THE LISTENING POST

● In the mail yesterday morning I received a bulky newspaper in a special wrapper and it had a special interest for me. It was a copy of the seventy-fifth anniversary edition of the Dyersburg State-Gazette, and the entire issue consisted of forty pages. In every way it was a splendid issue and reflects quite clearly and in an interesting manner the history of Dyersburg for the past three quarters of a century. An interesting feature of the edition is that the State-Gazette has been published for seventy-five years with only one major change in ownership. The newspaper was established seventy five years ago by Colonel Tom W. Neal, and he served as editor and publisher for thirty-seven years. In 1906 he sold the property to the late John C. Rogers, and Mr. Rogers operated for a few months as sole editor and publisher. After a few months Harvey Nelson joined hands with him in the venture, and this partnership continued until February of this year. Mr. Rogers died suddenly in February, and since then Mr. Nelson has continued the work with the assistance of what I regard as the most capable staff to be found anywhere in this section.

● The State-Gazette has perhaps the most elaborate and complete printing plant to be found in any of the so called smaller towns, and this plant is kept in modern condition at all times. The issue celebrating the seventy-fifth anniversary of the publication reflects quite strongly the excellent plant which published it. Every bit of the work was done in the plant, even to the making of half tone pictures, and there was little outside help used. Perhaps some extra help was secured in writing some of the copy, for the regular news staff is always rather busy in the daily work, but in the mechanical department the regular crew handled the work and did a splendid job. There was, of course, quite a lot of overtime, for a forty page newspaper does not just happen to be published. Such an issue requires much planning and a vast lot of labor.

● I was in the State-Gazette office a few days before the big birthday paper came off the press, and in the press-room saw the work that had already been done. Thirty-two pages had been completed and were piled up at the rear of the room. It looked quite a bit like the Commercial Appeal press room, and Mr. Nelson showed me the sections which had already been run. I saw then that they had done a big job in a big way and the completed issue which came Wednesday only proved this more completely.

● The history of the town is presented in a vivid and interesting manner, and unlike many papers of this sort there is no apparent effort made to crowd more advertising in than should be used. The reading sections are plentiful, well written, well illustrated, and taken by and large the special issue will be a source of interest to everybody in the Dyer County section, as well as other sections.

● I distinctly remember the paper when it was edited by Colonel Neal, and remember it carried his name on the first page name plate, being called Tom W. Neal's State-Gazette. He was of the old school type, and was a brilliant editorial man. I never knew him personally, but know that he was quite a power in state newspaper circles for many years. In recent years I have become quite well acquainted with the men who took over the paper in 1906, and admired them tremendously. It was a personal loss to me when Mr. Rogers passed so suddenly, and I still enjoy visiting Mr. Nelson, who is an unusually interesting fellow newspaper worker. In fact, visiting that office is always a pleasure, for all the boys and girls are friendly and interesting folks and seem glad to see me whenever I go there. I congratulate all of them on a splendid piece of work in this special issue. May they

Japs Warn They'll Bomb Burma Road

Rome Writer Predicts Entry Of United States In War

Hanoi, French Indo-China. —The Japanese military command based in this French colony served positive notice Wednesday night that Japanese warplanes will "make the utmost effort to strike a fatal blow" at American and other war supplies for China on the 780-mile Burma Road, which Britain is reopening Thursday.

Maj. Gen. Raishiro Sumita, the chief, announced, "Japan is resolutely determined to prevent war materials supplied by the United States or any third power from reaching Chiang Kai-Shek's armies."

Planes attacking this "Road to Mandalay," ordered opened after three months' closure as a consequence of Japan's adherence to the Rome-Berlin Axis, will fly from Indo-China bases newly acquired by Japan, the general indicated.

Expecting No Attacks In Burma He said, however, that the attacks probably would be made only after the supplies had passed from British Burma into Chinese territory north of Indo-China.

(From another corner of the Axis—Rome—Mario Appellus, military commentator for Mussolini's newspaper, raised the possibility that the reopening would touch off an American powder keg and bring the United States into the war. Appellus said it was almost certain that the British decision to open the road would bring Japan and Britain into conflict, and asked: "What will the Americans do?" in that case.)

Japan Too Worn By War With China To Challenge United States

Washington.—Worn by the strain of her long and continuing war in China, frail economically, Japan, so fool-hardy as to court a war with the United States.

As for lesser measure of retaliation, the Philippines lie exposed, some trade measures could be undertaken, and life could be made difficult for Americans who disregard their Government's warning and remain at the potential danger spots. To ward off any such actions as these the United States has a double edged weapon at hand an embargo on imports of Japanese silk. Japan counts on her silk sales to finance a big proportion of her foreign purchases. Such a move, it is believed, would prove a body blow to her war economy. And Japanese leaders, officials say, certainly must realize that fact.

Nevertheless there are some here, opposing American policy on European affairs, who are worried at the trend of things. Just as they have contended that the Administration's policy toward the War in Eu-

Hair-Tugging Woman Routs 2nd Story Man

Cincinnati — A second-story burglar in the home of Frank Nolte in suburban Bond Hill reckoned not with Mrs. Nolte. Awakened early today as the prowler sought to pull himself through a window, Mrs. Nolte seized the man by the hair.

"Don't push me off!" he pleaded, but Mrs. Nolte released her grip and gave him a shove.

He tumbled into some shrubbery—and limped away.

Angler-Watchman Casts For Rats In State Building

Frankfort, Ky. —There haven't been any fish around the State Welfare Building here since the 1937 flood, but Night Watchman Dick Sullivan isn't just practicing when he gets out a rod and reel to while away the late hours.

"I just bait my hook and cast into another room," says Sullivan, "then put the drag on the reel and wait for things to happen." And they really happen when rats—that's what he's after—grab the bits of apple or cheese he uses for bait.

Cajin Trappers Want To Fight But They Are Hard To Find

Lafitte, La. —Across the marshy bayou coastal plain, where Pirate Jean Lafitte and his ragged followers once hid out between raids, Cajin trappers and fishermen trooped here Wednesday to register under the selective service act which few fully understood.

The picturesque descendants of early French Canadian exiles like the faded Evangeline, dwelling almost within the shadow of New Orleans across the vast swamplands called "Fighting Prairie," like a remote, almost primitive life—their means of livelihood, fur and fish, depending on the season.

Many of them even today speak only a patois based on French. Grapevine reports down the bayous brought them the news from the country store—the community center—that they were to report at the schoolhouse Wednesday to sign up.

"The storekeeper told Adam, and when I see Adam down the bayou he told me," one explained. Informed of the purpose of the registration, many placed their "X" on the papers, expressed ready willingness to fight anybody for the United States, but were concerned by problems like who would inherit whose pirogue (the needle-like boat hollowed from a log and used in the shallow marsh water), and would Uncle Sam let them keep the "shotguns" given them in the Army.

Old Marksman Turned Down Patriot Martin, distinguished for his ability to stand on his head in a pirogue, was upset when the registrars turned him down because he is 68 years old.

"They wouldn't take me in de las" war," he complained, "cus I was too wide dis way and too short dat way. Now I can row up one of my wife's biscuits, shoot de flour out of it and leave de bakin' powder and dey still don't want me. What kinda defense you call dat?"

Cortez Refused Gold Memorial By Mexicans

Mexico City — The Chamber of Deputies says "no" to a proposal to emblazon in gold letters the name of Hernando Cortez, Spanish conqueror of Mexico, on walls of the legislative halls.

It contended his methods of conquest, including torturing of Indians and rule of iron, made such an honor undesirable.

The chamber rejected the proposal yesterday though it acknowledged that Cortez had brought a new language, religion and culture to Mexico.

State Aiding In Drive For New Pavement

Union City, —Assurance that the state of Tennessee has inaugurated a program looking toward the concrete-paving of the highway running north from Union City to Jordan, Ky., was given to a delegation in Nashville yesterday by State Highway Commissioner C. W. Phillips.

The commissioner also informed the group that he feels certain of the co-operation of Kentucky authorities on the project for the paving of this road all of the way from Union City to Clinton, Ky., there to connect with Highway 51. The paving, if installed, would reduce the mileage from Cairo to Union City, and points south of Union City, by about 10 miles, and undoubtedly would mean a far greater flow of traffic through Union City and cities to the south.

Mr. Phillips said that he had already requested the federal bureau of roads to take this highway into the federal road system and that he anticipates favorable federal action. If the road does become a part of the federal system, then paving of it with concrete is practically assured, it is believed.

There is a possibility, Phillips indicated, that the paving of the road may be started within 12 months.

Those in the delegation were Mayor W. M. Miles, J. C. Burdick and Lewis McAdoo of Union City; Mayor Howard Foltz of Humboldt; Mayor Beach of Rutherford, Mayor Seat of Trenton, and a representative from Dyer.

Hazel Will Celebrate The 50th Anniversary Of Its Founding

Hazel, Ky. —More than 3,000 friends and neighbors of this, the second largest and most historically interesting town in Calloway county, are expected to converge here Thursday to help the home folks celebrate half a century of existence and progress.

Its history dates back to 1890 when a small village known as "Kenslee" cropped up on the Paducah, Tennessee, and Alabama Railways lines and put in its bid as a leader in education and religion. Since that era of the "Gay Nineties" the people of this growing village have faced their trials and tribulations and have emerged with a town of solid citizenry, boasting five churches and a large and fine county school.

The true reason why the city's name was changed can not be verified, but either story is plausible. One is that it was named for

More Than 16 Million Are Listed

Notables, Unknowns Cross Path As Youth Of Nations Signs Up

Washington. —Selective service officials estimated that 10,250,000 men had registered for the draft up to 5 p. m. today, when reports from the field were discontinued until tomorrow.

On the basis of Census Bureau figures, officials had calculated that 46,500,000 men in all would be subject to registration. They said there had been no developments to cause them to revise that estimate.

By The Associated Press

The youth of America, in cheerful response to the government's call, registered yesterday for the peace time draft and a possible year of toughening and training in the camps of the Army.

Sixteen million strong and more —sons of the poor and wealthy, truck drivers, Hollywood glamor boys, big league ball players, shift-eyed water front drifters, college students, aliens devoid of English —they streamed in and out of the registration places during a day unparalleled in American history.

Henry Ford 11, grandson of the automobile manufacturer, stood side by side with a Filipino domestic at a municipal building in suburban Detroit awaiting his turn to sign up.

Movie actors Henry Fonda and Jimmy Stewart were sitting on the steps of a Hollywood registration place when it opened.

A big dog led a blind piano tuner, Charles Gilliam, to a registration point at Chickasha, Okla. Gilliam said he could "play in the band."

Four Chinese boys were first in line at Philadelphia headquarters. They signed their names in Chinese characters.

At Miami, Frank Sauliere, who at 12 years of age managed to enlist in the World War A. E. F., lined up with thousands of others.

The 35-year-old president of Wayne University, at Detroit, Dr. David D. Henry, led the list of campus registrants.

Vincent Catroppa, 24, registered in a Philadelphia hospital, where he had gone to correct flat feet which had kept him from enlisting.

Mrs. C. J. Baker of Seattle, a volunteer worker, proudly registered her three sons, Charles, 31, Robert, 24, and Jack, 21.

A Shreveport Negro presented himself, carrying a suit case packed, saying he was ready to go to war.

And so it went. In the aggregate they found a motley but mighty army from which picked men will be drawn to swell the nation's armed forces.

By every mean of measurement registration day was a huge and awe-inspiring success.

The day of festivities planned for Thursday include a mammoth pageant, "The Growth of Hazel," and an address on the history of the community by Dr. Will Mason.

Luncheon will be served to the guests by the Hazel Parent-Teachers Association, while the afternoon will feature a softball game and field meet. During the evening stars of WSM's Grand Ole Opry will be on hand to entertain.

Singing Convention

As a rule, we can glance over our crowds here when we have from one to six or seven hundred and know practically everybody, but we didn't Sunday at the Singing Convention. It was nearer a Purchase Singing rather than a two-county affair. A conservative estimate was at least fifteen hundred and some estimated nearly 2,000.

License plates were seen from fourteen counties with four other states represented. Dinner was served to the visiting singers and leaders. Others brought lunches and the Junior class hamburger stand took in $120.00.

The singing was fine for a hot, crowded house. The spring meeting in April will convene at Mt. Zion, near Water Valley, with R. C. Crocker of Fulton, president, and Mrs. R. A. Duke of Beelerton, secretary.

Church Activities

A good meeting closed at Bethel Saturday night with five additions to the church and the profession of a man in whom the community was much interested. Crowds and interest increased daily with from 8 to 10 other churches represented at the evening services. A generous offering of $83.40 was made for Rev. H. M. Southard, the minister in charge, Rev. Edd Nail, the pastor of the church, and Wayne Gardner, choir leader.

Monday night Rev. Southard began a revival at Wingo with Rev. Dalton Leath (a home boy) assisting in the song service.

Jackson Chapel with Rev. S. T. Parham as pastor, went "over the top" Sunday in all financial obligations which includes benevolences, pastor's salary, parsonage debts and Lambuth College offerings. This probably takes first honors in the county.

Friday night the women sponsored a box supper at the school building and cleared $63.70 including $28.15 which was made on a quilt.

TREES IN KENTUCKY

Practically every farm in Kentucky needs more trees, and a great many need shrubs for foundation and screen plantings, advises N. R. Elliott, landscape specialist for the Kentucky College of Agriculture. There are two planting times, fall and spring, and fall generally is accepted as the better of the two.

In making trees plantings, keep in mind that there are three sizes. When the space is small, approximately 20 by 20, use small trees such as dogwood and redbud. If the size is something like 30 by 40, use pin-oaks and yellowwood. Then for the largest space, use elm, red oak, white oak, and black walnut.

Fortunately, in nearly every section of Kentucky farmers can find good trees in the woods and nearby streams. These are ideal for farm planting. Among the better kinds are tulip poplar, oaks, hard maples, sweet gum, sour gum, black walnut, elms, dogwood, redbud and haws.

In planting them, keep three things in mind:

1 Trees should be dug with a good root-system. The larger kinds are 16 to 20 inches long on either side of the trunk. As soon as they are dug, cover roots with old sacks or blankets that have been dampened.

2 Dig the hole plenty large to accommodate the root spread naturally, and deep enough to permit setting the tree two inches deeper than it was growing before moved. Always have a basin around the tree to collect and hold water. If the soil is poor, bring in good soil from the vegetable garden, or from fields where tobacco and corn have been growing. It is not advisable to add manure or fertilizer to the soil when planting trees or shrubs.

3 As soon as the tree is dug, prune the top by removing 10 to 15 inches from the end of each branch, but never cut the main central stem. As soon as the tree is planted, wrap lower branches to ground with two or three thicknesses of old newspaper or burlap, tied with string. Leave this on until it decays and blows away, which will be in approximately two years. This will protect the tree from injury by the sun.

Incidentally, Elliott adds, many people do not recognize kinds of trees after the leaves fall. Therefore, they should go into the woods or by the streams now, and mark specimens to be moved after the frost has dropped the leaves and the wood has matured.

THE FRUITS OF LABOR

This scene is typical in America... Along rolling plains, on rich farm lands, in crowded factories, men toil that they might preserve America's oldest tradition—the right to live and prosper. Under open skies our people share in the treasures of American soil. Here are found the world's richest opportunities.

Since time immemorial, flour has been a necessity in the lives of nations. The fact remains with our millions that "bread is the staff of life." Today, we are proud of the small part we play in feeding America.

Rail oddities

IN PIONEER DAYS HUGE HERDS OF BUFFALOES FREQUENTLY DELAYED TRAINS CROSSING THE WESTERN PLAINS. OBSTINATE STRAGGLERS WERE SOMETIMES CHASED FROM THE TRACK WITH HOT WATER FROM THE LOCOMOTIVE.

THE AVERAGE FREIGHT CAR TODAY HAS 20 PER CENT MORE CAPACITY THAN THE AVERAGE FREIGHT CAR OF WORLD WAR DAYS (1918).

ABOUT THIRTY CENTS OF EVERY RAILROAD TON DOLLAR GOES TO SUPPORT PUBLIC SCHOOLS, THIS PROVIDING SUFFICIENT FUNDS TO EDUCATE APPROXIMATELY 1300,000 BOYS AND GIRLS EACH YEAR.

Following Miss Williamson's review a social hour was enjoyed and the hostesses served dainty refreshments, with the plates decorated in the Halloween colors, to twenty-two members and three visitors, Mrs. Ronald F. Felner of Scott City, Kansas, Mrs. Jess Haynes and Miss Williamson.

New members to the club are Mrs. Lynn Phipps, Mrs. S. M. DeMyer, Mrs. Harvyl Boaz, Mrs. Finis Houston, Mrs. Grady Varden, Mrs. W. L. Taylor, Mrs. Jack Ray and Mrs. Paul Boyd, the two latter women being absent yesterday.
