THE LISTENING POST

And then it was twenty years!

There was a time in life when I believed twenty years to be a long life time. I could scarcely imagine a long period like twenty years. Then it seemed that twenty years might write the history of the entire human race and I could scarcely consider myself as living and working and experiencing that much time. Yet today, as the press rolls off this edition, as another week and another month come to an end, it strikes at me like a hammer blow that this issue finishes up twenty years for me as publisher of this newspaper. Looking back at the twenty years I am conscious of no great length of time. Rather, the twenty years seem to have passed almost with the speed of light, and it seems such a short time ago that I walked into the Leader office on Lake Street and prepared to print my first issue. Yet that was December, 1920. Twenty years ago!

A great deal has happened, it is true, in that twenty years. I am twenty years older, and I know that certainly. But there is no feeling of any great length of time as I look down the back trail, and I really have to make myself look at the dates and remember the years to realize that I have rounded out a full twenty years as publisher of this newspaper. Curiously, I have been its publisher no longer than any other one man. The Leader is forty-two years old, but the first twenty-two years were divided between two other men, while mine has been constant for the entire twenty years. True, for many of the twenty years, it was a sort of family affair, but the fact remains that I have been publishing the paper constantly for this entire twenty years.

Twenty years ago as I started this piece of work, memory of the world war was fresh in all minds. The peace conference, the trips to Paris by President Wilson, were still vividly remembered, and a backwash from the war was setting in which threatened a major business depression. (Only such were called "panics" in 1920. The word "depression," softer in sound, but no less poignant in meaning, was to be coined nine years later). Something happened in 1921 to drive away that backwash and the great boom period was launched in 1922 and continued until 1929. The country had turned thumbs down on the Democrats after eight years and Republicans were taking over affairs in Washington.

I do not suppose many of us thought, as we left the World War behind, with its bitter memories and its costly experiences, that we would ever see another World War. Most of us believed that the war to end war had really ended it. We believed in the great disarmament conference which was held in Washington under the guidance of President Harding. We believed in the solemn Nine-Power Treaty negotiated by Mr. Kellogg which apparently outlawed war, and some still believed in the ability of the League of Nations to prevent wars, although this nation had no part in the organization. Those were the years when we scuttled valuable warships and let our merchant marine dreams fade and pass. And those were the years when the conditions which made possible Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini came about.

It has been a long time, I know. It only seems short now as I look back at it. One issue has succeeded another, one story has come and faded and another has taken its place, men have worked with me and gone on, this problem has been settled and another has taken its place. It has been a full period, a busy stretch of years, a period which has seen youth go away; above all it has been a happy period. I have seen a family grow up to bring me great pride, and now and then I have been able to do things which brought satisfaction. Likewise I have failed to do certain

10 Billions May Be U.S. Income "Goal" For Year

FDR, Others Study Problem Of Levies; Sales Tax Ruled Out

Washington, —Talk that $10,000,000,000 may be set as the "goal" for federal revenue collections in the next fiscal year was heard tonight in some administration quarters as President Roosevelt and his advisers studied means of increasing federal taxes.

No official confirmation was available immediately. The $10,000,000,000 total, if achieved, would be the largest ever collected in peace-time and would exceed the largest expenditures in any peace-time year before the present defense program began.

Spending Estimate Official estimates are that the current year's spending will run about $13,000,000,000 to $13,500,000,000. Revenues are expected to approximate $7,000,000,000.

In the next fiscal year, beginning next July 1, officials expect a substantial increase in revenues even without new legislation because of better business and the fact that some of the taxes levied recently will not be fully effective until then.

Mr. Roosevelt called Secretary Morgenthau, congressional fiscal leaders and others into conference tonight to consider additional taxes in view of the defense program. A treasury official and Morgenthau was taking many tax proposals to the White House.

Ruled Out Sales Tax Mr. Roosevelt, himself, ruled out before the meeting began what many experts consider the most lucrative form of possible new taxation—a general sales tax. The President, at a press conference, said flatly he would not approve of a sales tax.

MAN DIES FROM WOUND FROM GUN HE PICKS UP IN HARDWARE STORE

Princeton, Ky., —R. B. Ratliff, 58, died almost instantaneously here this morning from the effect of a gunshot wound in the abdomen, sustained when a shot gun he was handling accidentally fired. Ratliff, member of the Ratliff Hardware firm here, entered his store about 8 a. m. and picked up the gun, presumably to go hunting, when it fired. The charge ranged upward when it struck.

Ratliff is survived by his widow Mrs. Bergetta Claycombe Ratliff, two daughters, his mother, two brothers and two sisters.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon in Princeton.

Mail Messenger Was Omitted In News Story

In a recent article concerning the local postoffice, it has been called to the Leader's issue that the name of one long term worker was omitted. This was A. V. Luther, who for eleven years has carried all incoming and outgoing mail between the postoffice and the Illinois Central station. During this time he has also carried many letters and flowers to people who were ill. Says Mr. Luther: "I began carrying this mail in September, 1929 and have never yet failed to see day break or the sun rise over this office from that time until the present day. I am proud of my service to the public and the postal service."

The Leader is glad that this was called to its attention for there was no intention of omitting any person. May Mr. Luther have many more years.

Sect Given Time To File Brief In Trial

London, Ky., —Trial of six members of the Jehovah's Witnesses on charges of violating the State anti-sedition law ended abruptly today before a three-judge Federal court when the defense asked for time to file a brief.

The court gave it until December 15 and the plaintiffs until December 26.

The defense request came after its last witness was introduced. On suggestion of Judge H. Church Ford, both sides agreed that the defendants, all held in the Harlan County jail, would be permitted to return to their homes, continue preaching and distributing literature until the final decision of the court.

The cultivated land on the Lawrence County Poor Farm has been seeded to cover crops for the first time.

Girl Sentenced To 1 To 2 Years For Defiling Flag

Toms River, N. J., —Helga Schleuter, 20, sentenced to a term of from one to two years in a woman's reformatory for defiling the Stars and Stripes, gained her freedom on $2,500 bail a few hours after sentence was passed today.

David A. Veeder, her counsel, announced he would appeal the conviction to the New Jersey Supreme Court on the basis of errors he said were made in drawing the indictment.

The girl's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. August Schleuter, and a friend, Mrs. Sarah Le Compte of Lakewood, furnished the bond. She was in jail, preparing to go to the reformatory at Clinton, when bail was furnished.

Miss Schleuter was convicted of throwing the flag to the ground during the State Firemen's Parade at Lakewood June 29.

"Irish Dimicrat" Meets Newsmen At White House

Washington, —More than 100 newspaper men failed in a guessing game at the White House press conference today.

Their eyes lit on a statue in the President's office of a man with hat tilted back and sleeves rolled up as if to engage in a good old-fashioned scrap. One wanted to know if it represented the "loyal opposition," despite its caption "I'm a Dimicrat."

The President finally provided the answer amid laughter when he said it was presented to him by a Texan, that it was work of a Mexican artist in San Antonio, and that it was the artist's conception of "a fighting Irish Dimicrat."

Urge Merchants To Decorate All Store Fronts

Under the plans as worked out by those having the Christmas decorations in charge, no greenery is to be placed on the side of Lake Street where the stores are located. Greenery has been placed on the opposite side, with lights and greenery strung across the street, but the decoration committee asks that all merchants take steps to place greenery and other decorations on all store fronts. This will make a complete job and will make town much more attractive.

In speaking of the matter this morning, one of the committee members asked that this work of decorating the store fronts be done by the middle or latter of next week.

Carter Olive, Foad Homra, Albert Baldridge and Louis Kasnok have been attending to this work, and some excellent work has been done. The town will be very attractive within a few days, when the lights are finally turned on, and the committee is quite anxious to have all store fronts decorated by that time.

PRESIDENT MAY USE AIRPLANE IF SPEED NECESSARY

Washington, —President Roosevelt told a surprised press conference today that he might use the airplane for the first time in eight years if it should become necessary while he was away from Washington to return within 12 hours for some emergency.

He said he was planning a trip next week but could not say now where he was going.

Then he added, as newsmen's eyebrows lifted, that he would return by plane if it was found he was too far away from Washington to come back by rail in 12 hours.

The President emphasized, however, that the plane would be used only in case it was necessary.

There was much amusement in the back-and-forth banter over an old impression among reporters that the Secret Service would not permit him to fly.

Joining in the laughter, the chief executive said the Secret Service had never told him not to travel by air.

TOLL-FREE DATE ON BRIDGES IS BELIEVED ADVANCED BY BOND SALES

Frankfort, Ky., —Highway department officials estimated that the toll-free date on state-owned Ohio river bridges at Maysville and Milton would be advanced from 3 to 6 months as a result of the sale today of $1,450,000 bridge refunding bonds.

Highway Commissioner J. Lyter Donaldson said a saving of $85,825-25 was effected and that the interest rate was the lowest ever obtained on bridge bonds or any state paper.

Department auditor Mitchell W. Tindler estimated the free date on the Maysville bridge would be advanced from April, 1941, to January of that year and the free date on the Milton bridge from August, 1940, to January, 1940.

German Ships Leave Tampico To Face Threat Of Attack

Tampico, Mexico, —In face of reports that British and Canadian warships await them in the Caribbean, the German merchantmen Indarwald and Rhein sailed today from their haven here with Spanish ports on the other side of the British Atlantic blockade as their declared destinations.

On the eastern horizon as the freighters nosed out of the Panuco river and into the gulf, hugging the shore, could be seen the silhouettes of three foreign warships, too distant for identification but believed to be United States neutrality patrol vessels.

United States destroyers were in the vicinity two weeks ago when the Indarwald and Rhein with two other German merchantmen, the Phrygia and Orinoco, made a luckless attempt to brave the British blockade.

Unpaid Taxes May Help Some Needy Counties

$4,000,000 Pool Of Back Levies Awaits Tapping

Frankfort, Ky., —State Revenue Commissioner H. Clyde Reeves said today some needy counties could meet their pressing debt difficulties by collecting their portion of $4,000,000 in unpaid taxes uncovered by a state-wide tax delinquency survey.

Revenue Department officials believe most of the taxes are collectible. The survey, conducted by the WPA at a cost of $74,000, of which $57,000 was paid by the federal government, lists delinquent taxpayers who have failed to redeem their land sold to satisfy taxes and the amount each owes.

Titles Not Clear Because there have been few if any valid land sales in Kentucky in past years, the property has gone through the years without clear title and the delinquency has remained on court house books, officials said.

Approximately $400,000 of the $4,000,000 is due the state and the remaining $3,600,000 is in county and school district taxes.

The 1938 legislature set up procedure for county attorneys to enforce the state's liens against the unredeemed property, and through efforts of the WPA and the Revenue Department, the land may now be sold with clear titles to the purchasers.

Land Is Bid In Joe B. Williams, Revenue Department attorney, said that since courts in past years have invalidated so many sheriff's sales of land for taxes there have been few buyers and the land consequently has had to be bid in by the state. Actions for possession of the land usually have been balked because of invalid sales.

SOMEWHAT BEWILDERING

Not long ago the Washington Star, a reputable newspaper published in the capital city, has some curiosity about the manner in which work was proceeding on certain government projects. There had been some rumors, and perhaps the Star is an anti-Administration newspaper. In any event, the newspaper decided to find out what procedure was being used. In pursuance of this plan, one of the reporters of the newspaper was sent to a building project near Washington under instructions to get a job as a skilled carpenter. Skilled carpenters were known to be drawing seventy five dollars per week on that particular job, and while the reporter confessed that his sole experience as a carpenter came when he drove a nail into the wall for the purpose of hanging a picture there, he felt certain that he might get a job on that project.

Therefore the reporter went to the scene and put in his application for a job as a carpenter. The first thing which he learned was that he must join the union before his application could be given any consideration. However, this proved to be no particular chore. An office was there which represented the union, and about the only sort of examination and proof required consisted of paying union officials the sum of $57.50. After that the application was in good order. Subsequent investigation developed the fact that there is more or less of a sliding scale for this fee. On some projects the payment is as much as one hundred dollars, on others as low as twenty-five dollars. But this fee must be paid, no matter whether the applicant has a paid up membership card or not. It is the usual thing for a worker to join a union and pay the necessary fees and then keep his monthly dues paid up. As long as he does that he is a member of the union and there is no further expense except for extra assessments which may come along. On these government projects, however, where thousands of men are being employed it seems to be the custom to slap on a healthy assessment for every person who manages to get a job. The fee must be paid, although the union officials told this reporter that if he could not pay all the fee at one time it would be possible to have it deducted from the first two pay checks.

After getting the job the reporter began to make discreet inquiries and found that he was about as good a carpenter as many of his fellow workers. He found that the project was filled up with hundreds of men from Washington who had been making considerably less than seventy five dollars per week and who jumped at the chance of these jobs with their high pay. He found many government clerks and office workers who had never done any practical carpenter work on the job. He found a lot of taxi drivers who had never made a living as carpenters. In short, he found that a large percentage of the men who had been given good jobs as carpenters had never done any professional carpenter work at all.

Leaving out a certain number of men who, because of certain deftness with their hands, might qualify as carpenters, the fact remains, that hundreds of men were on that particular job as carpenters when they had

THE RAID ON MARSEILLE NO LONGER A MYSTERY

Saturday night's bombing raid on Marseille, the first that unoccupied France has experienced since the June armistice, was neither a Nazi frame-up intended to alienate Anglo-French relations nor a deep dyed mystery. It was not a German or Italian attack as at first supposed in which British bombs, gathered in Flanders or Northern France, were dropped. It was not an accident as the Vichy Government has sought to make it appear in which the French seaport was mistaken for an Italian harbor. It was a deliberate assault by R. A. F. fliers aimed at legitimate military targets and more such assaults may be expected in the future.

Though the British Government has maintained a strictly non-committal attitude regarding the incident, neither affirming nor denying the French charge, information received in Washington explains the anomalous occurrence. In a dispatch to the Chicago Daily News, Edgar Mowrer gives a complete elucidation of the affair. The target the British fliers were aiming at was a French factory turning out tanks for Germany. The attack was a protest against French compliance with a German demand that its munitions plants turn out war materials to be used against Britain. The Compliance was made shamefacedly on the grounds of reducing unemployment and with full knowledge that Britain regarded it as a hostile act.

British silence and British patience are easily understood. The London Government does not want to play into the hands of the Germans, by an open break with the Vichy regime. It seeks to avoid any move that might upset the delicate balance of the French colonial possessions. It therefore demonstrates its displeasure by the Marseille raid.

If the Vichy Government expects to maintain any kind of relations with the United States it cannot continue to feed the German war machine in the conflict so vital to us. That we are on the other side exerting our efforts to bring about a British victory is no longer open to doubt. Under such circumstances there can be no amity between Vichy and Washington and the sooner there is a showdown the better.—Courier-Journal.

no ability for the work at all. There are some men who are more or less neutral carpenters, but there are many others who who have no ability in that line whatever. It is no doubt true that many of this latter class are drawing down fat wages at a trade of which they know little or nothing. It might seem that union officials, in order to protect their trade, might examine a bit more closely into the qualifications of men who say they are carpenters and are worth journeyman's wages. If a job is for carpenters it seems to thoughtful persons that carpenters should be given the job.

SITE NEAR LOUISVILLE CHOSEN FOR $5,000,000 GUN EQUIPMENT PLANT

Washington. —Secretary Knox announced today selection of a site on the Ohio river near Louisville, Ky. for a new $5,000,000 gun equipment plant.

The new plant which will employ approximately 1,000 skilled workers, will occupy 13½ acres, the exact locations of which were not disclosed.

Secretary Knox said selection of the site was determined on a basis of availability of skilled machinists and assemblers necessary to precision machining and fitting of parts in naval ordnance equipment, adequate transportation facilities and building area.

The new assembly unit plant will receive parts from other ordnance plants and manufacturers and, upon completion, guns and mounts will be tested at a nearby proving ground and later shipped to naval vessels for installation.

BELIEVES SCHOOLS MAY NOT SHARE AD VALOREM TAXES ON TOBACCO

Frankfort, Ky. —An opinion that schools are barred by statute from sharing in the 15 cents per $100 ad valorem tax counties are authorized to levy on tobacco and other unmanufactured agricultural products was given to Mason County Attorney Donald L. Wood by Assistant Attorney General W. Owen Keller today.

"I realize, of course, that the schools no doubt need the money as do the counties," Keller added. "However, I am unable to see how any fair interpretation of this act gives the school boards any portion of this 15 cents tax, which can be levied only by cities or counties."
