THE LISTENING POST

It is always a matter of deep regret when it becomes necessary that I rebuke and criticize a friend through this column, but such becomes necessary at times and this is one of those times. It is a matter of self defense and I must defend the rights of all men. The matter revolves around a recent action by Sam Brown, the other half of Lowe's Cafe.

Practically every morning I drink a cup of coffee at Sam's place and in past years this coffee has been served in a cup which seemed designed for a man's use. It was not one of those shaving mug cups, made of heavy china and retaining heat for twenty-four hours, such as Dutchman Eulen fancies. I could have had that kind, and still can, I guess, but I like coffee which is not as hot as the hinges of Gehenna, and these big thick cups will keep coffee hot as long as will the average thermos bottle. So I preferred the other cups—these being a sort of squat job, with no decorations whatever, and no pretense of style. The coffee cooled with reasonable speed, and if Sam was not watching too closely, and if the girls left the cream pitcher nearby, I could always get my coffee in just the condition I liked.

I went in there the other morning and when the girl handed me a cup of coffee I saw that something terrible had happened. The cup was one of these slim-waisted affairs which I have always hated, and which I always suspect of not really holding a full cup. I taxed Sam with this and he at once bristled all over and offered to bet me a dollar, or some sum like that, that the new cups would hold exactly the same amount as the old ones. I still don't much believe this statement, but Sam's utter abandon, in offering to bet scared me off, and I subsided—for a moment. Then there was worse to come.

I drank the coffee down to a certain place, and then it seemed there was something sticking to the side of the dented cup. I thought at first it was a piece of a dishrag which had stuck there, and more or less secretly tried to take it off the cup. I didn't want to hurt anybody's feelings by finding a piece of dishrag inside a cup of coffee, for such occurrences are not supposed to take place in well regulated restaurants.

But the thing would not come off the cup and in dawning horror I poured off enough coffee to see just what it was. My fears were all too well founded. For on the side of that cup, and on the side of all the cups there now, appears a large and violent flower of some sort, all painted in vivid colors, and looking like an exhibit in an art gallery. What the flower is I am not certain, for my knowledge of such things is painfully small. I judge that it must be a sort of coat of arms for Sam's family tree, but to me it seemed a full blossom of the Double Cross. For when a man drinks coffee at a restaurant counter he is entitled to drink from a coffee cup and not from a thing which might be a teacup. While I held that cup, with its violent flower on the inside, I could feel my little finger beginning to stretch out and my elbows squaring off as if I happened to be drinking tea at some fashionable resort. It just ruined me, Sam.

I took a rapid Gallup poll of those who happened to be at the counter and they all sided with my

Bulldogs And Tigers Tie 7-7 In Bitter Battle

Bulldogs, Suffering Heavy Penalties, Upset Favorites In Tight Game

Flashing the best form of offensive play seen this season, Fulton High's Bulldogs last night upset the experts by outplaying a highly touted Murray team and ending up with a seven-all tie. It was the second straight year that the two teams have tied, last year's game in Murray having ended six-all. All the scoring was confined last night to the first half, the Bulldogs striking in the first quarter for a touchdown and conversion, and the Tigers coming back hard in the second quarter to tie the score. The second half was a bitterly played bit of action, with few scoring opportunities. Murray did reach the Bulldog 25 in the closing quarter, but so stout was the defense that the Tigers had to kick after three efforts has lost five yards.

The first half saw the most dazzling offensive action yet seen here by any two teams. First downs came right and left and only in the final two minutes did either team have to kick. Murray took the ball on the kick-off and hammered back to the Fulton 20. With a first and ten here, Murray fumbled and the Bulldogs took over. From that point they carried the ball straight up the field to the Murray 40. McClellan and White alternated on line thrusts and end sweeps and four first downs were rolled up in succession. On the 40 the Bulldogs shook Bobby Merryman loose on a reverse play and he knifed down the sidelines with such perfect blocking that he crossed the line standing up. White passed to Neims for the extra point.

In the second quarter the Bulldogs were set back deep in their own territory on a punt exchange and the Tigers carried the ball to the eight yard line. A tricky lateral to Williams sent the touchdown over and Williams booted the ball to tie the score.

At the end of the half the Bulldogs had the ball and were clicking passes towards pay dirt when the period ended. A fifteen yard penalty hurt their chances. Few scoring opportunities came in the second half, as both teams, apparently tired, dug in for the defense and held tightly.

The figures show that the Bulldogs enjoyed a wide margin over the Tigers. They had fourteen first downs against nine for the Tigers. Yards gained from scrimmage showed Fulton with 221 and Murray only 99. Fulton used six passes, completing four for 82 yards. Murray tried thirteen, completing eight for 48 yards. In penalties the

House Probe Committee Satisfied That No Defense Bar Exists

Washington. — Although no formal pronouncement was forthcoming, members of a House investigating committee said privately today the results of a one-day inquiry had satisfied them that decisions of the National Labor Relations Board would not be permitted to work to the detriment of the defense program.

This comment was backed up by the fact that the committee scheduled no further hearings after it had concluded questioning of Attorney General Jackson and three key defense officials—Secretary of the Navy Knox, assistant Secretary of War Patterson, and Sidney Hillman, the labor specialist of the national defense commission.

Knudsen Voices View Both Knox and Patterson assured the committee they would not feel impelled to deny a defense contract to a company solely because the N. L. R. B. had adjudged it a

X-Ray Tattles On 7-Year-Old Razor-Eater

Oakland, Calif. — Doctors looked at X-ray pictures of 7-year-old Joan Isom's stomach and found there's nothing dull in her diet.

They found twenty-four bits of razor blade. She swallowed them at school to prove to her chums she could duplicate the feat of the lady razor-blade eater at the fair.

Joan is stuffed with mashed potatoes, cotton, bread and spinach, and her doctors said an operation might be avoided.

Goalder Johnson, Former Sheriff, Dies At Hickman

Goalder Johnson, 53 years of age, who served twice as sheriff of Fulton County, and as postmaster during the Woodrow Wilson administration, died at his home in Hickman yesterday afternoon after an illness that continued for two years. He is survived by his widow, a sister, Mrs. W. E. Bondurant of Roswell, N. M., two half brothers, Olney and Murray Johnson of Hickman, and his stepmother, Mrs. Cora Johnson of Hickman. He was the son of the late Gattlett and Flora Goalder Johnson, life time residents of Hickman.

Mr. Johnson was for many years one of the political leaders in this section of the state and was widely known. Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Hickman at 2:00 o'clock.

Human Bones Bear Out Story Of Lost Mine

Palouse, Wash. — Human bones fell on Delmar Clements and C. A. Smith and erased any doubts they may have had about the story of the lost wheelbarrow mine.

Sixty years ago, the legend said, a prospector killed his partner, dumped the remains into the burrow which had yielded them $20,000 in gold, dynamited the entrance and fled to California, leaving a rifle and a wheelbarrow.

There were few believers left when Dr. C. Landis Treichler last fall he had found the rifle, the wheelbarrow and the mine, but this spring his crew tapped a rich vein of ore. Smith and Clements broke through to the old tunnel above them and completed the story.

Would Use Orient Liners To Bring Americans Back Home At Once

Washington. — State Department representatives today were reported trying to get Shipping Board approval for the liners President Coolidge and President Pierce to carry only American citizens on early November trips to the United States from the Far East.

These vessels could accommodate at least 3,000 passengers by using public rooms for dormitories. Many European and Jewish refugees now hold reservations on the ships.

The United States was watching the Far East attentively, and at the same time kept an alert eye on progress of the furious air war over Europe as a critical factor in the present world struggle for power.

Emergency Eyed The State Department, it was understood, was reckoning with the possibility an emergency affecting this country might occur in the Orient. Not wholly in the background, however, some officials said, was the question of additional aid to embattled Britain.

The reactions of Japan to events of the last twenty-four hours were variously interpreted, particularly since the events included Britain's announcement that the Burma Road to China would be reopened for supplies, the ban on the further flow of subsidized American wheat to Far Eastern ports, and the precautionary steps to get American nationals out of potential trouble zones in the Orient.

Some officials here interpreted the tenor of Japanese reactions to indicate the possibility that any major Far Eastern thrust under the aegis of the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo alliance might be held in abeyance, at least for the time being.

Man Uses Robot To Make Work At Home Easier

Hillsborough, Calif. — Damian L. Reynolds has been working hard around the house for a dozen years, but now he has a lot of things working automatically.

His robot gardener operates 180 sprinklers. An alarm system reports suspicious goings-on at twenty-seven doors and fifty-three windows. He has a soda fountain that almost runs itself and all manner of automatic kitchen gadgets.

Even his workbench has its automatic feature. An electric device sucks up all the sawdust he creates.

Dog Witness Saves Owner $5,275 In Suit

Atlanta. — An 11-year-old brown and white collie was the defense witness in a $5,300 damage suit in Superior Court here, and his testimony was so eloquent that a jury awarded the plaintiff only $25.

J. P. Hay, a deliveryman, complained the dog bit him when he took groceries to the home of its owner, J. D. Brooks.

Defense attorneys turned the dog loose in the courtroom. First, he nuzzled against members of the Brooks family and then went to the witness chair and laid his shaggy head in Hay's lap. He napped on the floor while attorneys argued the case.

The jury's award covered medical services Hay said he required after his alleged encounter with the dog.

Six-Man Football Game At Southside Park Tonight

For their second home game of the season, the South Fulton Red Devils will play the Obion high school team tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at Southside Park. The champions of West Tennessee last season, the South Fulton team offers local fans something different in football—a team made up of six men instead of eleven. The Red Devils are slated to beat the Obion boys, although they are a much improved team over last year.

Six man football was inaugurated at South Fulton last season and Coach Craven had a very successful year with his team last year. The new coach, Jess Haynes, seems to be turning out a winning team again this fall.

Six man football is becoming quite popular in the various sections of the country and South Fulton's Red Devils have a tough schedule ahead of them. Next week they meet the freshmen of Bethel college, McKenzie, Tenn.

At present, the Red Devils are undefeated, having run rough-shod over the Sharon team on two different occasions. McKinney, Buchanan, Parham, Dyer, Luther and Irvin will be the starters for the Red Devils.

Chief Denies F. B. I. Conducted Probe Of Late Senator Lundeen

Washington. — The Senate received Wednesday from J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a statement that an F. B. I. agent and a stenographer who were killed with Senator Lundeen (F. L. Minn.), in an airplane crash were not investigating the Senator.

Hoover wrote to Senator McCarran (D. Nev.), sponsor of a resolution for an investigation of the plane crash which occurred near Lovettsville, Va., August 31. The Senate adopted the resolution, including provision for an inquiry into the F. B. I. angle, and shortly afterward Hoover's letter was filed by Senator Johnson (D. Cal.), in McCarran's absence.

Full Denial Made Hoover's letter said Margaret L. Turner, stenographer, and Special Agent Joseph J. Pesci were aboard the plane. Miss Turner, the F. B. I. chief asserted, was leaving on her

Will Reorganize Community Chest Here

Organization Did Splendid Work Last Year In Relieving Distress

Chief of Police K. P. Dalton, who was recently named president of the Community Chest, announced this morning that plans were being made for reorganizing the movement in order to be ready for calls of distress which invariably begin with the advent of cold weather.

Serving with Mr. Dalton are Homer Roberts, vice president, Mrs. Dorothy Edwards, secretary and Bill Browning, treasurer. In addition the organization has the following directors: Carl Hastings, R. E. Sanford, Ronald Jones, Paul DeMyer, Ford Lansden, D. A. Rogers, Parker McClure and Robert Lamb.

Mr. Dalton stated that a meeting of these officers and directors had been called for next Monday night at 7:30 o'clock, at his office in the City Hall, and at this meeting plans will be worked out for the money raising campaign. It is hoped to have this on Tuesday, October 15, but this will be announced in a later issue of this newspaper.

Last winter the Community Chest performed a splendid public service in relieving distress and while not a large amount of money was disbursed, little actual suffering occurred in the city. This year it is sincerely hoped that the people of the city will support the organization liberally and sympathetically, for it is realized that many families will suffer unless aid is available.

The persons who are serving in the organization are all busy people, and they are gladly giving their time to this work. They urge that others contribute as liberally as possible and as willingly as last year, in order to speed up the reorganization work.

Mr. Goodin formerly lived in Fulton but moved away about thirty years ago. Since that time, however, he has worked in and out of Fulton and has a host of friends here.

NOTHING NEW FOR LONDON

Day after day and night after night gray old London is torn and battered by bombs which plunge from unfathomable heights. Men and women and children are torn and mutilated; ancient buildings are blasted into heaps of rubble, and property damage is such as to stagger the imagination. Yet all this is nothing new to the ancient city which sprawls over the Thames country. It is all of a familiar pattern, for past centuries have also brought their toll of death, destruction and disaster. Some of the written history of other dark days is still available, for that sprightly commentator and philosopher, Samuel Pepys, set down some of the facts concerning that dark period of three centuries ago when the Great Plague swept the city in one year and the following year the Great Fire, paradoxically enough, destroyed and yet saved London.

The Great Pague in 1665 was nothing new itself, for it was the twelfth such visitation during a period of seven hundred years. The last was probably the greatest and most costly in human lives, for Londoners died by thousands in this epidemic. Following its usual custom, the plague started in ships which lay in the river harbor and which had come from the Far East. We know now that the plague was generally borne by rats which came aboard ships, but at that time little was known of its causes and there were no known remedies. Plague in those days simply ran its course until stopped by some unknown means.

Defoe, the British writer, wrote a gripping story of those plague days, and although written fifty years after the epidemic itself, critics agree that no more gripping story was ever written. In this chronicle one sees the daily dead hauled through the streets of the city, the horrors of the empty streets and houses. London was a city of the dead. The dead were thrown hastily in great holes which were dug, and there was no business whatever. People fled the city in greater haste and panic than is now the case under daily air attack. In one week, according to Pepys, more than eight thousand people died from the plague, which vividly illustrates the difference between death by disease and the present bombing attacks. Day after day came and passed, and the summer was dry and hot. Daily London became more and more a city of the dead, a city of fear, a city of panic. There was a belief that fire might purify the air and thus stop the disease, so great bonfires were kindled in all parts of the city.

Strangely enough, it was fire which finally came and purged the city after practically destroying it. The plague had almost spent itself, but, as we know now, the city must have been still a harboring place for millions of rats which had caused the great epidemic. The plague lay slumbering, ready to break out again, but in September, 1666, a fire broke out which almost destroyed the city and removed forever the dangerous seeds of plague. For days and days the fire roared and swept through the flimsy houses of that age, all human efforts failing to control it. It finally burned itself out, and this ended two years of death, disaster and destruction which almost paralyzed the great city of England.

Probably not many people of that

PREPARING TO PAY

The excess profits tax bill as passed by the Senate was improved by various amendments and the measure is now before a conference which will seek to reconcile it with the House version.

The general proposition still holds true that the section which would permit industry to amortize, within a limited time, new investments made to expand plants for defense purposes should have been separated from the excess profits feature and passed long ago. There was practically no difference of opinion on the proposal that this investment for an emergency which might end at any time, and almost certainly will end within five years, should be amortized out of profits within a five-year period, at least.

The Senate is also to be commended for rejecting the Lee amendment which would have imposed "forced loans" at a rate not to exceed 1 per cent. There has been no difficulty in floating government loans at the lowest rate of interest in the history of the country and there is no reason to think there would be any difficulty hereafter. Then, too, it is just as well for the American people to face the fact that preparedness is going to cost money and to a certain extent this must be paid out of current taxes. Posterity cannot be made to bear the entire burden.

Finally, the Senate's refusal to make income from future issues of federal, state and local securities subject to taxation was in accordance with sound judgment. It has been pointed out by experts that this would impose an unjust burden on the states and local subdivisions of government and that bids for the issues would take into account the tax that would have to be paid. Thus the net revenue from security issues would hardly be greater than at present.—Exchange.

day who managed to live through those two years believed that recovery was possible. Perhaps there are some in London now who do not believe that recovery is possible from present ravages, but the history of London and of England is filled with records like these and from all of them the British came back. Time is the necessary thing now. Given time the British can regain the upper hand, and when this is done Germany will suffer as England has suffered. This explains the eagerness of the Axis Powers to keep the United States out of the war. It is known that from this nation will flow the machines which will finally turn the tide for England.

Honesty Keeps
Man Busy, Costs
Him $1,100.00

Chicago. —Honesty may be the best policy, but it's keeping Harold Freeman mighty busy.

While employed by a fur company some time ago he found a $100 bill in a coat and returned it to the owner. Two months ago he paid for a $150 bank draft, but received one for $250. He sent it back.

Last week he exchanged $100 in small-denomination notes at the same bank for a $100 bill. He discovered later the teller had given him a $1,000 bill. Wearily, he sent the $900 back.

Probe Of Use
Of Girl's Name
By Nazis Asked

Philadelphia. —A Philadelphia factory engineer said Tuesday he has asked the State Department to investigate a report by a business associate that his daughter had been introduced to an American radio audience from Berlin while in reality she was in the United States.

Col. E. J. W. Ragsdale, chief engineer of the E. G. Budd Manufacturing Company's high tensile division said John P. Tarbox, the company's patent attorney, told him he had heard the broadcast on shortwave last summer.

Colonel Ragsdale's daughter was presented as an American "eye witness" to corroborate an assertion by "Lord Haw Haw," British-speaking Nazi propaganda broadcaster, that British warplanes had bombed a Berlin hospital.

All three of his daughters, Colonel Ragsdale said, were in this country at the time of the broadcast. He added:

"Someone given an assignment to put on a radio act was hunting around for an American name to use and grabbed mine. 'Miss Ragsdale' told her story in very good English, much better than my daughter speaks."

Basket Thrower
To Face Trial
For Assault

Detroit. —Recorder's Judge Arthur E. Gordon ordered Miss Doris Le Roux, 31, typist, held for trial on a charge of felonious assault following a preliminary hearing Tuesday. Miss Le Roux, who lost her job with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation because of the incident, is charged with having tossed a wastebasket from a sixteenth-floor hotel window during an open-air reception for Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee.

The metal basket struck Miss Betty Wilson, 19, autograph-hunter, on the head, inflicting a gash that required a dozen stitches.

Youth Prefers
To Take Lashes
To Jail Term

Wilmington, N. C. —A 16-year-old boy, convicted of assault and battery, appealed to Recorder A. A. Lemon for a whipping instead of a jail sentence.

The boy explained that he lived with an invalid grandmother and had gone without any correction for several years. The recorder called upon a husky longshoreman to administer the lashes.

British Told
Labor To Help
Rebuild World

London. —British Labor Minister Ernest Bevin told a trades union congress Wednesday that any reconstruction of the world "must be through harnessing of the rising masses of labor to whom the future really belongs."

The labor leader, considered by some as a likely choice for Prime Minister after the war, said that for the first time a "very close liaison" has been established between the Labor Ministry and the British Foreign Office.

"The object of that," he said, "is to get the whole diplomatic service to realize they move in a new environment and to recognize the limited Court Circular Society of the Chancelleries never will return."

HE HAD AN EXCUSE FOR PLAYING HOOKEY

Atlanta. —DeKalb County School Superintendent W. M. Rainey saw 10-year-old Ben Jenkins in a drug store during school yesterday and asked sternly:

"Young man, why aren't you in school?"

"I got a peanut in my lungs and I am getting some cough syrup," replied Ben.

Said Rainey to himself: "Ah! ha! this is a new excuse for truancy."

Said Rainey to Ben: "Well, you come along with me and we'll see about that peanut." Off they went to a hospital. While Rainey silently rehearsed a homily on the evils of playing hooky, surgeons reported that there was a peanut in the lad's right lung.

A bronchoscope was used to remove the nut. Ben will be back in school in a few days and Superintendent Rainey will be less skeptical.

BULLDOGS

Bulldogs drew 70 yards, with only one against the Tigers for five yards. The Bulldogs were charging low and hard, and in their eagerness to block Murray's air game they drew several penalties.

In the final minute of play, the Bulldogs got possession of the ball and Willingham heaved two long passes to Nelms, which netted two first downs and put the Bulldogs within scoring distance of the Murray goal, but the whistle caught them and the game ended, 7-7. All told, the Bulldogs looked vastly better than in any previous game. There was no fumbling, the plays were well called, and all were alert in diagnosing enemy plays. Many times Nelms and Buckingham sliced around to throw Tiger runners for big losses, and the line, particularly during the first half, tore the Murray line apart and kept the Tiger backs from getting a start.

Queen Elizabeth May See Service As Troop Ship

New York. —The unheralded arrival of 190 British seamen gave rise to waterfront reports Wednesday that the Queen Elizabeth, largest and fastest ship in the world, would soon leave for troop transport service between Australia and Egypt.

The 85,000 ton liner was tied up here last March 7 after a voyage through submarine and mine-infested waters.

Her sister ship, the Queen Mary, and the Mauretania left New York several months ago to serve as troopships.

Travelers from the Near East have reported Anzac troops have been pouring into Egypt for defense against the Italian drive.

U. S. Mechanics Share R. A. F. Battle Glories

With the Royal Air Force Coastal Command, Somewhere in England. —An American airplane expert nominates workmen in United States airplane factories for a share of the glory in the fight against Nazis fliers in the battle of Britain.

"Allowing for the skill of British pilots," says Donald H. Dunning of Burbank, Calif., a representative of the Lockheed Corporation, "it is the men on the lathes and assembly belts in Burbank who keep planes from falling apart when German bullets make sieves of them."

Dunning just has completed six months in England training mechanics in servicing the Lockheed Hudsons which daily fly from this station on North Sea reconnaissance and bombing attacks on German shipping.

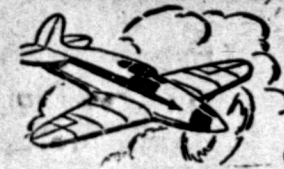

Although he teaches the R. A. F. men, Dunning takes no part in repairing damaged aircraft because of United States neutrality.

Rumanians View Lupescu's Villa At 10 Cents A Head

Bucharest. —The villa of Mme. Magda Lupescu, friend of former King Carol II, was opened to the public today at 10 cents admission. Crowds filed through, gasping at the luxurious tapestries, antiques, and the boudoir filled with picture albums, phonograph records and other mementoes of the years when Carol ruled Rumania. Many of the photographs bore the signatures of leading Rumanian figures.

The Iron Guardists who opened the villa also got rid of a bust of Armand Calinescu, Premier who was assassinated in September, 1939; they buried it ceremoniously in a public square after lines of Guardists had been allowed to spit on it.
