O. K. Laundry Busy Institution

Some weeks ago Vernon Owen, son of J. J. Owen, started in a small way making pleated skirts for business firms throughout the country, selling ladies' ready-to-wear. The business has grown by leaps and bounds until today six traveling salesmen are employed and every spare nook and corner of the O. K. Laundry and a house adjoining, is occupied with a busy force of eighteen women engaged in making pleated skirts. In fact, the business has developed into an industry of commanding proportions, and Mr. Owen, the genial proprietor of the O. K. Laundry, is seriously considering the building of a two-story brick structure on the lot now occupied by a dwelling adjoining the laundry to take care of the increased business of his son, Vernon.

Pleated skirts are the rage all over the country and Mr. Owen is "pleating skirts while the sun shines." A few days ago one salesman brought in orders for more than three hundred skirts and as the O. K. guarantees a one day service, the entire force worked overtime. However, Mr. Owen says he can turn out more than six hundred skirts daily with his present facilities.

It is indeed gratifying to know that Fulton has an institution capable of handling a big proposition on short notice when occasion demands it. But this is not the first time the O. K. Laundry has proven itself equal to the occasion. When the Dyersburg laundry burned out, the O. K. Laundry was called upon to take care of the Dyersburg business, and did it with perfect satisfaction.

Manufacturing pleated skirts by the thousands requires room and labor, but the O. K. is equal to the task and Mr. Vernon Owen is to be congratulated on his endeavors.

It is a pleasure to visit the O. K. Laundry and see the large force at work. A beehive of industry.

JEFFERSON DAVIS ROAD

Dyersburg—Just as soon as the remaining gap in State Highway No. 3 (Jefferson Davis Highway) is completed, West Tennessee and West Kentucky will get together for a grand celebration of this through highway from Paducah, Ky., to Memphis, Tenn. There is still considerable work remaining to be done on the highway before it can be considered absolutely finished, a thorough and thoroughly paved highway, but West Tennessee is looking forward to a gala celebration of "Der Tag," when it comes.

It has been a long, long time since a broad, hard-surfaced highway stretching from Memphis to Fairview, Ky., the birthplace of Jefferson Davis, was visualized by such men as Colonel Thomas of Mississippi, Emerson Parks of Trimble, W. G. Reynolds of Union City, Ben Weille of Paducah, Ky., Bob Fox of Obion, Thomas B. King of Memphis, and other good-roads boosters. Mr. King, for one, has gone up and down the breadth of the eastern shore of the Father of Waters, preaching the doctrine of good roads and of this thru highway artery in particular. The road is now a reality; it carries enormous traffic; it serves a wide region of industrial and agricultural communities and when the finishing touches are put on it, it will deserve a dedication.

A nice gift. Send The Advertiser to a friend one year—only $1.00.

BRIEFLETS

Each Saturday Fulton is invaded by thousands of visitors from sections throughout Fulton's trade territory. This number increases preceptibly during the pre-Yuletide season. They are inexperienced in driving through city traffic. They are reluctant to drive into the main business section, because our streets are too crowded. Therefore, they park their cars far away from the congested area. They mingle in the crowded stores, literally fighting for an opportunity to trade in Fulton.

It is the custom of visitors to make their trips to the city on Saturday. Do we not owe it to these people, to our merchants, to the welfare of our city and ourselves, to practice a most logical habit by doing our Christmas shopping earlier in the week? Not only does it afford us more comfort, but it provides us with better service from our merchants, and it adds to the comfort and service of the customers of Fulton's trade territory, who would contribute their trade to Fulton's markets.

"Do your Christmas shopping early." We are prone to disregard this annual plea. But if we give it thought and apply it, not only to the season, but to the days of the week and the hours of the day, we are reducing traffic hazards on our streets and contributing to the measures of safety. Fulton welcomes outside trade. Let us prove it by attending to our shopping expeditions early in the week, that we may not add to the discomfort of our visitors on Saturday, by trampling on their feet when they are helping build up Fulton's commercial resources.

Friends of Lexie Walker are glad to see him at Smith's Cafe again after an absence of several years. Mr. and Mrs. Walker returned home several days ago from Paducah where they were engaged in the restaurant business.

Friends of Mr. U. H. Scott will regret to learn that he is seriously ill at his home on Edgings street.

DUKEDOM NEWS

Doyl Bowling has purchased the H. O. Cashion farm near Dukedom. He will take possession the first of the year.

Tommie Woodruff has bought the Mrs. Elean Biggs farm near Lone Oak school.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Dukedom Bank was held last Wednesday, Dec. 12. They had an extra nice home cooked dinner prepared and everyone enjoyed it immensely. Just ask Mr. Albert Winstead who is always the last one to finish eating.

Mrs. Bettie Powell, about 80 years of age, dropped dead last Tuesday morning while dressing before breakfast. She was buried in the family cemetery the following day.

Georgia Taylor, age 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Taylor near Dukedom, died last Friday night from complications of tonsillitis and pneumonia. Interment took place in Oak Grove cemetery, Sunday.

Funeral services of Mrs. Sallie Sikes of the Graves County farm were conducted at Good Springs church last Friday with Rev. Cooley of Water Valley, officiating.

C. of C. Meeting Interesting

An interesting meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held Tuesday night with R. H. Wade presiding. After the reading and adoption of minutes of previous meeting, Secretary Joe Davis reviewed some of the good things accomplished during the year in which road work was featured.

Now that Fulton has an auditorium at the high school with a seating capacity of 1,500 or more it was voted that the old tabernacle building in Carr's Park be sold and removed from the ground as an effort will be made to beautify the park and make it the beauty spot of Fulton.

Those who failed to attend Tuesday night's meeting do not know what they missed. It was just like being in a big family circle when matters of vital interest for the betterment of the community were discussed freely by all present.

At the next regular meeting plans will be outlined for work during 1929 and every member of the organization who has Fulton at heart and want to see the town prosper should attend and take an active part in the proceedings.

W. O. W. MEETING FRIDAY NIGHT

All members are urged to be present. State Manager J. H. Flowers, of Louisville, will be present, and will have something of importance to tell you about the status of your policies. This is also the night of election of officers, for the ensuing year. The meeting will be held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, at 7:30.

John Gilbert's New Film Has Fine Realism

"The Cossacks" Is Made in Environment of Actual Russia.

Several hundred people, including a Cossack troop, were moved by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios into a little known canyon in the hills, just to get the right kind of rock formation for authentic backgrounds in "The Cossacks". John Gilbert's new starring vehicle, which comes to the Grand theatre Monday and Tuesday.

Rocks along the Russo-Turkish border, it seems, are a very special kind. For ages snows have melted on them and worn them down into fantastic towers and minarets and painted them with bizarre lines and figures.

In the hills behind Laurel Canyon in California, the ever-busy location men found similar rocks. The snows had etched them as the frosts had the rocks in Russia. The towers and minarets were probably of volcanic origin but anyhow they looked Russian and at the cost of a small fortune the troop, a small army almost, was moved to these rocks.

BEELERTON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Grade boys, with the help of their teacher and some of the High school boys, moved the mound of dirt at the back of our school building. This improved the looks of our campus very much.

The P. T. A. met Thursday night and a splendid program was rendered by numbers from each of the different rooms. We are very much pleased with the interest taken by the large number of patrons who were present.

Friday night of December 7, two well played basketball games were seen by the fans who braved the cold, on the Clinton gym, between Bardwell High school girls and boys and our teams. The Hickman county lassies played their best game of the season against the 1928 district champions and runners up in the State Tournament in Lexington, final score being 18-6. The boys' game was probably the most exciting, an extra period of three minutes was played in order to break the deadlock of 8 to 8. Beelerton came out on the long end of a 10 to 9 count.

The Beelerton Debating team met the Columbus Debating team in the latter's auditorium on last Saturday night. We had the negative side of the question, "Resolved: That the United States should refuse to give military protection to property located in foreign countries." There were no judges but each team did their part splendidly.

The students of the biology class have made a collection of insects, birds and flowers which are well known in this section. They are now arranging these in the school museum.

The Negro Minstrel entitled "The Great Chicken-Stealing Case of Ebenezer County, Arkansas," will be presented on Saturday night, December 15, here at this auditorium. This is being given by the "Junior High" room sponsored by their teacher, Mr. Noel Kendall. Everybody come and enjoy the fun.

AT THE ORPHEUM.

One of the most popular plays in the repertoire of the old "show boat" that used to cruise up and down the Mississippi River was "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The visits of this "traveling theatre" provided the only amusement for many of the towns along the river and the owners selected productions that they knew would reach the heart of the people who dwelt near the banks. This famous stage production and novel has been made by Universal into a motion picture that surpasses in wide human appeal, beauty and interest its literary and dramatic predecessors. The film production will open at the Orpheum theatre on Dec. 17, 18 and 19. Harry Pollard, responsible for other great motion picture successes, directed the production. In the all-star cast are Margrita Fischer, Arthur Edmund Carew, John Roche, Gertrude Astor, Lucien Littlefield, George Siegmann, Mona Ray, Virginia Grey, Eulalie Jensen, J. Gordon Russell, Aileen Manning, Jack Mower, Vivien Oakland and others.

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETING

The Chamber of Commerce rooms were beautifully decorated with the Yuletide decorations, when the Woman's Club held their general meeting, Friday afternoon with Mrs. M. C. Nall, the president, presiding.

Reports from the treasurer and corresponding secretary were very interesting. Mrs. J. E. Fall presented the resolution concerning the ratification of the multi-lateral treaty, sent out by the General Federation clubs. The club voted to adopt the resolution. Members were asked to write the state senators urging them to favor the passage of the treaty. Mrs. Nall announced the Red Cross seals would go on sale Tuesday and urged every one to buy.

After the business session an unusual and very entertaining Christmas program was presented by Mrs. R. S. Williams, chairman of the program committee. Christmas carol, "Silent Night, Holy Night," with Miss Goldsby leading.

Duet—"Brightest and Best," (Heyser) Misses Goldsby and Galbraith.

Reading, "Rodger Kent's Homecoming," Miss Elizabeth Williamson.

Solo (a) "No Candle Was There" (Liza Lehman)

(b) "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" (Speaks) Mrs. Ralph Penn.

The program closed with the club singing another carol, "Joy to the World."

Mrs. Maddox and Mrs. Bard were the accompanists for the afternoon.

Tea and sandwiches were served to the club members and several visitors by Mrs. Jake Huddleston, the chairman of the refreshment committee and her assistants. Hostesses for the day were Mesdames J. C. Brann, Leighman Browder; pages were Mesdames Robert White, Claude Freeman.

The decorations reflected the artistic temperament of the decorating committee, Mrs. Don Hill.

BENEFIT TEA

The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Butler on Third street was the scene of a lovely party Thursday afternoon, when the Sara Dean Sunday school class of the First Christian church gave a silver tea.

The attractive home needs very little decorations so vases of yellow chrysanthemums were the only flowers used.

A delicious salad course was served in the dining room. The tea table was adorned with a beautiful lace cloth with a crystal vase of huge yellow mums.

Tables were placed throughout the house, representing the months of the year, where one could find their birth month and leave as many pennies as years old.

Readings were given by three talented young girls, Misses Julia Frances Beadles, Elizabeth Williamson and Ruth Nall.

Those assisting Mrs. Butler were Mrs. Jake Huddleston, Mrs. J. W. Akin, Mrs. Smoot Morris, Mrs. Ben Evans, Mrs. Clyde Williams, Mrs. C. C. Pickering, Mrs. P. P. Pickering, Mrs. Herman Cole, Mrs. M. P. Roberts, Mrs. Roy Pickering. Quite a nice sum was realized for the new church fund.

SWALLOWS RAZOR BLADE

Emergency Operation Needed to Save Life of Capital Official

Washington, Dec. 10.—John Sebastian Conway, deputy commissioner of lighthouses, swallowed a package of razor blades which were later taken out during an emergency operation on his stomach. His stomach was not cut by the blades although the paper wrapping came off after he swallowed them.

When Business is Good

SATURDAY night is a mighty good time to ask yourself this question: "Is our community sending more money out of town than is coming in each week?" Of course the only safe answer is "NO!"

This means that we folks in this neighborhood must patronize local supply men and merchants if we expect our town to prosper and "stay on the map."

Frankly, it means that every citizen will find it most profitable to read the advertisements in this paper every issue, and to follow their good advice.

Our advertisers are all personally interested in this town—and in YOU. They are helping you build a better home community. When business is good, their profits are being shared with you in an endless chain of co-operative betterment.

Community Building

Business and Utility Crowding Out Beauty

Relative to esthetic elements in city building projects, an authority has said: "The gradual disappearance of the private residential dwelling with its spacious lawns and beautiful foliage within the confines of the city limits, has measurably lowered esthetic considerations in practically every large and progressive American city. Business and utility are crowding out beauty and design. Property values are soaring higher and higher in direct ratio to the upward economic trend."

"Municipal art commissions or other public bodies of similar character must bestir themselves now if we would prevent the total extinction of the rustic in the city home of the future."

Efficiency of space and economy of investment are the factors which have been given most heed in building construction, he pointed out.

"In fostering building development in any large city, the welfare of the latter is also closely bound up in the regional planning within city limits and with areas adjacent thereto. To that end conferences should be held with representatives of adjacent cities and towns to work out jointly and to correlate the problems of neighboring smaller communities in the environs of the larger municipalities."

"In this connection it may be well for state legislative bodies throughout the country to pattern legislation after the New York state law which permits the creation by counties of regional advisory boards, a single board for all of the New York state counties within the metropolitan area, and another for outside counties."

Points to Consider When Planning Home

The average person building a home today is not careful enough about picking out the contractor who is to do the work for him or the materials the contractor will put in his home.

When one builds a home he expects to live in it for several years at least, and the home that has the least yearly amount of upkeep will be the home that eventually will be the cheapest and best investment in the long run.

A contractor may be a good workman, but if the owner picks cheap materials the result will show it. On the other hand, good materials can be ruined and the home spoiled beyond imagination by a poor contractor. In either case the value of the completed home suffers and the home builder does not get what he is eventually paying for. Here is a great deal of difference in the ability of contractors and the quality of building materials.

If more people realized how important it is to get the best of everything there would be more better homes built today for less money and with less annoyance and expense in upkeep and repairs.

Make for Friendliness

Where people who dwell in the country have gardens, we in the city have only tiny window boxes—and these at sadly rare intervals. Yet I have noticed that if a neighbor pushes forth a window box with bright geraniums, or even simple drooping ivy, some one across the street will do the same. It is as if people remote to one another's consciousness suddenly became acquainted over the chasm that divided them. Such a gesture causes those of us who are city pent to realize that there is a friendliness, a desire to become acquainted, even in the dingiest street.—Charles Hanson Towne in Parper's Bazar.

Citizens Above Average

The home owner becomes valuable to the community; is appreciated by his employers and the banks. He becomes a better citizen than the man who is content all of his life to be a tenant.

The stability of the nation is based on the freedom of home ownership. Give us a country of home owners and we need never to worry about those social cataclysms that shake tenant nations to their ruin. The red flag is rarely found flying from the ridge pole of a house owned by the man who lives in it.—Exchange.

Joy Found in Garden

For city men who have the time and the ground space to devote to it, gardening offers opportunities not to be found in any ordinary form of sport. Besides the exercise and the recreation is the chance to learn a technique more intricate and more interesting than that of golf, for example, and the satisfaction of making flowers or vegetables contribute notably to the joy of living.

Trees Gone; Towns Gone

There are many towns in our country that are mere ghosts of their former selves because the forests have gone and industry has gone with them, says the American Tree association. Just as the mining town has been left to rot when the vein "pays out," so have these communities decayed when the forests "pays out." Timber should, if possible, be grown near where it is to be used.

Efficient and Economical Home Heating

The Enterprise Automatic circulating warm air Heater will heat the entire home with a constant circulation of clean, warm air, insuring the same comfortable warmth in every room.

Finished in dark grained Mahogany enamel, it is in harmony with the other furnishings of the most refined taste. The fire door, ash door and all mechanical parts are concealed when the cabinet is closed.

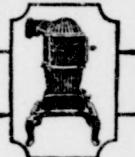

The powerful heating unit makes it most economical in fuel consumption. The wide deep air ways from top to bottom of the cabinet permit free passage of air, which is quickly heated in passing over the heating unit, and out the top to circulate through the entire house.

FULTON COUNTY PRIZE WINNING CLUB BOY GETS TRIP TO INTERNATIONAL CLUB CONGRESS AT CHICAGO, ILL.

Billie McGehee, of Sylvan Shade, was awarded the trip given by the I. C. R. R. Co. for the best club member in Fulton county, to the International Live Stock Show, held in Chicago, December 3 to 7.

The citizens of Hickman and Fulton gave $12.50 each to pay the expense of the trip other than the railroad fare.

While Billie is only about 14 years of age, he has done good club work. He joined the pig and cotton clubs last spring. He purchased two small pure bred spotted Poland China pigs from his father. He kept an accurate feeding record on his pigs and he showed them at the Fulton County Fair, and at the Hickman Fair. His winnings amounted to $27.00. He also kept an accurate record on his cotton project, and up to date he has sold $123.75 worth of cotton and cotton seed, and has 300 or 400 pounds more seed cotton to pick.

Billie will have the pleasure of association with 1,200 other prize winning boys and girls from practically every state in the union.

OHIO RIVER BRIDGE ASSURED

U. S. Engineers Approve Plans and Location of Span—Estimates of Cost Satisfactory, and Bids Being Prepared.

The design and location of the highway bridge across the Ohio river at Cairo, which is to be built just below the old Holiday elevator site, has received the approval of the United States government engineers, and now only awaits the formal signature of Gen. Edgar T. Jadwin, chief of engineers.

Following changes in the original plans, made to meet the views of river interests and of the government engineers, who are alive to the importance of protecting the river for navigation, the plans and location were unanimously approved by the board of engineers, composed of Lt. Col. George R. Spaulding of Louisville; Maj. John C. Gotwals of St. Louis, and Maj. L. D. Worsham, Memphis.

Following their approval, the bridge was approved by Gen. T. H. Jackson, president of the Mississippi River Commission.

Design of the Bridge

The first span of the bridge clears the Big Four railroad incline, with clearances which have been approved by the officials of that railroad, the U. S. army engineers and the other various river interests. The vertical and horizontal clearances of the structure throughout are the largest on the entire Ohio river.

The plan as approved, calls for only two piers in midstream with two other piers near the banks. The structure from low water on the Illinois side to low water on the Kentucky side, will be approximately two thousand feet long, with steel spans of considerable length on either side of the river.

The bridge crosses at the narrowest point on the lower Ohio river. Ample provision for flood flows in extreme water are made on both sides of the river.

The approach on the Illinois side will join in the form of a "Y" the approach to the Mississippi River bridge, carrying out the plans for a "Y" bridge which have been the dream of Cairoites for years.

On the Kentucky side, the plans provide for overhead clearances over the railroad tracks there, and the approach and roadway extends back to the hills between Barlow and Wickliffe, where it joins United States Highways 60 and 51.

Contractors are now preparing bids of the plans which are expected to be submitted within one week. Several estimates as to the cost of the structure have already been submitted by engineers, which are highly satisfactory to the financial interests who will build the structure.

All of the right-of-way for the approach and highway leading to the approach, have been purchased and paid for by the Cairo Association of Commerce, and others, including prominent men in Western Kentucky. In fact, it is a question whether Cairo people are more enthusiastic over the building of this bridge than are the people of Ballard, Carlisle, Hickman and Fulton counties.—Cairo Citizen.

FARM NOTES

By H. A. McPherson, County Agent.

During the year I have received numerous calls for the following two treatments of live stock, and I am having them published for the third time, and I wish to urge all farmers who are interested in these treatments to keep the clippings.

Treat Sheep With Bluestone

The life of a good ram or ewe may be saved by treating every 30 days. You cannot have thrifty, strong, uniform lambs from ewes and rams that have stomach worms.

Blue-stone	Water	Sheep
1 Oz.	3 Qts.	25
2 Ozs.	1 1/2 gal.	50
3 Ozs.	9 Qts.	75
4 Ozs.	3 Gals.	100

Dissolve bluestone first in a small quantity of hot water, add enough for mixture. Give matured, healthy sheep three to three and one-half liquid ozs. Treat every 30 days. Lambs 75 lbs. and up, give one oz. yearlings and weak lambs 2 oz.

Calf Scours

Reduce feed and give 1 teaspoonful of the following mixture, three or four times daily in milk:
1 oz. subnitrate of bismuth, 1-2 oz. salol, 3 oz. bicarbonate of soda.

DAIRY FEEDING SCHOOLS

The three dairy feeding schools held last Monday and Tuesday by Prof. Joe Nageotte who is with the Dairy Extension Dept., of the University of Kentucky, and County Agent H. A. McPherson, were well attended, and much desired information was given.

More than 50 substantial cream shippers attended the first school, which was held at Fulton. Mr. Nageotte gave a most interesting talk on how to feed for better profits, using all possible home grown feed. He answered many questions during his talk and showed those present how to figure out a home mixed ration.

Mr. Nageotte also talked on the value of commercial dairy feeds, using the tags from various feed companies. He warned the farmers to beware of yellow tag feed, as they contain a certain amount of worthless feed. He recommended as a good home mixed feed: cotton seed meal, wheat bran and ground corn, either ground with shuck and cob, or ground shelled corn as the shelled corn has the same feeding value as the ear corn with the shuck on bushel for bushel.

The different feeding rations can be had by applying to County Agent H. A. McPherson. He has a supply of feeding sheets for distribution. Mr. McPherson stated that he would like to have 15 to 20 cream shippers keep an accurate record of cream shipped and feed fed per month. He will be glad to furnish report blanks and frankable envelopes.

Give Electrical Appliances for Christmas

PRACTICAL Christmas gifts are most appreciated. Your relatives and friends prefer presents they can enjoy and use to advantage throughout the year.

Electrical appliances are most practical Christmas gifts. They are a great convenience in the home. Everybody wants them—especially the women folk.

Nowadays, electrical appliances made by any of the established manufacturers are well designed, strong, simple to operate, handsome and moderately priced. They use electric current economically and give years of service.

Here are a few gift suggestions covering a wide price range:

"As Ye Have Done"

by Alonzo Tanner Dillan

THE softly falling snow had for Marion Almsworth the beauty as if she waited shivering with the cold for a kiss which would undoubtedly be late. She sighed at thought of the long, idle ride before her. Christmas was very near, but there was no Christmas spirit in Marion's heart. With no member of her family nearer than an aunt, her father's sister-in-law whom she had not heard of for over five years, the coming holidays held little prospect of joy for her. The present days were busy ones with the usual "mid-year" work of teaching school, with examinations and Christmas entertainments. Never did she long for a real home and loved ones as at this season of the year. Remembrances of Christmases came to her and at the thought that this year would probably be spent alone in her room, her eyes filled with tears. So engrossed was she with her thoughts she failed to notice a dog travel stained foot and weary, looking beseechingly at her. At first sight of him with an exclamation of pity she stopped and tenderly petted him. At that moment the dog crept close to her and remained so until the bus came.

As Marion stepped on to the bus the dog followed, so that he could get up in her lap. Assured that everything was all right, he set the dog down in her lap for a nap. This gave Marion a chance to study him. She decided he was a fox terrier, although it was difficult to tell in his present unkempt condition. As he wore a collar and license tag it was evident he was a pet, especially as the name

Secretly Hoping It Was No One to Claim the Dog.

"Horatius" was on the collar. Such an imposing name for such a small dog brought a smile to Marion's lips. Around his neck was a bit of frayed rope, so he probably had been stolen. So interested was she planning how she would care for him and what steps to take to restore him to his owners, that she had reached home before she realized it.

The affectionate little fellow soon won a place of welcome, both in Marion's and Mrs. Lane's (her landlady) hearts, and soon proved in watchful care and faithfulness that he had well earned the name he bore. Christmas eve Marion's heart was lighter than for years, as she thought with gratitude of the joy the little dog, now freshly bathed and with a new bow on his collar, lying asleep at her feet, had brought her.

During the evening a caller was announced, and Marion went down the stairs, secretly hoping it was no one to claim the dog.

As she went forward to greet the caller, the lady came toward her with a smile and outstretched hand, and then stopped short. "Marion!" she exclaimed. "Aunt Ethel!"

Then followed the exchange of happy greetings of the last five years. In which Marion had lost her mother, and how the information had not reached her until her return from a long journey, many months after. She had searched unavailingly for her niece, and Marion then explained that she had sought new scenes and faces hoping in that way to ease the loneliness. Then followed the account of the finding of the dog, and her aunt's account of the loss of her pet, which had been stolen from her home in a distant city. She had heard some one at that address had found a dog and hoped it might be hers, and so it proved to be.

As both were alone in the world, Marion's aunt persuaded her to make her home with her as a daughter, and urged her to resign from her position as soon as possible.

A few days later as Marion sat in her new home, so comfortably and beautifully cared for, she held the little dog close to her. "You blessed giver of good things," she whispered. "How anything so wee could bring so much happiness?" And back came the landlady's message "As ye have done to the least of these."

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

UP AGAINST IT

"Why the tears?" asked Elsie of the lace department.
"I'm weeping for that woman's husband," snuggled Elsie of the silk department, as she began getting the stock back on the shelves. "She nearly drove me looney trying to please her in the hour she was here, but think of the poor old who's got a job of trying to please her seven days a week, year in and year out."

His Clever Trick

Friend—Tell me your secret of success. How have you obtained so many patrons in such a short time?
Dry Goods Merchant—I got a parrot and trained it to cry out, "Oh! isn't she lovely?" every time a lady entered the store.

Luxury Enough

The Middle-Aged Man—My dear, think of the diamonds, automobiles and good times we are going to have if you marry me.
The Girl—I suppose a rich father can do the same for me. Please do marry my mother.

HE WAS TOO SLOW

"Could I kiss you good night?"
"Gosh! I begin to doubt it."

The Accursed

Oh, I shall be, till Gabriel's trumpet. Nostalgic for some distant dump; And ever doomed to weep me dry For some lost mediocre guy.

The Sole Exception

Mrs. Junebride—Oh, dear! Strike, seem to be universal, don't they?
Her Husband—Yes! Everything, striking except the clock your brother gave us for a wedding present, and that never did work any to speak of.

Life's Little Changes

A—So you're acquainted with Mr. Smith? What kind of a man is he?
B—He used to be poor, but honorable.
A—And now?
B—He's rich.

Time to Get a New Boss

"How do you like your new boss?"
"Rotten. We don't pull together at all. When I'm late he's early and when I'm early he's late."—Berkshire Evening Eagle.

SOMETHING WRONG

"Say waiter—this fish—"
"Yes, sir. Just brought today, sir!"
"Perhaps so my dear man, but was it at a restaurant sale or something?"

Futile Advice

If you were I and I were you, We'd tell each other what to do, And then in disappointment sigh, The same as just plain you and I.

No Need of That

"What did she sue her husband for?"
"Nonsupport."
"I thought she was getting plenty of that."

Needed

"I am willing," said the candidate, "to trust the people."
"I wish you'd open a grocery store," said the little man in the audience.

Heard and Not Seen

"I hear your neighbors have a new salarum in their house."
"Goodness, maybe that's the awful thing we hear 'em playing on."

Lesson for December 16

PAUL AND HIS FRIENDS

LESSON TEXT—ACTS 20:35-38; ROM. 16:1-11; PHIL. 1:1-11; PHIL. 2:1-11; PHIL. 4:1-11

GOLDEN TEXT—A friend loveth at all times.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Writes a Letter to Philemon.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Letter to Philemon.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul as a Friend.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Place of Friendship in the Christian Life.

I. Paul Praying with the Ephesian Elders (Acts 20:35-38).

This incident reveals the real spirit of fellowship which had developed between Paul and the elders of the church at Ephesus. Knowing the seriousness of his mission to Jerusalem and the possibility that he would never see them again, he asked these elders to meet him at Miletus, that he might give them the proper instructions so as to enable them to meet the issues which confronted them. Before leaving them he knelt down and prayed with them.

II. Concerning Certain Ones at Rome (Rom. 16:1-11).

1. Phileas commended to the Christians at Rome. Phileas was a Christian woman from the church at Cenchrea who was making a visit to Rome. Her business is not defined, but it was such that he could ask the Christians not only to receive her, but to render to her the proper assistance therein.

2. He asks that the Christians greet Priscilla and Aquila (vv. 3, 4). The ground upon which this greeting was urged was their own loyalty to himself.

III. Concerning Apaphroditus (Phil. 2:25-30).

Not being able to revisit the church at Philippi, Paul sent his friend Apaphroditus to minister to them.

IV. Paul Writes to Philemon. Philemon was a member of the church at Colosse. Onesimus, his slave, wronged him; perhaps stole from him and fled to Rome and there came under Paul's influence and was converted. Paul sent Onesimus back to Philemon with this letter. This is one of the most tender and beautiful letters ever written and the first anti-slavery petition ever penned.

1. The salutation (vv. 1-3).

His aim was to touch Philemon's heart; he, therefore, refers to himself as a prisoner and thanks Philemon to himself as a fellow-laborer in the gospel of truth.

2. Philemon's reputation (vv. 4-7).

(1) His faith and love toward the Lord and all the saints (v. 5).

(2) His earnest desire that this faith bear fruit in Christ Jesus.

(3) His industry to the saints (v. 6).

(4) Philemon's generous misdeeds of his substance to the poor slaves.

3. Paul's request (vv. 8-10).

He requested Philemon to receive back Onesimus, the runaway slave, as a brother in Christ.

(1) Beseeches instead of commands (vv. 8, 9). Though conscious of his right to enslave, he pleads as a prisoner of Jesus Christ, for love's sake.

(2) He pleads on the grounds of grace (vv. 11-13). He admitted that Onesimus had been unprofitable and forfeited all claim upon Philemon, and that on grounds of justice his plea might well be rejected, and yet, because Onesimus was begotten in his heart (v. 10), was in a real sense part of his own suffering nature (v. 12), he ventured to suggest that he should be accepted.

(3) Paul desired that Onesimus be received back, not as a slave, but as a brother in Christ (vv. 15, 16). Here is the real fugitive slave law. Paul never attacked slavery, though it was contrary to Christianity and therefore hateful to him, but emphasized the principles which destroyed it. The wise thing to do is to get men and women regenerated and thus transform society, instead of seeking change by revolution.

4. The basis upon which Onesimus was to be received (vv. 17-21).

The debt of guilty Onesimus to be put to the account of Paul and the debt of Paul to be put to the account of Onesimus. This is a fine illustration of the atonement of Christ. What ever wrongs we have committed, debts incurred—all our shortcomings are debited to Him. Jesus Christ, on behalf of the whole universe, said to God, "Put that to my account." Onesimus was taken back, not as a runaway slave, but as a beloved brother in Christ.

5. Paul requests lodging (vv. 22-23).

He expected a speedy release from imprisonment and purposed to solemnize with Philemon. What a welcome he must have received!

What They Realize

Children may not understand all the readings used nor thoughts expressed in the family worship hour, but they do feel that this is a time when the whole family enters a holy place. God is made real, and family life is made a part of His plan and a thing within His care.—The Mainland Messenger.

Alias Joe and His Christmas or Clara Hays

NORTHWESTERN gate sword dry snow around the corner where old Joe sold papers. Shop-ers in heavy wraps hurried past, arms loaded with bundles. Children slipped in anticipatory happiness. Old Joe pulled his worn sack coat about him and fastened it tight-er with a piece of wire. His hands, in dirty outing mittens, were cold. He knocked the backs of their feet together gingerly and stamped his feet feebly on the icy walk.

"Paper! Evening Journal! Paper!" he droned monotonously. Mentally he figured his gain. Enough for a fifteen cent hot and sandwiches, maybe. But, tomorrow's being Christmas, nobody'd buy papers. He wanted to get enough to buy a little something to his old face took on a foolish and shamed grin—maybe to make him happy and help him to forget just what an old beggar he was. Then, he wouldn't have to eat so much either. A vagabond. That's what he was. Never been much else—for years.

"Well, hello, Santa Claus!" a young man's voice hailed merrily.

Old Joe turned. "Paper?"

A laughing, well-dressed couple faced him. "Why, Jack!" the girl mischievously remonstrated.

Old Joe grinned sheepishly behind his beard. "Wanna paper?" he asked.

"I say, Fran!" the youth exclaimed. "Here's our Christmas!" He drew her farther away and whispered. They returned. "Hey! How'd you like to come to our house for Christmas?"

They talked some time before they convinced old Joe that they meant it. Too cold to be proud, he even submitted to the bath and hair cut that Jack paid for. In a suit too small for Jack's father, Joe came abashed into the kitchen and ate.

"You see, Fran's my sister," explained Jack. "The folks went off on their Christmas spree and left us home. We told 'em, we'd do something rare for our celebration."

Jack and Frances had eaten down town. It was late. Joe was given some blankets and put on a cot in the corner of Jack's long room.

In the night Joe awakened suddenly. Painfully, he raised and listened. "Hey you—Uncle George! Gosh, I'm sick!"

"Wh—Whar'd Ye Git This?" He demanded.

Jack moaned. Old Joe turned the light on as he was told and called Frances. She wailed. "I can't come! I'm sick. I've been trying to call some one."

The next morning, the doctor on his second call, turned to an old man with a neatly trimmed beard and a clean suit. "They're all right, now, with the nurse here. It was something they ate last night."

Jack was better. He smiled faintly. "Well, the joke was on us, wasn't it, Uncle George? You did us the favor by getting the doctor here and running errands in the night. Before you go, step in the closet there and get my case."

Joe popped rheumatically out of the closet, wide-eyed, carrying not a case but an old enlargement. "Wh—Whar'd ye git this?" he demanded, hands trembling.

"Oh, that's why we call you Uncle George. You see, it's a habit we have to—er—sort of tease Dad. That's his brother, George. He ran away when he was young. Nobody's heard of him since. Dad says he was smart and sure to make his mark somewhere. One of these days, he says, Uncle George will drive up in a Rolls-Royce with enough hundred dollar bills to paper our house. Dad's awfully proud of him. We are, rather, too. But we call—er—different fellows 'Uncle George' to make Dad—well, you see—" Jack stopped in embarrassment.

Old Joe nodded. "Wall, I gotta be goin'!"

"Wait! There's some money in my case. I want to pay you."

"Now, jest come down an' buy papers of me ef you wanna help. I'm a gonna start savin' up to buy a stand."

Outside Joe's trembling hands opened an almost empty purse, and pulled out the small original of the enlargement upstairs. A tear con-tributed the sheepish grin. "Wall, it's a good thing the fellers took to callin' me Joe, lately, s'ead of George," he told himself.

"Wh—Whar'd Ye Git This?" He demanded.

Jack moaned. Old Joe turned the light on as he was told and called Frances. She wailed. "I can't come! I'm sick. I've been trying to call some one."

LISTEN CHILDREN!

The O. K. Laundry during the week between Christmas and New Years has set apart for the cleaning of school children's garments, to the end that they may return to school with germ-free, clean clothing, better fortified to carry through the latter half of the school year. And that we, as cleaners, are willing to contribute of our time and service to those who, through no fault of theirs, are unable to pay for this service.

Let us have your garments early during the week between Christmas and New Years.

Remember the service is free to any child unable to pay.

Fish For Breakfast

THEY say that you can't have your cake and eat it, but you have no desire to keep it, and you are very eager to eat it, when you can get it in the form of fish cakes with so little trouble out of a can.

Although you may be miles removed from river or ocean, and years away from your last fishing trip, the finest catch of the sea can be served at your breakfast table. Here are some new fish breakfast dishes and some old favorites which will lend a grateful variety to your breakfast menus.

Some Delicious Recipes

Codfish Cakes: There never has been a more popular breakfast dish than codfish cakes. And there never was an easier dish to prepare. For codfish cakes can now be bought in ready-to-try form, and there is no need for soaking and picking over the fish, or for cooking in oil. Just open a can of prepared codfish cakes, shape into cakes or balls, and drop them into a pan of smoking hot fat. When brown and crisp serve on hot plates.

Clam Cakes: Clam cakes will be a new treat to most families. They come ready to fry, as do codfish cakes, and are just as easy to prepare. They are sure to have an unusual appeal to all who like clams. Take the clam cakes from the can, pat them out and fry in fat that is piping hot. Serve as soon as they are brown and crisp.

A Nation in a Tin Can

A WHOLE nation in a tin can! That sounds concentrated, doesn't it? Yet that is an Englishman's idea of the United States.

An editorial in the Ottawa, Canada, Evening Citizen, quotes Lord Asquith as saying in a speech before the Royal Colonial Institute: "The United States is effectively sealing itself up in a tin can. Half the food Americans eat is tinned. Americans are so imprisoned in their tin can that they never pause to consider what would happen if the tin supply ran out, and they had to fall back on ordinary food."

Lord Asquith declared that at least one-fourth of the husbands of America would face famine if anything should go wrong with the world's tin supply, one-half of which is used in the United States.

We have long passed the epoch when the can opening wife was looked upon as one who shirked her home responsibilities. Every intelligent housewife makes liberal use of canned foods. The limitations of seasons and of countries have been effectively spanned, thanks to the canning industry.

No More Unbalanced Meals

There is no further need, or excuse, for serving lean, or unbalanced meals, because the weather is hot, or because it is cold. It would be well if, of our own accord, we all paused once in a while, and considered how full and festive our own tables have become because we are living in the era of canned foods. We in the United States are richer in this respect than are the people of any other country.

Back To School Lunches

BACK to school means back to school lunches.

Fortunately, the innumerable excellent prepared foods on the market make it comparatively easy for mothers to solve the school lunch problem effectively and intelligently. Be sure to have a vacuum bottle or other container in which milk can be kept cold, or hot cocoa, soup or a hot creamed dish may be carried. A firm baked custard or pudding made with milk may be carried in a custard cup.

Vitamin Foods are Needed

Foods rich in vitamins should be a part of the school lunch. Among the prepared foods always available that are good nutrition sources are canned beans, carrots, cabbage, grapefruit, peaches, peas, pineapple, spinach and tomatoes. These canned foods may be carried, moistened with a bit of salad dressing, in paper cups.

Here are several school lunch suggestions.

Cheese and Pineapple Sandwich: Mix together one part cream cheese to two parts crushed, drained Hawaiian pineapple. Spread between slices of buttered whole wheat bread.

Sweet Peach Sandwich: Mash drained canned peaches. Spread on slices of buttered bread, sprinkle lightly with chopped nuts, and spread with mayonnaise.

Lunch Custard: Beat two eggs slightly. Add one-fourth cup sugar and one-eighth teaspoon salt. Pour over slowly one cup evaporated milk, scalded with one cup water. Strain into custard cups, sprinkle with nutmeg, and bake in hot water in a slow oven. When beginning to set sprinkle top with one teaspoon moist canned coconut and finish baking.

ANNUAL REPORT OF COUNTY AGENT H. A. McPHERSON, OF FULTON COUNTY

The first year's work as County Agent, in any county is the hardest, and results are often not visible. In most cases too much is expected of the agent, and in many cases an agent will try to put across too many pieces of work without first knowing the county. I once heard one of the best county agents in the south say that a new county agent should not do a thing the first year, except to get acquainted with his county, and find out its needs. After eleven years of county agent work, I am inclined to believe he was right.

The lack of space will prevent a full report of my year's work, but the following is rather a summary of the things that have been accomplished: Days spent in field, 222; days spent in office, 41; calls in office, 456; calls on telephone, 381; letters written, 219; visits made to farms, 199; visits made to homes, 157; number method and result demonstrations, 85; total attendance, 1,518; number of other meetings held, 34; attendance, 813; circular letters sent out, 3,600; number of miles traveled on duty, 10,510; number miles traveled on railroad, 2,090.

Assisted in placing 38 registered Jersey heifers and cows; assisted in the placing of two community registered bulls; assisted in the placing of several registered boars and sows and helped to place several registered bucks and ewes. I have succeeded in getting more than 500 tons of lime placed with the farmers this year, with a much greater prospect next season. The total tonnage of lime for the year amounted to 2,050.

Much time has been spent trying to develop the dairy industry, which is at present bringing into the farmers' pockets more than one half million dollars annually.

Seven of our most successful farmers were induced to spend a week touring the Blue Grass Section of the state during the past year, and plans are already being made for a much larger delegation the coming year. The total club enrollment for the year was 253, and the majority of this number did very creditable work. One team of girls and two teams of boys were trained and sent to the State Club Camp, which was held at the University. A livestock judging team, composed of three boys were trained and sent to the State Fair, at Louisville. While none of the above teams won first place, each made a very creditable showing, and won nice prizes. Twenty-five club boys and girls attended the district club camp, held at Paducah.

The I. C. R. Co., gave 8 tickets in the State of Kentucky, to the International Livestock Show, held in Chicago the first week in December, to the counties that had done outstanding club work. Fulton County was given one of the tickets. Billie McGehee, of Sylvan Shade, was selected as the most outstanding club member in the county and was awarded the trip.

Seventy-six visits were made to schools and club meetings, which does not include visits made looking over club projects.

With the cooperation of the five cream stations of Fulton, I put on an exhibit at the County Fair. The exhibit had for its purpose, the production of quality cream.

A very creditable community fair was held at Hickman, where the boys and girls showed their pured Jersey heifers, and many other club exhibits were made. Fulton county was represented by an exhibit at the National Dairy Show, held in Memphis during the month of October. This is the first time Kentucky has ever exhibited in Memphis.

Four terracing demonstrations were held in the county the past year, with a total attendance of approximately 18.

Plans were furnished for the construction of several farm buildings.

In summing up the year's work I feel that much good has been accomplished, and I wish to take this opportunity to thank the Civic Clubs for their splendid cooperation, also others who have contributed to the support of the work. Last, but not least, I wish to thank the newspapers of the county for the splendid support of the work. We have only an agricultural county, and the success or failure of your county agent is going to depend upon the support he receives from the press, civic organizations, as well as from the farmers themselves. It is the purpose of the Extension Division to put on a much greater agricultural program the coming year, and the success will depend on the cooperation received.

CARD A TRULY PERSONAL GREETING

It's only a very short time until the busy Holiday season is here again. Before we realize it, all of us—old and young—will be counting the days until Christmas.

We want to suggest right now, while there is time to decide without haste, that you make your Christmas greeting decidedly personal this year.

Select from our display of beautiful designs and charming sentiments the card that exactly expresses your good wishes. Then permit us to print your name below the verse or seasonal greeting, and the message will be doubly personal.

No extra charge for printing your name on Christmas cards purchased from us.

A CHRISTMAS RECONCILIATION

PHILIP MANION pulled down the curtains of his car with an angry jerk. Then his voice snapped out a sharp command to his chauffeur: "Get off this crowded street, Jenkins; this Christmas crowd is most annoying, rushing around like insane people!"

Jenkins gave a quiet assent and soon the big car slid quietly into the wide smoothness of the boulevard. But the traffic condition of this thoroughfare was no less pleasing to Philip Manion than the rush and hurry of the business section. It seemed as if every car in town must be there, so much so that even the well-trained chauffeur felt its influence. For the first time in his life Jenkins sacrificed safety to speed as he tried to get his master away from the thing that irritated him so. And the result was, as it so often is in such cases, a crash. It all happened so quickly that master and man were dumb with surprise and fright for a moment.

The after-accident crowd that came from no one knows where had quickly assembled. Ugly threats were passed around. The driver of the twisted taxi was hurled hot words at the white-faced Jenkins. Both drivers were unhurt.

But Philip Manion was unimpaired of them all. He was bending over the unconscious form of a woman who lay inside the cab. Blood was streaming from a gash on her forehead and to all appearances she lay dead.

"Oh, Clare, Clare!" Manion was crying brokenly. "It is I—Philip! Won't you speak to me? You—you won't go and leave me to live on and now I killed you?"

But no answer came to his pleas; the white lips seemed to be stiffed forever. Manion covered his face with his hands and sobbed bitterly. Then some one pulled him back from the cab—a doctor had come. And in a few minutes they were hurrying to the nearest hospital.

A Door That Held a Message of Life or Death.

pathy had come back again. He knew now the cause for the way he had been acting; he had just been trying to crush out and stifle the crying of his heart. It was the need of Clare, the stifling of his love for her, that had turned him into a hard and bitter man.

"Oh, God! let her live!" he cried over and over. "Let her live to know that I am not the cur that she thinks I am. Let her live to know that I was stubbornness and pride only that kept me away. Oh, if I had only given in and told her the truth!"

A door that held a message of life or death opened very softly and a smiling doctor motioned him in. A great surge of joy filled his heart; he knew Clare was going to live. As he entered there came from the street below the voices of carol singers clear and sweet upon the evening air.

God rest ye little children; let nothing you fright.
For Jesus Christ, your Savior, was born upon this night;
Along the hills of Judaea the white-robed angels lay,
When Christ, the child of Nazareth, was born on Christmas day.

As if at the sound, Clare Manion stirred softly, then her eyes opened very slowly and took in the outline of the unfamiliar room. They fell upon the man, standing with bowed head in the doorway.

"Philip! Oh, Philip! Is—is it really you or am I dreaming? The joy in the weak voice was unmistakable.
"Yes, it is I, Clare," Manion's voice was broken and hoarse as he sank down upon his knees by the bed. "Can you ever forgive me for what I have done? All I ask is a chance to atone—to show you that I can be all that you once thought me."

Next day, when the Christmas bells were pealing out their message of peace on earth and good will toward all men, no two persons felt the joy of the age-old tidings in a greater measure than they, for their hearts had opened to new understanding and faith in each other.

CHRISTMAS TREES

THE only kind of trees that interest us at this time of year are Christmas trees.

I wonder if you know that a Christmas tree may be a hemlock or a spruce, a fir, pine, cedar, or perhaps some other evergreen, as an arbor vitae. But the ones named are the most popular. Can you tell the difference?

A spruce Christmas tree has stiff needles, sharp as pins, that stand out all ways.

A hemlock Christmas tree has flat needles that lie on the twigs as if they were parted, just as hair is parted. These hemlock needles are whitish underneath.

The fir Christmas tree has needles that are parted very much like the hemlock, only each separate needle seems to be parted on its under side, too. Very likely your tree will be one of these three.

The pine is too well known for much description. It has two forms of leaves—the primary, small and scale-like, and the secondary—long and in clusters of various numbers. There are many species, from a few feet high to over a hundred.

The cedar is of an old family. It is the well-known Cedar of Lebanon. It is of slow growth, very hard wood, and much used in manufacturing lead pencils. All are fragrant, and very popular for Christmas trees.—Frank Herbert Sweet.

POLICE HUNTING SANTA

Kris Kringle Knocks Out Man's Teeth, Flees.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—If all the children are out of the room, here's a bit of news for the grown folks: There's a warrant out for Santa Claus.

Jolly old Kris Kringle punched a man on the jaw and knocked some teeth out. The man, Albert Cohen, went to the police about it and inasmuch as he didn't know St. Nick's real name, the warrant simply called for the delivery to the jail house of "Santa Claus."

Cohen was standing at State and Randolph. So was Santa. So was a little boy. The little boy was consumed with an irresistible urge to investigate Santa Claus' whiskers. He wanted to twine his little fingers in the snowy mane and pull. He did. The whiskers, attached to a rubber band, left a great gap below Santa's chin, then suddenly snapped back into place.

When they snapped back, Santa howled. Hot under the collar is no way to tell how badly Santa felt. He was hot above the collar, especially on the face where the rebound of the patriarchal whiskers had made a red mark.

Jolly old St. Nick cut loose with a haymaker at the little rascal with the irresistible urge. The lad ducked neatly. Not so Mr. Cohen, who was standing directly behind, smiling broadly. Cohen's failure to dodge was responsible for the loss of several of his teeth.

Santa, with whiskers askew, fled. Probably by now he is back at the North Pole.

THE DAY OF DAYS

RING out glad bells across the earth—Christians have come again! Ring out the glad tidings from land to land, from shore to shore in peals of sounding joy, in crashing strains of tumultuous welcome. Christmas, the day of days! has come to cheer and gladden the earth again, to bring each and every one of us new hope and new faith. The old and the young, the grave and the gay, look for its coming with the same eagerness and delight, with the same confidence and optimism. For we never grow too old to catch the message of Christmas; each year but adds to the delight with which we greet it. Perhaps, as little children this delight manifested itself more plainly, yet, it was not as deep, as heartfelt, as that which comes as we grow older, for each Christmas has added unto itself so many dear associations, so many precious memories that we find ourselves treasuring the day more and more as the years go by. The love of those around our own home and hearth, the kind remembrance and good wishes of our friends, the host of sweet, unforgettable things that are ours at this time make Christmas a day of happiness untold. Let the glad bells peal their tidings of joy—let holly and mistletoe hang everywhere—let merriment and thanksgiving and feasting prevail—for Christmas has come again!—Katherine Edelman.

POST-MARITAL SENTIMENT

"What are you rummaging for?" "Some old love letters I used to write to my wife before we were married."

"That bit of sentiment does you credit. Want to peruse them again, eh?"

"Aw, g'wan! She's away now. I promised to write her often and I want to hand these old letters to my stenographer to use as models."—New Zealand Leader.

Not With the Landlord

Rakeman—I hear you purchased a saxophone recently. Has it made you popular with your neighbors?

Rawkiss—I should say so. The landlord has had to reduce the rents 25 per cent in order to keep the apartments filled.—Pathfinder Magazine.

A Less Discouraging Job?

"She's getting to dress and act so mannish."

"Yes, she tried to make a man of her husband and failed and evidently she's now trying to make one of her self."

GOOD AT PETTING

He—Sally is a good girl.
She—Yes, good at petting, maybe.

Easily Pleased

I'm glad when holidays come round. And glad when they are done. Enjoyment makes a man so tired. That working seems like fun.

Familiar With Danger

"You say you've often been under fire. I didn't know you were in the late war."

"I wasn't, but I've spent several autumns hunting in the Maine woods."—New York World.

Hauteur

"He is as haughty as a prince!" said the impressionable girl.

"You have the wrong idea," rejoined Miss Cayenne. "I should say he was as haughty as a prize-fighter or a picture star."

It Leads to Trouble

Mrs. Gnagg—The trouble with you is you never learned to say "no." Her Husband—I've realized that from the time we stood up together and were questioned by the parson.

FOOT OF THE HILLS

Victor—A better corn is raised in this lilly country than anywhere else? Just where is it grown?

Farmer—On the foot of the hills.

All Through the Night

No longer does the student toil And study, burning midnight oil. With glee he sits up half the night And listens to the latest fight.

Punishment

Judge—Guilty or not guilty of this charge of murder?

Prisoner—None of yer business!

Judge—Thirty days—contempt of court!

On Her Metal

Policeman (slipping up)—Ah, Nora, ye are so quiet your thoughts must be golden.

Norah (blushing)—No, Tim, copper!

It's All in the Game

"On what grounds is she suing him for breach of promise?"

"Tennis grounds. She swears he said 'Love' to her over and over."

Pertinent Question

Mrs. A.—I take care that my husband gets no cause for fault-finding.
Mrs. B.—Does that help any?

KEEP THE COUNTY AGENTS

(Memphis Commercial Appeal)

The outstanding agricultural award of the year, the prize for the grand champion steer at the International Live Stock Exposition, was won Tuesday at Chicago by twelve-year-old Clarence Goecke of Iowa. In winning the most coveted prize at the world's greatest live stock show, the boy triumphed over better financed and more experienced college of agriculture experts from many states and over scores of adult farmers and breeders.

Young Goecke is a 4-H Club boy. This is the first time the award has not gone to an adult farmer or a college. The grand champion was a pure bred Hereford, selected and bought by the lad a year ago, and raised to the prime weight of 1,150 pounds at sixteen months of age.

The award marks the progress of 4-H Club work, which has been steady year by year because of its importance in an economic way. A few weeks ago, at the National Dairy Show in Memphis, the 4-H Club members astounded visitors by their remarkable showing of dairy animals, and only this month one of the youngsters who showed at the National, a Kentucky boy, was declared to have the world champion milk producer among the Jersey three-year-olds.

Through club work, farm boys and girls are being shown how best to farm, and their projects, whether it be with dairy or beef cattle, hogs, cotton, corn or any other farm line, teach them what they are best fitted for. Boys and girls best adapted to farming are bound to stick to a line of farming in which they have found themselves successful. Hence, through the 4-H Clubs, rural education has changed, happily, from the time when teaching of any but the elementary subjects was designed to take the best youths from the farm rather than to hold them there.

In Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas and Kentucky, this 4-H Club work is one of many things directed by county agents. No group of boys in America has shown such remarkable results in such a short time as those in these states, particularly those raising dairy cattle, cotton and corn.

The county agents have led the youngsters as well as the adults in the great dairy development that has come in the mid-south. But there always is a disappointing angle to any achievement. In this case, it is the failure of some southern counties to stick to their county agent work. Those counties which aspire to become dairy-raising centers, especially those that have made some progress along that line, should retain the county agents. The change from one-crop farming to diversified farming is one that needs trained leadership, such as has been given by the county agents.

INFLUENZA

The appearance of a large number of cases of influenza in California and of an outbreak of smaller proportions in South Carolina, together with an undue prevalence of this disease in other western and southern states, as well as an increase in the prevalence of common colds in Kentucky, may serve as a warning to initiate preventive measures well in advance of its possible appearance in this state.

Influenza is a highly infectious disease, spread by dissemination of discharges from the nose and mouth chiefly through coughing and sneezing and through physical contact between the sick and well.

How to Avoid It

Do not let any person cough or sneeze into your face if possible to prevent it.

Do not come in contact unnecessarily with those who may have the disease.

When influenza is prevalent, avoid crowds.

Do not use drinking or eating utensils used by others unless they have been washed in boiling water.

Avoid the use of the common towel and common drinking cup.

Keep yourself in good physical condition by eating regularly of simple, nourishing food, getting sufficient sleep in a well ventilated room and by getting as much fresh air and sunshine as possible.

Keep out of the sickroom unless in attendance.

What Shall I Give For Christmas?

This very pertinent question is answered—exhaustively, thoroughly, comprehensively, suggestively. We mention gifts appropriate for every member of the family—father, mother, brother, sister, relatives, friends or sweethearts. And with the selection as varied and attractive as it is this year at this store, Christmas shopping and gift selecting is more of a pleasure than a drudgery. You come into this store and see so many beautiful things that are suitable gifts for the loved ones in mind that you are happily perplexed in not knowing which ones of the hundreds to buy. We offer you the result of months of buying and looking around for Christmas goods. While we are always desirous of selling just as low as we possibly can, yet quality is our foundation, and you can rest assured that any article bought for a present will give satisfaction and pleasure to the recipient every time he or she has occasion to use it.

We are mentioning a few of the appropriate articles suitable for Christmas and purposely omitting prices in order that you may forget all about the cost in anticipation of the pleasure of giving.

Fostoria

Is the name of fine crystal and decorated glassware. It is distinctly a quality product. There is clear colored glass, the new blue, amber, canary and green; mother-of-pearl and Spanish lustre iridescent; coin gold band ware; encrusted gold ware; needle etchings and deep plate etchings. Something to suit every taste—every purpose, and every pocketbook! And whatever is marked with the Fostoria Label is without qualification the finest glassware you can buy. All sorts of designs, patterns and pieces. This week we are featuring Fostoria goblets and Fostoria perfume bottles.

FRUIT SHORTCAKES FOR ALL

Fruit shortcakes! Be your family large or small, here's something delicious for one and all.

There is infinitely more to the shortcake story than mounds of strawberries and whipped cream between layers of old-fashioned shortcake pastry. Peaches, apricots, plums and pineapple, and jellies and marmalades make luscious shortcakes that rival in goodness the traditional strawberry shortcake. They may be topped with custard, hard sauce, marshmallow whip or meringue as a variation from the whipped cream.

As the following recipes are for individual shortcakes, it is easy to have as many or as few of them as your family requires. If you will follow the directions given below, your family will tell you that you can't have too many of them. Here is how some of these melting bits of deliciousness are made:

Apricot and Pineapple

Apricot Shortcake: Drain canned apricots from their syrup, and rub through a sieve. Beat three-fourths cup of cream, add apricot pulp and sweeten to taste. Serve between biscuit halves. Canned peaches may be substituted for the apricots.

Pineapple Shortcake: Drain canned crushed pineapple from its syrup, spread pineapple over soft shortcake halves and cover with cream sauce made as follows: whip the fourth cup of cream and stiff beating, add one-third cup crushed sugar. With a cold spoon to hold its shape add one-half teaspoon vanilla and a sprinkle of salt. When ready to use, drizzle to desired consistency with syrup from the can of pineapple. Top the shortcake, and serve.

Apple Butter and Currant Jelly

Apple Butter Marshmallow Shortcake: Split in half, rich tea biscuits and spread generously with apple butter, either home-made or canned. Make a marshmallow sauce as follows: cut one-fourth pound of marshmallows in pieces and melt in a double boiler. Dissolve one cup of confectioner's sugar in one-fourth cup of boiling water. Add to the melted marshmallows, and stir until blended. Cool, spread over the apple butter, and on the top half of the biscuit spread more apple butter and marshmallow sauce. Pear, peach or plum butter or any fruit preserves or jams may be substituted for the apple butter. The marshmallow sauce will be sufficient for six individual shortcakes.

Currant Jelly Meringue Shortcake: Spread individual shortcake or biscuit halves with a thick layer of currant jelly. Spread over all a stiff meringue. Brown in the oven and serve either warm or cold, as desired. Grape jelly or apple jelly meringue shortcakes may be made in the same way.

Peach Custard and Strawberry

Peach Custard Shortcakes: Make a thick custard as follows: beat the yolks of three eggs, add three-fourths cup sugar and one-half cup milk. Cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly. Cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens enough to coat the spoon. Strain immediately, add one-half teaspoon vanilla and chill. Place the bottom half of a biscuit on a serving plate and spread canned sliced peaches generously on top. Pour the custard over the peaches, top with the upper biscuit half and more custard, and garnish with peaches.

Strawberry Shortcake: A new kind of strawberry shortcake can be made by making a sauce of the strawberries as follows: cream one-third of a cup of butter with one cup of powdered sugar. Add the stiffly beaten white of one egg. Add gradually, beating all of the while, two-thirds of a cup of mashed fresh or canned strawberries. Beat until the sauce is thoroughly blended, and spread between biscuit halves. Garnish with a spoonful of whipped cream.

The advantage of using biscuit dough as a foundation for shortcake is that no special dough will have to be prepared. If you have hot biscuits for dinner, make a few more than you need, split and butter while they are hot and set them aside for your shortcake.

Shortcake Biscuit Dough: Sift two cups of flour with three teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon sugar. Rub in three tablespoons of shortening. Add one-half to one cup of milk and stir lightly with a knife until a soft dough is formed. Remove to a floured board, roll gently to one inch thickness. Cut biscuits with a fluted cutter and bake from ten to twelve minutes.

DAIRY FACTS

SELF-FED COWS SHOW NO GAINS

Self-feeding dairy cows so that they get all the grain hay and silage they wished increased the amount and cost of feed eaten by the cows without swelling their milk production in an experiment by Dr. W. B. Nevins, assistant chief in dairy-cattle feeding at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. Results of the tests have just been published in a new bulletin, "Experiments in Self-Feeding of Dairy Cows," which the college now has ready for free distribution to interested persons.

Cows used in the experiment were only of moderate dairy ability and it is possible that self-feeding might prove useful with high-producing cows, although this point remains to be proved, Doctor Nevins said. Limiting cows to feeds containing high percentages of protein seemed to depress milk production.

Since fattening cattle and swine usually gain faster when fed by the self-feeder method than when hand fed, it was thought that dairy cows might produce more milk if given free access constantly to several different kinds of feeds. Eight different cows were kept in individual boxes, stalls containing a feeder having several different hopper compartments. Supplies of grain and milk by-product were provided constantly in the compartments, and hay and silage in other large feed boxes, so that a cow might select as much of one or several feeds at any time she chose. The cows were gradually accustomed to the method at the beginning during a two to three-week period.

Surprising as it may seem to those who have found that cows become ill through overeating, no harmful results were apparent in these cows even though self-fed the year round. More feed than necessary was consumed, however, making the cost of feed greater than when the cows were hand-fed. The cows laid on additional weight, thus increasing the amount of feed necessary to maintain them.

The method proved useful in studying the relative palatability of different feeds. Much more of some feeds was eaten than of others, and in some cases the ration consisted of only one or two feeds, even though four or more other feeds were present in the stall. A greater quantity was eaten when the feeds were offered separately than when they were mixed. Cows showed very decided preference for certain feeds, and these preferences often extended over long periods. Greater feed consumption was secured when careful attention was given to catering to the cow's likes. Not two cows had the same preference for all feeds.

Amount of Water Needed for Average Milk Yield

The amount of water required to produce milk will depend to a large degree upon the cow, the kind of feed given her and the amount of milk she is producing; size, weather conditions - whether it is hot or cold, rainy or dry - and many other things which may arise to increase or decrease the consumption of water, so it would not be wise to say what we would allow the cow, whether only 30 pounds of water per day, or 50 pounds, etc.; but it would be highly advisable to give the cows free range to pure, fresh water, and they will take care of the amount needed.

Professor Eckles of Minnesota found by experiments that a cow producing 27 pounds of milk per day drank 77 pounds of water. The same animal, when dry, drank only 15 pounds per day. Another cow, producing over 100 pounds of milk per day, used during the test period an average of 250 pounds of water. The story of these figures shows that the water requirement is about 25 pounds of water per pound of milk. No doubt this is a fair average.

Natural Methods Upset in Teaching Young Calf

In modern dairy farming, because of the value of whole milk and butterfat, the dairyman upsets the natural method which the calf would follow in feeding and separates the calf from the cow soon after birth. For the first few days the calf is left with the cow, because of the properties of the milk, which puts the calf's digestive apparatus in good working order. Most dairymen leave the calf with its mother for 48 hours, unless the calf is weak, when it is best to allow it to remain longer. The longer the calf remains with the cow, however, the harder it is to teach it to drink.

Conical Type Cooler

The so-called conical type of milk cooler is used to a considerable extent on farms. This type of cooler is made of solid and comparatively low price and when properly used is efficient. The conical part of the cooler is hot; this allows a space for ice and water. The receiver, which sets on top of the conical part of the cooler, contains a number of small holes which allow the milk to flow over the conical surface, being cooled by the ice water within.

POULTRY FACTS

FEEDING FLOCK OF LAYING HENS

The New Hampshire station gives the following feeding recommendations for laying hens, formulated at the 1927 conference of representatives of New England agricultural colleges:

Mash formula: 200 pounds coarse yellow corn meal, 100 pounds wheat bran, 100 pounds middlings, preferably white; 100 pounds oat products (see paragraph 3); 25 pounds meat scraps, not less than 50 per cent protein; 25 pounds fish scraps, not less than 45 per cent protein; 25 pounds steamed bone meal; 25 pounds dried milk; 5 pounds common salt.

Grain formula: 200 pounds whole corn; 100 pounds wheat; 100 pounds oats.

1. That dry mash be kept before the birds constantly in hoppers or troughs that can be and are kept clean and free from litter, dirt and filth. That all hard grains be fed in similar hoppers or troughs. The amount will vary with the breed, the rate of production, the weather, and possibly other factors, but there is a growing tendency among poultrymen to feed grain more liberally.

2. Whole corn is recommended because there are certain vitamin losses in cracking, and furthermore the feeder is better able to check up on quality. This presupposes that chicks have been taught to eat whole corn on the range, or before being installed in the laying house.

3. Oats should be omitted from the scratch mixture when fed germinated. The term "oat products" in the mash formula includes oat flour, ground oatmeal or ground 40-42 oats. All are used pound for pound.

4. Cod liver oil is a valuable supplement that ought to be added to the ration during the winter months at the rate of one pint per 100 pounds of feed or nearly one quart per 100 hens per week or one-fourth pint per 100 hens per day. It should be fed the year around to hens kept in confinement.

Ganders Are Drawback in the Geese Business

Geese naturally mate in pairs. Sometimes you can force upon a gander more than one mate. Sometimes you cannot. I should say that the average you would have to keep would be two ganders to three and possibly four geese. That is one of the drawbacks of the geese business, says a writer in The Farmer. You have to keep too many unproductive males. The productive females do not lay a great number of eggs, perhaps 30 to 35, and unless some pains is taken in feeding them the eggs do not hatch very well.

If you have plenty of roughage, however, they can be rather cheaply fed. Short cuttings of alfalfa or clover hay may consist of one-third of the bulk of their feed. The other two thirds should consist of corn meal, wheat bran, wheat middlings. They should have a small amount of animal matter. This feed might be mixed with skim milk or buttermilk or add about 5 per cent of meat scraps or tankage to it. You should have fine sand, say about one pound in 100 pounds of soft feed. This soft feed should be fed quite wet. They might have a little whole corn at night, but not a great deal. Too much will make them so fat by spring that the geese eggs will not be fertile.

Changing Breed Doesn't Help Egg Production

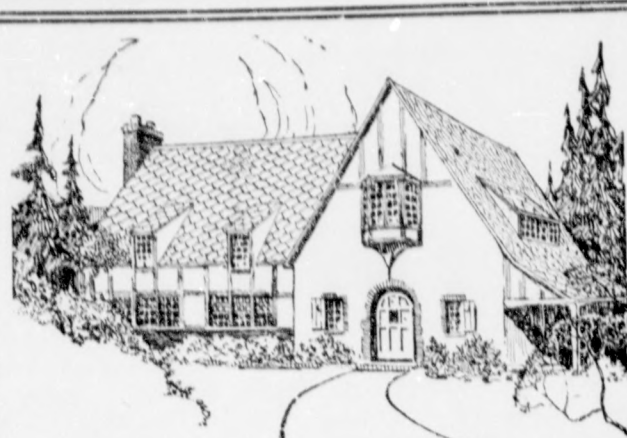

Unfortunately for a great many people the idea prevails that the only way to get more eggs is to change the breed or variety of birds kept. Merely changing from one breed of birds to another is not going to make any improvement in results, unless some one has previously done some constructive breeding with the particular strain of birds selected. Some very creditable records have been made by individual cows in various breeds, and we also know that individual hens in different breeds of poultry have made some very high egg-production records.

Contagious Roup

Contagious roup is a very easy disease to recognize, starting usually like simple cold, with a thin, watery discharge from the nose and eyes. This secretion has a peculiar, offensive odor. Inflammation sets into the nasal passages, eyes and spaces just below the eyeballs. Birds often cough and sneeze and breathing becomes noisy. If nasal passages become blocked the birds breathe through their mouths. The birds soon lose their appetite and become depressed.

Prevent Toe Picking

When boxes of day-old chicks arrive do not open them and allow the chicks to see each other very long. They will be hungry and with no feed in the box they may quickly form the toe-picking habit. This seldom happens when the chicks are placed in the brooder house where the litter and the feed hopper keeps them busy. Idleness is the foundation of bad habits in poultry of all ages. The busy hen on the range seldom cuts eggs or pulls feathers from her flock mates.
