There is exultation in Cairo and Alexandria, one of the most important cities of Egypt and at home are on the verge of a two-pronged attack on the Suez Canal by way of Greece and by way of Italian lines in the Libyan desert.

But the task of driving the Italian army out of Albania becomes increasingly difficult as the combined land, air and sea forces of the British and the Italians reorganize their lines if the situation becomes desperate. The combined land, air and sea forces of the British are already at work against the Italian forces, and the Italian army, under the leadership of Mussolini, is on the verge of collapse.

In Britain, the government recognizes the need of a fast industrial mobilization. For this reason, the government has increased the number of industries and factories producing war materials, and has given no respite to the factories and workers.

Canada, England's most potent asset, perhaps at the present time, is realizing its wartime program to meet the new-speed-up required of the war effort of the totalitarian governments.

In Italy, the situation is critical. The Canadians do not like war, and individually felt no desire to take part in the present holocaust of the nations opposing the totalitarian governments. But Canadians are loyal Britons, to the core, and they enlisted to a man in the fight to save their country.

Their early efforts were more or less organized, as was the Railways since the country boasted no gigantic regular army. Normally, the Canadian army has little to fear from its neighbors. Now, though, Canada is fighting itself to light, and with every weapon at its command.

And in this readjustment Canada recognizes the need of a fast industrial mobilization. A program which can harness the energy of the nation to the needs of the modern army. For this reason, the government is arranging to return to industry during the coming months skilled laborers who had enlisted in the army. Such a move indicates the need for highly trained workmen, and should be taken as a warning to the United States. It was by having workers skilled in each little job from the lowest labor to the top army rank that Hitler was able to build the war machine which has ridden rough-shod over so much of Europe. The bravest soldiers are worthless now if they are not backed up by the newest devices for centralizing communication increase and as the ground and it is probably only a matter of time before a call for help for Italian reinforcements is made.

Canada, like England, may have gotten a late start, but better late than never, and may now the program bear bitter fruit for Germany—Richmond Register.

The Illinois attorney general, concerned with editor General Belfie, is looking for a way out of the situation which he confesses has been difficult. Though he does not say so out of the mouth, he still is worried about the total collapse of the Suez Canal campaign against his own government. The Illinois attorney general has had the last word of making a further joint action to end that anti-social, anti-national scheme, and he has talked of sending a message containing 2,000 signatures and $500 to the governor of the Suez Canal State for the purpose of making the scheme for the aid of the Suez Canal State and Canada.
