LOOKING AHEAD

It hasn't been so very many years ago, as most Fulton citizens will recall when the easiest way to get an argument out of a man was to mention "good roads." The auto was just beginning to become popular, though sentiment was about evenly divided as to whether it would prove a permanent method of transportation or a passing fad. The good roads question was a national issue, and it was possible to find whole families divided as to the wisdom of building any better roads than those in use for horse-drawn vehicles.

Today there is no argument about it. Everyone from coast-to-coast, and lakes-to-gulf, is agreed that the auto will always be this nation's leading mode of transportation and that the welfare and prosperity of every community, large or small, hinges on the condition of the roads and horse-drawn vehicles. Realizing this, those who are far-seeing are insisting that every new road that is built be made wide enough to carry twice the traffic now operating over it, and that old roads, as they are repaired, be made correspondingly wide. The day is not far distant when about 80 percent of the roads now in use in this country will be unable to carry safely and speedily the amount of traffic that will be seeking to use them.

It is a good point for our road-builders to keep in mind. It will be to the interest of the taxpayers, in the long run, to build wider roads from now on, and to make the old ones wider as quickly as convenient. Then the job won't have to be done twice, at twice the cost.

in covered wagons were blazing a trail from the Mississippi river into the great northwest territory. A route today familiar to most everyone around Fulton as the Oregon Trail. Just now, according to government reports, a new trek is underway. This time the fortune seekers are using autos and trailers instead of covered wagons, but their object is the same. They are home hunting.

Today the going is easy. Modern bridges span turbulent streams that exacted a heavy toll of life and property in the early days of pioneering. Perfectly paved roads shorten the distance to hours instead of weeks. In three years, it is carefully estimated, 25,000 families have arrived in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, most of them from the drought-plagued states. Some are able to purchase land, erect buildings and buy farm machinery. Others, however, arrive in broken-down old cars and are penniless. They must rely upon state or government agencies, not only for their existence but also for a chance to develop a new home.

Few realize better than residents of the northwest themselves the problems arising from the influx and already organized effort is underway to discourage the migration of those who are not able to finance themselves and pay their own way. It is a matter worthy of serious study by anyone contemplating a change of location.

COURTESY PAYS.

When a Connecticut man died a few weeks ago and his will was read it was found that he had left a tidy sum to a lad who once retrieved the old gentleman's hat and refused to accept the ten-cent reward that was offered. Of course there are not many instances in which courtesy is thus rewarded, but the instance is of value to Fulton parents in impressing their children with the fact that even though they may never be mentioned in somebody's will, courtesy always pays. Elderly people are always quick to notice and appreciate courtesy on the part of the young. It reflects favorably, too, upon the parents of those boys and girls with no thought of compensation. There are times when it seems courtesy on the part of the young has suffered a slump in this country. Maybe the case of the old gentleman who remembered the boy who retrieved his hat will serve in a small way to impress a few youngsters with the age-old fact that "courtesy always pays."

WATCH THE WATER.

While some states now carefully mark the source of drinking water along their main highways, as to its purity, it would be a good idea for every Fulton motorist who plans a drive into strange territory to keep in mind the importance of such information. Drinking any kind of water that is handy when one is thirsty is extremely dangerous, and it is much better to continue on a little further until source of supply that is known to be pure can be obtained. Rather than take a chance on being forced to drink impure water many motorists carry a bottle or jug in their car, refilling it at each stop where fresh, wholesome and kindred ailments. Typhoid and kindred ailments most frequently spring from the drinking of contaminated water and the seriousness of such ailments are too well known to be ignored. There is good and bad drinking water in every community. Don't take a chance on your own or your family's health by guessing which is which.

Picked Up About Town

Doc Hughes wants to know if you ever heard of the absent-minded shoe manufacturer who went home and pasted his wife.

"The fellow I always try hardest to dodge," asserts Walter Evans "is the one who always wants to tell me something for my own good."

There's always one advantage in motoring over a rough road. It has the fewest billboards.

As Robert Graham has figured out, a man prepares against old age by laying up money and creating an estate and a woman by dieting and more beauty treatments.

"Middle age," declares Joe Bennett "is that time in life when the average man is going to begin saving next month."

A ripe old age is nothing at all to be bragging about. Just look at the tomato. find is where to stay away from next time.

B. J. Williams says one thing. Lot of fellows who take vacations

Frank Merryman says many a good architect has discovered, after his honey-moon, that his wife can make plans, too.

"The American people," says Bill Holman "are not as much interested in love that passeth understanding as they are in a car that will pass all the others on the road."

The best way not to hurt other people's feelings is to keep your own mouth shut.

Fulton's GREATEST Advertising Medium

Fulton News

Only those who advertise in the Fulton County News know its real worth as an advertising medium. It goes into more rural homes than any other medium in the Fulton trade territory. The News is doing more to bring trade to Fulton than all other combined sources. The News is recognized by the people of the surrounding country as the best community and farm paper published for this territory. It contains not only home news, but carries a lot of features, such as a serial story, comics, news from Washington, columns of fashion, and special interest.

The majority of people who live in Fulton do not realize what such a paper is to the town, but if they place an advertisement in its columns they can readily see the results. Go out in the country and see for yourself how The News stands in the rural districts.

Merchants have found it is an uphill business to get the cream of business unless they advertise their wares and let the people know when they have bargains for them.

Soil Needs Phosphates To Maintain A Balance

Phosphorous, according to Dr. Charles E. Kellogg, of the United States Department of Agriculture, is the important plant food most commonly deficient in the soils of the country, because farmers are taking out about three times as much phosphate as they are putting in.

To restore phosphorous to the agricultural soils, farmers rely on processed rock phosphate. Dr. Kellogg reports that American farmers are now applying as fertilizer less than 1,750,000 tons of rock phosphates a year. He estimates that to balance the annual loss of phosphates would require the spreading of not less than 5,000,000 tons a year. The United States also exports about 1,000,000 tons a year.

In nature phosphates in the soil tend to remain in balance because the remains of plants and animals return to the soil. Cultivated crops need, on the average, considerable more phosphorous than natural growth. Under cultivation the phosphate reserve tends to move toward the cities in the form of foods and materials and thus are lost to the croplands. Erosion, also, causes a heavy drain on phosphates, since the forms most available to plants are found especially in the surface layer.

Farm Is Restored By Strip Cropping

Adoption of soil conservation practices has increased the potential value of his 180-acre Grant county farm by $5,000, R. H. Stephenson, of Dry Ridge, Ky., believes. The farm, once run-down and badly gullied, is now productive and modern.

Field rearrangement, to permit strip cropping and an increase in pasture acreage, is chiefly responsible for the improvement, according to Stephenson. His farm plan includes liming and fertilizing, crop rotations, contour furrowing of pastures, and gully control. Stephenson inaugurated many of the supervision of the Soil Conservation Service demonstration area near Falmouth.

What The Farm Bureaus Are Doing

The Farm Bureau of Fulton and Hickman counties are carrying out an active program for their members. Following are summarized reports by the Fulton County and by the Hickman County bureaus.

FULTON COUNTY

J. B. McGehee, secretary-treasurer of the Fulton County Farm Bureau makes the following report:

The following are the officers and directors of the Fulton County Farm Bureau: Roscoe Stone, president; J. B. McGehee, secretary-treasurer; Directors: Rupert Browder, J. R. Elliott, A. G. Campbell, H. M. Pewitt, Mrs. H. P. Roberts, J. M. Roper, C. M. Hornsby, H. C. Helm, Roscoe Stone, Mrs. Gussie Browder.

We have moved into a fully equipped, model office, all newly built by our president, Roscoe Stone, and from whom we are renting at a most reasonable price. Every county is cordially invited to visit this office. Our membership report for 1936 was 405 members and we have secured 85 members to date for 1937. The goal is members don't start until fall, as the first of the year is when most of our memberships expire. We have just sent in an REA project for approval. This project consisted of 140 miles of proposed lines and a total of 690 signed surveys in the county.

We have sponsored, through the efforts of our County Agent, J. B. Williams, and Assistant Agent, S. V. Foy, improvement of live stock, offering to finance all 4-H club boys that are not able to buy purer bred stock, for 12 months without interest, also to offer premiums and prizes to the 4-H club boys and girls, in connection with or without county or community fairs, for the completion of various projects.

We have ordered 1500 tons of lime and 55 tons of 43% phosphate for the farmers since the first of the year. We have a move on foot at present to form a Sheep Protective Association which we hope will be in full operation at an early date.

Through our efforts and the cooperation of our County Judge and Fiscal Court, we hope to secure a County Home Demonstration Agent on full time for 1937. We now have Mrs. Katherine Thompson only part time.

We have organized a negro community Farm Bureau organization in the bottom section, which consist of 45 members. They have their own officers, Hulius Walker, president; Edgar Sowell, vice president; Hattie M. Christ, secretary-treasurer. They, too, have a negro home demonstration agent on part time. Hattie Bethea is their agent and she is doing a fine piece of work among the colored people in that section.

We have cooperated in every respect with the Extension Service and the Agricultural Conservation Program, and we are also sponsoring terracing work and hope to terrace two hundred acres or more this year.

HICKMAN COUNTY

County Agent Leroy Northington gives the following enthusiastic report:

"Our 1937 officers are as follows: Officers; Jack Johnson, President; E. C. Wayne, vice president; Lucy Featherstone, secretary-treasurer; Directors: H. U. Wayne, Loyd Carter, Era E. Armstrong, A. B. Phelps, C. E. Hoodenpyle, V. D. Ward.

Our total membership to date for 1937 is 462 members, 386 of these members have been reported since January 1st, 1937, and the remainder 76 members' dues are not as yet expired.

"Our Farm Bureau has been active in cooperating with the Extension Service, County Planning Projects, Lime and Phosphate Program and the Rural Electrification Program. To date our organization has ordered 1916 tons of lime of which 543 tons have already been delivered. We have ordered three carloads of phosphate. Rural electrification survey has been completed, have approximately 400 cooperators, and 100 miles electric lines. The map and applications for loan is almost completed and will be forwarded to Washington within the next few days.

"Our Farm Bureau is cooperating in every way possible with the Agricultural Conservation Program and all Extension Projects, including Home Demonstration and 4-H Club Work. Our county has one of the largest percentage sign-up of any county in the State. Everyone is enthusiastic about the Farm Bureau work and we plan to go above the 500 number in membership before December 1, 1937.

"We have completed plans for our annual picnic July 14th. Have Mr. J. F. Porter, President, Tennessee Farm Bureau Federation, and Mr. Ben Kilgore for principal speakers."

And just think—the Hickman County Farm Bureau is just a little over a year old. Some remarkable progress!!

Plans To Increase Income From Sheep

To further increase farm income, a sheep improvement project is to be put in operation in Grayson county August 1, according to County Agent R. T. Faulkner. Thirty framers plan to purchase 600 western ewes and 30 purebred rams. The program calls for early breeding, the production on the farm of legume hay and other feed, creep feeding, docking and castrating, drenching and cooperative marketing lambs and wool. A production credit association will finance the project.

Sees Great Need For Contour Cultivation

The amount of erosion in fields of corn, tobacco and other cultivated crops this spring, as a result of heavy rainfall, emphasizes the need of more contour farming in Kentucky, says a statement by Earl G. Welch, agricultural engineering specialist at the University College of Agricultural. About everywhere in the state, including the Bluegrass region, fields can be seen with numerous gullies cut in them.

Contour cultivation of slopes would do much to stop such washing, says Mr. Welch. In contour cultivation, rows are run level across the slope as a man would travel if he walked from one side of a rolling field to the other without going up or down hill. It exact contour cultivation can not be practiced, corn and tobacco rows should be run across the slope rather than with the slope, since ridges created by machinery during cultivation tend to retard the flow of water down the slope and reduce soil losses.

In tests conducted during the growing season, contour cultivation reduced soil losses by approximately 50 percent on all slopes varying from those with slight slopes to those with a fall of 20 feet in 100 feet.

Contour cultivation is generally practiced in Kentucky on slopes so steep that it is difficult to plow directly up and down hill, but it should be practiced on much gentler slopes as well.

Kentucky Handles 22½ Million Pounds of Farm Surpluses

Approximately 22½ million pounds of surplus farm products, removed from price-depressed markets in order to increase returns to producers, were distributed in Kentucky during 1935 to needy and unemployed persons certified to the relief rolls of that state, the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation announced.

The surplus products were removed from the markets by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, in cooperation with

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Wings: Jack Price tells of the salesman stranded in Buffalo who was wondering how he would get to Rochester. Into the hotel strolled a wealthy friend who offered him free transportation in one of those master-powered cars about a block and a half long. After getting out of the city, they struck an eight-lane highway and bowled along well over 90 m. p. h. In a little while, a motorcycle cop succeeded in tagging them.

"Are you in a hurry?" he asked, leaning on the shiny gas chariot. "Yes," replied the owner. "My friend here has to get to Rochester."

The cop smiled and took out a little book.

"Officer, are you giving me a ticket for speeding?" asked the car owner who, up to that moment, had thought he was getting away with it.

"Speeding nothing," drawled the law. "I'm giving you a ticket for flying too low."

Old Urge: It seems that a riding club got into difficulties to such an extent that assets had to be liquidated. Recently, a buyer came along and turned the club into a riding school. Finding that demand exceeded the supply of blooded horses, he went into the open market and made purchases. The other afternoon, a patron set out for the nearest park. To get there, he had to cross an avenue. An ambulance was approaching at a rapid rate. Seeing the rider, the driver, instead of sounding his siren, rang the gong. The gentleman on horseback fell off at the end of the block. And the old fire horse, finding it only a false alarm, finally wandered back. And now there is a heavy damage suit in the offing.

Truth: A friend, who on occasions delivers lectures to college students here and there over the country, has just returned from his spring trip with a tale of woe. It seems that at a certain university, the chairman introduced him as a fine upstanding young man, a leader in his community, respected and looked up to, and a happy husband for the last seventeen years. From then on, whenever the lecturer passed a fair co-ed, she addressed him as "Mr." and treated him with the utmost courtesy. But that was all. Meanwhile, others on the program, including some gentlemen older and married longer, received smiles and had fair company no matter where they wandered on the campus. The lecturer's wife is trying to design an appropriate medal to send to that chairman.

Woe: For some reason or other, generally when I board a taxi, especially late at night, the driver makes me a confidant. Last evening, coming uptown, the man at the wheel, after muttering to himself for some time, turned around and announced that piloting a taxi was the lowest occupation in the world.

"The cops bawl you out," he continued. "The public bawls you out. Then when you go home, the old woman gives you hell!"

And all day I've been wondering just what was on his mind.

Shorts: Joe Cook is convinced that kindness pays. He has been offered $75 for a dog he rescued from the pound. . . . Spectators at a kids' back-yard baseball game were flabbergasted when the catcher removed the mask and revealed "himself" as the prima donna, Francis White. . . . Lucille Manners is a firm believer in the soothing power of knitting. She doesn't put aside her yarn and needles until the radio program or concert starts. . . . Tim Ryan and his wife Irene Noble are so fond of radio programs that they have a set in every room in their penthouse apartment. Now that warm weather has come, they have installed set No. 7 on the terrace. . . . Clarence Budington Kelland, recently re-elected president of the Dutch Treat club, wrote for seven years before he made a sale.

How Does Cow Chew?

Baffles Uncle Sam

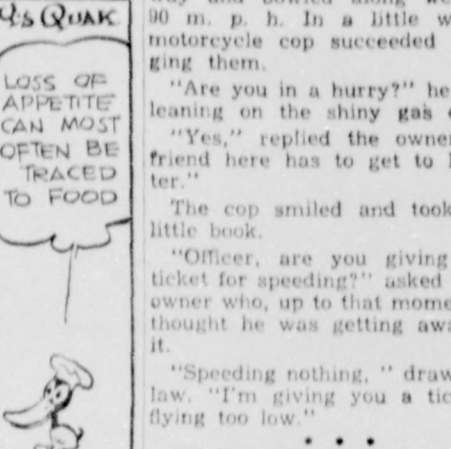

Washington.—How meticulous is Uncle Sam was revealed recently in connection with the building of a mechanical cow which was to be included in an agricultural exhibit.

The exhibitors wanted to show the paper mache creature chewing hay, but were stumped by the jaw motion. They asked the government livestock specialists how a cow chews, but none knew, so a delegation was sent out into the pastures for a day or so to observe the habits of cows.

The experts found that even the same cow chewed differently in the morning from the way she did at night—sometimes prevalently to the left and sometimes to the right.

Bigger, the business man, was signing his letters. "I see," he said, to his typist, "that you have spelled received with 'ie' and 'ei' in another." "I'm sorry," she said, "one of them was a slip." "Well, you'd better correct it before you post the letter." "Certainly. By the way, which one will I correct?" "Why-er-why, the one that's wrong, of course."

Worriment

A man had been visiting a certain widow every evening for some months. "Why don't you marry her?" asked a friend. "I have often thought about it," was the reply, "but where on earth should I spend my evening then?"

Where's My Hat?

"The next person who interrupts the proceedings will be sent home," declared the judge. "Hurray!" yelled the prisoner.

to hand fights in which injuries were comparatively few.

With Gov. George H. Earle having lifted martial law in Johnstown, Pa., it was estimated that nearly half the 15,000 workers of the Bethlehem Steel corporation's great Cambria plant were back on the job.

It was apparent that the real grip of the strike had been broken.
Mayor Daniel Shields declared it was all over, but there were still about 250 pickets on hand. The day before the plant re-opened the C. I.
O., in a last-minute attempt to save its cause, promised a mass meeting near Johnstown of 50,000 miners who would then aid the steel strikers in keeping the plants closed.
Only about 1,500 showed up, and after listening to speeches by union leaders they dispersed peaceably.

Plants of the Republic Steel corporation and Youngstown Sheet & Tube company in Ohio's Mahoning valley, where half of the total numbers of state militiamen were protecting the public peace, again were operating. Steel plants in Chicago were preparing to reopen. Still none of the independent steel corporations had signed contracts with C.
I. O. unions. Their refusal to sign had been the sole issue of the strikes.

Der Fuehrer Scores Neutrals

"FROM now on," Adolf Hitler told 200,000 Nazis at a party rally in Wurzberg, "we will prefer . . . to take the freedom, independence,
honor and security
of our nation into our own hands and protect ourselves
alone." Disgusted, Germany withdrew
from the non-intervention patrol of Spain, as Italy did
likewise. Der Fuehrer warned that the Nazis would take independent action to protect themselves
from attacks by the Spanish government. He described how Germany had been condemned for shelling Almeria after a Spanish airplane had bombed the cruiser Deutschland, and how, when the cruiser Leipzig was attacked by a submarine while on patrol duty, the non-intervention committee had done nothing about it.

A remedy suggested by Great Britain and France was that the patrol duty be left entirely to them, with Italian observers on French patrol ships and German observers on British ships to "judge the equitable, impartial working of the system."

Mediation Board Gives Up

THE mediation board of three,
named by Secretary of Labor Perkins to sit in Cleveland and attempt to negotiate a settlement in the steel strike, gave up in despair.
Its chairman, Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, and the other two members, Lloyd Garrison, former president of the national labor relations
board, and Edward F. McGrady, trouble-shooting assistant of Mme.
Perkins, were unable even to persuade Tom Girdler, Eugene Grace and other steel officials to sit around a conference table at which union leaders were present. The board explained its failure, "The only hope of settlement lies in such a meeting."

In criticizing the companies for their stand the board said, "Nothing can be made clearer today than that management and organized labor, when it really represents the wishes of the men, have got to learn how to live together, to reach agreements and to abide by them
when made."

Steel officials handed Taft a written resume of their stand, that they would not make any agreement with Lewis' "irresponsible" C. I. O. They admitted that the Wagner act might force them to negotiate with the union, but declared another law provides that no one need make a contract he doesn't want to make.

Looks Like a Long Summer

CONGRESS will be in session for a long time yet, probably until September 1. That was the consensus of the 240 senators and congressmen who attended President Roosevelt's week-end outing for majority members on Jefferson island in Chesapeake bay.

Although they insisted the meeting was purely social, it was generally accepted that attempts had been made to swing back certain of the New Deal lawmakers who had been getting out of line lately.
The result is that a heavy program
of legislation desired by the administration will be attempted before the members of congress go home.

The President's court bill—presumably in its original form, although it seems to face certain defeat, either through a vote or through filibustering—headed the list. It was closely followed by government reorganization and wage and hour measures.

Seeks Changes in Wagner Act

SEN. ARTHUR H. VANDENBERG
of Michigan proposed three amendments to the national labor relations act designed to broaden the rights of employers under the Wagner act, forbid
"sit-down" strikes
and other "unfair"
union practices,
and provide severe
penalties for unions
which violated contracts with employers. His amendments:

1.—To give employers the same
right which only employes now enjoy to appeal to the national labor relations board for an election to determine the representatives of employes.

2.—To require agreements in writing and to permit strikes only after a majority vote of all employes.
Any group which broke its contract and did not repair the break after being ordered to do so by the board would be suspended from representation.

3.—Establish a code of practices for labor. This would:

Prohibit compulsory political assessments on union members.

Require that all union officers,
agents and representatives be United States citizens.

Forbid union organization by coercion.

Prohibit damage to property,
strikes intended to force any person to violate a contract or federal laws, and violations of "any person's rights in real or personal property."

Montagues and Capulets

WITH all the family blessings
save those of a political classification, Miss Ethel du Pont, daughter of Eugene du Pont, and Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr., son of the President of the United States, were married at Christ church near Wilmington, Del., in a "simple" wedding attended by a "handful" of about 400 picked guests. Bitter political hatreds of the older generations were buried in the protests that this was "the youngsters' day."

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

DOAN'S PILLS

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON D. C.

Washington—Two actions of sections of the congress lately deserve more than ordinary attention.

One of these was probably as courageous a position as any group of senators ever has taken. The other action—by majority of the house—was shot through with the utmost cowardice and selfishness.

Lately, a group of senators, nearly all Democrats, took their political lives in their hands and delivered to the senate a report from its judiciary committee advising defeat of President Roosevelt's proposal to add six new justices of the supreme court of the United States.

In my time in Washington, I believe I can say without qualification, there never has been a committee action in the house or senate in which the President, as the leader of the dominant party, received such a castigation on a legislative proposal as was given Mr. Roosevelt by Democrats who constituted the majority of the senate judiciary committee. They did not mince words in any respect. What ever may be the merit of Mr. Roosevelt's proposal to add six justices of his own choosing to the highest court, the majority report of the judiciary committee left no stone unturned in disclosing objections to the proposal as opponents of the court reorganization scheme see them.

Almost on the same day that senate Democrats were, in effect, breaking or revolting from the President's leadership, the Democratic majority in the house killed off a proposal for new taxes in the District of Columbia that would have resulted in taxing the salaries of representatives and senators and their office staffs. They were brazen about it. They were not going to vote an income tax upon themselves and they made no effort to conceal their reasons for refusing to accept the recommendations of a special tax subcommittee which was acting for the permanent committee in the house of the District of Columbia.

The District of Columbia committee, examining the budget for the seat of the federal government, was confronted with a deficit in the district finances and instructed its tax subcommittee to develop new sources of revenue in order that the District of Columbia might not get into debt. Among the taxes proposed was a tax on income of residents of the District of Columbia, which is synonymous with Washington, and it provided for taxing earnings here whether the person who earned the income was a resident of the capital city or not.

That was too much. The majority in the house of representatives just could not take it. They voiced their objections openly and being superior in numbers to those who believed that income in the District of Columbia should be taxed, they forced the tax bill back to the District of Columbia committee for revision. Indeed, they went further. The line of criticism of an income tax that would touch the sacred salaries of congressmen and senators was such as to have the effect of forcing the committee to bring in a tax bill that would increase the tax on property in the federal area. Now, it is a fact that few members of the house and a very small number of senators have bought residences in Washington. They usually live in apartments or hotels or lease homes for the period that congress is in session. Consequently, a real estate tax will not concern most of the representatives and senators.

The indictment brought against the President's court plan by the senate judiciary committee was quite unusual in many respects.

In the first instance, it was approximately fifteen thousand words in length; being in that regard probably the longest and most comprehensive analysis that any congressional committee ever has made of a piece of legislation. Certainly, it is the most extensive examination to be included in a committee report in the last quarter of a century.

Every argument advanced by the administration in support of the plan was picked to pieces and held up to public gaze; every possible reason for expansion of the court by the addition of six new justices was scrutinized and denounced and, then, the committee put forth some of its own ideas.

"It applies force to the judiciary," the committee said in a sentence that constituted one paragraph and thereby was emphasized.

"The only argument for the increase which survives analysis," the report added, "is that congress should enlarge the court so as to make the policies of this administration effective."

The bill was found by the seven Democrats and three Republicans who constituted a majority of the senate judiciary committee, to be "a needless, futile and utterly dangerous abandonment of constitutional principle." It charged that the "American system" of independence of the courts would be violated and that if the bill were to be enacted into law, "political control" over the judiciary branch of the government would pass into the hands of the President.

With the presentation of this terrific attack on the bill to the senate, a second unusual circumstance developed. Those Democrats who were opposed to the President's proposal decided to go about the job of fighting the measure on the floor in a manner seldom seen in the congress. These opponents from the Democratic ranks got together and chose Senator Wheeler of Montana as leader of the Democratic opposition to the Democratic President's court revision program. They gave him full authority to act, including the selection of a steering committee, a committee on strategy, to aid him.

Thus, in the senate now we have three major leaders. Senator Wheeler will speak for the court opposition; Senator Robinson of Arkansas as the leader of the Democratic party in the senate will lead the fight for passage of the court bill; and Senator McNary of Oregon will head up the Republicans as usual. Since all of the Republicans and Independents excepting only Senator La Follette, Progressive, of Wisconsin, are opposed to the court revision plan, Senator McNary and Senator Wheeler are working hand in glove against the regular Democratic line-up headed by Senator Robinson.

It appears that the President is going to be badly defeated on this piece of legislation, but it is too early to be sure. Mr. Roosevelt is a powerful figure and he has political knowledge that must be described as remarkable. He has with him in the senate some exceedingly able political strategists. It is thus a battle of wits.

Mr. Roosevelt has said several times that he will accept no compromises. There is a very definite feeling at the Capitol, however, that the President will be glad to have a compromise if he can get one and save the bill from complete wreckage. On the other hand, Senator Wheeler and his strategy committee have announced in no uncertain terms that they will defeat the bill or any compromise that is offered. Time alone can answer the question of what will come out of the President's proposal. At this writing, the odds certainly are against the President on the proposition.

Speaking of taxes and the selfishness that was evident in the house action, as mentioned earlier, calls to mind the investigation by the joint house and senate committee that is now under way. This committee, made up of five representatives and five senators has begun a search to find out how taxpayers avoid taxes or reduce the amounts they would otherwise have to pay by various trick schemes.

The committee has been given fifty thousand dollars with which to make the investigation and it is receiving able assistance from Under Secretary Roswell Magill and other Treasury experts on taxation.

Contrary to the outlook when Mr. Roosevelt released a vicious attack on tax dodgers and tax avoiders, this committee is getting down to real business and there is every reason to believe it will be able to recommend to congress changes in the law that will stop some of the schemes and tricks to which large taxpayers have resorted.

I have sat in on a number of the hearings thus far, including the opening session when Secretary Morgenthau made the opening statement and disclosed to the satisfaction of everyone that he was not conversant with the problem at hand. Like the President, Mr. Morgenthau attempted to place the tax problem confronting the government on moral grounds. His statement did not click with the committee at all. With two or three exceptions, the committee members recognized the problem as purely a question of law and Senator Pat Harrison, Democrat of Mississippi, vice chairman, said that there was no point in making the investigation "a Roman holiday." Therefore, the thing settled down very quickly to an earnest study of cases where men have resorted to various kinds of subterfuges of law, to reduce their tax liability.

In this connection, it seemed to me that too much credit cannot be given Under Secretary Magill who apparently is anxious to get to the bottom of the problem.

Judge Offered Handed Down Humor "From the Bench"

Late Lord Darling Lived On Drab Scenes With Pleasantries.

Many are the stories told about Lord Darling—better known as Mr. Justice Darling. "England's wittiest judge"—who died recently. He was a poet, with several published volumes to his credit. But it was his humor "from the bench" that made his name almost a household word.

On one occasion, a talesman claimed exemption from jury duty on the ground that he was completely deaf in the left ear.

"You can go," said Judge Darling, gravely; "I cannot have anyone in the jury box who cannot hear both sides."

A lawyer who had the misfortune never to have acquired the ability to use the letter "h" (relates Silvan Mayer in his "legal" reminiscences), was engaged before Justice Darling in a case which had relation to a horse. For some time the lawyer kept referring to the animal as "an orse." After a while, Darling looked down and said: "Was the animal a large horse or a little one?" "Oh, a little one." "Then," said the judge, "may we, for the remainder of the case, call it a pony?"

In another case before Justice Darling—in which a Cockney caterer was suing to recover the cost of a picnic luncheon he had provided for a large number of people—the plaintiff waxed highly indignant, under cross-examination, when it was suggested that his sandwiches were mostly "bread and bread," with the ham conspicuous only by its absence.

"I'm amazed; I'm surprised; I'm—," he sputtered. "That will do!" interrupted Darling. "I suggest that had you been more generous with your hams on another occasion and a little less liberal with them here, you might not have found yourself in this situation!"—Kansas City Star.

Identifying Houses

Before houses were numbered, London's business streets were lined on both sides by a succession of gay signboards exhibiting an almost infinite variety of blue boards, black swans, red lions, flying pigs and the like. Even with these signs it was often hard to find one's destination, for the signs were often so badly painted that it would have puzzled a naturalist to make out the animal meant.

Mongols! Madam, Barked Sir Howorth

Sir Henry Howorth was taken aback one day when introduced to a gushing lady who declared that she was so charmed to meet him because she wished to talk to him about her little dog.

"But I know nothing about dogs," he protested.

"Oh, how can you say so," she said, "when you have written books about them?"

"Never, madam, never!"

"But surely," she persisted, "you have written a history of the mongrels?"

"Mongols, madam, mongols!" he barked. "Not mongrels!"—London Answers.
