THE

● Dog-gone this Illinois Central Railroad, anyhow! I am afraid the system is going to do something which will cause me to yield to temptation and I simply can't afford to yield.

● For the past several years I have been watching the big Seminole Limited steam southward every morning around eight o'clock, and I never see it on cold winter days without feeling a mighty desire to grow reckless, buy a ticket and en-train for Florida. It is a surging desire lots of mornings when it passes through Fulton, when Fulton is caught in the grip of winter and perhaps snow covered, to board that train and ride back into summer time. Lots of mornings I have watched it and have thought for hours later of the delights of Florida, with its brilliant sun, its blue seas and inviting palms—but thus far I have resisted all these urges and have gradually grown accustomed to the matter. I guess I have succeeded in putting temptation behind me with the Seminole.

● Evidently the Illinois Central realizes this, for next week a new temptation will be thrust before me. For next week a new streamliner, "The City of Miami," will begin to cruise up and down the line between Chicago and Florida. I understand that the new train will whisk through Fulton at about five o'clock in the evening, and many times this is the hour when I start home. That is going to be a greater temptation than the Seminole has been. For in the mornings I feel strong and rested and have at least some plans for the day which may interest me. Late in the day, as I start home, these plans may have faded and I may be in a low mood.

● There are so many days in the late afternoon when Fulton is quite depressing. It may be a rainy day, or a snowy one, or just one of these bleak and cheerless days or neither sun, rain nor snow; when a chill wind blows steadily from the North and a fellow is tired of everything that has happened that day and not enthusiastic over the next day. Things may have gone wrong in the office, and when such a day comes I know now that I will usually see this new streamliner whisking swiftly across the Walnut street crossing. Inside there will be a lot of folks who have plenty of money, or who can pretend they have, on their way to Florida to spend a week or a month. The lights will be burning cheerfully, and I'll bet I will see the white coated chefs preparing a meal in the dining compartment. I'll sit there in my car, waiting for the train to pass, and there will come such a desire to get aboard that train that I may forget all my obligations and yield to temptation before the winter is over.

● Three new trains are to be put in the service and I think the one which comes through Fulton is the poorest named. It will be called the City of Miami, which is all right from an advertising standpoint, but poor from an intriguing angle. Another which goes through Evansville and Nashville is to be called the "Dixie Flagler," which is a shade better than the "City of Miami," but which is still more or less advertising, bearing as it does the name of the great railroad builder. Still the word "Dixie" will always have an intriguing sound to most of us. The third train, going through Louisville and Montgomery, really has the name, for it will be called "The South Wind," that is a name! It means something; it has poetry and imagery in it. Frankly I am glad that the South Wind will not blow through Fulton, for it might prove such a strong attraction that I would not be able to resist its appeal.

Ascap Case

Anti-Monopoly Law In Nebraska Faces Final
Test

Washington. — The Supreme Court Monday promised a decision which may clarify the legal status of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (Ascap), whose dispute with the broadcasting companies threatens to bar all its music from the air.

The tribunal agreed to review litigation between Ascap and the State of Nebraska in which this issue arose.

Ascap a legitimate organization of song-writers and composers formed to protect their rights under the copyright law and to provide a practical collection agency for royalties whenever their music is played.

Or is Ascap an illegal monopoly to fix and control prices for the music and for commercial performances?

The society controls the performance rights of all music by its members, who include such favorites as Irving Berlin, Cole Porter, Jerome Kern and the late Victor Herbert and George Gershwin. The radio companies have paid Ascap a flat fee for the right to use the music it controls but refused to meet demands for higher payments when current contracts expire, and they set out to develop their own source of music, especially popular songs, from new composers.

The Nebraska case arose from a 1937 state anti-monopoly law which provided that composers or publishers should mark the price on their music, however it was published, and that a radio station, orchestra or anybody else who bought the music for that price should have full rights to use it without any further payments.

The society controls the performance rights of all music by its members, who include such favorites as Irving Berlin, Cole Porter, Jerome Kern and the late Victor Herbert and George Gershwin. The radio companies have paid Ascap a flat fee for the right to use the music it controls but refused to meet demands for higher payments when current contracts expire, and they set out to develop their own source of music, especially popular songs, from new composers.

Board Meeting
Last Evening

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held last night at the High School and Paul Hornbeck and Vodie Hardin attended their last meeting. They will be succeeded by Maxwell McDade and Walter Evans, who will take office January 13th.

J. O. Lewis made a report on the superintendent's meeting at Frankfort which caused quite a bit of comment among the members present. He also reported that the State Board of Education had approved the leave of absence for the teachers to go to New Orleans.

The Board decided to pay the teachers on December 13th for a half month.

Mrs. Ethel Butterworth offered her resignation as secretary and treasurer of the Board. The Board instructed Supt. Lewis to get ready to make recommendations for her successor.

Officials Act
To Prevent Spread
Of Flu To Paducah

Paducah, Ky. — McCracken County health authorities Monday moved to prevent spread to Paducah of an influenza outbreak in the nearby Heath community, where 270 of the 700 grade and high school pupils were reported stricken.

If the number of cases increases Tuesday the Heath school will be closed, Henry Chambers, principal, said.

The flu epidemic broke out at Heath a week ago, Chambers said. At that time 139 pupils were confined to their homes. The number increased steadily during the week. City school attendance Monday was normal, Superintendent H. L. Smith reported.

The McCracken County Health Department reported that the epidemic was confined to the Western section of the county and had not reached serious proportions.

This Story Is No Mullarkey
For He Saves Human Icicle

Chicago. — Three policemen said Sunday they had rescued a "human icicle" from Lake Michigan.

It was a 62-year-old man who had stood in the frigid water for more than 17 hours, they said, and was too numb to cry out and covered with so much frozen spray that he could not move.

Policemen Thomas Mullarkey, Dan Golden and John Connelly related that they had grumbled something about another "wild goose chase" as they drove to the lake front at 49th Street to "investigate something in the water."

Looked Like Snow Man
"I thought at first it was a snow man," said Mullarkey.

"It was frozen stiff as a board, and there were icicles—I'm not exaggerating now—icicles two inches long hanging from its spectacles."

The police formed a human chain and dragged the object from the lake. Then they dashed for the Chicago Hospital, where "it" was thawed out.

"It" turned out to be Otto Kreiger, 62, a former unemployed sausage stuffer, Mullarkey said. Kreiger was immediately dubbed "the human icicle," for though he had been in the water for 17 hours and 20 minutes, physicians at the hospital said he could go home Sunday night. The only apparent ill effects were to his feet, still tender and black and blue.

Mullarkey said Kreiger told him that he "just took a walk" and slipped into the water, up to his knees.

Too Slick To Climb Out
The point at which he was found was just off from some massive stone blocks with a vertical face and heavily coated with ice.

Kreiger said he tried to wade to a point where the rise was less sheer and slippery, but wherever he turned, the water deepened. He soon became numb and was unable to shout for help or even wave his arms, which were frozen to his sides.

"Two young fellows passed me Saturday morning," Kreiger told the police, "but they didn't say anything, and I couldn't."

He said he entered the lake at 6 p. m. Friday and was rescued at 11:20 a. m. Saturday.

Sixty Attend
Scout Supper

The "Father and Son Hamburger Supper" which was sponsored by the Boy Scouts of Fulton was held at the Science Hall last night and was enjoyed very much by all who attended. Nearly sixty persons attended and were served food prepared by girls of the Pep Club of Fulton High.

Each person introduced himself and became acquainted with his nearest neighbors. After the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag the blessing was given by the Rev. Loyal O. Hartman. After everyone had been served and had eaten, there came a period of speech making with speeches by Mr. Roy Manchester, who gave a very interesting talk on the Father and Son relationship in Scouting. Mr. Louis Weeks gave a talk on Scouting as it has been in Fulton. Mr. Bertis Pigue talked on Scouting and its helps to boys.

After the speeches there was a very impressive candle ceremony, using the Scout Oath and Law. This was given by Troop 43.

There were then demonstrations of Scout work by the different patrol leaders in Troop 43. The Wolf and the Stag patrols showed some phases of first aid and the Eagle presented sign aling and the Flying Eagle gave an exhibition of knot tying.

When these stunts were over, gifts were given to the men present, and each man was required to demonstrate this gift. W. M. Cowell won the contest with the exhibition of the use of a hair ribbon. His prize was a can of salted peanuts.

The meeting was then closed with the Scoutmaster's benediction. Scribe—Virgil King.

The Board of Directors as well as baseball fans are urged to be present. Plans will be worked out for the 1941 season. It is understood that Fulton will continue working with Detroit.

Foreign Backing
Of U. S. Industry
Termed Minor

Washington. — Direct foreign investments in American industry, the Monopoly Committee was informed today in a report, "exerted only a minor influence on production in this country."

The report, which dealt with export prices and export cartels, was prepared for the committee by Paul B. Dickens of the Commerce Department.

In general, it may be said that foreign control of United States industry, which was so extensive during much of the Nineteenth Century, has by the gradual and natural process of repatriation, been effectively eliminated.

Dickens put the total of foreign investments in this country at $7,398,000,000 in 1937 in which $1,883,000,000 was direct investments involving 1,172 companies and branches at the end of 1937.

I. C. Shops
At Paducah
To Stay Open

Paducah, Ky. — Improved business conditions prompted Illinois Central System officials to withdraw an order closing the Paducah shops from December 21 to January 6, according to word received here Monday from J. L. Bevin, Chicago, president of the railroad.

The two weeks' shutdown would have thrown nearly 2,000 men out of work during the Christmas season. Bevin said the company realized that a lay-off during the Christmas period "would greatly inconvenience the employees of the shops."

Decision to suspend work at the Paducah shops came after the anticipated increase in business volume as a result of the national defense program failed to materialize.

"Our plans for the Paducah shops this year were based on the necessity of being prepared to handle an increase in the volume of business under the national defense program," Bevin said. "There was every reason to anticipate earlier in the year that the amount of business on the railroad this fall would equal or possibly exceed the amount of business last year. The anticipated volume of business did not materialize."

Nassau, Bahamas. — The Duke and Duchess of Windsor left Nassau aboard the yacht Southern Cross Monday afternoon, bound for Miami, where the Duchess will undergo a major dental operation to correct an ailment that has caused her increasing pain and has undermined her health generally.

The Windsors hope the brief, private visit won't interfere with their plans for a real tour of the United States, possibly next year. Aboard the yacht, which sailed at 3:30 p. m., were the owner, Axel Wenner-Gren; Mrs. Wenner-Gren, and Capt. Vyryan Drury, the Duke's aid.

The Duchess will submit to the operation at St. Francis Hospital upon arrival Tuesday about 8 a. m. Then she and the Duke will spend three days at a hotel before leaving late Friday aboard the steamer Munargo.

Traffic Gains
Under New
Toll Rates

Frankfort, Ky. — Automobile traffic over eight intrastate toll bridges has increased 24 per cent in the four months since tolls were reduced to a round trip for the price of one way, it was shown Monday in figures released by Mitchell Tinder, chief accountant for the Department of Highways.

The reduction in gross revenue collected at the eight spans was only $486, or 3 per cent, as compared with the same four months last year.

Army Tank Men
No Longer Forced To Salute Anthem

Washington. — The Army changed regulations today to provide that men in tanks and other combat vehicles need not get out and salute when the National anthem is played.

Rules previously required that all vehicles in motion halt and all occupants except drivers tumble out, down or off, snap to attention and salute on hearing the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Under revised rules, vehicles still must come to a standstill but, generally speaking, only commanders of motorized combat units have to get to the ground and salute.

Wives Of Men At Camp Shelby
Threaten War Over Dating

Hattiesburg, Miss. — The Army had better not start getting dates for any married men, a group of Ohio soldiers' wives warned Sunday.

The warning was in answer to a statement attributed to Miss Henrietta Evans, redheaded senior hostess at Camp Shelby, near here. Miss Evans was quoted as saying that she would arrange dates with local girls for married men who wished them.

But Mrs. Thana Davenport, brunette wife of a first lieutenant and Camp Shelby correspondent for the Akron Beacon-Journal, announced that Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, the camp commander, had countermanded Miss Evans' proposal.

"Thank goodness," Mrs. Davenport commented when she spread the news among other Ohio wives who came here to live with their husbands, members of the 77th Division, serve a year in the Army.

"Nobody had better get a date with my husband," Mrs. Davenport said determinedly. She and her cohorts warned that they will protect the interests of other women who did not come here while their husbands train.

Miss Evans, announcing plans for compiling a directory of all "dating materials" in Hattiesburg, mentioned that she would be glad to arrange dates for married men and officers who requested them.

She said that if married men asked her for dates, she would ask them, "What first to the girls in question, however, that these men were previously attached."

Editorial

TRUTH IS NEEDED

The most vitally needed thing in the world today is truth in large doses and undiluted with any sort of propaganda. It is also the most difficult thing to secure. At the present moment the leaders of this nation are examining a balance sheet of the British Empire in an effort to see if financial aid is really needed by the British in their fight for life. England says that her finances are almost exhausted, but from bitter experience the United States knows that the full truth and nothing but the truth is a rare thing in her dealings with other nations. England, more than any of the others, is likely to send out the truth, but a trifling matter of five million dollars which is unpaid from the last war still stands out quite prominently in all dealings with that country.

It is fair to say also that we need truth in this country more than ever before. We need the white light of publicity on our defense efforts. We need to know what failures are being recorded. We need to know if all efforts are being honestly made to put this nation in such a state of military and naval power that it will be able to stand against and threats which may come, or any challenge from any nation or any combination of nations. Nothing but the naked truth will ever make this possible. If we go ahead, complacently thinking that we are making the proper preparations and find later that we have been deceived, we may meet the same fate which France met. France was told that the Maginot Line would hold off any invader, and that the army was fully ready to meet any thrust. Only three weeks were required by the Nazis to utterly smash France and a century may not be sufficient time for France to regain what has been lost.

A case in point is brought out by a recent newspaper story written by Major Seversky, a noted designer of airplanes. Presumably Major Seversky knows his subject. Presumably he has ascertained all the facts in the case and is certain of his arguments. If he is certain and if conditions are such as he states, the manufacture of planes in this country needs a thorough investigation and only the stark and naked truth will bring about an improvement in conditions.

Briefly, Major Seversky says that American warplanes are far inferior to European planes. He says that they will not stand the pace which is set by German and British planes of similar kind. He says the British are quite polite about the matter and have never openly criticized the planes which are being manufactured here and sold in England. But the manner in which the British speak of these planes, and the duties which they give them, are clear indication, the Major says, that American planes are not of great assistance to the British in their major war in the air. American planes are slower, they lack gun power, they are not able to face the German built planes with any chances of victory. Therefore the British are using their own Hurricanes and Spitfires in the important fighting and using American planes in other ways where speed and gun power are not so important.

Major Seversky does not place the blame for this condition on designers

CHINA AGAINST THE AXIS

(From The Christian Science Monitor)

Tokyo's signing of the Triple Axis Pact with Berlin and Rome placed American aid to China in one parcel with aid to Britain. Washington's action to furnish $100,000,000—half as a loan to China and half as support for its currency—is aptly described by Secretary Hull as the minimum that the United States can do to aid that nation's fight against predatory totalitarianism.

This is the largest loan so far made in implementation of the United States' Far Eastern policy. Money alone does not fight a war. China's problem is to translate financial aid into military aid—into supplies, into planes, guns, and other equipment. Yet such aid serves another purpose which is important to the outcome of the Sino-Japanese War. It can be used to bolster Chinese currency which is no less under attack than are Chinese cities. The puppet regimes set up by Tokyo derive whatever strength they have among the Chinese people from the financial as well as from the political support emanating from Tokyo. The prestige of such regimes suffers as long as Chinese currency maintains a more reliable purchasing power than that of the puppets.

Aid to China remains secondary to the defense of democracy in the Atlantic, for when aggression is defeated in Europe it can be curbed with less effort in Asia. But that is not to say that those who fight for China's freedom are not a very considerable part of the world force against aggression. Whatever aid the United States can afford to give them is a part of American defense.

Beyond this the loan is immediately translatable into improved morale among Chinese patriots. And it is one more disappointment to Axis collaborators in Tokyo. Thus wherever hope remains for an eventual triumph of true order over the so-called "new order," news of judicious aid by the United States to China will be welcome.

and manufacturers. He places it squarely on hidebound Army prejudices, and says that designers and manufacturers have designs which are really far in advance of any German or British plans. Army caste refuses to allow these radical new designs, and Seversky says that this policy can only bring disaster to us in the end.

Plainly this charge needs answering. Plainly, if the charge is true, we need a radical change in our defense planning. Plainly the people of America deserve to know the truth. If we are frittering away time and billions we need to face the facts and do something about them. Seversky's charges may be the opening gun.

Chicago "Bookies" Called To Court In Gaming Drive

Chicago. —Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien Monday was asked by the Attorney General's office to notify more than 1,300 bookmakers in Cook County (Chicago) that gambling on horse races is illegal. He was handed a list of the county's betting parlors and directed to serve each with a summons to appear at Belleville on or before the first Monday in January.

The latest effort to enforce laws against gambling, which Attorney General Cassidy said he hoped would "stop all gambling on horse racing in Illinois," was a temporary injunction restraining 2,000 persons and corporations from disseminating unlawful information and operating handbooks.

Rhode To Wait
At Least 90 Days
On Citizenship

Lewisburg, W. V.—Capt. Boerge Rohde, husband of Former Minister to Denmark Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde, must wait at least ninety days more before becoming a United States citizen.

Rohde filed application for final papers yesterday in Greenbrier County Circuit Court. Although ninety days is the normal waiting period, the court does not sit again until June and probably will grant the papers then.

A Department of Justice examiner said Rohde, resident of nearby Alderson, had made "a common mistake" in giving notice of intent to file for final papers, but failing to make formal application at the time.

Pilot Lands Plane
In Spot Too Small
For A Take-Off

Layton, Utah.—Wayne Williamson of Grand Junction, Col., landed his small airplane in a field after it ran out of fuel but had to remove the wings to get it to an airport from which he could take off again.

Parley Green, Layton farmer, described the emergency landing: "The plane just missed a house on the west side of the State highway, passed between the power lines and the fence on the west side of the road, just cleared the fence on the east side and taxied about 500 feet to a stop."

"The pilot had to turn to miss an irrigation ditch and came to a stop about four feet from another one. Me? Well, I just watched."

Williamson called an airplane mechanic from Ogden. The wings were removed and the plane towed to the Ogden airport for a take-off.

The report also urged that when disputes between employers and employees arise in such industries mediation be sought before either a strike or lockout occurs.

Other suggestions "for creating and maintaining smooth and efficient labor-management relations" dealt with wage policies, conservation of the skilled labor supply and Federal labor laws. The report will be submitted informally at the association's convention next week.
