A CHILIDISH OUTBURST

Edward J. Flynn, who took over the post once held by James Farley as head of the National Democratic organization, added nothing to his and advertisers control the press of the United States and enemy. It was more or less a childish outburst, made in a moment of irritation, and later, and shown a bit by the claims that the criticism applied mostly to Republican newspapers and was merely the inaccuracy of any newspapers are muzzled by the Democratic Administration when Mr. Flynn was asked about the support for the New Deal. It also reflects a fear that the press might be checked by the New Deal. This fear is more or less groundless, as demonstrated in the last Presidential election when many newspapers supported Governor LaFollette's unsuccessful race against President Roosevelt. As the Louisville Courier-Journal says: "Little these days and is not so importan..." A childish outburst, with the press solidly against him.

Mrs. Emma Henry of Detroit, who was a guest of her sister, Mrs. W. P. Albrighton, left today by Louisville to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Mississippi Jones and daughter, Elizabeth Bean, motored to Paducah Saturday and visited Mrs. Will Jones, who is recovering from recent operation in the hospital there.
