FULTON, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, JULY 30, 1937

NUMBER TWENTY-EIGHT

TRAINING SCHOOL STARTS AT FACTORY

The president and other officials of the Henry I. Seigel Company, garment manufacturers, were in Fulton early this week, making a final check-up on the new factory building, which is now complete. They expressed themselves as well pleased with the building, and expect to swing into full operation as soon as possible.

This industry is moving here from Dickson, Tenn., and will employ approximately 600 people when in full operation, with a monthly payroll ranging around $30,000. The concern will manufacture various garments, which will be wholesaled through their New York office.

Construction of the new building, erected under the support of the Fulton Improvement Company, was made possible by local subscription, and a contract was made between the garment company and the Fulton Improvement Co.

Landscaping and building of additional sidewalk has been in progress this week. A number of girls have been entered in the first class of the training school, and other classes will be accepted as fast as the instructors can handle them.

One More Week To Secure Operators License

HICKMAN, Ky., July 27.—Circuit Court Clerk of FULTON COUNTY, today called attention to the fact that motor vehicle operators have only one more week to secure licenses. Justin Atteberry, emphasized that every person operating a Kentucky licensed motor vehicle upon the highway after July 31, 1937 must have a 1937-38 Operators' license and that said license may be secured from his office for a fee of $1.00.

The department of Revenue advised the Circuit Court Clerk that arrangements had been made for cooperation with the State Highway Patrol in the enforcement of the law.

Colonel E. O. Huey, Superintendent of the Highway Patrol, said that he planned to establish check stations in several places in each police district of the State during the month of August for the purpose of stopping all motorists to see if they have secured their licenses.

The law provides a penalty of not less than $25.00 or more than $500.00 or imprisonment of not more than six months or both fine and imprisonment for the conviction upon the charge of operating a motor vehicle without having secured the operator's license.

Picked Up About Town

Jim Lewis says the only difference he sees in the old-fashioned dime novel that now sells for $2.50 is they're being printed on better paper.

"Men," asserts Willie Homra, "are just opposite from guns; the smaller the caliber the bigger the bore."

Loan sharks rarely attack those who do not go out beyond their financial depth.

"Money means trouble," declares John Melton "but it is about the only trouble that is hard to borrow."

According to Clarence Pickering boys will be boys but the girls of today are giving them a hot contest for the privilege.

Competition may be the life of trade but it's the death of profit.

J. E. Hanneppin says the reason firms don't go into debt is because they pay their bills what they earn instead of what they want.

"People never know how careful they can be," asserts Alice Whitmore "until they have children or white shoes."

As Grover Dallas sees it, the Maine hen that laid 303 eggs in a year must believe that a cackle a day keeps the hatchet away."

Sam Williams says the trouble with the "average man" is that his average isn't quite high enough.

"Collective bargaining might be a good thing," asserts Ross Neeley "if it weren't preceded by so much collective rioting and mob rule."

Church collections are now forbidden in Germany, which ought to increase the popularity of church attendance.

"Some men wake up to find themselves famous," says K. P. Dalton "while others sit up all night and become notorious."

As Bill Holman sees it, a farmer can always boast that he never asked anyone for a job.

URGES FARMERS TO SAVE CLOVER SEED

The suggestion that farmers consider saving clover seed from this year's plantings is made in a statement from the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. In many instances clover sowed last spring did so well that it should be cut either for hay or for seed.

Since there may be a shortage of clover seed next spring, together with the fact that much of this year's crop came from native seed, it is doubly important to save seed, crops men at the college believe.

Much clover last year was damaged by dry weather, and it is considered fortunate for Kentucky farmers that this year's seedlings did well in much of the state. It is said that there has been much improvement in clover growing since most farmers begun using only native seed.

What a lot of fellows around Fulton would like to find is a car that will go as fast as the installments fall due.

Some people buy wildcat stock's just as if their bank rolls had nine lives.

L. Walker.

The stolen goods consisting of cigarettes, stuffed olives and a small amount of money, were found in possession of the boys at the time of the arrest, officers stated. Both admitted to K. P. Dalton, also that they have been implicated in a series of pilfering of parked automobiles on the streets of Fulton, but that this was their first attempt at house or store breaking.

More Taxes—Or Less Spending?

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Society of the Republic

News dispatches from Washington report that growing numbers of Congressmen, largely from the agricultural districts, are announcing their determination to stem the tide of rising taxes.

From the same source come reports of mounting living costs.

Probably the one statement explains the other. For as the protesting Congressmen realize, high cost of government and high cost of living are indissolubly linked. They rise or fall together. And both levy their heavy toll at the same source—the income and savings of the American worker and earner.

How can that toll be reduced?

Advocates of a lighter burden of taxation offer the obvious answer: "Reduce government expenditures." Backed by official statistics, they point out that even though more tax money is pouring into the Federal coffers than in earlier years, outgo still exceeds income.

Cut the outgo, they insist, and taxes will not have to be increased. They may even be lessened, thus hastening the progress of recovery and widespread re-employment.

The American people are doing their part by paying taxes which, directly or indirectly, cut deeply into every worker's pay envelope and every housewife's budget.

It is not too much to ask that their representatives at Washington do their part, too, by eliminating unnecessary extravagance—even though political jobholders and political futures be endangered in the process.

There seems, in fact, no other choice. As a member of the Senate Finance Committee recently reminded his colleagues:

"It will be imperative that we impose heavier taxes if we do not cut down expenditures."

Like the Senator, the workers and earners of America know from bitter experience on whom those taxes will fall.

TO THE VOTERS OF FULTON COUNTY

It has come to my attention that some talk is being circulated that I am ineligible to serve as County Attorney of Fulton County, should I be nominated in the Primary, August 7th. I have personally investigated this matter, and have consulted with competent lawyers with respect to same, and I want to assure my friends and supporters, that the only thing which will keep me from being your next County Attorney, will be getting fewer votes than my Opponents, so I am asking you not to permit this to keep you from voting for me in the August Primary.

A jury is about the only thing in existence that never works properly after it has been fixed.

The best advice any Fulton man can give his son is never to start anything he can't stop.

FAKE INSURANCE

The postoffice department is now moving against one of the meanest of all rackets and one which quite a few people around Fulton doubtless are numbered among the victims. A fight is on to wipe out the promotion of fake mutual benefit life insurance organizations which cost the American public thousands of dollars annually. The shysters who run these rackets pretend to sell insurance although they are careful not to use the word. They sell their policies to anyone, without requiring medical examinations, and welcome prospects up to the age of 85. Since few people bother to read their insurance certificates, the benefits are overlooked. As a result, benefits are seldom paid to the beneficiaries. "Before you invest, investigate," is an excellent rule for the buyer of insurance. While the postal authorities are driving these crooks out of business, the rule is commended to the attention of every resident of this community.

SUMMER THIEVES

With the summer touring season well under way Fulton citizens, and those in the surrounding rural district, may expect to see an unusual number of strange faces. The autos and trailers are carrying them in greater number than ever into all part of the land and there will be the usual number of hitch-hiking transients, with no fixed destination, just drifters and bums.

With the fact in mind that thousands of these drifters are of an irresponsible type and pick up a living through the summer months the easiest way they can get it, would be well to watch your personal property a little more closely than is necessary in the fall and winter. The ratio of burglaries and petty thefts is far higher now than at any other season of the year, and that will be true for the next two months. The average tourist expects to pay his way as he goes, and can be trusted. But the drifter feels that the world owes them a living and if they can't get it one way they will try another. As a rule they have no regard for the property of others, and are not averse to appropriating, through theft, articles of food and clothing and, of course, any money they may be able to locate.

It will be well to bear these facts in mind during the summer touring season and keep the doors of your home locked at all times during your absence. A weather eye should also be kept on the hen house since it offer a favorite source of food supply for the drifter. Do not take it for granted that simply because you have never been the victim of a summer thief that you will not be. The unexpected may happen at any moment in this or any other community into which the auto tramp makes his way.

IT MAKES ONE DIZZY

Whatever it may bring in the way of enjoyment, summer is always a season of confusion for any Fulton motorist who ventures into strange territory, as more and more are doing each year. Traffic rules and regulations are just one grand tangle, and no matter how careful the driver he is an exception if he can drive all day in strange territory without violating from one to a dozen rules. There is no uniformity in traffic regulations in this county, and there never has been. Each town and city has its own regulations, and some located in a dozen miles of each other are exactly opposite. It makes a motorist dizzy trying to read all the warning and direction signs and attempting to do the right thing in the right place at the right time. Maybe some of these days Uncle Sam can be persuaded to take over the job of providing the nation with uniform traffic rules. Only then will a summer vacation motor trip become what it is supposed to be—a source of real pleasure and enjoyment.

A GOOD EXAMPLE

Waiting until your neighbor cuts the unsightly weeds on his premises before you cut yours is not a very patriotic way to go about a task that should not be overlooked at this time of year. The danger from epidemic spread disease-carrying insects is too great to be overlooked. Keeping the weeds cut robs them of one of their means of protection. Mosquitoes and flies are less numerous where there is an absence of weeds or wet, moist place. Cutting the weeds is a job that must be done if you value the health of the community and the sooner and oftener it is done the better the protection. It isn't the fact alone that weeds are unsightly that should result in their immediate elimination, it's the fact that they are an actual menace to health if they are left standing. Set the example by cutting your weeds cut first.

YOUR DOG

After all, the most unselfish, patient and forgiving thing in the world is your dog. Humans usually lack the virtue of forgiveness. Most of them carry a grudge for years. But dog carries no grudges against you, no matter how often you may punish him. When it comes to loyalty, you haven't a human friend who will stick to you as closely as your dog. Whether you have lost your dog or made a million dollars; whether you are in rags or dressed in the height of fashion, it'll be all the same to your dog.

With these facts generally admitted, a suggestion as to the proper treatment of your dog during the hot season is most timely. From now until cooler weather arrives around the first of September dogs need and must have a constant supply of drinking water. Lack of it in hot weather, it is generally agreed, produces rabies and causes dogs to "go mad." When in that condition their bite is exceedingly dangerous. Infections arising from the bite of a dog suffering with rabies is difficult to combat and, especially with children, often proves fatal.

During these hot days every dog owner around Fulton should see to it that water is kept constantly where their dog can get it when they want it. It is your best protection against losing your dog and also against the serious results that may arise if he is seized with an attack of rabies.

USING SIGNALS

National safety experts in convention at Chicago recently expressed the belief that a large proportion of auto accidents could be prevented if drivers would adhere more strictly to the use of hand-signals. The system of hand-signalling is no doubt familiar to every motorist in Fulton. If he is not acquainted with their use and meaning then he has no business driving a car. The same holds true with those who are familiar with hand signals but who still refuse to use them. The man behind can't read your mind. He has no means of knowing what you intend. If you make a turn or sudden stop without first indicating your intention by a hand signal, then you are to blame for the serious results that are likely to follow. Use hand signals all the time, wherever you are driving. It is, the safety experts say, your greatest protection.

PASSING OUT

It isn't hard for the older citizens of Fulton to recall the predictions made about the time the auto appeared that the new method of transportation spelled the doom of the horse. Happily, that prediction did not come true. For a good many years the horse remained in demand as a beast of burden, and the price of horseflesh showed no decline. Now, however, comes a horse and mule census that throws new light on the subject. It shows the number of farm animals is rapidly decreasing and reveals that if this continues it will be but a few years until the number of horses in the U. S. the census shows dropped from 16,401,000 in 1925 to 11,658,000 in 1935, a brief ten year period. The cause is attributed not to the passenger auto, as old-timers predicted, but to the modern motorized machinery that is constantly finding its way to the farming sections of every state in the union.

As time goes on this will become more noticeable. Whether it will be economical or not, and whether it is cause for regret or satisfaction is not easily said, without fear of starting an argument. But the fact remains, all arguments to the contrary, that horses and mules are passing out of the picture in this country and that the trend toward motorization of all kinds of farm machinery is fast pushing the noble old animals closer to the soap factories and the fertilizer plants.

You've also probably noticed that the weaker a Fulton man's argument the stronger the language he uses.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

HOG-CALLERS I HAVE KNOWN

Long before county fairs and the radio emphasized the music in the calling of hogs, I knew masters in this art that could have made any country famous. Most of them died without even a local reputation, since hog-calling was a necessary thing that might only accidentally become artistic. A few of these became well known locally. Across many years I hear some of them now. Hog-calling when properly done, and with the proper setting, is as melodious as any of the other folk sounds that have found their way into music. The greatest hog-caller I ever knew bore the name of Green Adams; that was his actual name, and this is a tribute to him, if he still lives, or to his descendants, if any of them read this. Mr. Adams lived at the edge of the Mississippi River bottom in Fulton County, just south of Buyou Du Chain Creek. He owned large numbers of hogs that ranged back into the big bottoms, which then were very largely in timber. Though I boarded a mile or more away from the home of Mr. Adams, I could distinctly hear his daily calling of his hogs. But there was something more than volume in the sound, a deep music, as if the calling had somehow risen out of the desire of the hogs themselves to come back to the farm to be fed and to be shut up in the pen. It must have been a hard-hearted hog that did not prick up his ears when he heard that sonorous, greatly-prolonged call of the master. If I were a musician, I would try to put into a fantasy of evening life on the farm that call, a recurrent keynote to the poetry of coming home at eventide that the poets of the world have known and expressed since the days of Sappho. Other sounds of the barnyard could be used to give it background and local significance; but, through it all, swelling into mighty harmonies, would come that masculine voice, riving together the whole fantasy. Hog-calling has nothing of the impatience about it, nothing of the feeling of limitation; the master wants his hogs and calls them in a time-honored way, unconscious of the basic poetry he illustrates. His hogs, trained from earliest life to respond to this call, come home, home to the protection and HOMINESS of the barnyard, home to master and shelter, to the center of their little music, great sounds of industry, great voices pleading for the good and the beautiful; but I can truly say that no aria has ever gripped me so long and so delightfully as ringing out across the wild woods of the Mississippi River bottoms.

Electric Cooking

... even if you do have to live on a modest income

A MAJORITY of the American housewives (now more than 1,250,000) who use electric cooking are folks in moderate circumstances who do their own housework.

They use electric cooking because it is in every way better than old-fashioned methods . . . and not because they want to use a fashionable fad of the wealthy.

Electric cooking saves them time and work in preparing meals. It keeps their kitchens cooler and cleaner. It retains all the delicious flavors and healthful elements of meats, vegetables, soups, breads and pastries. And it is really economical.

Come in tomorrow and let us tell you all about electric cooking. We sell Hotpoint and Westinghouse ranges at moderate prices and on easy terms. Other standard makes sold by local dealers.

Lime-Phosphate Give Big Yield of Alfalfa Hay

Results gathered by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station indicate that farmers are getting big yields of alfalfa hay from the application of lime and triple superphosphate.

In a demonstration made by R. S. Hite on bottom land in Trigg county, the application of lime and triple superphosphate brought 12,240 pounds of green alfalfa hay to the acre at the first cutting, compared to 3,520 pounds where neither lime nor phosphate was used; 4,800 pounds where lime alone was applied, and 3,760 pounds where only phosphate was put on the land.

A demonstration on bottom land on the farm of Ed C. Ray in Graves county resulted in the production of 4,440 pounds of dry alfalfa hay at the first cutting, where lime and superphosphate had been applied. 2,520 pounds of dry hay where phosphate alone was used; 1,440 pounds where only lime was applied, and 1,040 pounds where there was no treatment.

In Caldwell county, C. K. McNeely obtained nearly five and a half tons of green hay at the first cutting, and only half of a ton where no lime or phosphate had been applied.

Lime and triple superphosphate produced 10,545 pounds of green alfalfa hay to the acre in a demonstration in Lee county, compared to 2,505 pounds where lime alone was used.

137 Acre Farm Yields $1,770

Returns of $1,770 from an 37-acre farm is the record made last year by Ed C. King, Orangeburg community, Mason county, Ky., according to County Agent Jesse L. Cline, who calls Mr. King "a shining example of a man who keeps his farm in grass and yet receives a satisfactory income. He had only one acre and a half in cultivated crops.

A flock of 61 ewes, three registered rams, five cows and some feeder cattle comprised the livestock on the farm. Lambs and wool returned $735; title, $415; calves, $70; whole milk, $300; and turkeys, $50. Eggs and vegetables also were sold.

Mr. King's principal crop was nine acres of alfalfa. For the last three years he has averaged only three and a third acres in cultivated crops. He does not grow tobacco, although he has a five-acre barn, in which he prefers to keep livestock and hay.

Winter Cover Crops Cut Livestock Costs

Provide Pastures Which Reduce Feed Bill Says U-T Specialist
Can a farmer afford to sow winter cover crops for their value in livestock production?

"The answer to the question is yes," as shown by experimental data gathered at the Middle Tennessee Experiment Station, states L. A. Richardson, U-T Extension Livestock Specialist.

For the past five years steers which have averaged about 550 pounds have been turned on winter cover crops on November 5 and taken off on April 8. During this period of 153 days the cattle have put on an average of 214 pounds. In taking into consideration the quality of cattle which have been grazed, the average farmer would figure these animals during that period of years at a conservative price of 7 cents. In other words the cattle returned $14.98 per animal in gains made on pasture.

At the West Tennessee Experiment Station a parallel experiment has been carried on with dairy cattle on winter pasture. This experiment has been underway for some seven years and demonstrates that dairy cattle in production, grazing winter cover as pasture and supplemented with a few pounds of legume roughage daily, have averaged within 15 percent the production of cattle being fed a grain ration plus such roughage in the way of silage and legume as they would consume.

In finishing hogs, the availability of winter pasture is also an important factor, Mr. Richardson states. For the use of adequate winter pasture the hog farmer can realize a saving of from 170 to 215 pounds of grain or approximately three bushels. An adequate protein and mineral supplement is of course provided with the winter pasture as the addition of such supplements is always fundamentally sound in the proper methods of swine production, he points out. Furthermore, the addition of pasture reduces the protein and mineral supplements essential in making 100 pounds of pork.

Adequate winter pasture is also essential to successful sheep farming in Tennessee. Not only is grazing of primary importance for the ewe flock but in lamb production, a good winter cover crop will enable Tennessee farmers to save approximately a half bushel of grain per lamb.

Week's Best Recipe

BRAN-BREAD—2 cups flour; 1 cup bran; 1/2 cup granulated sugar; 1 teaspoon soda; 1 teaspoon baking powder; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1 tablespoon fat, melted; 1/2 cup rasins, op-tioned; 1 1/2 cups sour milk. Mix the ingredients and pour into a buttered loaf pan. Let stand fifteen minutes and then bake 50 minutes in a moderately slow oven. Serve warm or cold, cut into thin slices.

How To Do Things:

To quickly cool gelatin desserts, pudding, etc., dissolve a handful of soda and salt in a bowl of water and place mold in it—A little powdered borax sprinkled in fruit jars with the cover screwed on tightly will keep them sweet until another year—To mend granite utensils, press putty into the hole and bake until brown in a hot oven.

The Seamstress Says:

To brighten velvet dresses, brush the dress and hang it over a tub of steaming water. This method may be used for any garment, later pressing through a dry flannel. Do not press velvet but steam individual portions by placing a wet cloth over an inverted heated iron and hold garment over steam so the steam enters from the wrong side.

The Family Doctor:

To destroy the unpleasant taste of castor oil, beat it with the white of an egg until both are thoroughly mixed. Or dip the spoon first in milk and the flavor will not be noticed. One of the nicest ways of taking castor oil is to first put a small amount of orange juice in the glass, then the oil, more orange juice and finish by stirring in a pinch of soda. Drink it while it is effervescent.

A Beauty Hint:

Warm castor oil rubbed into the hair at night before a shampoo will correct excessive dryness. Lemon in the rinse brings out the beauty of blonde hair; vinegar should be used by brunettes. Use the lemon or vinegar in the next to the last rinse, following with one of clear water.

Did You Know That—

A few drops of pine tar burned in the house will drive away mosquitoes—White matting may be cleaned by washing it with hot salt water—A small can of cream of tartar and a small bottle of hydrogen peroxide made into a paste will remove yellow stains from porcelain.

Day after day we read the obituaries of wealthy men and never discover anything about them getting their start playing the races or slot machines.

Kentucky Test Show High Value of Manure

The value of manure is strikingly shown in an experiment on the Mayfield, Graves county, soil experiment field which was begun in 1913, points out Prof. George Roberts, head of the agronomy department of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

Two sets of plots treated with sufficient limestone and superphosphate throughout the period were used for the tests. No manure or residue were returned to either set for the first three years. Beginning with 1916, manure has been used on each corn crop, in quantities practical on farms, on one set of plots. On the other set of four plots the cornstalks and wheat straws were returned from 1916 to 1921, after which they were left off. No manure was used on this set of plots at any time. A four-year rotation of corn, soybeans, wheat and hay (mild grass and legumes) was used until 1921. Since then a four-year rotation of corn, wheat and two years of hay has been used.

Dividing the 24 years of the test into three periods of eight years each, the average acre yield for each period are: Corn and manure, first period, 32 bushels; second period, 44 bushels, and third period, 53 bushels. Corn without manure, first period, 33 bushels; second period, 36 bushels, and third period, 37 bushels. Soybean hay, first period, 3,259 pounds, and second period, 3,931 pounds, on manured land; and 3,721 pounds in the second period, on unmanured land. Wheat on manured land, first period, 17 bushels; second period, 21 bushels, and third period, 23 bushels. Wheat on unmanured land, first period, 16 bushels; second period, 18 bushels, and third period, 20 bushels. Hay on manured land, first period, 3,173 pounds; second period, 4,362 pounds, and third period, 5,326 pounds. Hay on unmanured land, first period, 2,903 pounds; second period, 3,834 pounds, and third period, 3,824 pounds.

The conservation and use of manure is one of the most important practices in soil conservation, for by capturing plant nutrients to the soil more vigorous crops are produced which better hold the soil against washing and other losses. The loss through careless handling of manure in Kentucky is easily ten million dollars a year.

The average yields of second-year hay for four years after the changed rotation was established were 5,615 pounds on manured land and 4,922 pounds on unmanured land.

ROBERT MONTGOMERY and MARIAN DAVIS in ACE HIT "EVER SINCE EVE" AT THE ORPHEUM SATURDAY 11 P.M. AND SUNDAY MONDAY

With Marion Davies and Robert Montgomery as co-stars, and a supporting cast that includes such popular comedians as Frank McHugh, Pat Kelly, Louise Fazenda and Allen Jenkins, the Warner Cosmopolitan comedy "Ever Since Eve" will open Saturday night 11 P.M. at the Orpheum Theatre and runs thru Sunday-Monday. It is described as the sprightliest piece of nonsense that either the lovely golden-haired Miss Davies or handsome Bob has ever played in.

Montgomery plays the part of a goofy author who cannot settle down to finish his novels because he always has his mind on the blondes. Miss Davies assumes the role of a secretary who has been so pestered by previous employers on account of her good looks, that when she goes to work for Bob she does so in disguise, making herself as homely as possible.

Bob meets her at night, undisguised, doesn't recognize her, and falls in love with her. The complications resulting from this are said to be fast and furious.

The sort of roles portrayed by Miss Davies and Montgomery in the picture are especially suited to their talents, and triumphs of former films are repeated here manyfold.

Perhaps one of the best features of the picture is the presence of a side-splitting supporting cast of comedians. Performance by Allen Jenkins, Frank McHugh, and Patsy Kelly keep the audience in the proverbial gales of laughter.

Lloyd Bacon, who directed Miss Davies in her last picture, "Cabin and Mabel" also did "Ever Since Eve." The original story was written by Margaret Lee and Gene Baker.

Reverent Ladd of Fulton held a very successful revival meeting at Mt. Zion. Brother Clements in charge of the song services. The meeting closed Sunday night.

Millet and Barley Best Cover Crops For Orchards

Seven years of tests made by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station indicate that millet and barley are the best cover crops for orchards. Tests also were made with lespedeza, sweet clover, soybeans and bluegrass.

Trees grew faster where millet and barley were grown than where legumes were used. This was determined by measuring the gain in tree trunk circumference. Second largest tree growth was where lespedeza was used as a cover crop, third with sweet clover or soybeans, and growth was the least where the orchard was kept in bluegrass sod.

More and better hay for Kentucky.

So say county agricultural committees according to a College of Agriculture summary of their recommendations.

These committees, which have been at work about a year on the needs of agriculture in Kentucky, want greatly increased acreages of cover, alfalfa and lespedeza. Two or four times more alfalfa should be grown, they think, and clover and lespedeza should be preferred to red-top, timothy and wild grasses.

Soybeans and cow peas would be relegated to bottom land where conditions prevent growing other crops, or to upland where crop failures call for emergency crops. It is recommended that the production of these two annuals be materially reduced.

Because alfalfa and lespedeza permit excessive washing, it is suggested that orchard grass be sowed with alfalfa and redtop or orchard grass or both with lespedeza nor alfalfa would be seeded alone. Bluegrass or other grasses should be seeded with hay when hay grasses tend to "play out," it is stated thus greatly improving the resulting pastures.

In the case of lespedeza alone, disking in the fall and seeding to a small grain cover crop are indicated. The small grain can be grazed or cut for hay or grain and another crop of lespedeza hay secured, if the season is favorable. Such a plan also protects the land over the winter.
