Johnson Apartment Building Completed

Handsome Addition to Fulton's Residential Section

The finishing touches were given the beautiful Bob Johnson apartment building, corner West and Second streets this week. It is a two story brick structure with basement, heated throughout with a Rudy hot air furnace installed by A. Huddleston & Co. There are four apartments in the building of 4 rooms each, with all modern conveniences, bath and dressing room. The wood work is finished in new ivory by Boaz and Binkley, well known artists with the brush. The hardwood floors are in natural colors. The lighting fixtures are all of the very latest and beautiful designs. The plumbing and fixtures were installed by John Huddleston, and the brick and concrete work was contracted by W. M. Hill & Sons, the old reliable contractors and brick manufacturers. The plastering of the interior walls by Hill & Sons is the best job of plastering we have ever seen. Just here, we will add too, that all of the brick used in the structure was made in Fulton by W. M. Hill & Sons. The walls are 12 inches on 14 inch concrete foundation. Practically all of the woodwork was done by Mr. Johnson, the owner, who took particular pains in providing every little convenience imaginable, even to the built-in medicine cabinet with large mirrored door in the bath room of each apartment. The building completed with furnace cost around $15,000. The apartments are all let and will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Will Willingham, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cayce, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Willingham and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Johnson.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS HAVE PICNIC AND ORGANIZE AUXILIARY

Back in 1898 those who answered the call of the martyred McKinley and volunteered to defend the flag called themselves "hikers" and the marches they made were "hikes." The survivors of these days who are members of Ken-Tenn Camp No. 20, United Spanish War Veterans renewed the memories of '98 on Monday, September 3, by making another "hike" but under different circumstances. Instead of marching on foot with blanket roll, haversack, knapsack, "Krag," and bayonet, they "hiked" by automobile to Reelfoot lake where they enjoyed the first annual fish fry and picnic of the Camp.

These veterans, who, thirty years ago, were boys and stalwart young men, are showing the signs of the passing years in the thinning and graying hair, the dimming eye and the faltering step. The Camp had as its guests on this occasion, C. H. Board, Sr. Vice-Commander of the Department of Kentucky; C. H. Becker, Commander of Gen. S. B. M. Young Camp, Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. Florence Becker, National Patriotic Instructor of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the U. S. W. V., and also H. J. Potter, Commander of the local American Legion Post.

Mrs. Becker organized and instituted a Ladies' Auxiliary of Ken-Tenn Camp and installed the following officers:

Mrs. Laverne Cowardin, president; Mrs. Jessie Harris, Sr. Vice-President; Mrs. Stella Ellis, Jr. Vice-President; Miss Janie Ellis, Secretary and Treasurer; Mrs. Hattie Wood, Patriotic Inst. & Hist.; Mrs. R.

E. Pierce, Chaplain; Miss Elizabeth Hall, Conductor and Assistant; Mrs. Mattie Hall, Guard and assistant.

The members of the Camp and Auxiliary very much enjoyed the visit and talks of Comrades Board and Becker and Mrs. Becker. The talk of Mrs. Becker was especially noteworthy.

The fish prepared under the supervision of Comrade Mooncy was much better than the usual "embalmed beef" and hard tack which was the bill of fare thirty years ago.

School Notes

The Fulton City Schools opened Monday, September 10th with an enrollment of approximately 875 pupils. Probably the enrollment will reach 900 by the close of the first week.

The manual training department will offer an additional course this year in mechanical drawing. This course will require two hours work each day for the year and will be open only to advanced students in manual training.

Work on the new building is progressing nicely. We hope that it will be completed and ready for occupation soon.

Football practice is now on and many high school boys are showing sufficient interest in this sport to don the uniform and participate in the daily gridiron tasks. Coach Hughes is again in charge of athletics and from all indications a good year in football seems probable.

Cleaning Out Harris Fork Creek

The splendid work being done on Harris Fork Creek under the supervision of Mr. Joe Browder will probably relieve the city of many overflows the coming winter. No one can more fully appreciate this work than those who have suffered from floods in the past. This treacherous little stream has caused much damage and discomfort to property owners along the banks and every rain is cause for dread. The creek had badly filled up below the city during the summer and the growth of weeds and willows along the banks almost dammed the stream. Mr. Browder had a crew of men at work cleaning it out and unless we have an extraordinary hard rain we can rest in peace.

EMIL JANNINGS IS COMING TO THE ORPHEUM NEXT MONDAY AND TUESDAY

Emil Jannings, one of the world's greatest stage stars, is coming to the Orpheum next Monday for two days, in "The Last Laugh," a page from Efe's history, or I might say, a stupendous sensation the world over. Critics throughout the world have generally agreed it is the greatest ever flashed on the screen, and surely if it has made such an impression on our best critics, it should please our public. Everybody be on hand and see it.

Good-by

Successful Auto Accessory Firm

The editor was pleasantly surprised Monday morning when he visited Thos. L. Shankle's place of business, wholesale automobile accessories, 7 Walnut street and found the entire force busily engaged filling orders for shipment. Our surprise was not caused from the hustling activities about the premises, but the magnitude in which this business has developed within so short a time. Two or three years ago Mr. Shankle was ordering order blanks printed by the hundreds—today it is by the thousands. Thus, from a small beginning, the business has steadily grown, now represented by five traveling salesmen.

It only goes to demonstrate what a man can do when endowed with good, sound business qualifications, honest dealings and efficient service. Mr. Shankle tells us that his finances were limited when he started in the wholesale automobile accessories business, but he had a wealth of knowledge in the automobile business that was a valuable asset. His attentiveness to business and hard work has been a leading factor in establishing his successful business of which he is justly proud. He had faith in Fulton as being a logical distributing point for a wholesale automobile accessory business, and grasped the opportunity. His stock is well assorted and carefully selected with a view of filling all orders promptly. Thus he has gained an enviable reputation among the largest accessory dealers and garages.

Some of the places of note that they have planned and planted include the Murray State Normal Teachers' College, Mason Memorial Hospital and City Cemetery at Murray, Ky.; Hospital, Harman Park and schools at Mayfield and numerous other places that are a credit to their community. Sedalia is located 7 miles from Mayfield on the highway leading to Paris and McKenzie. They cordially invite anyone to visit them and especially call attention to their special offerings found elsewhere in this paper.—McKenzie Banner, McKenzie, Tenn.

JOHN GILBERT'S CAREER IS A VERSATILE ONE

Was Actor, Business Man, Director and Author Before Stardom

Actor, director, rubber salesman and author—these are some of the varied callings of the many-sided John Gilbert, whose career, perhaps, is the most diversified of any man on the screen today.

Perhaps this accounts for the remarkable adaptability of the actor in any role into which he may be placed, as, for instance, immediately after his swagging role in "Twelve Miles Out," he changed to the polished Russian officer and nobleman, Vronsky, in "Love," Metro-

Gwyn-Mayer's adaptation of Tolstoi's "Anna Karenina," which comes Monday and Tuesday to the Grand Theatre, and as convincingly natural as in one as in the other. Gilbert and Greta Garbo, the exotic Swedish charmer, play together in the new picture for the first time since their sensational hit in "Flesh and Devil." Edmund Goulding directed the new production.

West Kentucky Proud Possessor of One of the Largest Nurseries

Elsewhere in this paper will be found an announcement of a special sale of nursery stock by the Shupe Nurseries, Sedalia, Ky. This company organized at Farmington in 1918, is now regarded as one of the largest and best growers of nursery stock in the entire United States.

In 1925 so great had been their growth that additional land was purchased at Sedalia and their offices located there. They now have 124 acres, growing over a million trees, shrubs, evergreens and plants, and including a 40 acre orchard. Their trade extends in to many states.

They operate their own water supply system and are now erecting to take care of their rapidly increasing business, a new 25x100 foot greenhouse, new office and display house. They maintain a graduate landscape gardener to assist customers.

Some of the places of note that they have planned and planted include the Murray State Normal Teachers' College, Mason Memorial Hospital and City Cemetery at Murray, Ky.; Hospital, Harman Park and schools at Mayfield and numerous other places that are a credit to their community.

Sedalia is located 7 miles from Mayfield on the highway leading to Paris and McKenzie. They cordially invite anyone to visit them and especially call attention to their special offerings found elsewhere in this paper.—McKenzie Banner, McKenzie, Tenn.

THE I. C. R. R. SYSTEM

The Illinois Central System is a great company, not made so alone by its mileage, by its thousands of engines, cars, coaches, by its numerous employers and employees, but from the fact it has a soul. No corporation has done as much for the country its lines traverse as has this road. It believes in the development of the people, and it has ever worked for the best interest of the people who live along its line. The men who are at its head had a vision, and this vision is being realized in that no country its lines traverse as has this road. It believes in making two blades of grass grow where there is one; it believes in making two factories prosperous where there is one prospering; it believes in making all the country prosperous, and has worked fearlessly, diligently and everlastingly to that end. Back in our young manhood days we had dealings with them in Tennessee, and towns given many things, we have seen the Tennessee parks, right of way for streets, and have helped towns to become beautiful. This road has been kindly considerate of everything brought before it for the well being and the growth of the community in which it has a line. Its higher-ups are kindly men, its agents, and conductors look after your every interest. We know for we have had dealings with many of them; we could tell you of some of them. We know the work of many of them: We know the work of Mr. Markham, of L. A. Downs, and the great work done by H. J. Schwieteri; and we know of the work of the men in office at Memphis, being personally acquainted with some of them. We know they are interested in this south country. We have on our table a brochure containing series of advertisements written by Mr. Schwieteri and published in "The Traffic World" of Chicago, exploiting the South. It is a great company managed by men who are greater than the company. We say this from the fact no company, no corporation, no community, can become great unless it is managed by great men. Long man the I. C. and its branches and its efficient corps of officers live. (Editorial from Ruleville, Miss., Record).

ANOTHER HOME SADDENED BY DEATH

The death angel entered the Drysdale home on Park avenue Monday morning and carried away the gentle spirit of Sarah Frances, the 13 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Drysdale, after all that loving hands could do to prolong life, thus another happy household is cast in darkest gloom. Sarah Frances was a loving and devoted child and her passing is a distinct loss to her loved ones. Funeral service was held at the home Tuesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. H. B. Vaught, assisted by the Rev. A. N. Walker. Interment followed in Fairview cemetery, with Winstead, Jones & Co., in charge.

HIGHWAY FINISHED

Thus the last link of the Jeff Davis Highway, connecting North and South is finished and cause for great rejoicing by all tourists. Within the next 21 days detours on this route will be a thing of the past and we may expect to see heavy traffic this fall passing through Fulton.

TO PUT TEST SURFACE ON MAYFIELD ROAD

Mayfield, Ky., Sept. 10. — Announcement was made this afternoon by County Attorney Seth T. Boaz that highway No. 45 north for five miles will be treated with a surfacing of tarvia, without cost either to the county or the state. The work is to be put on as an experiment and will be done within a short time. The work is to be done by the people who desire to show the merits of this hard surface material.

Chief Locating Engineer R. O. Parsons, Frankfort, is here with a crew to locate the route from Symsonia, in northeast Graves county, to Mayfield. The route was surveyed some time since, but a new survey is being made to eliminate a number of sharp curves. The contract for the grade and drain on this route will be let within a few weeks, it is reported.

ALFRED E. SMITH

BY DOCTOR - E. MOSKOWITZ

AN AMERICAN CAREER

ALFRED EMANUEL SMITH was born in an old tenement at 174 South Street in New York on December 20, 1873. This tenement was almost under the Brooklyn Bridge on the Manhattan side. His father, Alfred Emanuel Smith, and his mother, Catherine Mulvihill Smith, also were born in New York. Like Woodrow Wilson, he was the grandson of immigrant stock. While Smith's grandparents were born in Ireland of true Irish stock, Wilson's grandparents were Scotch-Irish. Smith had but one sister, Mary, now Mrs. John J. Glynn.

South Street was a river-front thoroughfare from which the little boy saw the masts of sailing schooners, and watched freighters, tramps and other work-horses of the sea come laden with the wealth of distant lands and pour it upon the wharves that teemed with life and movement when the ships came in.

Below Brooklyn Bridge, wrapped in the mantle of the night, is the dark blue sheet of the East River, sparkling with the flickering lights of moving ferry-boats and other river craft. On both sides the City of New York unfolds its myriads of lighted windows in those colossal office buildings that form the unique skyline which thrills the homecoming traveler or the visitor who enters the harbor for the first time.

Looking down from that bridge in a southeasterly direction one can see a wilderness of tenements forming chasms of brick and mortar. These shelter the people of the congested East Side of New York City.

Alfred E. Smith, the father, was born in 1840. He was born on Water Street near Oliver in the same neighborhood in which he later raised his children. His occupation was that of truckman. In those days long before the advent of the automobile and motor-truck, the men who drove through the city hauling merchandise were enabled to derive sufficient income to support a small family in a modest way. The elder Smith was a muscular man who had known hard labor since childhood.

Smith's mother was ten years younger than his father and was born in 1859 in a corner store on Dover and Water Streets, also in the lower East Side. She helped her parents in the store and added her mother with the household work and thus was fitted by training through the avenues and streets of a household of her own in which there was no servant assistance.

Smith's parents were childhood sweethearts in the neighborhood and were married in 1871 by a priest in the Roman Catholic Church, in which faith both of them had been reared and which they were later to give to their children.

Among the earliest recollections of "Al" were the return of his father from a hard day's work driving through the avenues and streets of the city, grimy with the dust of the neglected thoroughfares and wet with the perspiration that came from his labor. He would take off his outer garment and when asked, "Why do you do it?" would answer, "To cool off." He would then plunge his head and arms in cold water with a delight that bore out his statement.

The father of Smith was such a hard-working man that the son did not enjoy the intimate paternal association that is the good fortune of many other lads. Always up and at work at six o'clock, often the boy was in bed when he returned in the evening. Only on Sundays and holidays did the elder Smith have the free days permitting him to spend his time uninterruptedly with his wife and children. Governor Smith cherishes, however, many memories of association with his father. Once, hand in hand, they walked completely across the East River, which by some miracle was frozen over. The father inculcated in the son a fondness for swimming, which the Governor still indulges. He taught the son to swim by tying a rope around his body and letting him enter the water, taking his first strokes "dog fashion," and later developing into one of the best swimmers of the neighborhood. Swimming was a favorite sport of many of the boys of the lower East Side. He played with his friends about the wharves and the longshoremen recognized him as a "water rat." The term applied to the youngsters who spent a large part of the time in the river. Smith also recalls a walk across the wooden planks of Brooklyn Bridge before it was finished. The father was eager to enjoy the proud privilege of saying he was the first to cross the great bridge before its completion.

Smith's association with his mother covered a longer time than that with his father because she lived until May 18, 1924. She saw her son twice elected Governor and his name presented to the Democratic National Convention in 1920. She died knowing his name was about to be placed before the 1924 convention. There was a tie of tender love between Smith and his mother. The speed and ardor with which he sought her out when he entered the house, the way he knelt to receive her blessing, the pride with which he saw that she was in the best seat at functions marking his success in life, all threw a bright light on that family intimacy, mutual need, mutual help, and genuine love which was a big thing in the world in which the boy grew.

Mrs. Smith was as much born to live by her own efforts as was the truckman, her husband. There was nobody in that family, and there were few if any in the neighborhood, who conceived of life as anything except an existence based on individual effort. Theories about what society owes to the individual were not topics of conversation. Everybody worked, and everybody took work for granted. This woman had two trades. She could make hoopskirts and she could make umbrellas.

When her husband died in 1888, he had been ill for two years. At the time of his death he was a night watchman. Mrs. Smith was ill the summer after her husband's death, following the two years of strain, but she turned in and did more work for the family income than she had been doing before. For two and a half years after the death of her husband, Mrs. Smith went back to her trade as an umbrella-maker to keep Alfred in school. In a family like this not much was put in the form of philosophy statements about duty. The rules were mostly simple, and simply expressed. One of the sayings of Mrs. Smith that has come down to us is, "Show a child the difference between right and wrong, and he will choose the right." It has also come down to us that she put much emphasis on telling the truth and on not making excuses. These simple rules of conduct were heartily backed up by her husband.

It was also related of Mrs. Smith that she was decidedly attentive to the dress and neatness of the children. The Governor was one of the most neatly dressed boys in the neighborhood, and ever since he has always been a careful dresser, even though his sartorial habit most commented on is the angle at which he sometimes wears his hat.

The house on South Street in which the Smiths were living when Alfred was born was of narrow construction with only two windows in the front on each floor. The Smiths lived on the top floor. They had four rooms, a front room, two bedrooms and a kitchen. Above these was an attic where the children often played. On the second floor was a barber shop and on the ground floor was a candy and fruit shop. In the Smith home the children of the neighborhood were always welcome.

CHAPTER II

Governor Smith's earliest ambition was to be a letter-carrier, but soon he passed this by and thought that the life of a fireman was more exciting. When the gong at the fire station rang young Smith always would do his utmost to get to the station house of Engine Company number 22 on John Street in time to see the firemen drive out. The boy soon became a favorite around the Engine Company. He came in a sense the mascot at the station house. When he heard the stroke of the fire-alarm, he would make for the coffee can and the sand-wich basket kept near the entrance, and when horses, men and engines had darted out of the doors, he was the one to close them. Then he and the fire dog together—he carrying the coffee can and the sandwich basket—would dash to the place where the fire was. He had learned to locate it by the number of rings of the bell.

If it was a false alarm, or if the fire were slight, he would return with the firemen on the engine, the envy of his boy friends. How proudly he leaped from the engine and opened the fire house door! If the fire was serious, he would go to the restaurants, where he was known by this time, and get coffee and sandwiches for the men.

He was more scrupulous than a Dutch housewife in keeping the can brilliantly polished, in fact, in keeping all his utensils shipshape. When his work was done—a man's—the lad would go home to delight the family with the tale of the day's doings.

In spite of certain enthusiastic traditions, there is no reason to suppose that "Al" made any great impression as a scholar. He did his work easily and was always steady and always liked. He was proficient in public speaking, and he won a silver medal in an oratorical competition among the boys of the parochial schools of New York with a recitation on the death of Robespierre. This silver medal now reposes in the jewel box of Mrs. Smith. It is a simple triangle hung from a small silver bar and has engraved on it, "Alfred E. Smith for Eloquence."

Two boys were selected to compete from every parochial school in the city. From Smith's school one represented the seniors and one the juniors. The one who represented the seniors later became Father Grady, whom Smith lost sight of for many years until he met him accidentally in a church in Mamaroneck in the summer of 1927. Smith represented the juniors. The winners from all over the city took part in a contest held in Manhattan College in Manhattanville.

The boys had a great frolic on this occasion. They spent their money, which should have been kept for car-fare to ride cross-town, on bollwars (big round molasses cakes, popular with the boys of that day, costing a cent apiece) and bottles of pop and had to walk about two miles or more through what was then a country district to make their last nickels available for the long ride from 125th Street and Third Avenue to Chatham Square.

No decision was given at the time. Two or three days later the Brother in charge of the school told the boys that he took great pride in announcing that both prizes, senior and junior, had been won by the school of the parish of St. James.

On those Friday afternoons of impromptu speaking, when the students had to talk not from memory, but from notes, Alfred had originality of expression, a natural manner and magnetism. His old teacher, Brother Baldwin, refers to one characteristic in school which has always been with him—a marked power of concentration on the meat of the subject he was interested in and to remember the essentials. He never burdened his mind with excess material which could not be of use to him.

While still a student in school "Al's" business career began. With twenty cents capital he went into a business as a newsboy. He would sell one batch of papers and then buy more. A large part of the profits he took home, and his contribution for the support of the family was needed and appreciated. He had a growing sister, and when "Al" was not yet thirteen years old his father died. For two years previous to this time he had to give up the work of a truck driver and accept less remunerative employment as a watchman. When "Al" was fifteen he was forced to quit school and took his regular full time job as a business hunter for a truckman, for whom he worked from 1889 to 1890. In the latter he became an office boy and assistant clerk in an oil factory.

In 1892 he worked in the Fulton Fish Market as a combination salesman and assistant bookkeeper for John Feeney & Co. at $12 a week and all the fish he wanted. He soon had experience enough to pick a good bluefish to take home to his mother. He worked from 4 A. M. to 4 P. M. and on Friday started at 3 A. M. He had a half holiday on Saturday.

From Fulton Market at that time there was distributed more sea food than from any other point in the world. It still is the largest receiving and distributing point outside of Boston. The stalls still stretch along the water much as they did, although details of the scene have changed. In those days fishing was not so highly organized. The fish were brought to port in little sailing smacks, each smack owned by its captain. As the smack came up to the wharves the captains waited for the various dealers to put in their bids. Now, while some of these small vessels still exist, most of the fish are brought in by steam trawlers, which wait out at the fishing ground until they receive wireless messages that prices are right. The lively, personal bargain and sale are gone.

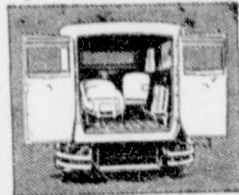

Next he got a job in Wythe Avenue, Brooklyn, at a steam pump, place, where he was called receiving clerk, a polite name for a common laborer handling steam pipes. He had now grown big enough and strong enough to take such a job, and it increased his earnings.

Smith was married on May 6, 1900, to Catherine Dunn. The ceremony took place at St. Augustine's Church at Franklin Avenue and 167th Street. Father John J. Keane, who had coached him in amateur theatricals, and whom Smith had supported in the church club of St. James's, when he attempted to keep the members of the club from frequenting saloons, performed the ceremony. Smith was then earning $75 a month.

The Governor's family now consists of his wife and children, Alfred E. Smith, Jr., Mrs. John A. (Emily Josephine) Warner, Mrs. Francis J. (Catherine Alice) Quillinan, Arthur Williams and Walter Joseph. Walter, the youngest, is the only one unmarried. He has three grandchildren, Mary Adams Warner, Arthur, Jr., and Walter, sons of Arthur.

An Individual Challenge

A challenge has been issued to every employee of a well known concern, and others who take the time to read his challenge. He says:

"A hog is a hog today, just as he was a thousand years ago. If a human being can not profit by experience of others and help to make this world a little better place in which to live, he might as well be a hog."

To profit by experience of others is to profit by their mistakes as well as their achievement.

The successes of others we should emulate; their failures we should avoid.

Yet this trait which distinguishes men from hogs is not very often operative. It is restrained and submerged in the rush for profit and pleasure.

Everyone has seen the dismal failure of lives that are ruled by greed, yet how few profit by their mistakes?

The greed that does not allow any time or effort for unselfish public service for the good of all but is all centered in self—that is the type of greed that holds back communities and prevents them from making the progress they should.

Shall the challenge be accepted or passed by unanswered? Are we as a people no better than the hog, or will we profit by the experience of those who made the mistake of placing self above service and failed?

Countryside Rowdies

Some city motorists feel resentment when they select a cool, secluded spot in the country, far from the heat of the city's paved streets, only to find the injunction "No Trespassing! Keep out!" painted in large letters on a sign.

And it is a situation that could have been avoided if some unthinking persons in the past had not abused privileges many farmers extended campers.

Thus the many have to suffer for the few, who have imposed a heavy penalty on the great mass of law-abiding people, for it will be a long time before land owners are convinced that all who seek the pleasure of the countryside are not destructionists.

Farmers have been put to considerable expense in cleaning up after campers and picnickers, and frequently serious damage has been done by the offenders against common decency.

Some people have little scruples in taking possession of a cool, inviting woods, without the courtesy of first gaining permission from the owner. They spread their lunch and enjoy it in the open woods, but defile the grounds by leaving remnants of food, melon rinds, papers and tin cans. Often they start fires under trees that kill the lower branches, "register" by carving their names and initials in the bark, and occasionally leave camp fires to spread and cause serious property loss.

If campers and picnickers would be more careful, and respect the rights of the farmers and the others who desire the same privileges of camping, the rowdism would disappear, and the "Keep Out" signs would soon be taken down.

For a short time we will accept subscriptions for this paper and the Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal—both papers one year for only $1.25.

Making College Plans

Most of the boys and girls who graduate from high school last spring, have decided by this time upon some future plans, as to whether they will continue their educational plans in some more advanced institution, or "settle" down as a finished product.

It is a critical time in the life of every young person—the period when they realize for the first time that there are problems outside of school books, and the decision they reach now will have a great influence on their life.

What the high school graduate does now, will probably determine what kind of citizen he will be—whether he decides to go to college, enter a trade or just drift along without trying to get additional training to make himself more capable, his life purposeless.

Giving a boy or girl four years of education means to many parents considerable of a sacrifice and the loss of the companionship and help of their children, but in most cases, if that sacrifice is made now, the future years will be richer for both parents and children in every way.

Thousands upon thousands of high school graduates are lost to further education because not enough interest is taken in their welfare.

Aside from the personal benefit obtained, every young man and woman should seek knowledge so as to be better able to function as citizens of the United States.

Ignorance is an economic and moral waste and education is the only means of breaking the power of evil and liberating the spirit of truth.

State is Being Organized for Smith

Robinson

Louisville, Ky., September 11.—U. S. Senator Alben W. Barkley, state campaign chairman, announced today that the work of statewide organization in behalf of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee for President and the party's congressional nominees is being perfected rapidly. "Through the efforts of our loyal Democratic men and women," said Senator Barkley, "Kentucky will be found in the Democratic column in November."

Senator Barkley expressed keen interest in the recent formation of the Kentucky Young Men's Democratic League and said he was of the opinion that the organization would be able to do some highly effective work in promoting the candidacy of Gov. Smith. Addressing a conference of the Louisville and Jefferson county chapter, Senator Barkley outlined the issues of the campaign and expressed himself as much pleased with the enthusiasm shown by the young party workers. He pointed out that Gov. Smith was the type of leader who should appeal to every young man because of his fairness, his courage and his honesty and that he was one of the greatest champions of youth that this nation has ever produced.

The Kentucky Young Men's Democratic League is to be a permanent statewide organization whose purpose will be to encourage the young man in taking an active part in politics. Young men speakers of ability will be sent out over the state within a short time to aid in the Presidential campaign. The Louisville and Jefferson County chapter is the first one to start their organization but it is planned to have a similar chapter in every county of the state.

Watkins Visits Illinois Fair

Last Friday I had the pleasure of visiting the DuQuoin, Ill. fair, and had a fine day. I got out to the fair grounds about 8:30 a. m. and of course the first place I headed for was the poultry show. Here was the only disappointment of the day. The show was VERY poor. There were about 125 birds on exhibition, for competition for the prizes, and about the same number belonging to a huckster on exhibition as a show only, his stuff could not compete against the exhibition stock. The show not only was small but the stock was poor. I did not see a single bird that could have won in the Fulton Fair.

I talked to the Supt. of the show and he told me the fair association did not pay enough in premium money to justify people entering their stock, and that no one hustled for the show. I told him how I hustled down here for our show and he seemed surprised that anyone could take that much interest in a poultry show.

They also had a few guinea pigs, rabbits and white rats all owned by the huckster.

I just wanted to tell you people the difference in the two poultry shows.

The balance of the fair was wonderful. They skinned us all hollow on live stock, including horses, mules, jacks, hogs, sheep and a very fine display of both dairy and beef cattle. There were four large barns and two large tents filled with show horses, and every night they had a horse show that was SOME SHOW, our little show was insignificant beside it. There were horses there that showed at the international horse show at Chicago, and some are already on their way to Louisville State show.

There were two fine races the day I was there; a 2:10 pace and 2:11 trot. These races would have made Jim Gordan smile all over his face if he could have seen them. They were very close and the best time made 2.08 was a dandy heat the winner winning by a short nose with three others bunched within a space of ten feet. There was also a running race with six entries but I didn't wait to see it. I went back to the chicken show and spent another half hour and beat it for home. We sure can hang it on those ducks when it comes to having a poultry show.

Five Protestant Pastors to Speak in Smith's Behalf

Mid-west Ministers Notify Hawes They Will Support Governor.

Five protestant ministers, residents of Missouri, Illinois and Kansas, have notified the Democratic Central Regional Headquarters at St. Louis, they will make speeches on behalf of the candidacy of Gov. Smith, presidential nominee, during the campaign, it was announced yesterday.

They are Rev. S. E. Botsford, of Edina, Mo., Methodist, a former member of the Missouri Legislature; the Rev. Adam Fawcett of St. Louis, Baptist; the Rev. Carl A. Polson, Decatur, Ill., Universalist; the Rev. H. C. Ledyard, Hutchinson, Kan., Universalist, and the Rev. Alfred E. Smith, Mt. Carmel, Ill., pastor of the Christian Church at Palestine, Ill.

Rev. Ledyard said his vote for Smith will be the first he ever cast for a Democratic presidential candidate.

Two Masons.

Botsford and Polson are members of the Masonic fraternity. Botsford, in a letter to Sen. Harry B. Hawes, chairman, said he was for "Smith for President and the whole state and county ticket. I am a Democrat."

Schumann-Heink Has 14 Votes for Al

Noted Diva Sang National Anthem for Hoover at Kansas City

New York, Sept. 9.—Mme. Schumann-Heink, noted diva, who sang the national anthem for the Republicans on the opening day of the Kansas City Convention, has rounded up fourteen votes in her family for Gov. Smith.

Mme. Schumann-Heink made this known today at her apartment at the Buckingham Hotel and at the same time recounted how she prayed every day for the Governor and made a special trip across the country to be certain of an opportunity of casting her own vote for him.

The singer has residence both here and in California, but she neglected to register in the Western state.

"This poor head has no politics its just for Al Smith," she explained. She was overjoyed when she learned that her maintenance of a home here made it permissible for her to register and vote here so she came on east to be sure to be ready for registration.

"My family, they were all Republicans," she said "Now they are all Democrats. My family makes fourteen votes for Al Smith. What a wonderful husband, what a wonderful father. I'm sure he will keep every promise. He always has. Prohibition will come out all right if Gov. Smith gets to the White House.

"I can not go out and talk as I did in war time. The voice, it is not so good for that, after so many years. But if I can get 14 votes in my own house maybe I can get so many in other houses where I go."

Farm NotesJudging Team Leaves for State Fair

County Agent H. A. McPherson, Calcomb McCollum and Turney Davie of Sylvan Shade, and Henry Sublett of Cayce, left Sunday morning for the State Fair at Louisville. The Judging team representing Fulton county will compete against 87 other teams judging live stock.

The team will be required to judge two rings of hogs, beef cattle, dairy cows and sheep. This team was taken to the Trenton Fair Wednesday by the county agent and they were given instructions in judging all the above classes.

Mr. McPherson had the distinction of training the best judging team in the State of Tennessee last year and it is hoped that the team from this county makes a good showing at the State Fair.

Profit from Hogs

Leslie Nugent, one of the most progressive farmers in Fulton county, stated that he had three gilts to farrow nine pigs each last February. He succeeded in raising all the pigs. They were fed skimmed milk and allowed to run on a good 5-acre hog pasture that was made, first, by liming, and the seeding of 5 pounds of red clover, 3 pounds of alfalfa and 2 pounds of white clover.

Mr. Nugent finished these 27 pigs on new corn and they were sold at 7 months of age and averaged 205 pounds each and brought 12 cents per pound. The 27 sold for $667.20, netting a nice profit. The three sows have 9 pigs each and Mr. Nugent expects to grow them the same way.

son stated that the 27 pigs sold were the most even bunch of pigs he had ever seen.

Sow Winter Cover Crops

The most progressive and successful farmers of Fulton county are farmers who have long since discovered the worth of lime stone applied to their land at the rate of from one and a half to two tons per acre. Liming is the first essential principle of successful farming. After you have properly limed your land you are prepared to grow alfalfa, red clover, sweet clover and make a better yield of small grain. Now what I started to say in this article is that every farmer in Fulton county should by all means sow as much rye, wheat or oats as his chickens and cows will need during the winter. It will pay you many times for the time and seed used. If you have a suitable piece of land near the barn, why not try some alfalfa, sweet clover, red clover and Alsike? This mixture will give you a fine hog pasture. I wish every farmer who could would sow sweet clover on their wheat land in February. This is the most wonderful soil builder known.

Our county needs more good clover and alfalfa hay, and it can be had by using lime. Lime delivered at $1.60 per ton is cheap and it will more than pay for putting it on the land the first year. Two tons per acre will last for 10 years.

Demonstrations conducted side by side over the various parts of the state show that land that was limed produced as much as 20 bushels of wheat more than land that was not limed. Results from red clover and alfalfa show that the land that is limed yields twice the amount of unlimed.

Mrs. M. B. Weaver, Cleburne, Texas, writes: "I wish to testify to the wonderful merits of Mendenhall's Chill & Fever Tonic. Beclerton Hi School Notes.

Our building has been greatly improved by the large number of beautiful flowers which have been brought by the students, including large boxes of petunias, wandering jays, zinnias, geraniums, marigolds, scarlet sage, burning bushes, fern, an elephant ear and numerous others. All the boxes have been made very beautiful as they have been painted attractively in Shutter Green.

We students wish to express our thanks to Mr. Homer Weatherpoon, Assistant Hi Teacher for the mowing of our lawn. This shows the interest for the school. Miss Mobley's room pulled the remaining weeds that the mower was unable to cut. Mr. Ernest Cardwell, a member of the Junior class was nominated as the sponsor of this group.

Each month during the school year every room will be held responsible for some project that will beautify or benefit the school. This month each have chosen as their project the following:

Mr. Kendall, Jr. Hi teacher, will move the mound of dirt from behind the school house. The Freshman and Sophomore girls will wash all the windows. The Freshman and Sophomore boys will sod the front of our campus. The remaining rooms have not as yet decided on their project.

We are very glad to have Miss Pauline Humphreys enter school. She is a member of the Junior class and they are especially proud of her.

We had a very interesting Basketball game recently between the Wildcats and Collegiate Stars. The score being 22-16 in favor of the latter.

As one of the school's projects this fall we are going to make more walks; this being just a continuation of the one we started last year. The patrons are always willing and ready to co-operate with us, as they have promised to haul twenty-two loads of gravel for us.

The school has begun an individual song book by each pupil learning one song each week. The first song we will learn will be entitled "The Little Pig."

Everyone remember the Old Fiddlers Contest that we are to have on Saturday night, September 15.

Democrats Will Win

"We are going to win!"

This was the manner in which Congressman William A. Oldfield of the second Arkansas district and for some years chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, expressed his view of the political situation after a survey of conditions in Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas and Missouri.

At a conference in Louisville with U. S. Senator Allen W. Barkley, State Democratic Chairman, the Democratic congressmen and other leaders, Mr. Oldfield said:

"Everywhere along the line I heard encouraging reports of the political situation in the states I have visited. Gov. Smith and Sen. Robinson are great leaders. Democrats are rallying to that leadership, and we are making a wonderful drive for victory.

"In Tennessee, sometimes referred to as a doubtful state, I found the situation most encouraging. Congressman Joseph W. Byrns of that state assured me that Tennessee would live up to the best Democratic traditions and certainly would be found in the Smith column on November 6.

"Conditions in Kentucky are favorable for a Democratic victory in November. I am informed that conditions are improving every day. Loyal Kentucky Democrats are responding to the call to service. Thousands of eager men and women are rallying to the standards of our worthy leaders. They are bending to the task with a will for victory. We cannot fail."

PAUL WRITES TO HIS FRIENDS IN CORINTH

LESSON TEXT—1 Cor. 1:10-13:5-11, 21-22

GOLDEN TEXT—Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Writes a Letter to His Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Writes a Good Letter to His Friends.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul Urges Team Work.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul Pleads for Christian Unity.

Concerning Contentions in the Church (1:10-13).

1. Exhortation (v. 10). "That ye all speak the same thing."

In view of the fact that he brought them in the name of Jesus Christ, the one thing which he desired them to speak was the Lord's name. The name of the Lord stands for all that the Lord is and does. "That there be no divisions among you," that is, no factions, no alienation of affection. "That ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment."

2. The reason for this exhortation (v. 11).

Word had been brought to Paul by members of the household of Chloe that wrangling was going on among the members of the Corinthian church. He assured them that he had sufficient evidence of the strife which was going on among them.

3. Nature of the contentions (v. 12).

Their disputes were about their teachers. Their interests were centering in their favorite ministers. Some were for Paul, perhaps attracted by his logic; some were for Apollos, doubtless moved by his stirring eloquence; others were for Peter. Doubtless these were Jewish converts who looked to Peter as their authority. There were still others who had as their cry "back to Christ," repudiating all human teachers.

4. The grounds of allegiance to Christ (v. 13).

(1) He is Head of the whole church. The unifying power of the body is the head. He raised the question, "Is Christ divided?" The mere raising of the question gave the answer.

(2) Redemption accomplished.

By his atoning death He has supreme Lordship over all.

(3) Allegiance to Christ acknowledged in baptism. By one Spirit are we all baptized into one body (1 Cor. 12:13).

II. Concerning Christian Ministers (3:14-15).

Since the dissensions in the church gathered around the ministers, Paul proceeded to cure the evil by exhibiting the ministerial office in its true light. To conceive of ministers as party leaders or teachers of philosophy tends to divisions. Divisions in the church occur when men are occupied with the messenger rather than with the message. The cure in such a case is to get a right conception and proper estimate of human teachers. Ministers really are:

1. Servants of God (vv. 5, 6).

They are instruments in His hands for the execution of His will. They are men sent to deliver a message, to do a definite work.

2. Ministers are equal in rank (vv. 8, 10).

They are called by the same spirit to teach the same truth, and therefore stand in the same relationship of official hierarchy in the church has no foundation in the Scriptures.

3. Every minister must give an account to God for his work (vv. 10-11).

If he lay other foundation than Christ he is not a Christian minister at all. If he build sound doctrine on the foundation he will receive a reward. If he build false doctrine on a true foundation he will suffer loss and receive punishment. Sorrow and anguish will be to him who builds good material upon a wrong foundation and likewise to him who builds poor material upon a right foundation. Human wisdom has no place in the solemn work of building the church of God.

4. Ministers are the property of the church (vv. 22, 23).

Frequently the assumption is that the church is owned by the ministers. Ministers should be followed only as far as they follow Christ.

5. Ministers are God's stewards (4:1-5).

Their business is to dispense His truth. They do not originate the message. God demands fidelity on their part and He will enter into judgment with them as to their faithfulness.

Proof of a Divine Reality

The best proof of a divine reality at the heart of things is the passion for growth, the desire for perfection, that makes itself felt in all who are sensitive to the possibilities of spiritual attainment.

Being Content

We have been content with a slight elevation above the evils of our time, and not intent on the inward searching, purifying and consuming of the Holy Spirit.—F. B. Meyer.
