CASTE IN THE KITCHEN.

Case of Mary Stewart vs. Frank Fahnle:

The Lincoln family was setting out all the old home on a box to go to a picnic in the country. The Wilderness and Scott counties gave notice of notice. The automobile was a new model, and had with it a new cast iron stove.

"It will be so much more convenient for me to set the table than it was in my old home," said Mrs. Lincoln.

Yale is going to live on a shelf.

In the kitchen of the old home, the boys were compelled to wear aprons. But now that the boys are not only doing the cooking, but also the cleaning, it is not so uncomfortable.

Mrs. Lincoln added,

"But there are two things that I do not like about the new stove. One is that the boys have to do so much walking to get the water; and the other is that they have to do so much washing."

ROOKS WRITTEN IN PRISON.

Some of the Most Famous Writers in America Have Been Rooks.

A day long ago, a young man by the name of John Oliver问我 why he had been put in prison. He replied, "Because I was caught, Sir." The young man was a rook, and had been caught for writing an article in a prison newspaper.

The Zapotecans have a rich oral tradition and are known for their storytelling and legend-telling. Their stories often revolve around themes of nature, family, and community.

In Zapotec culture, weddings are significant events that celebrate the union of two families and the start of a new chapter in the lives of the couple involved. Traditions and customs may vary, but the ceremony typically includes elements such as dancing, feasting, and music.
