CHRISTMAS by W. D. Pennypacker

IN HUMAN experience there is no page more replete with joyous association. The first Christmas we remember only as described in sacred story, and we visualize its influence through the spirit exemplified in the lives of our fellows.

The next Christmas we cannot recall. We may have lain in trundle-bed or cuddled in a mother's arms. That was a hallowed Christmas!

Then followed anniversaries teeming with visions of sleighs, Santa Claus, candy and toys, when the veriest romance of Yuletide was so real! We never forget those days.

But how mystically they merge into another epoch. With the diminishing vision of Santa we become aware of a better Christmas in the conscious love and loyalty of others. And then—

In years that follow, the Christmas season becomes richer and more beautiful. It has lost the confusion of toys and confectio ns. But in all these years there has been growing a tree that is ever green—upon it a thousand glittering spangles—hallowed memories of those who played with us around our earliest Christmas trees, or shared the season's festivities in later years.

Refreshing are the recollections that flood upon us as a newer generation takes our place in the pleasures and happy illusions of Christmas.

May this Yuletide be brighter and happier than all that have gone before.

RULES TO BALK
FLU ARE GIVEN

Washington, Dec. 15.—Surgeon General Cumming Friday issued 11 simple directions for avoiding influenza, after receiving recommendations from the board of strategy organized by him to deal with the epidemic.

First indication of concern abroad was received by the American health authorities during the day in a radiogram from the League of Nations seeking information about the spread of the disease in this country. The communication said European newspapers were printing reports of widespread epidemic.

Unless conditions become as serious as during the 1918 epidemic in which communities were left without medical aid because of illness among physicians, the public health service officials Friday said the service would take no specific steps in the present outbreak except to issue warnings and directions through state health officers.

The service also reiterated their statement that the reports on the number of cases throughout the country were incomplete.

Gives Advice

In his rules to avoid the disease the surgeon general warned against mingling with crowds and especially coming in contact with persons "who are coughing, sneezing or sniffling." He added that to avoid crowds walking to work would not only mean escape from crowded conveyances, but afford beneficial exercise. He also warned against using unsterilized napkins, towels and eating utensils, and against eating before washing the hands or putting the fingers into the mouth.

He advised getting as much sunshine as possible, sleeping with windows open, keeping away from houses in which there are cases of influenza, and keeping up general health by sleeping at least seven hours, eating wholesome food, and using "plenty of clean water, inside and outside."

Traces History

"In case you do contract the disease," he concluded, "go to bed as soon as symptoms develop, and remain there until you are completely recovered. Call a physician at once."

Surgeon General Cumming traced occurrences of influenza, and the causes suggested to it, from the time when Hippocrates, the Greek physician, in 400 B. C., attributed it to changes in the wind.

He said influenza and la grippe are one and the same thing, and explained that while influenza in itself has "probably never been fatal," its complications cause a "serious and devastating" condition.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

On last Wednesday morning Mr. Otis Parrish of Martin, rendered a most beautiful musical program on the violin, ably accompanied by Mrs. Walters at the piano. Following this, Mr. Smith Adkins, a well known business man of Fulton, delivered an inspiring address on "The Relations of High School Students Toward Business Men." Mr. Swann then read the rules which have been adopted for our new gymnasium.

Thursday morning Messrs. Patterson and McKay, principal, and Music Instructor of the Mayfield High School, respectively, each made a short talk, following which two of the Mayfield band boys, Joseph Burnett and Frank Perry, presented a varied musical program.

Mrs. Brann's Music Club of the Junior High school presented the chapel program Friday. Those participating were Euphie Glisson, Sara Owen, Ruth Nail, Sara Callahan, Martha Brady and Elizabeth Shankle. This program was composed of a vocal duet, a reading and three piano solos.

Dr. Prather, the County Supervisor made a talk in Chapel Monday, urging all the students to be more careful in order that they might not easily become a victim to the ever-spreading epidemic of influenza.

The Fourth Annual Faculty Play, "The Better Understanding," was presented at the new gymnasium last Friday night. All the characters were at their best and the faculty as a whole deserves much credit for so ably presenting the play. Dr. I. H. Read formally presented the new gymnasium to the public in a short talk which he gave before the play.

At two-thirty Monday afternoon the Mayfield High school band gave an hour concert in the new Science Hall. The program consisted of marches and several popular numbers.

The Paducah Debating team met the Fulton High school Debating team in a practice debate, Monday night at the new Science Hall. The Paducah team is composed of Joe Glover, Norman Price and Waymon Parsons. Those on the Fulton team are Clanton Boyd, Avery Hancock and Randolph Kramer. Both sides rendered very convincing arguments.

1928 SEAL SALE IN KENTUCKY

When the twentieth annual sale of Tuberculosis Christmas seals passes into history on Christmas Eve, it will record the highest returns of any sale yet held in Kentucky, according to Mr. M. O. Hughes, President of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association.

"Activities in the Christmas seal sale are continuing with as much enthusiasm as if the sale were just beginning instead of closing and the most successful sale yet held is the result," said Mr. Hughes, who has been identified with the tuberculosis work in the state for many years. "Last minute shoppers this year will have no difficulty in providing themselves with the cheery little messengers which are so potent in the campaign against tuberculosis, since they furnish funds for a year-long program of education and prevention, which is the best sort of community health insurance."

"On behalf of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association and its 70 affiliated leagues, I wish to thank the public for its sympathetic response and to urge early returns on the mail sale letters yet outstanding. To the press we are especially grateful, as they have made it possible for us to send our message to the public. To the thousands of volunteer workers, the children and all others, I extend thanks. May 1929 be especially happy and prosperous for us all."

A report of the returns will be announced by the chairman in each county as soon as possible, as in most places the seals will be available until the New Year.

FARM INVENTORY WEEK, JAN. 1-5

The College of Agriculture at Lexington says that 5,000 Kentucky farmers will take a regular business inventory the first week in January, which has been designed as farm inventory week. More than 3,000 farmers took inventories last January, and 2,500 farmers are keeping complete farm records this year. The work is being promoted by the college and county agents in the interests of better business methods in farming.

The College of Agriculture has prepared printed inventory forms which makes it easy and saves time in making an inventory. These blanks can be obtained through county agents. Farmers interested for the first time in taking an inventory should confer with their county agent, who is prepared to give assistance and to obtain inventory forms for them.

An inventory is considered the first step necessary in putting a farm on a business basis. On many farms the inventory can be taken in two or three hours. It consists of listing all property, livestock, feeds, machinery and the like on paper and assigning values to the various items.

By this method one can find the total value of all property and learn his net worth. One inventory shows where he stands, while a comparison of two inventories, shows which way one is going, that is whether he is getting ahead or going behind financially.

KENTUCKY SHEEP WIN AT THE INTERNATIONAL

State University Flock Furnishes Grand and Reserve Grand Champions

Kentucky sheep, exhibited by the State University, won the major prizes in the fat sheep show at the recent International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago, in competition with some of the best flocks from a score of states and Canada.

A Southdown wether Lamb exhibited by the university, won the grand championship, while a Shropshire wether lamb won the reserve grand championship. Only once before in the history of the International show has one exhibitor won both of the top prizes.

The university won the championships of the Southdown, Shropshire and Cheviot breeds, had the winning pen of Southdown lambs, all the prize winners in the Cheviot classes, all the firsts and champions in the John Clay specials, and won many placings of lesser importance.

Much of the credit for this record of the university flock is given to Harold Barber, who has sent many winners to the International show since he became shepherd at the Experiment Station six years ago.

Probably no other institution in the country has won so many sheep prizes at the International show as has the University of Kentucky. Among the champion sheep exhibited by this institution were the champion Cheviot wethers at the International in 1922, 1926, 1927 and 1928, and the champion Cheviot ram in 1927; the champion Hampshire wethers in 1921, 1922 and 1924; the champion grade wethers in 1924 and 1927; the champion Suffolk wethers in 1925 and 1926; the champion wethers in the John Clay Specials in 1924 and 1928; the champion Shropshire wether in 1928; the reserve grand champion wether in 1924 and 1928, and the grand champion wether in 1928.

KENTUCKY JUNIORS NEAR TOP AT INTERNATIONAL

Two Kentucky junior agricultural club members made exceptional records in contests with boys and girls from many other states at the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago.

Miss Virginia Duvall, of Todd county, health champion of Kentucky, was one of the top six girls in the national health contest, losing the championship by a narrow score.

Jack Lynch, of Fayette county, ranked fourth as a judge of swine and third as a judge of baking. He was a member of the state champion junior live stock judging team which represented Kentucky at the International show.

Jack won the state championship in judging baking at Junior Week at Lexington last June, when he excelled all girls in judging baked foods. This won him a free trip to Chicago, where he ranked close to the national champion.

27 outstanding Kentucky junior agricultural club members received trips to the International show.

Christmas Memories For Others

By Florence Harry Wells

WHEN the Herald Angels sing, "Glory to the new-born King!" The Christmas chimes were pealing overhead as Mrs. Peggy Walton hurried past the great department store.

A lump rose in Peggy's throat. Her eyes grew misty. She wondered if all these hurrying Christmas shoppers heard those chimes and felt as she did. Their faces gave no evidence of emotion; but neither did hers. Peggy assured herself.

Communing with herself Peggy thought of other Christmas shopping expeditions when all was joy and anticipation. But that was when Bob was little and the four grandparents and two aunts were all coming for the holiday festivities to the big brick house in the little town. Now Bob was twenty-one, the grandparents had passed away—Grandmother Walton and Grandmother Prentiss had gone just a short time apart the past summer. The two aunts felt as Peggy did that Christmas memories would be less poignant if they didn't try to have the customary reunion. And instead of the big brick house with its cheery fireplaces, in the friendly little town, they lived in an apartment in the city. Not much Christmas atmosphere about an apartment Peggy reflected.

But something must be done about Christmas for Bob's sake. If for no other reason. It wouldn't seem much like Christmas for Bob to come home from college to just her and Dad.

Peggy had passed beyond the sound of the chimes, but between shopping ventures her mind dwelt constantly on this Christmas problem and what she could do. All their friends had their own families at Christmas, just as they had had theirs until this year.

That brought her back again to the little town and the many changes that had taken place even in the short time they had been gone. Other homes besides theirs would miss the older generation this Christmas. Peggy began enumerating them in her mind.

There was Judge Hatford who had done so much for them when the first break had come and her own father had passed away, and even last summer when her mother, too, had gone. It was Judge Hatford who had taken the sting from the legal aspects. Yet, it was but a few weeks later when he also had been laid to rest in the little cemetery on the hill; then there was genial, courtly Mr. Morrow, and Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, separated from each other but a brief month, and Mr. and Mrs. Dawson—Peggy stopped in her summary. Why hadn't she thought of the Dawsons before? There was Fred Dawson, and Katharine, and their little boy Dick, and Katharine's younger sister, Mary; they, too, must be looking forward to Christmas with sorrowful memories; for always they had come from the far-off city to the home in the little town for the holidays and now there was no home to which to come.

"It's worse for them than for us," Peggy decided. "They're just what we need. Mary and Bob will have a good time. We always enjoy Fred and Katharine. And there's little Dick, bless his heart; a child is what we want to revive the Christmas spirit."

Again Peggy found herself within hearing of the Christmas chimes:

"Joy to the world" was ringing forth as she approached the department store on her homeward way. But there was no lump in her throat this time and her eyes were clear and stary as she gaily hastened along planning for others and winning for herself A Merry Christmas.

BEELERTON HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

We were very proud of our basket ball team when the glad tidings came that we were victorious in the three games which were played on the Clinton court on last Friday night. The boys played one game with Shiloh, and the other one with Clinton. The girls versus the Shiloh girls. The first game of the evening was between Beelerton and Shiloh boys. The score was 21-7. The line-up was as follows:

Rf. Harry Bushart; lf. Rupert Phelps; c. Carnie Hicks; rg. Paul Fite; lg. Ernest Cardwell.

The second game was between Beelerton and Shiloh girls. Final score was 6-1.

The line-up for girls game was:

Rf. Ima Fite; lf. Zelma Pil-low; c. Frances Byrn; rg. Pauline Brown; lg. Mildred Cook.

The last game was our boys against Clinton boys. All these games were of much interest and excitement but this game was probably more exciting than any, as the final score was 10-9. The line up was:

Rf. Harry Bushart; lf. Lowell Weatherspoon; c. Royall Bennett; rg. Paul Fite; lg. Rupert Moore.

Lowell Weatherspoon and Royall Bennett tied in being the high point man.

We appreciate the kindness that was shown by the Clinton coach, and good sportsmanship was shown by all the teams.

The Negro Minstrel given by the Junior High Students, on Saturday night, December 15, proved a wonderful success in every respect. The children were real Negroes in every part of the play, and they showed real talent as expert performers. This proves that these students had been trained by an excellent coach, who was Mr. Noel Kendall, their teacher. We certainly appreciate the loyalty of the ones who braved the weather of possible rain in order to keep up the old school spirit. The door receipts were $33.20. Mrs. Bennett deserves much honor. Her untiring efforts at the piano played a large part, and helped to make possible the enjoyable evening.

Everybody come out to the Christmas program Friday afternoon, December 21. We have already received word from Old Santa Claus that he will be able to be with us on this occasion.

BETTER DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM FOR BEN- NETT COMMUNITY

At a meeting called to order by John Finch and introduced Professor H. A. Edge of Clinton, Ky., as farm agent, who, after a brief statement of the work he had done in South Carolina and Virginia in the past six years with the aid of those present arranged, the following program for the year.

Messrs. J. F. Butler and Sam Reed will do dairying, with records kept on amount of feed, pounds of milk and test of milk from each cow per month.

Messrs. Sam Reed and John Binkley will grow tobacco.

J. R. Holland will grow sweet potatoes.

John Finch will grow sweet clover.

Mrs. J. R. Holland will feed and manage poultry. Professor Edge and his students are asking all citizens of this community that are not doing actual work under such supervision, to keep a close watch on all projects, attend all meetings, and at the end of the year give judgment as to failure or success.

PROMINENT PADUCAH PHYSICIAN PASSES AWAY

Funeral services for Dr. Horace T. Rivers, 59 years of age, one of the leading surgeons and physicians of Western Kentucky, who died Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at his home in Colonial Heights, Paducah, Ky., were held Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock at the St. Francis de Sales Catholic church, with the Rev. Father Saffron officiating.

For more than twenty years Dr. Rivers had practiced medicine and surgery in Paducah and had won the esteem and friendship of all those with whom he came into contact. Since the establishment of the Riverside hospital Dr. Rivers had been actively connected with its staff. He was a member and former president of the Southwestern Kentucky Medical Society and also a member of the McCracken County Medical Society.

Dr. Rivers was born in Ballard county August 30, 1869, the son of Tom and Sue Rivers, pioneer residents of that county.

THRILLING FIRE SCENE IN LATEST FILM

Wonderful Spectacle in "Moon of Israel."

There have been few more thrilling films than "Moon of Israel," which is to appear at the Orpheum, December 24-25. It is a production which deals with the Exodus of the Children of Israel from Egypt, and the romance of Merapi, an Israelite maiden, and Seti, Prince of Egypt. From beginning to end the picture is crammed with marvelous scenes and startling effects such as the changing of Moses' rod into a snake, the dividing of the Red Sea to allow the Israelites to pass, and the roaring flames that spring up in the path of the charging Egyptian chariots. This scene in particular is one of the most majestic that has ever been screened. Two thousand chariots with wildly shouting drivers and rearing excited horses charged across the plain to where the cameras are grinding. Then from a trench in the ground spring a curtain of crimson flame. Instantly there is a chaotic upheaval of frightened horses and drivers, a scene that impresses the watchers as few others have done.

"PRISONERS OF HOPE" AT CITY HALL

A great religious program, under the auspices of the Southern Presbyterian church, is being prepared, and will be put on at the City Hall, Fulton, Ky., Friday evening, December 21, at 7 o'clock.

The program consists of The Voice, The Church, Three Prophets, Three Graces, Faith, Hope, Love, Pilgrims of the Night, Pilgrims of the Day, Junior Choir of forty voices, concealed Choir of some ten voices, a couple of duets and a solo.

Those to furnish the music are being trained by Mrs. Burton Duncan, formerly of Memphis, an expert pianist, who has been a director of music in city public schools, and is an artist in this line of work. We believe that it should prove the best program of the season. Our use of the City Hall is the result of the courtesy of the Mayor of Fulton, and the piano is the result of the kindness of the Rucker Music Shop, and the liberal dealing of Mr. Nolan Williams in the matter of putting it in place.

Everybody invited to come. No admission, but a free will offering will be taken for the orphans of deceased ministers.

Lesson for December 23

PAUL'S LAST MESSAGE

LESSON TEXT—II Timothy 4:1-18
GOLDEN TEXT—I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course. I have kept the faith.

PRIMARILY TOPIC—Paul's Last Message to His Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Farewell to His Friends.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Christian's Goal.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul's Victorious Faith.

I. Paul's View of Death (v. 6).

It is:

1. An offering (v. 6). "I am ready to be offered." This specifically means a drink offering—a libation. This figure shows that Paul was looking forward to a violent death. The shedding of his blood was to be an offering poured out upon the sacred altar as an act of worship. Death can only be an offering to God when the life has been wholly yielded to the doing of God's will.

2. A departure (v. 6). "The time of my departure is at hand." The same idea is expressed in Philippians 1:23. "Departure" is a nautical term which signifies the towing of a ship from its moorings, in order to enter upon its voyage. It is not the end of the voyage, but its beginning. It indicates that the vessel is onward bound. The anchor is being lifted and the sails are being spread for the homeward.

II. Paul's Backward Glance at Life (v. 7).

God has a definite purpose for each life. Life should be so spent that at its close one can look back with the definite consciousness that that purpose has been accomplished. This backward look is presented in three figures:

1. "I have fought a good fight." The figure here is that of a soldier. The Christian life is a warfare—conflicts, dangers and temptations must be met. As a soldier, the Christian must fight and overcome all these.

2. "I have finished my course." The figure is that of an athlete who sets out to win a race. The Christian life is a race to be run; we must not only begin the race, but persistently run to the end.

3. "I have kept the faith." The figure is that of a husbandman to whom had been entrusted a treasure. This treasure was the Christian faith.

III. Paul's Forward Look to the Future (v. 8).

1. He saw before him a life with God. Fellowship with God is a prize greatly to be desired.

2. A prize was laid up for him—a crown of righteousness. This award will be given at the coming of the Lord to all who love His appearing.

IV. Paul's Associates (vv. 9-12).

Paul was a very lonely man, though faithful to God. To be alone in the world is likely to be the experience of all who follow hard after God.

1. Demas the renegade (v. 10). Demas has become immortalized as one who was religious, but because of the attractions of the world he went after. He laid his back upon principle, friendship, honor and duty.

2. Luke the faithful (v. 11). What comfort it must have been to have with him this one faithful soul! Perhaps he was the best fitted of all to minister unto Paul.

3. Mark the restored runaway (v. 11). Mark had gone back, but he was restored. We do not know how long a time elapsed between his running away and his restoration.

V. Personal Matters (vv. 13-18).

1. Bring the cloak, books and parchments (v. 13). In the jail the cloak would be needed for his comfort. The books and parchments would be needed for his study and writing.

2. Alexander the coppersmith (v. 14, 15). We have no way of determining just when the coppersmith did him much evil. It was given as a warning to this young minister, Timothy.

3. Defended by the Lord though for saken by men (vv. 16-18).

Paul in his last trying hours was much like his Lord—left alone. He says, "All men forsook me." It was said of Christ, "They all forsook him and fled." Paul manifested a like spirit, "I pray God that it might not be laid to their charge." Christ said, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do." Though it was wrong for them to leave him alone, he not only forgave them, but prayed that the Lord might forgive them.

Several Reasons Why Home Ownership Pays

"We Own Our Own Home." Just this simple little phrase means much to those fortunate enough to be able to say it.

It means that they are lords and masters of their own households. It signifies that here are folks entitled to a greater measure of respect, J. H. Hildebrandt writes, in the Chicago American. It shows that they are fathers and mothers who did not hesitate to sacrifice some of the small pleasures of life so that their children could grow up in proper surroundings.

Occasionally people argue that it does not pay to own a home. If one were to reckon only in dollars and cents, perhaps in some cases it might not pay.

But what has money got to do with it anyway? How can one compare a possible saving of a few dollars with the great measure of satisfaction and contentment that is bound to be evident to the owned home. I am willing to grant that there are unpleasant tasks, but think of the many other interesting things that the home owner can do.

Every man should have a hobby of some sort, but I wish to point out that the greatest inspiration for this sort of thing would be found around the owner's home.

If you have hesitated to own a home on account of the two reasons mentioned above better get busy at once, especially if you have sons and daughters. Living in rented quarters you are missing a lot of the busy things in life, and you are overlooking one of the best assurances that your children will grow up to be a credit to yourself and the community at large.

Let more of us adopt the best hobby of all, "Our Own Home."

Look to Protection of Home From Fire

We often hear people say that if they had a fire they would let it burn and collect the insurance. Probably the home owner who takes pride in his possessions would not do that in case of actual fire. In any case, this is not the correct or safe attitude to take.

Policy stipulations go into detail regarding ownership of property insured. They state plainly that the policy is void, unless specifically provided in a written rider attached to the policy, if the insured is not sole owner of the property; if the building occupies land not owned by the insured; if the insured knows foreclosure proceedings have been instituted; if there is any change of title other than by the death of the insured, or if the policy is assigned before a loss. If any such conditions exist or should arise the home owner should notify the agent or broker immediately.

Some Important Don'ts

Don't build on a fill of any kind. Don't build on a reclaimed swamp. Let your great-grandson do that. Don't build on black soil. Dig it out.

Don't take chances on narrow footings. Make them wide.

Don't use sand from the excavation if it contains organic matter. Don't try to save cement in concrete for footings.

Don't leave the footings uncovered if you build in winter.

Don't try to level off the footing trench with loose material before placing concrete. Build from the natural ground.

Don't guess about footings. Know what kind of soil you have and what the building weighs.

Really Belong to City

The man who buys real estate in a city becomes a permanent part of the municipality because he owns a very vital interest in the city. Even though he may be compelled to transfer his place of abode to some other locality at a subsequent date, as long as he is a property owner he cannot escape maintaining a very definite interest in the welfare and progress of his former home city.

Cheaper Lot, Better House

The less expensive the lot the more money is left for the house itself, and a well-constructed house on a cheap lot is far more desirable than an unsatisfactory house on an expensive lot. Although a house that is very much more expensive than its neighbors might be hard to sell at a good price, a very cheap house may add nothing at all to the sale value of an expensive lot.

Trade Possibilities

Andalusia citizens would do well to take a day off and get together and talk about Andalusia, her trade possibilities, her problems that are common to all her citizens. Such gatherings would promote good will and cooperation and these twin blessings are always essential to the greatest growth of any city.—Andalusia Star.

Look Well to Schools

Schools generally are the barometer of a community's progress.

LISTEN CHILDREN!

The O. K. Laundry during the week between Christmas and New Years has set apart for the cleaning of school children's garments, to the end that they may return to school with germ-free, clean clothing, better fortified to carry through the latter half of the school year. And that we, as cleaners, are willing to contribute of our time and service to those who, through no fault of theirs, are unable to pay for this service.

Let us have your garments early during the week between Christmas and New Years.

Remember the service is free to any child unable to pay.

Laid up in the Hospital he sold $200,000 worth of Silk

A NEW YORK raw silk salesman had to go to the hospital for 10 days. He secured a room with a telephone. Throughout his convalescence, he kept informed of the course of the market. Sent and received his cables by telephone. Kept in constant touch with office and customers. Sold more than $200,000 worth of silk.

A Milwaukee dry goods salesman was forced to cancel his regular trip because of a broken leg. From his sick room, he covered in 5 days by telephone the same territory that took 5 or 6 weeks of traveling.

Held up by road conditions, a tire salesman had to abandon a certain trip in southern Nebraska. He went to the telephone office, covered his territory by Long Distance, and sold $1280 worth of tires.

You will be surprised how little long distance calls now cost. New station to station day rates are: Atlanta to New York, $3.25. New Orleans to Chicago, $3.50. Birmingham to Pittsburgh, Pa., $2.80. Miami to Cleveland, Ohio, $4.25. . . . Calling by number takes less time. . . . Number, please?

A Fall Birthday Party

HERE are suggestions for a Royal Birthday Party that will delight any one whose birthday is to be celebrated this fall.

Purple asters and autumn leaves make gorgeous decorations. Tiny purple asters may be used instead of birthday candles on a white birthday cake. Or you may bake the cake in a tube pan and place a vase of asters in the center after the cake is frosted. Have tall candlesticks on mantels and tables, with purple candles in them. For the centerpiece of the table, make a lavender and purple crepe paper Jack Horner Pie, and in it place the birthday gifts, all wrapped in lavender tissue and tied with purple ribbon. When possible, gifts should have a suggestion of purple about them. Scarfs, perfume, silk or linen printed handkerchiefs, bath salts, boutonnieres, pictures, and books may all be selected so that there is at least a hint of royal purple about them.

Here is a royal menu for the party:

Royal Sandwiches * Queen Olives
Almonds
Chicken a la King

Pineapple Royal Birthday Cake

Royal Sandwiches: Mix and force through a meat chopper one cup canned shrimp, one cup chopped chicken livers, one canned pimiento, one small Bermuda onion. Season with salt and moisten with mayonnaise. Spread between thin slices of buttered whole wheat bread, remove crusts and cut in diamond shapes.

Pineapple Royal: Chill canned sliced Hawaiian pineapple. Arrange a slice on each plate, place on top a round slice of strawberry or vanilla ice cream, cover with whipped cream and top with a maraschino cherry.

SOUTHERN FENCE

Horse-high--Bull-strong--Pig-tight
--"Weather-wise"--Rust-proof

SOUTHERN FENCE holds its own against the strongest pressure and resumes normal shape as soon as pressure is removed, because it has HINGED JOINTS. Also retains its shape in all weathers, as TENSION CURVES allow it to expand when hot and contract when cold. Made of the highest grades of tough, springy open hearth steel wire with extra heavy and uniform galvanized coating in which the best prime Western spelter zinc is used.

SOUTHERN FENCE IS LIFE-TIME FENCE—on the job all the while. You can get it here. We sell SOUTHERN FENCE under the guarantee of the Gulf States Steel Company, who make it.

What Shall I Give For Christmas?

This very pertinent question is answered—exhaustively, thoroughly, comprehensively, suggestively. We mention gifts appropriate for every member of the family—father, mother, brother, sister, relatives, friends or sweethearts. And with the selection as varied and attractive as it is this year at this store, Christmas shopping and gift selecting is more of a pleasure than a drudgery. You come into this store and see so many beautiful things that are suitable gifts for the loved ones in mind that you are happily perplexed in not knowing which ones of the hundreds to buy. We offer you the result of months of buying and looking around for Christmas goods. While we are always desirous of selling just as low as we possibly can, yet quality is our foundation, and you can rest assured that any article bought for a present will give satisfaction and pleasure to the recipient every time he or she has occasion to use it.

We are mentioning a few of the appropriate articles suitable for Christmas and purposely omitting prices in order that you may forget all about the cost in anticipation of the pleasure of giving.

Fostoria
IS the name of fine crystal and decorated glassware. It is distinctly a quality product. There is clear colored glass, the new blue, amber, canary and green; mother-of-pearl and Spanish lustre iridescent; coin gold band ware; encrusted gold ware; needle etchings and deep plate etchings. Something to suit every taste—every purpose, and every pocketbook! And whatever is marked with the Fostoria label is without qualification the finest glassware you can buy. All sorts of designs, patterns and pieces. This week we are featuring Fostoria goblets and Fostoria perfume bottles.

Kentucky Has Two Propositions For Cumberland Falls State Park, Power Commission Hearing Shows

Kentucky has the choice of a state park covering more than 30,000 acres, including Cumberland Falls, a lake of about 20 square miles area and a $7,000,000 hydro-electric plant, or on the other hand a state park of less than 2,000 acres including Cumberland Falls only.

This was made public by Gov. Mem D. Sampson in a statement to the Federal Power Commission at a hearing on the proposed hydro-electric development on the Cumberland River, held in Washington, D. C., on December 7.

The Governor presented to the commission a contract between the Cumberland River Power Company and the Kentucky State Park Commission, which he said was perhaps the most favorable agreement, from the viewpoint of state welfare, ever secured by the Commonwealth.

If the Commission grants the company a license to build a 40,000 horsepower hydro-electric plant, this contract provides that:

(a) The dam forming the lake shall be nearly three-quarters of a mile upstream from Cumberland Falls and out of sight of the falls.

(b) The powerhouse shall be nearly a mile below the falls, and out of sight of the falls.

(c) The minimum flow of water over the falls shall always be greater than the present natural minimum flow.

(d) The 200 acres surrounding and including the falls, now owned by the company, shall be controlled by the State Park Commission as part of a much larger state owned park.

(e) The company shall give the State Park Commission $250,000 for the purchase of land for a park and for road building in the park.

(f) The company shall give to the State Park Commission, after completion of the hydro-electric plant, a 60-foot right-of-way including its road thereon from Cumberland Falls to Cumberland Falls Station on the Southern Railway, a distance of thirteen miles.

(g) The company shall not mar the falls, deface the surrounding country or destroy timber and shrubbery.

(h) The company shall build a standard road across the top of the dam or a modern bridge near it, over Cumberland River for the use of the State Highway Commission.

(i) The company shall clean up the park region, removing all houses, shacks, equipment, etc., after construction is completed.

Gov. Sampson told the Federal Commission that the State Park Commission holds options on more than 60,000 acres of land surrounding the falls at prices ranging from $3.50 to $6.00 an acre. He said he had discussed U. S. Senator T. Coleman du Pont's proposed gift of $200,000 for the purchase of Cumberland Falls with Mr. duPont's representatives, had conferred with the power company officials regarding its plans, and found the company's proposal of far greater advantage to Kentucky.

The governor urged the granting of the license on the ground that it would provide the people a magnificent state park and game preserve at no cost, and also bring the state a new $7,000,000 power plant which would yield many thousands of dollars yearly in taxes, would help the state's industrial growth, would aid poverty-stricken Whitley and Meigs counties immeasurably, and would pay local labor $2,500,000 wages during the two-year construction period.

"The Cumberland Falls region will be much more attractive after the development is made and the great lake formed than it is today, and many thousands more people will come each year to visit the section than have ever been there in the last twenty-five years," he concluded.

Afterward, Gov. Sampson said less than 2,000 acres are now available for the proposed dam purchase, according to information given him by Mr. duPont's representatives.

Opposition to the granting of the license was led by John Doolan of Louisville, counsel for the opponents. He declared the proposed development would destroy Cumberland Falls and deface the surrounding landscape, and that T. Coleman duPont, former Kentuckian, has offered to give $200,000 to the state for the purchase of the falls and some land surrounding them.

Mr. Doolan was supported by Tor Wallace, John W. Barr, Jr., and former Gov. William J. Fields, of Louisville, Dr. T. W. Rainey of Lexington, Seth Gordon of Chicago, Arno P. Cammerer and Miss Harlean James of Washington, D. C., and William A. Welch of New York, representative various groups.

Congressman J. M. Robison, representing all counties traversed by the Cumberland river in eastern Kentucky, was spokesman for a delegation of forty of his constituents who went to Washington to plead for the development as an economic necessity in a poverty-stricken region. His speech was followed by those of Congresswoman Katherine W. Laney, Mr. James Darnell, secretary of the State Park Commission, Dr. Willard Ross, J. Gibson, State Geologist, Judge Henry Tye, Charles Finley and A. T. Sills of Williamsburg, Judge B. J. Bethum of Frankfort and Vernon Richardson of Danville.

Robert G. Gordon of Louisville, counsel for the company, opened the hearing with a statement covering the legal aspects of the case and a detailed explanation of the proposed development.

All those supporting the development asserted there is no reason why Kentucky cannot have both a big state park containing Cumberland Falls and an important hydro-electric plant, each a great asset to the state.

The energetic opposition of representatives of groups outside Kentucky, to the development, was characterized as an unwarranted intrusion into a question concerning Kentucky alone.

"It is noteworthy that most of the opponents to development have been within 150 miles of Cumberland Falls," Representative Robison declared in effect. "They know nothing of the condition of the people in the region concerned, and they have no interest in the need of these people for prosperity and schools and roads."

"You loved him once and perhaps"—she bit her lip as she said under her breath, "no perhaps about it, I still do." Annoyed at having voiced a sentiment even to herself which she had been trying to stamp out of her very soul for two years, she turned from her reflection in her dressing table mirror and seated herself near the window.

"Confusing?" It was maddening! Conflicting emotions were aroused which refused to be put down even by Seth's usually intrepid, fine, buoyant spirit. It was the aftermath, the letdown reaction of the rush and tumble of Christmas.

"It was just fate that I should have been out both times when Livingston phoned. After two years! Now he surprises that this is a pretty little hoax set for him. But this letter is the most baffling of all. To think of a man having the presumption to ask you to attend with him a wedding of one of his friends when you hadn't corresponded, met or otherwise conversed after a break of two years standing!"

Seth gave a deep sigh and reread the postscript again for the forty-fourth time. "Setha, please arrange to meet me so that we may have about half an hour to, well, get acquainted again."

As Setha prepared to finish dressing she paused to herself that Livingston did presume a great deal in asking her to attend the wedding of one of his friends—and on Christmas day at that. The dress which had received so much favorable comment on its becomingness was instinctively selected and put on. How queer, thought Setha when she thought that dress, the day after she had arrived home, in making the purchase she had said to herself, "wouldn't Livingston just adore that color?"

There was Livingston. She stopped and admired his immaculate crispness and fine physique before entering the room of the church house and revealing her presence. Livingston, however, felt her glance and turned quickly.

"Setha, how glad I am to see you. You did not let me know whether you would be here or not, and I was in hopes you would come. How lovely you look. Come in and sit down."

Setha could only beam and inarticulately murmur something or other about a long time.

"Livingston, you too, are looking splendid. My curiosity must be abated at once. What about the wedding? Who is being married? You know I am frightfully behind in news after being away so long. Attending bridge parties is not conducive to picking up the lacking odd bits of gossip."

"To be very brief—I am going to take part, I hope."

Setha's well-controlled facial muscles could not help but show their shock. Why should he torture her like this? It was unbearable. After having adjusted her married life, said, "Why, Livingston, you are to be congratulated. I didn't know."

"No, of course you didn't. It is a wild venture on my part and may precipitate failure, but I hope not. The facts of the matter are I have waited a long time, too long a time, for this day to come. Don't you think, Setha, we were very foolish to quarrel as we did? You were twenty-two and I not much more, and neither one of us would give in and admit his or her love. Isn't that about right?"

Setha only nodded, afraid to trust her voice. Was this all a bad dream? Would she at any minute take wings and fly from the room? She couldn't. Her feet seemed weighed to the floor. Livingston didn't care to fly away, he became more vivid and animated every minute.

"Setha, have you changed your mind about loving me? I love you more than anyone in the world. The world has been empty without you. Today is Christmas day. I want to have you for a Christmas present. Setha, the parson's waiting in the church auditorium for you to say 'yes.'"

As the door of the church auditorium leading from the church house softly closed, a young man proudly escorted his adored one to the parson at the altar.

FRUIT SHORTCAKES FOR ALL

Fruit shortcakes! Be your family large or small, here's something delicious for one and all.

There is infinitely more to the shortcake story than mounds of strawberries and whipped cream between layers of old-fashioned shortcake pastry. Peaches, apricots, plums and pineapple, and jellies and marmalade make luscious shortcakes that rival in goodness the traditional strawberry shortcake. They may be topped with custard, hard sauce, marmalade whip or meringue as a variation from the whipped cream.

As the following recipes are for individual shortcakes, it is easy to have as many or as few of them as your family requires. If you will follow the directions given below, your family will tell you that you can't have too many of them. Here is how some of these melting bits of deliciousness are made:

Apricot and Pineapple

Apricot Shortcake: Drain canned apricots from their syrup, and rub through a sieve. Beat three-fourths cup of cream, add apricot pulp and sweeten to taste. Serve between biscuit halves. Canned peaches may be substituted for the apricots.

Pineapple Shortcake: Drain canned crushed pineapple from its syrup, spread pineapple over soft shortcake halves and cover with cream sauce made as follows: whip cream, add one-third cup sugar and one-half cup sugar. Whip until enough to hold its shape add one-half teaspoon va-

Apple Butter and Currant Jelly

Apple Butter Marshmallow Shortcake: Split in half, rich tea biscuits and spread generously with apple butter, either home-made or canned. Make a marshmallow sauce as follows: cut one-fourth pound of marshmallows in pieces and melt in a double boiler. Dissolve one cup of confectioner's sugar in one-fourth cup of boiling water. Add to the melted marshmallows, and stir until blended. Cool, spread over the apple butter, and on the top half of the biscuit spread more apple butter and marshmallow sauce. Pear, peach or plum butter or any fruit preserves or jam may be substituted for the apple butter. The marshmallow sauce will be sufficient for six individual shortcakes.

Currant Jelly Meringue Shortcake

Currant Jelly Meringue Shortcake: Spread individual shortcake or biscuit halves with a thick layer of currant jelly. Spread over all a stiff meringue. Brown in the oven and serve either warm or cold, as desired. Grape jelly or apple jelly meringue shortcakes may be made in the same way.

Peach Custard and Strawberry

Peach Custard Shortcake: Make a custard as follows: beat one-half cup of eggs, add one-half cup sugar, one-half cup milk and one-half cup scalded milk, stirring constantly. Cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens enough to coat the spoon. Strain immediately, add one-half teaspoon vanilla and chill. Place the bottom half of a biscuit on a serving plate and spread canned sliced peaches generously on top. Pour the custard over the peaches, top with the upper biscuit half and more custard, and garnish with peaches.

Strawberry Shortcake: A new kind of strawberry shortcake can be made by making a sauce of the strawberries as follows: cream one-third of a cup of butter with three teaspoons of powdered sugar. Add the stiffly beaten white of one egg. Add gradually, beating all the while, two-thirds of a cup of mashed fresh or canned strawberries. Beat until the sauce is thoroughly blended, and spread between biscuit halves. Garnish with a spoonful of whipped cream.

The advantage of using biscuit dough as a foundation for shortcake is that no special dough will have to be prepared. If you have hot biscuits for dinner, make a few more than you need, split and butter while they are hot and set them aside for your shortcake.

Shortcake Biscuit Dough: Sift two cups of flour with three teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon sugar. Rub in three tablespoons of shortening. Add one-half cup of milk and stir lightly with a knife until a soft dough is formed. Remove to a floured board, roll gently to one inch thickness. Cut and bake from ten to twelve minutes.

WOODMEN ELECT OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR

The W. O. W. met Friday at the Chamber of Commerce and elected officers for the ensuing year. The following officers were elected:
Atkins Cole, Clerk; Sam Turner, Council Commander; J. H. Lowe, Banker; W. O. Fulcher, Escort; Alva Cole, Sentry; Sam A. Cole, Adv.; J. E. Fall, N. G. Cooke, M. P. McDowell, managers; Dr. R. T. Rudd, physician.
The meeting was presided over by State Manager, J. H. Flowers, of Louisville. He spoke of W. O. W. benefits and the importance of holding regular meetings. On the second Friday night in January a meeting will be held at Atkins Cole's office and the new officers will be installed.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

More than 20,000 tons of ground limestone have been used by Fulton county farmers this year.

More than 100 McCracken county farmers attended dairy feeding schools, in which feeding problems were discussed.

I. H. Thurman & Son, owners of Kalamia Farm, gave a banquet to Washington county junior club members who sent calves to the fat stock show at Louisville.

Stanley Menefee, of Grant county, has built a 20 by 20 model poultry house at a cost of $192. His 130 White Rock hens average 155 eggs for the year.

One Perry county farmer reports a profit of $100 from his 400 hens in November.

Charles Smith, of Allen county, sprayed and otherwise cared for his peach trees this year, and sold $100 worth of fruit, the first time he had an income from his orchard.

A survey showed that Monroe county farmers received about $3,400 for cream sold during November.

Thirty-five farmers organized a limestone club and built a limeshed in the Fredonia community in Caldwell county.

The Dawson Daylight Coal Company in Hopkins county has begun the planting of a 60-acre orchard.

Colored junior agricultural club boys and girls in Fayette county grew 20 gardens and raised 2,464 chickens and 80 hogs this year, worth a total of $3,103.

ROAD WORK IS PROGRESSING NICELY

Martin Now Has Outlet in All Directions on Hard Surfaced Roads

Highway 22 West to Union City, recently completed, will be opened to traffic December 24, the entire length. Work was to be completed on the east section between Dresden and Martin yesterday. Part of this route is opened and the entire route will be open to traffic about January 1.

Work on the bridge spanning the Obion on Highway 43 to Fulton, is progressing. One steel and one concrete span remain to be placed. It is expected that this bridge will be open to traffic about January 15. A gravel detour by way of McConnell, is now being used around the bridges.

It is expected that the contract to concrete No. 3 between Martin and the Gibson county line will be let early next year, and the section between Martin and Fulton let later in 1929.

The completion of the concrete on 22 connects three trunk lines, No. 1, the Memphis-Bristol Highway at Huntington; No. 43, the Mississippi Valley Highway at Martin and No. 3, the Jeff Davis Highway at Union City.

Martin now has all weather roads in the four directions, a good gravel road to Mt. Pelia, and the prospect of a gravel road to Latham within a short time. Weakley County, once a joke in the matter of roads, will, on completion of county and state projects, have as good roads as any county in the state.—Martin Press.

POULTRY

KEEPING TURKEYS IN PROPER HEALTH

Turkeys are heir to all the poultry ailments, and treatment is about the same. But while the young are tender, the adults are able to withstand considerable hardship.

When allowed to range over fields, woods and highways they keep in the best of condition and pick up a very large portion of their food, writes Michael K. Boyer in the Farm and Ranch. As the nature of the turkey is to roam, it does not thrive in confinement.

Inbreeding is one of the worst errors and the cause of much degeneracy among stock. Indigestion is the chief turkey trouble, and this is usually brought on by improper feeding.

Looseness of the bowels may come from bad feeding, dampness, filth, and infestation with lice.

Young turkeys are sometimes lost through rheumatism, caused by exposure, damp roosting places, too little green food, or poorly-constructed houses.

There is a difference between ordinary leg weakness and rheumatism. In the latter the shanks remain contracted and stiff, while in leg weakness they are soft. Leg weakness is brought on by a lack of muscle and bone-forming material. In rheumatism the trouble is aggravated by the meat food, which in leg weakness is needed.

Young turkeys must not be allowed to become wet. The slightest dampness is apt to be fatal. Filth will soon make short work of the youngsters.

The delicacy of young turkeys is largely due to the rapid growth of feathers. Unlike the chick, the young turkey at once starts to put out large feathers on its wings and tail, and this heavy growth has a tendency to sap the vitality from the body, leaving it an easy prey to weakness and disease. A damp soil, such as heavy clay land, is very unsuitable for rearing the young. A very cold, exposed situation is likewise unfit.

Market Broilers Need

Two Weeks Fattening

It is a good plan to give the broilers that are to be marketed about two weeks of fattening before they are sold. This is especially advisable if something has happened during the brooding period to check the growth of these young birds. One way to fatten them is to confine a group of them in a small house—about 100 in a 12 by 12 house—for a period of two weeks just before selling them. Darken the house as much as possible, making sure there is plenty of ventilation. Remove any roasts or drooping boards that may be in the house and have plenty of clean litter on the floor to start with.

Feed them a wet mash of the consistency of pancake batter, composed of any of the good commercial fat feeders moistened with milk. Fine cracked yellow corn or yellow corn meal and milk are great fatteners for poultry. Feed the birds three times a day in troughs, what they will clean up at each feeding. Keep water away from them so they will eat lots of mash. Watch sanitary conditions carefully, to prevent any spreading of feed and possible disease infection. Keep everything clean.

Free Range With Grass

and Shade Is Favored

As soon as the chicks are old enough to leave the brooder—from six to eight weeks—they should be placed on free range with grass and shade if possible. If white diarrhea, gap worms or the little roundworms affected the chicks last year, place the coops on new range if possible, for these diseases are not easily gotten rid of and will remain on the ground from one season to another. This is especially true of the worms. If there is tuberculosis in the old flock keep the young chicks from going over the same ground for they contract the disease easily.

Grass will furnish all of the green feed necessary during the summer if chicks are on free range.

Examine the Hens

Handle the flock. There is dependability about touch which does not belong to sight. Feeling the breast bone of a fowl is an index to her condition. Looking at her tells little of her body. A hen that is out of condition may fluff her feathers like a broody hen. Wasting is common after a hard winter. Of the wasting diseases, tuberculosis comes first. Worms, lice and mites follow. The normal fowl in good health is in good flesh.

Good Chick Waterer

A good waterer for chicks can be made with a tomato can and saucer or a slung pail and pail tin. Punch holes about one inch from the upper edge of the can or pail—from six to eight holes are plenty. When ready to use fill can or pail with water, turn the saucer or pail tin over the top, hold tightly in place and invert. The water will come through the holes till the saucer or pail is full and as the chicks drink the dish will automatically be refilled.

Dealing With Indolent Arthur

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright)

THERE was no one in the entire lot, called society, of Newdean but looked on with varying shades of interest at the growing attachment between Eva Winter and Arthur Tompkins.

"I can't see what you find so attractive in a man who cares more for his pipe and dog and a walk through the muddy fields than he does for a good day's business. I think he's indolent. If you ask me," said members of her own family.

"Perhaps Arthur's body is indolent but his mind is not," Eva once remarked, "and besides, I'm neither engaged nor married to him yet." By which saying she proved that she was at least considering Arthur as a future life companion.

Arthur himself was a quiet, stately built young man with eyes that were too often aglow with dreams to be really successful in the world of filthy lucre.

But there was no slightest doubt that business acumen, ambition and sense of material responsibility were sadly lacking. He had, however, a strongly developed sense of moral responsibility and could never be persuaded that the outer needs of the body were half so important as a decently clothed mind.

Eva sometimes laughed at herself and wondered just where her association with Arthur might lead her. "Most likely to a five-room house in the suburbs and the state commonly called 'Love in a cottage,'" she told herself.

Meantime Arthur wasn't worrying about anything. He wasn't the wor- ring kind and usually had a head too full of happy-go-lucky thoughts to ponder darkly on supposed troubles. The world was a good place to live in if one just realized it.

Fortunately Arthur had a slight income, the result, no doubt, of a more money-making relative somewhere in the past. It enabled him to lose, quite happily, most positions he succeeded in getting.

When Eva raved at him for his indifference, in a perfectly ladylike but none the less irritated manner, Arthur only grinned at her.

"Eva, you can't be beautiful and lose your temper that way—and if I'm not annoyed at losing my job, I don't see why you—"

"But how do you ever expect to get anywhere in life?"

"By 'anywhere' I suppose you mean money, motors, one or two country homes and continual chasing after amusement. It's you, Eva, who will never get anywhere in life. You are straining after something to be got through external conditions—while I—well, I have found life to be full of joy and a happiness that loss of material things will not rob me of."

"Am I a material thing?" questioned Eva.

"Sometimes," said Arthur promptly, "and sometimes you touch the fringe of that other world where love and honesty and the soul of things count—you are adorable when the spirit takes possession and at those moments I want you for my wife and life companion more than I have ever wanted anything."

"And when I'm material?"

"Then I'm not so sure," said Arthur. "Pats of money and one who's always seeking happiness in external things, would never make me happy—I would not want to subject what I know to be my higher and better self to continual conflict."

"Yes, but that higher self of yours couldn't even support me comfortably."

"Oh yes, it could. I would have no respect for myself if I loved a woman whom I could not take proper care of. There would be no flock of motors, nor variety of homes scattered about all corners of the earth but the very type of the love I have for you would make up for the lack of them. I doubt if any of the men who say they love you would be happy with you if they had to live in a log cabin all their days with you."

"And you?" Eva knew Arthur to be quite right about her men friends. Certainly they would not take kindly to poverty.

"If you were slant-eyed and had scruffy hair and lived in a tenement I should still realize that I had found the kingdom—if the real you—loved me."

"Arthur," said Eva slowly, "I'm beginning to see real happiness as you interpret it. I have been absorbed lately in some exquisite essays on 'Friendship,' 'Love' and 'The Inner Life' that have just come out in book form. They ran in the newspaper first and I saved them all in a scrap book. They have made me do a lot of thinking and perhaps—" she looked into Arthur's eyes and wanted not to hurt him, but added: "I should like to meet the writer of those essays before I make up my mind about marrying you. Something—a great force—has spoken to me through them and lifted me up into a realm I did not realize existed. It seems to me when soul speaks to soul like that there must be some powerful kinship." Eva looked for the expression she feared to see in his eyes but there was only a tremendous glow.

"Eva, darling," he questioned softly, "don't you ever read the dedication in books? Read that one and you will get some idea of the author's love—for you."

And Arthur blinked at the swift light in Eva's eyes.

MR. BEES settled back comfortably in the new easy chair which his daughter-in-law had given him for Christmas. His feet were resting on a little foot stool from his grandmother; in his mouth was a briar pipe from his grand son, and on his lap a first edition of Tom Sawyer from his son. He was clad in a velvet lounging robe from one of his daughters, and under his white beard could be seen a new Christmas tie and the edges of a new silk shirt. Comfortable looking slippers adorned his feet, and a new reading glass was in his hand. A box of Havana cigars, a dozen books, ties, socks, and a fountain pen were on a table at his side.

Mr. Bees was smoking and gazing into the fire. The strains of a New York orchestra playing "Holy Night" came to his ears from the mahogany radio in the corner. The seventy-five electric bulbs on a beautifully ornamented Christmas tree furnished the only light in the room except that from the fire. The music of laughter came from an adjoining room.

But Mr. Bees was not conscious of his surroundings. As he was gazing into the fire his thoughts were traveling through the mysterious flame into a distant past. He was living over again the first, and perhaps the happiest Christmas day that he could remember, a Christmas day some seventy-five years before.

In a tiny house in what was then called Canada West, now known as Ontario, a poor family was struggling against the elements for its very existence on the frontier of civilization.

"Oh, Marvel of Marvels—a Big Red Apple!"

Mr. Bees must have been four or five years old at the time. His mother and father were in their early twenties. The one-room house was practically buried in a drift of snow that Christmas eve.

Mr. Bees, then only Ted, was busy admiring the pictures painted by Jack Frost on the one window of the little home. Such hoar frost! Was there ever the like of it before or since? It was a veritable forest of ferns and trees and bushes, snowy white, more beautiful even than the green ones that grew so thickly in summer along the little stream in back of the house—and more impenetrable. Stars and planets and comets were in this frosty forest, too, and here and there the outline of a palace, at least for the imagination of little Ted. It was the most beautiful thing that he had ever seen, or probably ever would see, in this world at least. He could see it now in memory, as plainly as he saw it then.

His mother was at the stove preparing supper. Soon she called him from his reverie, and he sat down by the soap box with her and with his father. A pan of warm milk was on the box—and in the milk were hunks of bread—a feast for a king. Each of the little family took a spoon and ate from the brimming pan. How good it tasted! Would he could taste it now.

While his mother swept up the crumbs Ted hung his stocking near the stove. Then his mother pulled out the trundle bed, and in two minutes Ted was in the land of dreams.

How cold the house was that Christmas morning when at five o'clock he jumped from his trundle bed and ran to the stove to get his stocking! He took it quickly back to bed, and dug his hand way down into the toe to see what Santa had left for him. Oh, marvel of marvels, a big red apple! And four little animal cookies! But last and best of all, a stick of peppermint candy striped with red. What more could any child desire?

"Your after-dinner coffee, sir," said a white be-capped maid at his elbow. As he drank the coffee, and looked into the fire, and listened to the music Mr. Bees heard only the pan of milk simmering on the stove, saw only the hoar frost forest, and tasted only the stick of peppermint candy, his happiest memories in life, perhaps.

A PLEA FOR UNITY IN THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Dear Editor:

Republican leaders in Kentucky seem to think that the Democratic party has played its last card in our grand old commonwealth. They believe that it will never recover from the crushing defeat which it received at the hands of the voters on November 6. In fact, they contend that they will capture a great many county offices in 1929, which have been heretofore Democratic.

Nor do their vain dreams stop here. Their hopes of retaining the Senate seat now held by Frederick M. Sackett two years hence are high at present. But the ship of Republicanism is sure to run into some troubled waters. Of course, the Republican party can win if the Democrats remain divided. This was manifested in the last campaign, and in the campaign for governor in 1927. Nevertheless with a united Democracy, Republican hopes of victory will swiftly fade away.

The Democrats of the Blue Grass state, and especially the Democrats of western Kentucky, should forget their petty differences and pledge new loyalty to that great political organization which so fittingly typifies the glorious ideals of those stalwart sons of Democracy who pledged and gallantly fought the battles of the great common people, namely, Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland, Wilson and Bryan.

Why should the elements of the party remain divided? Have the deserters forgotten the teachings and traditions of our early fathers? Are they willing to sacrifice their heritage for the policies of Republicanism? Do they realize there is very little, if any, difference in the Republican party of today and the Republican party of the reconstruction period? If they have honored the Democratic party in the past, then why do they not heed the great motto of the state of Kentucky, "United We Stand, Divided We Fall?" O Democrats, depart not from the faith of your fathers! Remember the meaning of true Democracy. Heed not the snares and pitfalls of Republicanism. Go back and read history and you will find that:

When George Washington selected his cabinet he chose Thomas Jefferson as his secretary of state, and Alexander Hamilton as his secretary of the treasury. Now, between these two men there arose a contest. They saw political views in a different light. As one writer puts it, "they became two fighting cocks." They could agree on nothing. Both men were aristocrats, but were of a very different type of mind. Hamilton had been born of humble peering, but by the time the American republic became firmly established he had acquired great riches. Jefferson was born rich, but all his life was a sincere friend of those who constituted the common class.

Jefferson became the foremost champion of the rights of the states. He contended that a great many powers should be reserved to the states, and that the federal government should not interfere in many cases. Hamilton believed in a strong centralized government; a government that ruled with an iron hand; a government that would trample on the government of the states.

Jefferson believed in a tariff which would protect the infant industries of the land. Hamilton believed in the policy of a highly protective, extortionate tariff, which would aid the rich manufacturers. Like two giants they clashed on these policies—Jefferson fighting for the commoner and Hamilton battling for the tariff kings.

Jefferson believed in "special political privileges to none and equal justice for all." Hamilton believed in the caste system.

Jefferson advocated the rule of the plain, common people; the voice of the farmer, the mechanic and the laborer in government. Hamilton believed in the rule of a few; the rule of the aristocratic class.

Jefferson declared that all men are created equal, and that as a consequence all men should be qualified to run for office, provided they were morally fit. Hamilton contended that only the rich, the highly educated and those who owned vast estates should control the reins of government.

And as time went on, the Jeffersonian theory won. For more than forty years the Democrats controlled practically every branch of government. But there came a time when slavery and the great Democratic party became divided. This recovery crept into national politics, culminated in the election of Lincoln, secession and war between the north and south. Since that period the Democratic party has but once or twice been firmly united.

But let the past be the past. Forget it. May the party's defeats be lessons to its present guardians. Let the spirit of Jefferson, the founder of the Democratic party, clash with the spirit of Hamilton, the founder of the Republican party. Let the lives of the two men be contrasted and I feel confident that Democracy will win in the end.

I sincerely believe that in 1929 and 1930 the hosts of Kentucky Democracy will rise in battle array and crush the armies of Republicanism. I can see no reason why we should remain in factions. The day of division is past. The spirit of rebellion is dead. The hour of unity has come, and that unity will smother the Republican candidates in a mountain of ballots. No Democrat can remain long in the camp of the enemy. He cannot bear the thought of being a traitor. Already he is sick of the last deal he made, and he isn't half as sick as he is going to be before March 4, 1933.

The Kentucky voter must realize that the Democratic party is the party that has always stood on the side of the masses and consistently opposed bestowing honors upon the privileged classes. And surely he knows there is no earthly reason why he should bolt the party nominee in a county election. There is nothing to be gained by such action, and certainly the Democrats of the great Jackson Purchase will be liberal enough and fair minded enough to see that a county election can have nothing to do with the party's nominees on a national ticket.

Confident that the political organization which I honor and love and seek to serve is alive, awake and alert, I am sincerely yours,

HENRY JACK WILSON,
Pryorsburg, Ky.

COLLEGE DESIGNS DAIRY BULL PEN

By nature no mature dairy bull is safe, says the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky, in announcing the distribution of plans for the construction of a farm bull pen. The supposedly gentle bulls are often the ones that injure or kill persons. Every dairy bull, whether he appears gentle or cross should be kept in a good pen. The plan which the college farm engineers and dairymen have designed provides that the gate cannot be left open. It is so arranged that the keeper never is exposed to an attack by the bull. Farmers interested in obtaining these plans should see their county agent or write to the college.

YOUTH INJURED IN AUTO SMASH-UP

Albert Dennis Removed to Hickman Hospital; Friend
Slightly Hurt

Hickman, Ky., Dec. 18. — Albert Dennis is in the Curlin hospital here suffering with severe injuries which he received Sunday night when the car in which he was riding with Monroe Gammon on the highway below town ran into a car driven by Gualder Johnson and turned over three times. Dennis was hurt about the head and chest and badly bruised all over. Gammon has minor cuts and bruises but was able to return to his home Sunday night. Mr. Johnson was not hurt. Dennis' car was going about forty miles an hour and the other car not nearly so fast.

Miss Effie Bruer, county court clerk, and party barely escaped serious injury Saturday night when the car in which they were driving on the Paducah highway was hit by another car and turned over. Miss Bruer received minor cuts and all in the party were bruised and badly shaken up. Besides Miss Bruer there were Misses Sara Corum, Mary Moore, Thelma Bruer and Dr. Higgenbotham, all of Hickman. They were returning from Paducah.

MACK ROACH IS ELECTED DEMOCRATIC COMMIT- TEEMAN CHAIRMAN

At a meeting of precinct committeemen here at the courthouse, Saturday, Mack Roach of Fulton was elected Democratic chairman of Fulton county. Mrs. J. A. Whipple of Hickman as vice-chairman, and A. O. Caruthers also of Hickman, as secretary, all three being elected without opposition. During the meeting while the credentials of the committeemen were being presented and nominations were in order, E. J. Stahr acted as temporary chairman and A. Robbins as secretary.

Owing to bad weather conditions having prevented the completion of the present contracted work on the levee below town added equipment was ordered to start work this week.

BAKER-HALES

A wedding of unusual interest to many Fultonians, was that of Miss Hilda Hales, accomplished and charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hales of this city, to Mr. Donald H. Baker, a valued employee of the United States civil service commission, of Washington, D. C. The marriage was solemnized at the Calvary Baptist church, Washington, D. C., on December 8, 1928.

The bride, attired in a blonde rose cocktail ensemble, carrying an arm bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums, entered the church attended by Miss Alvie Smith, as bridesmaid, while E. O. Thompson, of Louisville, Ky., acted as best man. In the presence of the immediate family and a few friends, the beautiful and impressive ring ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, Rev. W. S. Abernathy.

Friends of the family will recall that one year ago Miss Hilda accepted a lucrative position in the capitol city as an employee of the government, which position she has filled very acceptably. The many friends of Mrs. Baker wish to extend congratulations and best wishes for a happy married life. The young couple will make their home in Washington, D. C.

JUST LIKE HOME FOOD

Smith's Cafe is in reality a home-like restaurant because it has been trying to overcome the prevalent idea that restaurants can't serve food like you get at home.

Scores of patrons will testify that there is no difference between our meals and the meals they get at home. That's the reason they eat here so regularly.

Years spent in catering to the appetites of particular people make it possible for us to serve wholesome, tasty meals.

The next time you feel like eating away from home, bring your family here.
