THE LISTENING POST

● The question of when to wash a car is quite an important one, and the old Listening Post wastes a lot of time in considering the matter. Usually, too, he guesses wrong, and this brings up the question as to why a rain will come within eight hours after a fellow has his car all washed and polished.

● Take Friday, as an example. As everybody knows, the weather had been bad for some time before. Several rains had come and gone and my car showed traces of all these disturbances. To add to its bad looks, it had made a long trip one rainy day on a gravel road and it looked quite disreputable in every sense. Gravel clung to places where gravel should never be, and a coat of dust was firmly fixed on its hood and fenders and running gear. I was really ashamed of its appearance, for automobile owners get that way. Few of us care a whoop how we look personally, but all of us want a car to look like a mirror. That is the reason it's so darned easy to sell news cars. A fellow owns a car about three or four years, and gradually the paint ceases to shine, and he sees other cars which are glossy and brilliant. The dull looking car may be fine from a mechanical standpoint--although this is not likely--but the lack of gloss is a serious thing. Therefore, before many days the owner falls for the lure of a car that has this gloss and the second hand folks then take the old car and make it look glossy, too. The art of painting a car has improved a lot in recent years and these days the average garage can do a paint job that looks like the factory article.

● But I was talking about washing a car. As stated, my car looked like the very well, like home-made sin. I kept putting off the washing job as rain continued to come, and in the meantime I was heartily ashamed of my car whenever I drove it. But I did not want to waste a wash job. So Friday morning came and I looked at the weather with an expert eye. It was a cool morning and there was positive brilliance in the December sun. I knew positively that no rain would come over the week-end. I knew if I had the car washed I would have a bright and shining car for Sunday, and this is the day a fellow should have a fine looking automobile. So I took the car down to the City Motor Company and told them to give it a bath.

● Shortly before noon I was walking down Main street and saw a shining car approaching. I really did not recognize my own car until it came abreast, and it was a pleasant surprise to see how clean it was. I guess it looked cleaner than it really was on account of having been eternally dirty that morning. The marks on the fenders, which I use for scraping against the side of the garage, showed all too plainly, but the car was really clean and glossy looking. As I looked at it I instinctively glanced upward at the sky and saw a patch of clouds about as big as a circus tent. This patch of clouds even then, did not look dangerous, but gradually they became thicker and darker and finally the sun disappeared. I saw then that my car wash had been all in vain and feared the worst.

● Well, the car stood in front of the office all the afternoon and no rain came. But about dusk, when I started home, I felt a few drops of rain pattering down and by dark these had settled down to

Virgin Islands May Become Refugee Haven

U. S. Reported Favoring Plan To Aid Europeans

Washington. --A proposal to offer the Virgin Islands as a haven for financially-independent European political refugees is under consideration by the State, Justice and Interior Department, it was learned Sunday.

Representatives of the departments held daily conferences last week on the diplomatic, legal and economic questions which would be involved, and asked advice from a number of private citizens interested in refugee problems. It is understood that no decision has been reached.

Would Remain Aliens
A joint resolution adopted last year by the St. Thomas and St. Croix public councils declared it to be the desire of the island people that refugees be given shelter there under protection of the United States flag.

Under the plan being considered, aliens would be received with no passport other than a "landing ticket" approved by American consuls at their points of embarkation or by island authorities upon their arrival. They would not be eligible to apply for American citizenship, and would not be permitted to seek employment in competition with the islanders. Their "tickets," similar in effect to border passes, would be revocable at any time.

Former University Head Asserts Trip Officially Okehd

Lexington, Ky. --Replying to criticism by State Auditor David Logan, Dr. Frank L. McVey, retired University of Kentucky president, and Mrs. Mabel Marks, Lexington former State Welfare Department employee, assert their expenses for out-of-state travel while they were connected with the state were authorized by proper state officials. Logan's report, made public yesterday, named these two along with others as using state funds to finance trips into other states.

Concerning Dr. McVey, he cited a $74.28 expense account for attending a 1936 Harvard celebration and said "it has been customary to allow the president of the university an annual contingent expense fund of $1,500, presumably for travel, yet such bills are paid without question."

Dr. McVey declared yesterday he had received no contingent funds since 1933.

British Captain Says Nazi Sea Raider Changes Dress Each Day

New York. --A British sea captain--given up as dead by all but his wife--declares that a German sea raider, sowing southern waters with hundreds of mines, is a huge rebuilt liner whose appearance is changed from day to day like stage scenery.

Capt. Cornelius Arundell, a prisoner aboard the raider for 64 days following the sinking of his vessel--the 5,307-ton Maxby--by the Nazi ship near Bermuda last April, described the raider as a "descent size man-of-war, much more than 10,000 tons." It carried provisions, he added, for a 3-year voyage. The captain escaped when a British submarine appeared and another ship to which he was transferred was scuttled. Arundell was picked up by

Veteran Policeman Is Charged With Posing As Dead Brother

Johnson City, Tenn. --White-haired Thomas B. Sapp, veteran of this East Tennessee town's police force, sat in a jail cell today, charged with escaping from a Texas prison camp and masquerading as his dead brother for the past 10 years.

Police Chief Tom Carriger, describing Sapp as "a straight shooter ever since he's been on the force," said the 55-year-old officer walked away from the prison camp in 1930 and soon afterwards became a sheriff's deputy here. He subsequently joined the Johnson City police force.

Carriger said Sapp was sentenced to 99 years imprisonment as Emory E. Sapp in 1919 for complicity in the slaying of his first wife five years before.

Sapp was arrested yesterday on federal indictments charging him with making false claims to the Veterans Administration to collect a pension in the name of his dead brother, and with using the mails to defraud.

Married again and the father of three children, Sapp admitted his identity as Emory E. Sapp and expressed willingness to return to Texas and "face the music" with the hope that his "good reputation" here would help him, Carriger declared.

The police chief said Sapp, who asked officers to "raffle off my gun to help keep my wife and babies off sufferance," told him the death of his first wife was accidental and that he was "railroaded to the penitentiary for life."

Chief E. A. Seale of the Bureau of Identification at the Huntsville, Texas, prison requested authorities here to hold Sapp for extradition.

Conference Net Tournery To Be Held

At the meeting of the Western Kentucky Conference held Saturday at Princeton, a new plan for holding the conference basketball tournament was adopted. Committees were elected from the Eastern and Western part of the conference to select four teams from each section to participate in the tournament. The teams of each half will hold a tournament on Friday, February 14 and the two winners will meet on Saturday, Feb. 15 on the home floor of the winner of the Western half to play the championship game.

The conference decided to try the commissioner plan of handling officials for 1941. The commissioner will assign the officials for all conference games except that the schools may request that certain officials work as many as two of their games. J. O. Lewis, superintendent of the City Schools, was elected commissioner.

Supt. Lewis, Coach Hershel Giles and Principal Lawrence Holland attended the meeting.

Thoughtful Airline Prints Calendar Reading "Wrong"

New York. -- Comes now the "wrong way" or "Corigan" calendar.

American Airlines announced Saturday that it had printed 4,000 calendars with the text in reverse--for barber shop use.

The purpose: So a man being shaved or shorn can look into the mirror before him and still read the calendar behind him.

German Anger Over Britain Aid Reported Rising

Princeton, N. J. --German radio-casts indicate increased anxiety and rising hostility in that country towards the United States because of American aid to Great Britain, the Princeton University listening center reports.

Concert Halted By Stokowski To Rebuke Booers

Philadelphia. --Conductor Leopold Stokowski interrupted an Academy of Music concert Saturday night to rebuke members of the audience who had booed or walked out during the playing of Arnold Schoenberg's new modernistic violin concerto.

"It's a foolish, narrow and unsportsmanlike blunder to act this way," the silver-haired maestro began. "Why not give the piece a chance? Schoenberg is one of our greatest living musicians. He is an extreme individualist. Why don't you give him music a fair chance? That's American."

The thirty-minute concerto, using twelve tones instead of eight and avoiding clear-cut melody and resolved chords, brought a few scattered boos and hisses followed by some applause. After the first few notes a half dozen persons left the auditorium.

Johnson Asks Safety Effort For Holidays

Frankfort, Ky. --Kentucky traffic deaths already are far greater than last year's total, and the holiday rush is still ahead.

Pleas to every citizen to help reduce Kentucky's share of the Nation's 3,500 lives lost during the "most dangerous month" of the year have been issued by Governor Johnson and State Highway Patrol Director Jack W. Nelson.

Drop Netted In November
In the first eleven months of this year 566 persons were killed on Kentucky's streets and highways, compared to 539 in the twelve months of 1939, but there was a heavy drop in November just ended, compared to the staggering total of eighty-six in the previous month. Only forty traffic fatalities were reported in November.

"I believe the tightening up in traffic patrol began to have its effect in November," Nelson said. "We intend to do everything we can to prevent deaths and injuries."

Ichthyologists Probe Porpoise's Rubber-Glove Diet

Marineland, Fla. --Ichthyologists called a hurried consultation at an aquarium here Friday after a 600-pound female porpoise swallowed a heavy rubber diver's glove.

The sea mammal snatched the gray gauntlet from the diver's hand during a routine underwater feeding. A few hours later she was showing no ill effects but the aquarium experts were convinced the obstruction would prove fatal to the valuable captive unless removed.

State Teachers Retirement Fund Has $230,000 Invested In Bonds

Frankfort, Ky. --State teachers retirement system assets have been invested so far only in United States government bonds, according to N. O. Kimbler, executive secretary.

This investment totals $230,000, of approximately 88 per cent of the total assets of $260,000. The bonds pay slightly more than 2 per cent interest.

Kimbler said the retirement system's finance committee, composed of State Treasurer E. E. Shannon, Miss Mary McGuire of Lexington, E. L. Trevathan of Benton, and himself, had been interested in purchasing some of the $1,000,000 state highway bridge refunding bonds issue recently, but decided against it when the interest rate was set at only 1 1/4 per cent.

"I will probably be looking for some school bonds soon," Kimbler said. "I don't think we should have any more bonds. We probably won't get a bond refund on government bonds any more." However, he added, he

British Loan Issue Likely To Kindle Row

Bitter Congressional Fight May Be Waged

Great Britain has put its squarely to the United States to help finance the war.

The question agitating non-intervention circles in Washington is, what is Britain going to offer as security?

The British themselves admit that their tangible assets in this country, including gold, securities and investments, may not permit further purchases on a cash-and-carry basis beyond another six months.

Even if the Administration decides in favor of granting credit, two obstacles stand in the way: the Johnson Act, prohibiting loans to nations which defaulted on World War loans, and the Neutrality Act, which bars loans to foreign belligerents.

Private Loans Forbidden
Even private capital, if it cared to risk the money, is at present forbidden to grant loans to Britain. There is material there for a bitter Congressional fight. Many members of Congress, as willing as they are to help Britain in her fight, cannot forget the $3,000,000,000 which Britain still owes on her defaulted World War debt.

The British, despite the characterization of them in high Washington quarters as a "good risk," simply do not have the assets to post to make secure the large sums they are likely to need.

One tangible suggestion has been made, and it has caused a great deal of argument pro and con. That is that Britain cede her West Indian and Caribbean possessions outright to the United States. The argument in favor goes like this:

Defense Board Of Military Men, Civilians Urged

Washington. --The Foreign Policy Association said Sunday that "the general principles of aggressive defense, even outside the limits of the Americas, could perhaps be formulated most clearly" by a national defense commission composed of both civilians and military men.

In a report, the privately funded organization said that such a commission "might serve to co-ordinate the many aspects of defense policy now handled by a number of executive agencies and congressional committees with no effective integration except through the President."

A HANDICAPPED MINORITY

To hear the college professors and some parents talk, America is breeding and rearing a prize lot of softies to cope with a tough world. They should talk—and be known by their fruits. But let them, if it helps any (as it probably does).

Two of them to occupy that uncomfortable piece of furniture known as the judgment seat have reported from far-separated points of the United States. One is a Harvard professor, the other speaks from the eminence of a chair in the Colorado State College of Education. From where they sit the view is melancholy.

The "youth of today" as it passes under their tired and discouraged eyes is glib, cynical, fat, lazy, and conspicuously wanting in moral character. Their daytime lathorn seeks in vain for a man who does not shun hard work.

This discovery is of dubious news value. It bites no dog. It has been made from generation to generation, from semester to semester. It puts a finger on the inability of the observer to discern the healthy trees in the brown and ragged forest.

No one should be blamed, but the men found inside colleges should be considered. A numerous majority are of the underprivileged and the handicapped. An unkind earlier life has denied to them the inestimable boom of poverty and hardship. They have been termed the unfit.

Some of them will overcome their disadvantages. Some will cast aside their galling and enfeebling burdens. A few will take up their beds and walk. But most of them will never find out that it is impossible to take a stand or a stance lying flat on the back or belly.

The professors, for the most part, look at softies and—mirabile dictu!—see softies. These do not constitute cross-section of the body or mind of American youth. They are rather the unhappy victims of special scrutiny—undeserving scapegoats, perhaps. When lumped with what is found outside the colleges a better view of the real thing is obtained.—Mayfield Messenger.

GERMAN AID FORESEEN IN ITALIAN SHAKE-UP

The "resignation" of Gen. Pietro Badoglio as Chief of the Italian General Staff was inevitable as the result of the continued reverses of Italy's armies in Albania. Somebody had to be the goat. Somebody had to bear the blame for the faulty planning and execution of the campaign of invasion. As Italy's foremost military strategist was in charge of operations the onus naturally fell on him. Badoglio had to go.

But there is more to the shake-up than the mere shifting of the blame from the inept soldiers in the field to the capable commander at headquarters. The hero of the Ethiopian campaign is supplanted by a veteran of the World War who for more than twenty years has been an industrialist and not a soldier. The chief recommendation of Gen. Ago Cavallero, at Badoglio's successor, is that he is strongly pro-Nazi and in close touch with leaders in Berlin. The shake-up therefore indicates more German co-operation in the Albanian campaign if not German command of those operations.

Shortly after the ill-fated invasion was launched Badoglio conferred with Germany's Chief of Staff, Gen. Wilhelm Keitel. Nothing came of those consultations except the continuous setbacks of the Italian forces. From this the inference may be drawn that Badoglio preferred to go it alone rather than receive aid and orders from the Germans.

Cavallero, it may be presumed, will not be so independent and the Italian campaign will become, in time, a German campaign.—Courier-Journal.

ONLY COMPARATIVELY GOOD

Nobody who recalls that everyone in this country once believed Great Britain would never repudiate a debt and live to see her default when she was in a much better financial situation than she is likely to be at the end of the present war need pretend to be horrified at the attitude of Senator Taft or Senator Clark.

Those who say Great Britain is a very good risk, at this time, for an immense loan, exaggerate. But, all things considered, she may be a good enough risk, and not a worse risk than the Federal Government under Mr. Hoover virtually advised private investors to take, with the result that many persons lost heavily in worthless foreign bonds.

A loan to a friend in whose welfare one is interested has at least the advantage of being a loan to a friend in whose welfare one is interested.—Louisville Times.

SAYS A PHILOSOPHER

Dr. William Durant, philosopher and historian, says physical deterioration is the cause of twenty-five per cent of youths attempting to enlist in the Pittsburgh recruiting district being turned down because of physical imperfections.

The Statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance, a much better informed source than a philosopher and historian probably, says, "America's youth today is more fit to serve the country than any previous generation," and that the high rate of rejections is due to higher standards than those of the past.

That may remind you that the standard of physical suitability in the Southern Army in the Sixties was ability to ride and shoot in the cavalry, ability to march and shoot in the infantry.—Louisville Times.

Ban On Trips To British Coast Partially Lifted

London. — An official ban on pleasure trips to English coastal areas, ordered last summer at the height of the invasion scare, was lifted from some sections Friday.

The restrictions originally barred holiday visitors from the entire east and southeast coasts. The Home Security Ministry's announcement today reduced the restricted areas to a strip about five miles deep in Norfolk, Suffolk and Essex, and all Kent except its London area. Orpington, Seven Oaks and Tonbridge.

JACKSON ASSERTS SPEEDUP MAY BE ACCIDENT CAUSE

Washington. — Attorney General Jackson today advised the public against being too quick in assuming that every industrial fire or explosion was the work of saboteurs.

"Industry is engaged in a great and sudden speedup which results in accidents," Jackson said in an interview. "There have been many occurrences in which it will be difficult to determine whether they were sabotage or accidental."

"Many men are being called to work who have long been idle, and their skills have suffered," the attorney general said. "Experiments are being undertaken by industry to increase production. All these things tend to increase the number of industrial accidents which have serious consequences."

He added that while they might be attributed to sabotage, it would be better to await the results of thorough investigation.

about 4 o'clock this morning when the truck he was driving struck a bridge abutment about 12 miles north of Metropolis on Highway 45.

McDaniel was driving a truck for the J. C. Travis Produce Company of Sharon, Tenn.

Identification was made by a friend, William Cagle, of Metropolis, who knew that McDaniel was driving the truck.

According to Deputy Coroner Chauncey Long the truck left the pavement and traveled along the road shoulder for more than 100 yards before striking the abutment.

A coroner's inquest will be held at 7 o'clock tonight at the court house with the following jurors: Paul B. Ragsdale, William Braashar, Henry Morrow, Virgil Potterbaum, Norris Shaw and William D. Harrington.

Deputy Coroner Long estimated the truck was carrying between eight and ten tons of Christmas candy from Chicago to Sharon. All the candy was unloaded on the road to prevent destruction by the fire.

SAYS COMMON-LAW MATE SET HER AFIRE

New York. — A woman suffering from second degree burns told police today a story of being thrown in a bathtub and set afire after a quarrel with a man she described as her common-law husband.

The woman, Ruth Penney, 32, was in a critical condition at Knickerbocker hospital. Charles Young, about 40, an unemployed house-painter, was arrested in the case.

Detective Charles McCarthy said the woman told him the man poured a pint of inflammable liquid over her and lighted it after kicking in a window of a basement apartment and seizing her when she refused to admit him.

25 LUMBER MILLS, LOG CAMPS IDLE BECAUSE OF DISPUTE; DEFENSE SLOWED
Tacoma, Wash., — Twenty-five lumber mills and logging camps in the Pacific northwest were idle today because of a wage dispute which has involved more than 9,000 workmen and slowed down fulfillment of national defense contracts.

The dispute was between the lumber and sawmill workers' union (AFL) and employers.

Four Tacoma mills closed today, bringing to 16 the number strike-bound here. The strike started in Tacoma two months ago.

The AFL union seeks a basic wage increase of 8 cents an hour, from 82 to 90 cents, and a week's vacation with pay.

DEFENSE JOB DELAY TARGET

Washington. — A stern modern version of the pioneers' "fish or cut bait" formula was studied today by a group of Congressmen determined to halt production delays following strike settlement awards in defense industries.

Under the proposal discussed by members of the House Judiciary Committee, strikers who failed to abide by the awards would automatically forfeit any job-based claim for exemption from Army conscription.

Precedent for such a course was set by President Wilson in 1918, Representative Walter (D., Penn.), asserted yesterday.

When workers in a Bridgeport,

Conn., arms factory refused to abide by an award of the National War Labor Board, Walter said, Wilson warned them in a letter that if they continued in their refusal "the draft boards will be instructed to reject any claim of exemption based on your alleged usefulness for war production." Wilson further told the men that refusal meant "each of you will be barred from employment in any war industry in which the strike occurs for a period of one year."

IN THE PRICE!

TALK ABOUT VALUE!

We'll deliver to your door a big, roomy, 115-hp. Buick Special 4-door Sedan with the new Buick Fireball engine for only:

$1156.00

ONE LOOK tells you this sleek Buick is chock full of value—one look at its price tag proves there's no "pack" or hidden charge in the price you pay.

We list each item separately so that you know exactly what you're paying for.

And we go further. We give you an ironclad, written guarantee that its price contains no padded charge or "pack."

We simply refuse to adopt the practice of "price packing"—of jacking up the price of a new car so that an inflated trade-in allowance can be offered you on your present car.

We know that you and all our friends will appreciate our honest and aboveboard business policy.

We're sure you'll appreciate the refreshing, roomy style, the big value of the new Fireball-powered 1941 Buick.

Come in and look it over— and learn more about our fair and square "No Pack" guarantee.

"WHAT IS A "PACK"?"

A pack is an extra item slipped into the delivered price of a new car to enable a dealer to offer more for your present car than it is really worth in trade.

It is a sort of "bait" intended to make you think you're getting a better deal than you actually are. Come in and ask us to explain how the "pack" can really cost you money.
