State Unlikely To Get Extended Plane Service

Washington, - Kentucky appears unlikely to continue for some time to maintain just a few commercial air planes fly but on which — except in the case of Louisville — they are not needed.

Unless the Civil Aeronautics Board reports the continuance of two of the three air routes proposed for recognition from the air will be rejected.

The board's examiners, Fred W. Bevins and Thomas L. Brown, have submitted a lengthy report in which, among other things, they recommended that applications of two commercial air routes to make regular stops at Lexington be turned down. The board has the recommendations under consideration. Also under consideration is the plan to operate regular stops at Lexington.

Board members indicated, however, during oral arguments last week that they were not inclined to disturb the examiners' findings, based on more than a year of hearings. Lexington's airport's official, J. E. Marks, traffic manager of the board of trade, conceded that Lexington has no airport adequate for large commercial traffic, but said they were impressed with the minor service consideration.

"We can get the traffic to fly over Lexington, we will find some way to bring them there for business," Marks said.

High Court Review

Washington, — Robert R. James, Los Angeles, who was charged with stealing a $100 bill for the 1933 slaying of his wife, was refused a new Supreme Court review today of his conviction that his two co-defendants, "two live, baying slitkemakers," had "willingly" exposed to the jury their petition asserted, "created such a state of fright in the hearts of the witnesses that it became impossible for them to perform their duty." The prosecution alleged James and one of the co-defendants killed in the heat of passion, and that they had a motive to kill the witnesses. "If they didn't make it," the jury was instructed, "they didn't want to make it. Then, it was alleged, they deceived the war for business." Marks said.

CHIROPRACTIC RESTORES HEALTH

Why posture, health and happiness and working efficiency the things that lead to good fortune, or make any fortune good? Health! All companies pay a good profit, every part of which is true, to the man who makes healthy employees and keeps their employees well. This is the key to the happy home. If the workers are happy, the home is happy, and the health of the employees will be just as good. In this way, the company is happy, and it is the way to make your company happy.
