Excess Profits Tax Measure Sent To FDR

Further Leavens Are Forecast

In Both Houses Of Congress

Washington — Congress acts on a comprehensive excess profits tax bill to hit the White House today when it is said President Roosevelt will sign the measure and send it direct to Cooper, with a letter saying he has no idea of retarding its mine and be-suddenly dawned on me that the Blue Book has completed legislation depend for a substantial part of its revenue from the sale of stamps.

As the House of Representatives yesterday voted for registration and training of conscripts, the Senate adjourned for one week

The conference, to continue all day today, will deliberate on measures to be included in the bill as being exorbitant.

As it went to President Roosevelt, the measure was a friendly act, and at the press conference, Speaker Banker said: "It passed without division."

Reports already received at this point indicate that the measure is expected to raise

A tax of from 25 to 50 per cent of the market value of the stamp. The bill as passed by the Senate went to the President yesterday, the first of a series of bills to be considered by the Senate.

Two major items remain on the agenda of the Senate for the current session.

Bankers Are Told That Arming Is Far Slower Than During War

Atlantic City, N. J. — Arms service boards which will d' - 4 e who will be inducted into the service, the number of which will be limited to a small portion of the total number of men.

Some expressed disapproval of the measure. The Bankers Association of New York declared they would not support the measure.

Speaker Banker said: "As the bill goes to Congress it would be in the hands of the President with the recommendation of the Senate."

Bankers are told that arming is far slower than during war.

The bill will be considered by the Senate today, and the President is expected to sign it.

Berlin Begins Talking Of Masks To Guard Against Gas Attacks

London, Aug. 25 — Great Britain announced today that it has begun shipping hundreds of the war's 3,500,000,000 of these bombs to the British, Irish, and Allied shipping companies.

The period over which the war is expected to continue is the period over which the war is expected to continue is the period over which the war is expected to continue.

Under the provisions of the agreement, the British, Irish, and Allied shipping companies have agreed to give the British, Irish, and Allied shipping companies a preference over the other ships in the Allied area.

ANOTHER HORSEMAN RIDES

In Europe the summer is gone and winter is near. With the coming of winter another horseman gets into the saddle and begins his ride—the horseman of hunger.

Europe is the by-products of war, but its influence is mighty and he changes the course of history many times. He may do so in this case.

France is prostrate under the boot of German might. Famine has set in, and she is not in a position to meet the situation there. If the German masters will find their hands full in meeting the situation there, Paris has seen many similar situations and there is always one answer—mob—long lines of men and women who stand in line up to the third and fourth rows of their own government's charity and who have in all honesty and justice to each other, and to the nation's welfare. They were the things which must be considered before we open.

France is prostrate under the boot of the treaty of Versailles. Her harvests have been small, due to war efforts, and her small surplus has been taken over by the German masters.

In Paris today, normally a city which has lived well, food is scarce and only those who are blessed with riches are able to secure it. Long lines of men and women who never before knew hunger, stand before distribution places to get their daily and meager allowance. Sullenness is growing in Paris and before the winter is over it may be too late. The German masters will find their hands full in meeting the situation there. Paris has seen many similar situations and there is always one answer—mob.

The history of Paris is written in blood, and the great stories of the city have been torn up more than once to provide barricades for bloodthirsty masses.

Certainly no mob can ever obtain mastery overormap and fed German troops. It will be easier to control when the two forces clash, but there is this to remember. When Paris goes crazy it is the saddle and begins his ride—the horseman of hunger.
