to God's Laws (Deut. 6:4-9).

1. Central truths to be taught (vv. 4, 5).
(1) Unity of God. "The Lord our God is one Lord." He is God alone, therefore to worship another is sin.
(2) Man's supreme obligation (v. 5). God should be loved with all the heart, soul and might, because He is God alone and supreme. This being the first and the great commandment, we know what is man's supreme duty.

2. How these truths are to be kept alive (vv. 6-9).
The place for God's Word is in the heart. In order that it may be in the heart (1) "teach it diligently to thy children" (v. 7). The most important part of a child's education is that given in the home in the Word of God. How sadly this is neglected today!
(2) To talk of them in the home (v. 7). This is the right kind of home life. How blessed is that home where God's Word is the topic of conversation.
(3) Talk of them when walking with our children and friends (v. 7).
(4) Talk of them when retiring for the night (v. 7). The last thing upon which the mind should rest before going to sleep should be God and His truth.
(5) Talk of them when rising in the morning (v. 7). How fitting that God should speak to us the first thing when we awake!
(6) Bind them upon thine hand (v. 8). This was literally done by the Jews even to the wearing of them in little boxes between their eyes.
(7) Write them upon the posts of the houses and on the gates (v. 9). Such a remembrance of God's words would create a spiritual atmosphere most desirable.

II. Saul's Ground of Confidence (Phil. 3:4-6).

1. He had everything a true Jew gloried in.

1. Circumcized the eighth day. This was the literal requirement of the law for those born under the Abrahamic covenant.

2. "Of the stock of Israel" (v. 5). This shows that he was a true Jew, related to the chosen people by blood and birth.

3. Of the tribe of Benjamin. Benjamin had always remained loyal to the national customs. The first king of Israel, whose name he bore, was of Benjamin.

4. "Hebrew of the Hebrews" (v. 5). This showed that he was of Hebrew parentage and not a proselyte.

5. Touching the law, a Pharisee (v. 5).
The Pharisees were of the sect most zealous for all the rites and ceremonies of Judaism.

6. "Concerning zeal, persecuting the church" (v. 6).
He proved his zeal by positive effort to stamp out that which was threatening Judaism.

7. "Touching the righteousness which is in the law, blameless" (v. 6).
So exactly had he conformed to the outer requirements of the law that he was consciously blameless.

III. A Sketch of Saul's Life (Acts 22:3, 27, 28).

1. His birth (v. 3).
Though born at Tarsus, a city outside of Palestine he had been brought up in a strict Jewish home. Tarsus was the capital of the province of Cilicia. It was a city of prominence because of its commerce and culture. It was one of the three principal university cities of that period.

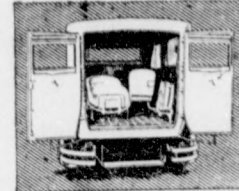

2. His education (v. 3).
Born out of Palestine, he was sent to Jerusalem for his education. This fact shows that he belonged to a zealous family of Jews. His teacher was the great Gamaliel, a doctor of the law and the leader of the strict sect of the Pharisees.

3. His citizenship (vv. 27, 28).
He was by birth a Roman citizen because Tarsus was the capital of a Roman province. In the providence of God the great apostle to the Gentiles was given the prestige of a free-born citizen of the empire. He was loyal to his country and proud of his citizenship.

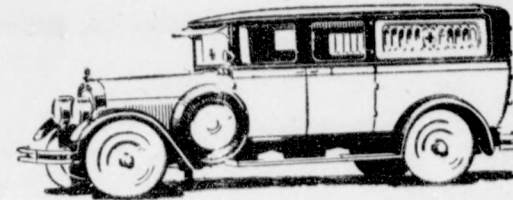

4. The Joy of the Lord
Oh, believe, the joy of Christ is within you; give it room, let it spring up within you like a well of living water, and you will rejoice in the Lord always, and again rejoice.—G. H. C. Macgregor.

5. Conversing With the Angels
There is no power on earth can prevent me from holding converse with the angels, even though with my hands I feed pigs.—Lydia Maria Child.
