THE LISTENING POST

- It is always a matter of deep interest to me that I reproduce and criticize this through this column, and that is the way of this letter. It is a matter of self-defense, and I must defend the rights of all men. The matter arises after an argument set off by Mr. Brown, the other postman.

Bulldogs And Tigers Tie 7-7 In Bitter Battle

- bulldogs, suffering heavy penalties, upset favorites.

- In Tight Game...

- Finding the best form of offense, they ran the play over the field, putting points on the board by expediting a highly successful guard. It was a game with a score of 7-7 at the half. However, the Bulldogs have a better team than the Tigers, and they failed to get the points. The Bulldogs were led by Walter, the star of the game, and the Tigers were led by their quarterback, Tom. The game was decided by a penalty on the Bulldogs for a false start in the first quarter.

Goulder Johnson, Former Sheriff, Dies At Hickman

- Goulder Johnson, 58, who served twice as sheriff of Fulton County, announced his resignation last week, and his resignation was accepted.

- He was sheriff for two terms, and was re-elected in 1939. Mr. Johnson was one of the oldGuardians, and his resignation removes a barrier to the advancement of other candidates for the office.

Here's How Some Folks Grew A Crop

- Growing vegetables is not always easy, and the results can be disappointing. But there are some tips that can help you grow a successful crop.

- First, make sure your soil is fertile. You can check the pH level of your soil to see if it is suitable for vegetable growing. Second, make sure you have the right amount of water. Some vegetables need more water than others, so it is important to know how much water your plants need. Third, make sure you have adequate sunlight. Most vegetables need at least 6-8 hours of sunlight per day. Fourth, make sure you have enough space. You can grow vegetables in raised beds or in containers, but you need to make sure you have enough space for your plants to grow.

Human Bones Bear Story Of Lost Mine

- Police, Working... Human bones were found in a mine shaft that had been abandoned for many years. The bones were discovered by a group of miners who were exploring the shaft.

- The mine had been abandoned many years ago, and the bones were likely the remains of a miner who had been killed in an accident. The mine was eventually filled in and covered over, and the bones were forgotten until they were rediscovered by the miners.

Man Uses Robot To Make Work At Home Easier

- Robot, Working... A man has created a robot to help him with his daily tasks. The robot is able to do a variety of tasks, including cleaning, cooking, and even driving.

- The man has named his robot "Rex," and he has programmed it to do a variety of tasks. The robot is able to clean the house, make dinner, and even drive the car. The man is able to control the robot through a remote control, and he is able to program it to do a variety of tasks.

NOBODY KNOWS WHAT'S GONNA HAPPEN
Day after day and month after month, the nation is battered by bombs which plunge from unfathomable heights. Men and women are leaving their homes, for two centuries have also brought their toll of death. destruction and disaster.

The Great Plague of 1665 was nothing new, it was the twelfth such visitation during a period of seven hundred years. The city of London was probably the greatest and most costly in human lives. It is estimated that 700,000 died in this epidemic. Following its usual custom, the plague started in ships which lay on the river harbor and which had come from the Far East.

We know now that the plague was generally borne by rats which came aboard the vessels and were known of its presence. There were no water closets during that period, and the plague spread more rapidly than disease today.

Defoe, the British writer, who wrote a gripping story of those plague days, one of his complaints was the almost universal epidemic of smallpox. It was not until the end of the 18th century that smallpox was almost wiped out of the city. It finally burned itself out, but at that time little was known of the disease which had come from the Far East.

We know now that the plague was general in the early years of the 18th century. It spread rapidly and passed. and the summer was dry and the city was almost free from the plague.

The general practice still holds true that the section which was polluted by the rats, within a limited time, new investments made for defense purposes should have been separated from the rest of the city, but this feature and passed long ago. There was practically no difference of opinion on the proposal that this investment for an emergency might end at any time, and most certainly will end within five years, should be amortized out of profits with a five-year period, at least.

The Senate is also to be commended for rejecting the Lee amendment, which would have imposed "forced" labor in the fields of taxation, but the Senate is aware of the history of the country and there is no reason to think that such labor would be any different. It is true that the Senate is as willing as any other body to pay for the war, but its sentiments are going to cost more than the millions we have spent for the war, and to a certain extent this must be paid out of current taxes.

Finally, the Senate's refusal to make provision for future issues of federal state and local securities subject to taxation is in accordance with sound judgment. It has been pointed out by experts that this would impose an unjust burden on the states and local subdivisions of government and that bids for these bonds would take into account the tax that would have to be paid. Thus the net revenue from these issues would hardly be greater than at present.

The Secretary of War expressed the desire to operate for defense purposes without hindrance, but the Senate is aware of the history of the country and there is no reason to think that such labor would be any different. It is true that the Senate is as willing as any other body to pay for the war, but its sentiments are going to cost more than the millions we have spent for the war, and to a certain extent this must be paid out of current taxes.

PREPARING TO PAY

The excess profits tax bill as passed by the Senate was improved by various amendments and the measure now contains a conference which will seek to reconcile it with the House version.

The general proposition still holds true that the section which would permit the government to borrow within a limited time, new investments made for defense purposes should have been separated from the rest of the city, but this feature and passed long ago. There was practically no difference of opinion on the proposal that this investment for an emergency might end at any time, and most certainly will end within five years, should be amortized out of profits within a five-year period, at least.

SOUTH FULTON P. T. A. PLANS MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

One hundred and fifty members will join the South Fulton Parent-Teacher Association this week at a meeting at 10 a.m. at the Fulton High School. The drive is under the direction of Mrs. B. C. Moore, chairman of the membership drive. The members are being asked to invite neighbors and friends to join the club.

HONESTY KEEPS MAN BUSY, COST HIM $1,000.00

Chicago.—Honesty may be the best policy, but it can cost a man a lot of money. One man was so honest that he lost $1,000.00.

The man was Mr. George Ward, a prominent Chicago businessman. He was involved in a business deal with a man named John Brown.

The deal was for Mr. Ward to buy a large quantity of gold at a good price. Mr. Brown agreed to sell the gold to Mr. Ward for $1,000.00 per ounce.

Mr. Ward paid Mr. Brown the $1,000.00 per ounce for the gold, but when he received it, he found that it was not gold at all, but lead.

Mr. Ward then had to sell the lead at a loss of $1,000.00 per ounce, which cost him $1,000.00.

The lesson is clear: Honesty may be the best policy, but it can cost a man a lot of money.
