THE LISTENING POST

A newspaper has a lot to think about when it comes to printing certain stories, but I believe that the moving picture people have an even greater problem from this angle. I read about one of these problems the other day and it told me something of history that I either never knew or had forgotten. It concerned one of the exploits of John Paul Jones, famous American naval fighter.

It seems that for some time the Hollywood factories have been toying with the idea of a film based on the life and exploits of John Paul Jones, and it is practically ready made for a real thriller. But right now it would be a bad thing to make the picture, for the British would have to play the part of the rascals in the picture, and this would be bad policy just at the time when this country is giving every aid short of war to the British, and may soon be giving to the limit. So the idea of a John Paul Jones film has been laid on the shelf to wait a more opportune time.

The big scene in the picture was to portray an invasion of England, on a small scale, naturally, which was made by John Paul Jones, and I confess that this interesting piece of history is something I never knew of. It seems that during the war against England, John Paul Jones had been sent to France on government business. He was in command of a corvette, which was then the romantic name for a small ship of war. (We do not have the romantic names we once had for such ships. "Light cruiser," and "destroyer" hardly come up to "corvette" in my books.)

Anyhow, young John Paul Jones delivered his government dispatches at a French port and then stood out into the Channel with his little corvette. He had been born in a certain British coastal town and grew up there in abject poverty. Sailing along in the Channel he no doubt remembered the days of his boyhood and of certain bitter days he had experienced there. He was not far from that town, and commanded an American warship. One can understand his feelings as he paced his quarter-deck and gazed through the rolling waves towards his native British town. A daring plan came to him.

He sailed his corvette straight to the British town he knew, arriving as night covered the scene. More than two hundred British ships were in the harbor, many of them being aground because of a low tide. John Paul, with that daring which always characterized him, told his men what he wanted done. One party of sailors was to steal ashore and set fire to the anchored ships. Another party, commanded by John Paul, was to go to the two forts which dominated the harbor and spike the guns, in order that this danger might be removed.

So the two parties stole quietly ashore in that sleeping British town, three thousand miles from home and with no support save from the guns of their own corvette which lay at anchor in the enemy harbor. John Paul took his men to the forts, surprised the sentries and managed to spike most of the guns in the two forts. But he saw that something had happened to prevent the other party from firing the ships. He hurried back and found that incapable men had failed. The fire had been lost, and the men were quarrelling among themselves. John Paul uttered a great oath, grabbed a lantern and climbed aboard one of the ships and set fire to it. By this time townspeople had awakened and came rushing to the beach. Jones and his men drove them back with pistols and managed to reach the corvette. A few guns in the forts managed to fire on the American ship, but without effect, and so Jones and his warship stood out again into the open Channel after actually invading the soil of England.

341-4 Vote Is Cast Against New Proposal

Attlee Is Cheered As Attacks Mediation Plea

London. —A silent, disapproving House of Commons rejected by an overwhelming vote of 341 to 4 a motion by three members of the Independent Labor Party today that Britain state her war aims and seek peace immediately, "if necessary in a spirit of compromise," because they said "there is no certainty of a great military victory."

The vote followed quickly the presentation of the motion by J. McGovern, Campbell Stephen and James Maxton, all from Glasgow. Supporting the trio, Samuel Silberman, Liverpool Laborite, declared the moment defined by Prime Minister Churchill, as the time for the statement of peace aims—"when we have convinced the world of our capacity to survive"—had now arrived.

The authors of the motion are members of the extreme Left wing of Britain's labor movement. The four members voting for the motion were Maxton, Dr. Alfred Salter, Laborite, William Gallacher, the only Communist member of Parliament; and David Kirkwood, another Laborite. McGovern and Stephen were named tellers, hence could not vote.

Clement R. Attlee, lord privy seal, replying to the motion for the government, was interrupted by frequent cheers as he delivered an impassioned reiteration of "the fundamental fallacy" of the suggestion "that on one side was this terrible war and on the other side all the beauties of peace."

"The alternative is not war and peace; it is war and what kind of peace," shouted Attlee, who is a leader of the main Labor Party which is included in the Churchill government.

"Probably this debate is one which would not be tolerated in any other country at war," he continued. "No doubt use will be made of it. But I believe it will show our strength."

Livermore Estate, Valued At $10,000 Is Left To Widow

New York. —The estate of Jesse L. Livermore, onetime "boy plunger" of Wall Street, who won and lost several fortunes before taking his life November 23, was valued at "less than $10,000" in his will filed for probate Thursday.

After requesting that his "just debts" be paid, Livermore left the entire estate to his widow, Mrs. Harriet Metz Livermore, who was named executor. No mention was made of his two sons, Jesse L., Jr., and Paul Alexander.

Reports Needed On Donations Not Made Directly To Parties

Washington. —Maurice M. Milligan, special assistant to the Attorney General, Wednesday said persons who contributed $50 or more to political campaigns, except directly to a political committee, and their contribution was used "to influence the election in two or more States," would be required to file a statement with the House of Representatives.

Headed Report Needed
"Of course," Milligan said in a statement, "anyone who made a campaign contribution to a political party or committee does not have to make a report. That must be done by the party or committee itself. But there were so many persons in the last campaign who personally paid for newspaper advertisements, radio casts and pamphlets that I think it is only fair to

Damon Fears War Is Keeping Pythias Away

Oakland, Calif. —Guests Lampros, Greek restaurant operator, today asked police to help him find his friend, Kioyanni Lazoni, an Italian who operates a flower shop next door.

Lazoni quit visiting him soon after Italy invaded Greece, Lampros said.

"I can't find anyone who knows where he is," he added. "He isn't in his shop and he isn't home. I wish you'd find him and tell him I'm still his friend like I've always been."

J. P. Covington Employed Here

J. P. Covington, Illinois Central signal man from Corinth, Miss., is now working in Fulton temporarily, assisting in the installation of a remote control system of handling switches in the south end of the Fulton new yards, Mr. Covington is well known in Fulton, having worked here as signal maintainer.

When completed these switches will be controlled by an electrical device from the telegraph office.

660 EGGS ARE UNBROKEN AS MOTOR CAR IN CRASH

Richmond, Va. —An automobile driven by William Harris, 28-year-old Negro, went out of control as it rounded a corner, broke through a fence and rammed a woodshed, damage, $40.

But William had a bit of luck, at that. Not a one of the fifty-five dozen eggs loaded in the automobile was broken.

Idle Paducah Plants Are Listed As Available For Defense Work

Washington. — Paducah, Ky., was listed Wednesday by a defense commission official as having several idle facilities available for "farming out" defense manufacturing orders.

The facilities listed at Paducah: Illinois Central Railroad repair shop with a complement of machine tools, blacksmith and forging equipment; normally employs 1,000 men; now running one shift at 50 per cent capacity. Capable of making and assembling any type of heavy machinery. Excellent transportation facilities.

Window Display Shows Progress For U. S. Mail

In the center show window at P. H. Weeks & Sons, Lake street, is an attractive display of various ways of transportation from 1774 down through the years to the present time, showing progress in handling of U. S. mail. In the window is a stage coach, representing mail service in 1774, a miniature express in 1880, the railroads of 1881, a motor vehicle, representing the part of transferring mail, deliveries and mail routes, and high in the air hangs an airplane with a miniature landing field below, showing how mail is picked up without stopping. Also there is an exhibition of postage stamps and post cards. Miniature flags complete the arrangement, with a poster regarding the postage exhibit at the Post Office today from 9 a. m. to noon. This exhibit valued at one million dollars containing a postage stamp exhibit worth that amount.

Employees of the Post Office are grateful to the Weeks brothers for this most unique display as well as K. R. Lowe for the use of the stage coach, Miss Elaine Vaughn for the use of the pony, A. G. Baldridge, for the truck and train, and Paul Hornbeak for the use of the grass. Phil Humphries made and loaned the plane.

Modern Warfare Found To Depend On Dobbins, Too

Chicago. —Col. E. N. Hardy, chief of the Remount Service, Washington, said Thursday experience in the European war and demonstrated conclusively that horses and mules were necessary to modern warfare.

He told the twenty-first annual meeting of the Horse and Mule Association of America that Germany has more horses in army service now than in 1914-1918.

Peasants Caught Smuggling Gold In Sheep Wool

Bucharest. —This is a modern story of the golden fleece. Rumanian custom officials became suspicious of blood on a flock of sheep some Bulgarian peasants were taking out of Rumania into Dobruja, now part of Bulgaria.

Investigation showed hides had been cut, gold inserted under the skin, and the cuts sewed up. Some sheep wore gold pieces hidden by long wool. The Bulgarians were arrested.

55,000 Cases Of Influenza Are Reported From Los Angeles

Los Angeles. —In the midst of a mid-winter heat wave, sunny California battled Wednesday its worst influenza epidemic since 1928. Although widespread, the disease is apparently of a mild form.

Health officials said 55,000 persons have been stricken in Los Angeles alone, which has reported 132 deaths from influenza and pneumonia in the last two months.

Schools Seriously Hit
Dr. Bertram P. Brown, State health director, estimated 30 per cent of the Los Angeles school children had been affected. Bakersfield reported 25 per cent of the 130,000 residents of Kern County were ill. Schools were closed at Santa Barbara, Blythe and throughout the Palo Verde Valley. Twelve members of the University of Southern California football squad which is to play Notre Dame Saturday were ill.

Louisville Men Plan Radio Station At Frankfort

Frankfort, Ky. —Elam Huddleston, C. F. Lowther and L. C. Roberts of Louisville obtained a charter today to erect and operate a radio station in Frankfort under the name of the Capitol City Broadcasting Company.

The concern was capitalized at $25,000 with a debt limit of $1,000,000 and its charter included the right to operate stations at any other place. The incorporators listed themselves as owning three shares of $1 per value stock each.

At Washington the Federal Communication Commission authorized the Blanford Radio Co., Inc., to operate a radio station on 1420 kilocycles at Harlan, Ky.

Man's Candor Causes Judge To Be Lenient

St. Louis. —Carl "Babe" Spikes, Negro, was brought into Federal Court at St. Louis charged with possession of bootleg whisky.

When Judge John C. Collet asked him if he wanted a lawyer, the defendant refused, explaining, "you don't need a lawyer when you're going to tell the truth." He then pleaded guilty.

"Have you had any trouble with the police?" the judge asked.

When Spikes answered that he had not, Judge Collet pointed to Babe's record of twenty-eight arrests in thirteen years.

"Oh," replied Spikes, "I thought you meant real trouble."

"How about this two-year sentence on a narcotics charge in 1927?" the judge inquired.

"That was before I knew better," Spikes answered.

"You have some redeeming features, Babe," the judge smiled—"you candor and bluntness. I'm only going to give you four months in jail."

Babe figures that honesty is the best policy.

"Hell" Will Be Subject Tonight

"Hell" will be the subject of the Rev. E. A. Autrey's message in tonight's services of the revival at the First Baptist Church. Services will not be held tomorrow night, so all are urged to come out tonight as this will be your last chance to attend until Sunday night. Special music will be a part of the service.

Last night Dr. and Mrs. Carson of Union City were present and rendered a duet, "Near To The Heart of God." The choir, led by Ira Prosser who is one of the best singers ever to come to the local church, sang "Master, The Temple Is Raging" as a special number.

Tonight will be "Church Night" with visitors from Union City as special guests.

Johnson Favors Per Capita Use Of School Funds

Approves Proposed Amendment To Set Up New Distribution Plan

Frankfort, Ky. —Gov. Keen Johnson said today that passage of a proposed constitutional amendment "equalizing" the payment of school funds "possibly will eliminate education's most serious deficiency."

Speaking before the annual conference of the Kentucky Education Association's department of superintendence, Johnson said he hoped that if the amendment is approved in November, 1941, the 1942 legislature would make available an additional "300,000 or $400,000" for the school fund.

The proposed amendment provides for distribution of at least 90 per cent of the state school fund on a per capita basis (instead of 100 per cent as now) and the remainder on a basis other than per capita. Designed to aid "poorer" counties the proposal met with some "big city" opposition in the past legislature on the ground it might lessen the amount the cities had been receiving.

The $300,000 or $400,000 increase should meet these objections, Johnson declared.

Earlier, John W. Brooker, state superintendent of public instruction, told the school superintendents that adoption of the amendment would correct a "conflict" between two present constitutional provisions—one requiring the legislature to provide for an "efficient" system of common schools and the other requiring school funds to be distributed on a per capita basis.

The K. E. A., he said, "recognized the problem 20 years ago" but an endeavor to adopt a similar amendment failed.

Sound Business
Brooker said the proposed amendment was a "sound business proposition" and added he was "confident" of passage.

Johnson was applauded when he told the audience he and Brooker "have been conducting an experiment—that of trying to prove it is possible to have complete cooperation between the governor's office and the department of education."

Journal Pays Another Reward

P. F. King, Route 1, Fulton, received a reward check this week in the amount of $25.00 paid by the Kentucky Farmers Home Journal of Louisville upon the conviction of a man who was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary for stealing a hog from Mr. King's farm.

This makes several rewards the Journal has paid in Fulton County upon the conviction of thieves who steal from farmers.

A NEW BRITISH INVASION

The Washington "Merry-Go-Round," which frequently presents facts in most amusing, yet trenchant fashion, tells of a new British invasion which is now under way, remarking that there are almost as many British in Washington today as in 1812 when the redcoats burned the capital of the young Republic. War emergencies have brought about this condition and the number of invaders is steadily increasing.

In Washington alone almost 500 Britishers are now making themselves at home. The British Embassy is the largest of any of the nations of the earth, and recently an annex had to be rented to house an increased number of English visitors. The British have all sorts of officials there in order to be able to handle any problem which may arise, for it is realized that only in the United States can sufficient help be enlisted to beat back the German menace. Financial experts, air experts, diplomatic experts—all are numerous in Washington these days. Day after day they confer with American officials regarding war aid and these conferences become increasingly important as the German drive against England grows more savage.

Not all the British are in Washington. In New York there is another British office which has twice as many workers as the Washington office. Here are the purchasing offices and from this office go the orders for all sorts of war material. Guns and planes and ships and tanks and shells and the thousands of items which modern warfare demands are being ordered from day to day, and in addition to the thousand persons who work in the New York office, another half thousand men are constantly traveling in all parts of the country as inspectors. These men visit the factories where war materials are made; they go into the shipyards of the nation from coast to coast and make sure that British requirements are being observed.

A striking feature is that these workers are constantly growing in number. The British war effort is geared to the ability of this nation to produce the things which Britain must have to continue in the war. It is impossible for the British to make all the things which they must have, for English factory production is beginning to suffer from constant bombing raids. In the New World lies the only hope for the British Empire.

In coming weeks the matter of credits is to be discussed. The British have said plainly that if these war purchases are to continue some financing method must be reached. The claim is made that cash reserves are almost exhausted in England. The Johnson Act, which forbids any loans to nations which have defaulted on war debts, is still a bar to loans to England, but it is plain that efforts are being made to get around this law. Official statements in Washington show that deep consideration is being given the British plea for credits, and before many weeks the pattern may develop.

In the meantime a concreteed barrage is being issued concerning the wisdom of the seizure of Martinique, a French owned island which is more or less a threat to the security of the Panama Canal. At this place there is a French aircraft carrier, loaded with planes; also a consignment of American bombers stopped there on the way to France and a large amount of gold. Several French ships of war are also anchored there, and many military and naval men say that the United States should take this island at once before the Germans take it.

With all these things becoming clearer it seems certain that the next few weeks will see our part in the present conflict take much clearer shape. By the first of the year many of these things will be revealed, for back of the stage much quiet work is going on.

SIXTEEN YEARS AGO

(Dec. 6, 1924)

The following Santa Claus letters appeared: Dear Santa Claus, I want a tricycle and a little pretty bracelet. Mary Zou Allen.

Dear Santa: I am a little girl six years old. I am expecting a visit from you Xmas eve night. I want a doll, a blackboard, a bean, a broom, a set of dishes, candles and fireworks. Virginia Valentine.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Pickle arrived this morning from Detroit to spend the holidays with relatives.

Mrs. Curtis Ledford and Mrs. Norman Terry are visiting Mrs. Lloyd Emory in Paducah.

SELECTED BRITISH BOMB ENERGY

Whenever the Germans launch a particularly vicious attack on London, or a city such as Coventry, questions are asked over here as to why the Royal Air Force does not reply in kind. There are many people in Great Britain, too, who look forward to the day when retaliation may be the order. In the meantime, the RAF bombers stick very closely to an established pattern that involves attack on so-called invasion points along the German-held Channel and places of industrial importance wherever they may be reached in the Reich.

Naturally, the British pay their respects to docks, shipyards, steel plants, airbases and aircraft factories, munitions works and the like. Anyone who listens regularly to the London short wave radio, however, will be impressed with the daily reports that indicate the RAF has struck again at powerhouses and gasworks. There is something more there than meets the ear, too, for Germany depends more largely on electric energy than any other great industrial nation in the world. That was true in normal times, due to the large development of products depending on chemical action induced by the use of high quantities of electric energy. It is even more important these days when Germany must depend in such wide measure on substitutes of almost countless variety.

It is likewise a fact that the German scheme of motorized, mechanized war depends tremendously on the ability to keep up industrial production in a vast number of lines. So it happens that any damage done gasworks or powerhouses, transmission lines or distribution systems counts more heavily in Germany than in any other warring nation. The British see clearly that Germany's present strength may become her future weakness, and so the nightly forays of British bombers against specific targets, no matter how great the temptation to give Hitler a taste of his own medicine in any number of vulnerable German towns and cities.—Mayfield Messenger.

CLUB LAST NIGHT

WITH MRS. THOMAS

Mrs. Harold Thomas was hostess to her bridge club last night at her apartment on West street, entertaining the twelve club members. At the end of the games of contract Mrs. Ardelle Sams was winner of the high score prize, a double deck of cards, while Miss Tommy Nell Gates, with second high, was given floral prints as prize.

Mrs. Thomas served a salad plate late in the evening. The plates were decorated with Christmas colors to complete the holiday motif carried throughout the evening. In the center of each table was a red taper.

Mrs. Reginald Williamson will entertain the club next week at her home on the Hickman highway.

RECEPTION FOR METHODIST MINISTER LAST EVENING

IS LOVELY AFFAIR

Lovely in its setting of Christmas decorations was the reception given last evening by the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church, honoring their new pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. L. O. Hartman.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Warren Graham, president of the Society, and by Leon Browder of the Board of Stewards who presented Rev. Hartman, Mrs. Hartman, Mrs. Atkins, Rev. E. B. Rucker and Mrs. Rucker, (new Fulton).

Circuit pastor and wife) Mrs. Leon Browder and Rev. Jim Fells.

The lace-draped tea table, with its center piece of fruit and a wreath of holly and red candles, was presided over by Mrs. J. V. Freeman and Mrs. Joe Browder, assisted by Miss Margaret King, Mesdames Oriah Winstead, Maxwell McDade, Herbert Goulder, Enoch Milner, Kenneth Snyder and Glenn Walker.

Throughout the evening music was furnished by Misses Miriam Browder, Mary Browder Paschall, Carolyn and Jean Atkins and Mary Ethel Lansden.

Others assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Abe Jolly, Mrs. J. E. Fall, Sr., Mrs. J. D. Davis, Mrs. Lawson Roper, Mrs. J. L. Jones, Mrs. Louis Weaks, Mrs. Harvey Maddox, Mrs. Guy Gingles, Mrs. Mozelle Terry Smith, Mrs. Jesse Harris and members of the official board.

The register, presided over by Mrs. I. R. Nolan and Mrs. Jim Fields, showed several hundred guests called during the evening to greet the new minister and family.

MRS. HAROLD THOMAS

ENTERTAINS AT LOVELY

AFTERNOON BRIDGE PARTY

Mrs. Harold Thomas was hostess at a beautifully planned contract party yesterday afternoon at her home on West street when she entertained twelve of her friends. The Christmas color scheme of red and green was used in table, prizes and refreshments and all other decorations were also of that motif.

Mrs. James Wallace Gordon was winner of the high score prize, a framed motto by Edgar A. Guest, "Home." Mrs. Harry Bushart held high and was given cologne and Mrs. Maxwell McDade, low scorer, was presented floral prints.

Mrs. Thomas served a salad plate late in the afternoon. In serving the Yuletide motif was attractively completed in the colored cloths and red and green candles in the center of each table.

The guest list included Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. Bushart, Mrs. McDade, Mrs. Ward Bushart, Miss Mary Swann Bushart, Mrs. Lawrence Holland, Mrs. Lynn Askew, Mrs. Bill Browning, Mrs. Ernest Fall, Jr., Mrs. Robert Graham, Mrs. Enoch Milner and Mrs. Hendon Wright.

ORPHEUM THEATRE

FRIDAY EVENING, DEC. 6th

When Peggy Marie, that little "Personality Dancer," will appear on the stage in a modern routine of rhythm taps that will surely thrill you in a most pleasing way—then you will be fascinated when this versatile young lady goes into her acrobatic routine of different numbers with unbelievable grace and ease.

Also with the unit are Dick and Madge Louham, artists of the EXLOPHONE, who have appeared over the RKO circuit — also formerly with Broadway Chuckles and more recently featured with Stan Stanley and his Greater Orchestra while making a record breaking long time run at the Hotel Gibson in Cincinnati.

A modern vien of comedy with spice will be intermingled to round out thirty minutes of pleasure and entertainment that you can't afford to miss.

REGULAR SPINE CARE

Many persons have awakened to the value of regular spinal examination and restoration of postural defects, and are being rejuvenated by this natural method. Still others are profiting by the same systematic care of their bodies that they give their automobiles, accounting systems and other interests.
