Lawsuit against Jones, others dismissed Tuesday

By HAWKINS TEAGUE Staff Writer

A lawsuit and restraining order filed by College Book Rental Company against Murray businessman Chuck Jones and several other parties was dismissed Tuesday.

The notice for voluntary dismissal of the lawsuit and restraining order without prejudice was signed by the plaintiff's attorney, Jonathan D. Rose of Nashville, Tenn., on Monday and filed and noted with the Calloway Circuit Court Tuesday. College Book Rental Company (CBR), which had previously been managed by Jones, filed the lawsuit and a restraining order against Jones in Circuit Court on Sept. 20. Jones and his wife, Sarah Jones, CA Jones Management Group Global Book Resellers, and John Does 1-10 were listed as the defendants in the case.

One of Jones' attorneys, David Buckingham of Murray, noted that this was the second lawsuit against Jones that had been dismissed in the last three months. Jones' business partner, David Griffin of Nashville, had filed a lawsuit against Jones in U.S. District Court for the Western District of Kentucky in February 2012. That lawsuit was settled after it was determined that Griffin's request would be met to appoint a consultant to man-

There's quite a bit of planning and maintenance that goes into making Christmas come alive in Murray. Earlier in the year board members were informed of a problem with the city's Christmas tree - the base had accidentally been thrown away. The base, which was being stored at another location until it was needed, was disposed of when an outside company did some cleaning. Currently, MMS is negotiating with the company on how to best proceed. Because the particular tree the city has is no longer manufactured, finding a base for the tree is proving difficult. However, a deadline has been set and on Nov. 7 the

Blankenship: Officials to discuss Jackson sentence

Staff Writer

Commonwealth Attorney Mark Blankenship said Tuesday that a meeting between he, attorney Gary Haverstock and Calloway Circuit Judge Dennis Foust is expected to happen in the next few days concerning the sentence of Murray State University basketball player Zaveral "Zay" Jackson.

Blankenship said he believes Jackson's plea agreement for two counts of wanton endangerment 2nd degree will still stand, but he said Foust had indicated a concern with what might have caused the 20-year-old sophomore to allegedly strike two people with his car Sept. 3 in the parking lot of the Walmart Supercenter in Murray.

Foust is scheduled to formally sentence Jackson Monday morning, even though Jackson began serving a 30-day jail sentence Friday. Jackson, a native of Hammond, La., now living in Murray, pleaded guilty Friday in front of Foust after accepting a pretrial diversion that will be in place the next four years, pending no further criminal offenses.

Planners recommend denial of zoning request

By HAWKINS TEAGUE

Murray Planning Commission voted 4-2 Tuesday to deny a request for R-4 (multifamily residential) zoning for a property on the north side of College Farm Road just west of North 20th Street.

The property's owner, Terry Parker-Bell, plans to build an apartment complex on the land. City Planner Candace Dowdy said Parker-Bell had requested that the property be annexed into the city only if it were zoned as R-4. Eight members were present for the vote, and commissioners Jeremy Boyd and Loretta Jobs abstained. Because the motion for an R-4 zoning failed, a recommendation to deny the zoning will be forwarded to the city council. City Attorney Warren Hopkins said the council may either vote to accept the commission's recommendation or overturn it and vote on whichever zoning they want. If they vote to overturn they must hold a public hearing was made to recommend R-2 (single family residential) for the property. With Boyd and Jobs abstaining, the motion tied

During a public hearing on the issue, one nearby resident said he hoped no one would be hurt by an increase in traffic if the apartment complex were built. Another man said he was concerned that the area could turn into something similar to Cambridge, where he said apartments had been built too near to houses that had been there for decades.

Earlier in the meeting, the commission voted 6-0 - with Jobs abstaining — to approve the final plat for a residential planned development project at 1807 College Farm Road. Tony Nolcox and Greenspace Properties purchased the property and plan to build 24 small cottage/bungalow-style homes

Although there was no scheduled public hearing related to the recommendation, however, the issue, the commission allowed several nearby residents to speak about the proposed development. Several residents said traffic was already bad in the area and they didn't want to see more added to it. One man said the road needed to be widened, while also noting that he realized this was out of the city's control because College Farm Road is a state highway.

Parker-Bell's husband, Gerald Bell, said he thought Nolcox's development was needed in the area. He said he thought traffic is always an issue no matter where one builds, but that he didn't think development should stop because of that.

Krieb said he understood that a development might put more traffic on the road, but he preferred that developments be built close to Murray State University's campus so that students living in the apartments would have the option to walk or ride a bike. He said that if apartments were built farther away, it would guarantee that residents would have to drive to campus.

The commission finally voted to approve several proposed text amendments to the city's zoning ordinance as it pertains to alcohol beverage control regula-

One heated exchange early in the debate focused on competing claims about whether energy production is increasing or slowing. Obama accused Romney of misrepresenting what has happened. Romney strode across the stage to confront Obama face to face, just feet from the audience. The two argued forcefully at close quarters before the debate moved on.

But the president's determination to show a more aggressive side quickly showed. Rebutting his rival's claim to a five-point plan to create 12 million jobs, Obama said, "Gov. Romney doesn't have a five-point plan. He has a one-point plan. And that plan is to make sure that folks at the top play by a different set of rules.

"You can ship jobs overseas and get tax breaks for it. You can invest in a country, bankrupt it. lay off the workers, strip away their pensions and you still make money. That's exactly the philosophy that we've seen in place for the last decade," the president said in a scorching summation.

Unable to respond at length because of the debate's rules, Romney said the accusations were "way off the mark."

Both men had rehearsed extensively for the encounter, a turnabout for Obama.

"I had a bad night," the president conceded, days after he and Debates said they weren't party Romney shared a stage for the to it.

Former resident compiles book of 'letters to editor'

By PAIGE GRAVES Staff Writer

Henry Buchanan lived in Murray for 30 years, and he has plenty to show for it. For his 26th book, Buchanan compiled his Letters to the Editor, which span the better part of a half century, dealing with political, social and ethical issues that have arisen concerning the coun-

"I wrote the first letter in May 1954, and the last one was written this past summer," Buchanan said. "It really is a history book, as it covers quite a period of

The book, which is dedicated to his wife Anne, covers an expansive amount of events in history, ranging from various wars to correspondence with presidents George W. Bush and Barack Obama.

The letters were sent to multiple local papers including the Ledger & Times. Buchanan currently resides in Texas with his wife, whom he met after she read his story entitled, "The Shellman Story: Hanging the Preacher." Buchanan recalls some of his favorite letters in Chapter 10 of the book. The following is an excerpt:

"Some of the letters to editors came out of a deep sense of concern for the nation, or even anger at big mistakes the leaders were making. Others, well, I just enjoyed writing them. It was a pure pleasure to pour out my feelings and thoughts about what was happening in my world."

Buchanan also notes his last letter to George W. Bush as important, though he said most of his letters have been written to President Obama. He has no plans to write to Mitt Romney unless he is elected president.

Though Buchanan no longer lives in Murray, he believes he made the best of his time here and was not afraid to voice his opinion, which is not always easy to do, he said.

The book was published in July 2012 and is available upon request in most bookstores.

Rockin': Rolling Stones to tour again

By DANICA KIRKA

LONDON (AP) - You can't always get what you want but if your desire is to attend a Rolling Stones concert this might be your lucky day.

The legendary band said Monday it would return to the stage this year with four concerts in Britain and the United States. The shows will take place on Nov. 25 and 29 at London's O2 Arena, followed by gigs on Dec. 13 and 15 at the Prudential Center in Newark, New Jersey, just outside of New

The shows mark the first time in five years that the Stones have performed live, with Mick Jagger, Keith Richards, Charlie Watts and Ronnie Wood all coming together once more. The band said it was the tions marking its 50th anniversary of its first gig.

"Everybody loves a celebration, and London and New York are two good places to do it in!" Jagger said in a statement.

The Stones have sold more than 200 million records, with hits including "(I Can't Get No) Satisfaction," "Street Fighting Man" and "You Can't Always Get What You Want."

But in recent years much of their income has come from touring. Their last global tour, "A Bigger Bang," earned more than $500 million between 2005

Their legions of fans will hear era-defining tracks such as "Gimme Shelter," "Jumping Jack Flash," "Tumbling Dice," "It's Only Rock and Roll," plus a few surprises and other classics from GRRR!, the multiformat album coming out in November.

"GRRR!" is a greatest hits collection that includes two new songs "Doom and Gloom" and "One More Shot," recorded "crowning glory" of celebra- recently in Paris — the first new recordings since the 2005 album A Bigger Bang.

The band promises an all-new, custom-built set design, featuring the tongue and floppy lip logo, that will "reach out into the crowd." A wider tour is not planned, though the Dec. 15 performance will be available on pay per view.

The tour comes despite some famously testy times.

Richards and Jagger have been creative catalysts and sparring partners — sentiments aggravated two years ago when Richards published his autobiography "Life."

They've nonetheless appeared amicably together during events that marked their 50th anniversary. A documentary about the band, "Crossfire Hurricane," premieres at the London Film Festival on Thursday.

In another milestone marking their five decades of music, the Museum of Modern Art in New York will host "The Rolling Stones: 50 Years on Film," a reta rospective chronicling the band from the mid-1960s until today. This exhibition will be open Nov. 15.

Memphis musician Cunningham dead at 70

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Police say Memphis musician B.B Cunningham, who played with Jerry Lee Lewis and scored a hit with "Let it All Hang Out" with his own band, the Hombres, was trying to help a fellow security guard when he and a teenager were killed in a shootout.

Memphis police say the 70-year-old Cunningham, a security guard at an apartment complex, died early Sunday. Police said a 16year-old boy and a 22-year-old man had fired shots at another security guard at the complex when Cunningham responded.

Cunningham chased them into another apartment complex. When the second guard arrived, he found Cunningham and the 16-yearold fatally shot in a courtyard.

Police spokeswoman Karen Rudolph says the 22-year-old man, who had fled the scene, has been charged with first-degree murder for allegedly shooting Cunningham.

Social Security benefits to go up by 1.7 percent

By STEPHEN OHLEMACHER

Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) - More than 56 million Social Security recipients will see their monthly payments go up by 1.7 percent next

The increase, which starts in January, is tied to a measure of inflation released Tuesday, showing inflation has been relatively low over the past year, despite the recent surge in gas prices, resulting in one of the smallest increases in Social Security payments since automatic adjustments were adopted in 1975. Social Security payments for retired workers average $1,237 a month, or about $14,800 a year. The increase will amount to about $21 a month, or $252 a year.

Social Security recipients received a 3.6 percent increase in benefits this year after getting none the previous two years. About 8 million people who receive Supplemental Security Income will also receive the cost-of-living adjustment, or COLA, affecting about 1 in "The annual COLA is critically important to the financial security of the (56) million Americans receiving Social Security benefits today," said Nancy LeaMond, AARP's executive vice president. "Amid rising costs for food, utilities and health care, the COLA helps millions of older Americans maintain their standard of living."

The amount of wages subjected to Social Security taxes is going up, too. Social Security is supported by a 12.4 percent tax on wages up to $110,100. That threshold will increase to $113,700 next year, resulting in higher taxes for nearly 10 million workers and their employers, according to the Social Security Administration.

Half the tax is paid by workers and the other half is paid by employers. Congress and President Barack Obama reduced the share paid by workers from 6.2 percent to 4.2 percent for 2011 and 2012. The temporary cut, however, is due to expire at the end of the

in Western Baptist Hospital's new Pink Glove Dance for breast cancer awareness, the motivation to don pink gloves and dance in a national video is very personal.

For Western Baptist administrative assistant Dana McAfee, it's her sister Cassie, who died of breast cancer in 2003 at 40. Mary Hayes, of the scheduling department, danced to honor the two-year fight of her daughter, Amy Cope, who also can be seen in the video. EEG technician Rebecca Johnson wanted to honor the late mother of her 11-year-old daughter's best friend.

"I want her to know we are working to help prevent that from happening to other young girls because no child should have to go through that," Johnson said. "I also know several women who have had breast cancer and won the battle with surgery and/or chemo. I want all of them to know we are in this fight to prevent them from having to go through that battle.'

After placing sixth in the national contest last year with its first video, Western Baptist Hospital partnered with Murray State University this year for its second entry. The video posted today on pinkglovedance.com. Videos are listed alphabetically, so look for us in the V-Z category. The Web site experienced problems at first due to an overwhelming response, so be patient if you have difficulty. Viewers can vote via Facebook through Oct. 26. Winners will be announced Nov. 2.

"Western Baptist is a regional medical referral center, and Murray State University is our regional university," said Dona Rains,

Western Baptist, "so this is the perfect partnership to-remind women in our region that early detection of breast cancer saves lives."

One in eight women will develop breast cancer, making it the leading cause of cancer death among women.

During Breast Cancer Awareness Month, the hospital uses the video to remind women to get annual mammograms for early detection. The top three vote-getters in the national video contest will receive prizes up to $10,000 for the breast cancer charity of their choice, so the hospital asks viewers to vote once daily by clicking "like" on the video. Ours is the Kentucky Cancer Program's "Just Us Girls" mammography education project.

The video, produced by Murray State's digital media crew, features students, the Murray State band and dance team, basketball coach Steve Prohm, as well as hospital staff, including several breast cancer sur-

CMC recognizes physical therapists

Medical Center and the American Physical Therapy Association (APTA) recognize the important roles played by physical therapists and physical therapy assistants in a patient's continuum of care.

This year's theme is Move Forward: Physical Therapy Brings Motion To Life.

Each October is dedicated to those who are experts in restoring and improving motion. With emergency rooms experiencing 47,000 fall-related visits annually from senior citizens due to improper use and fit of walking aids, assessment by a physical therapist can help reduce the number of these dangerous incidents by ensuring appropriateness and proper fit of the walking device.

Physical therapists also advise against borrowing walking aids from friends and family: This often leads to improper fit and misuse. Debbie Jelks is a clinical specialist for just such challenges at the Center for Wellness and Rehabilitation.

LAKERS FALL IN ONLY FOURTH REGIONAL TOURNEY TRIP IN 26 SEASONS

By JACK KEES

Assistant Sports Editor DRAFFENVILLE, Ky. - A high school team with a history of success on the state level would consider a first round exit of the regional tournament a disappointment, but a team that is making its fourth trip in a 25-year history can consider it a good season with a step in the right direction.

"You have a program that is not used to coming to a regional tournament, and the players kind of get 'just'. happy to be here' type feelings, and sometimes it takes a while to understand the seriousness of the situation," Calloway County head coach Brandon Morris said of the big stage.

The Calloway County boys soccerteam, competing in its fourth tournament in the program's 25-year history, and second in three years, lost to the First Region's top regular season team, and First District champion Heath, 3-0 in the opening round of the First Region Tournament Tuesday at Marshall County.

through the first 20 minutes of the contest until the Lakers were awarded a corner kick at the 19-minute mark of the period. The ball was deflected by the Heath goalie, but Calloway senior Christian Dinh sent the rebound back to the goal with his head, which appeared to cross the plane, but was not called and deflected back out of the net. Dinh got another shot off, again with his head, but it was low and the keeper successfully stepped out of the goal and grabbed the shot. It seemed from there the Lakers caused a big swing in the momentum in their favor, however the Pirates scored their first goal of the game less than a minute later.

The 1-0 score would hold through the rest of the half, and 11 minutes into the second, when Heath would add

The final goal of the night came with 43 seconds left in the contest, where Calloway goalkeeper Ian Umstead would miss the save and give the final score.

Phil Coke gave up consecutive singles with two outs in the ninth before striking out postseason star Raul Ibanez for his second save in two games. Detroit can complete a sweep and earn its second pennant in seven years Wednesday night when Max Scherzer pitches against Yankees ace CC Sabathia.

"We put ourselves in a decent position, but that's all we have done," Tigers manager Jim Leyland said.

goals, Umstead played like he expected him to play, giving up his body to protect the goal, as he finished the game with 11 saves, many of which were acrobatic, as he deflected several shots where he had to jump to the top the goal with an outstretched arm.

"Ian made some incredible saves, saves that professionals would kill for," he said.

Morris said the Lakers were trying to move the Heath defense into a place where they could attack the goal, but once the Pirates adjusted to the Laker attack, they had some trouble getting to the opponent's side of the field.

'We got a couple chances early to get some one-on-ones and push the pace," he said, "but once they started dropping back on defense earlier in the possessions, and controlling the middle of the field, we had trouble stringing multiple passes togeth-

"They pressured extremely well, and we kind of panicked a little bit, it wasn't one of our best outings altogether.'

The Lakers finish the season with an 11-6-2 overall record, a second place finish in the Second District, as well as a district tournament runner-up trophy, and will have no choice but to look back on 2012 as a successful step toward a bright future.

"You can always say this was a successful season for us," Morris said. "We're still a program that people don't always expect to make the regional tournament, so hopefully we're changing the dynamic of the region, and hopefully we can keep rolling next year.

This year was our third consecutive winning season (12-7 in 2011, 14-5-2 in 2010), and Calloway has never had three winning seasons in a row before, and these guys know what it takes to win, and they do it for the most part.'

Morris said the team has taken strides in the First Region, and added the team never was blown out. Their largest margin of defeat on the season was three goals, the first on Sept. 27 when they lost to Marshall County 4-1 on the road, and the second was Tuesday in the 3-0 loss to Heath.

We come out and play elite competition like we did today, and sometimes it doesn't go our way, but I think you can put us in the upper half of the region for sure, and on the season, we feel like we beat the teams we should have beaten. 'We didn't drop easy games, we didn't do anything detrimental to our season, and when we ALCS ... From Page 8A base, but, you know, when you face Verlander, you know what you're up against."

Seeking their first World Series title since 1984, the Tigers were on a historic pitching run even before their ace took the mound Tuesday. With the exception of a four-run ninth inning against Detroit closer Jose Valverde in Game 1, New York had been shut out for the entire series.

Nunez's homer snapped a streak of 37 innings by Detroit starters without allowing an earned run, the longest in a single postseason in the live-ball era.

Verlander fell just short of a second straight shutout after stopping the Oakland Athletics in the decisive fifth game of the division series. He struck out only three but kept New York off the scoreboard until the homer to left field by Nunez, the first run allowed by the powerful right-hander since he gave up a leadoff homer to Coco Crisp in Game 1 of the Verlander got Brett Gardner on a tapper before he was lifted after 132 pitches, one shy of his career high set in Game 5 of last year's ALCS against Texas.

"Normally I guess you don't take Secretariat out in the final furlong, but that was pretty much it for him," Leyland said.

Coke came in and allowed two-out hits to Mark Teixeira and Robinson Cano, with the latter snapping a drought of 29 at-bats without a hit. With an anxious Verlander pacing in the dugout and rubbing the bald head of a teammate, Ibanez - who hit tying and winning homers in the same game in the ALDS against Baltimore and tied Game 1 of this series with a homer in the ninth - struck out swinging at a breaking ball to end it. "I've got faith in our bullpen. Coke did a great job in New York. He's done a great job for us all year, so I was OK with it," Verlander said. "And I was up around 130 pitches or so, so I don't think they're just going to leave me out there and sacrifice the rest of the postseason just for this game, especially when Coke's been throwing the ball extremely well."

The game ended with Nick Swisher on deck to pinch-hit, not Rodriguez.

Verlander, the reigning AL

MVP and Cy Young Award winner, came within three outs of becoming the first pitcher in 24 shutouts in the postseason, according to STATS LLC. Orel Hershiser did it for the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1988, blanking the New York Mets in Game 7 of the NL championship series

Sept. 11 case returns to Gitmo war crimes court

GUANTANAMO BAY NAVAL BASE, Cuba (AP) — Five Guantanamo prisoners charged in the Sept. 11 attacks returned before a military tribunal Monday, forgoing the protest that turned their last appearance into an unruly 13-hour spectacle. their attorneys in a specially who has said he masterminded the worst terror attack on U.S. soil, and four codefendants did little to speed up proceedings that have stuck in a legal and political morass for years. Prosecutors and lawyers spent hours arguing the most preliminary of issues, including whether the defendants have to be in court at all, with one attorney saying the hearings may dredge up bad memories of their harsh treatment in CIA deten-

"Our clients may believe that ... I don't want to be subjected to this procedure that transports me here, brings up memories, brings up emotions of things that happened to me," said Jim Harrington, who represents Ramzi Binalshibh, accused of helping to provide support to the hijackers who crashed planes into the World Trade Center, Pentagon and a field in Pennsylvania on Sept. 11, 2001. The five men sat quietly at the defense tables under the watchful eyes of military guards and the U.S. base in Cuba. Mohammed, his beard dyed a rust color with henna, serenely read legal papers. Two others responded politely to the judge when asked.

All seemed to cooperate with muffle sounds so spectators behind a glass wall cannot hear classified information.

The orderly scene was in stark contrast to their arraignment in May on charges that include terrorism and murder. At that session, one prisoner was briefly restrained for acting out, Binalshibh launched into an incoherent rant, the men generally ignored the judge and refused to use the court translation system, and two stood up to pray at one point.

Harrington told the court that the defendants may want to boycott future court sessions because they don't recognize the U.S. government's authority, or because their transportation from their high-security cells may remind them of the harsh treatment they endured when confined in the CIA's overseas network of secret prisons before they came to Guantanamo in September 2006.

Prosecutors want the men to be required to attend court sessions. The military judge, Army several 9/11 family members at Col. James Pohl, is weighing several options, including allowing them to skip months of pretrial sessions but requiring their presence at the trial. He had not ruled on the issue before the court adjourned Monday for lunch and a prayer break.

Pohl is presiding over a week-But the apparent cooperation designed high-tech courtroom long hearing to consider about of Khalid Sheikh Mohammed, that allows the government to two dozen preliminary legal issues. An eventual trial is likely at least a year away.

The focus of the week's hearings include broad security rules for the prisoners, including measures to prevent the accused from publicly revealing what happened to them in the CIA

Prosecutors have asked the judge to approve what is known as a protective order intended to prevent the release of classified information during trial. Lawyers for the defendants say the rules, as proposed, will hobble their defense. The American Civil Liberties Union, which has filed a separate challenge, says the restrictions are overly broad and would improperly keep the public from hearing the men speak about their

"What we are challenging is the censorship of the defendant's testimony based on their personal knowledge of the government's torture and detention of them," said Hina Shamsi, an ACLU attorney.

The order, which is also being challenged by a coalition of media organizations that includes The Associated Press, is overly broad because it would "classify the defendants own knowledge, thoughts and experience." Shamsi said in an interview.

Protective orders are standard in civilian and military trials to set rules for handling evidence. Military prosecutors argue in court papers that the Sept. 11 trial requires additional security because the defendants have personal knowledge of classified information such as interrogation techniques and knowledge about which other countries provided assistance in their capture Army Brig. Gen. Mark Martins, the chief prosecutor for the military commissions, said

Sunday the security precautions are necessary to prevent the release information that could harm U.S. intelligence operations or personnel around the world, and not to prevent embarrassing the government or to cover-up wrongdoing.

"Our government's sources and methods are not an open book." Martins said.

The U.S. government has acknowledged that before the defendants were taken to Guantanamo in September 2006 they were subjected to "enhanced interrogation techniques" such as the simulated drowning method known as waterboarding.

Defense attorneys say the treatment will be used to form the basis of their defense, but the proposed order limits their ability to make that case in court and in public advocacy on behalf of their clients.

"It's a way in which the government can hide what it did to these men during the period of detention by the CIA," said Army Capt. Jason Wright, a Pentagon-appointed attorney for Mohammed. "I think we need to bring the truth to the light of day on these issues."

The judge's approval of the protective order, which may not happen this week, must occur before the Sept. 11 case can move forward. Defense lawyers cannot begin to review classified evidence against their clients until it is in place.

The Sept. 11 victims' family members attending the hearings in Guantanamo are chosen by lottery. Other families and the public were invited to view the proceedings from closed-circuit video in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Maryland. Just seven families attended the first day of the hearings at a U.S. military base in Brooklyn.

Mohammed and his four codefendants are being prosecuted in a special military tribunal for wartime offenses known as a military commission. They were arraigned May 5 on charges that include terrorism, conspiracy and 2,976 counts of murder in violation of the law of war, one count for each known victim of the Sept. 11 attacks at the time the charges were filed. They could get the death penalty if convicted.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Thursday, Oct. 18, 2012:

This year your imagination opens many doors, and the only issue will be which one you would like to go through. The unexpected keeps you alert and excited about life. If you are single, you have a way about you that draws many people in. You will need to be selective in order to decide who you most want to be close to. Enjoy the process. If you are attached, a tendency to kiss and make up becomes more important. Both of you understand how vital this is to your relationship. SAGITTARIUS enjoys pulling you out of yourself.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4 Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 You might not realize how much you trigger certain people in your life, especially as of late. You see beyond the obvious and act accordingly. Others could be shocked as a result. An explanation definitely would help. Make calls and network; know what you expect

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

* Work with a partner directly, and you really might appreciate the experience and its benefits. Pressure builds when a partner or associate pushes you too hard for your own good. You might be willing to spend money on a specific item.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ Your optimism remains, no matter what obstacles you face. In fact, a meaningful exchange occurs between you and someone else only because of your upbeat attitude. Sometimes you find a key person to be a little too aggressive or assertive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★ Pace yourself, as you have a lot to accomplish. Know that your mind will be working overtime, and you'll have difficulty concentratng. You might make a decision about a job or situation that puts many demands on you. Follow through on what you need to do. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

* You cannot go wrong if you are spontaneous. News or an idea surprises you by triggering all types of reactions -- some angry, some unpredictable. You'll land on your feet no matter what. Your friends support you in your goals. Whether they agree with them or not will be irrelevant.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)  You are enthusiastic about a personal matter. If you are not dealing with that issue, you could have difficulty focusing on anything else. If you do manage to focus your attention elsewhere, then that issue and the people involved could resurface and tap you on the

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 Make calls early, as you likely will be swamped by others seeking you out, whether it is via email, phone or simply arriving at your door. You could become frustrated and, as a result, lose your temper. News comes in from someone at a distance or from someone you do not speak to often.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)  Be careful with spending. You could be letting go of negative feelings through shopping. Stop and deal with your frustrations headon. You might want to get to the root of the issue and find out why you are so easily triggered. Cool off, then approach the problem.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  Funnel your energy into whatever you want, and your creativity will surge as a result. You might try out some of your wild ideas on someone. If you proceed as usual, you might become quite frustrated. Use your current unusual energy well. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 You might want to step back from a project for a while, especially if you have a conflict with someone involved. Stay calm when dealing with an unpredictable individual. This person might mean what he or she says now, but not later. Get as much done as you can on your own

* You might be more removed than you realize, as your mind wanders from one thought to another. Your creativity continues to be high. Share more of your ingenuity in a meeting. Others initially might be startled, but eventually they'll go along with some of your ideas. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)  Pressure comes from what you think you need to accomplish as opposed to what others want you to do. At a certain point, you need to honor your priorities, or else you will not be happy. A family member or domestic matter occupies your attention.

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old stepson, "Justin," doesn't drink or do drugs. For the most part, he stays out of trouble. The problem is, he has been caught for the third time having unprotected sex.

My anger isn't at Justin so much as at with m a n y things, for By Abigail the most Van Buren part minor.

But this is different. A 15year-old boy can't take care of a baby, and having sex with multiple partners means exposing everyone involved to STDs.

My husband is a smart man, but for some reason he seems to think this will end well. I worry about his son becoming a father too soon and missing out on his full potential. My husband and his ex have dealt with this by trying to ignore it, and for the most part I haven't involved myself. But the more I think about it, the more I see the danger of Justin's life being changed forever because his parents don't want to make him unhappy for a minute.

I love my husband and stepson. Allowing this to continue isn't the right path for anyone. Am I overreacting? If not, what can I do that won't cause a huge blowup with my husband? -- ALARMED

DEAR ALARMED: You're not overreacting. Your husband is doing his son no favors by enabling his irresponsible behavior instead of asserting himself and acting like a parent. Justin may think that fathering a child will make him a "real man." But unless your husband can get through to him that REAL men take care of themselves and their partners, and REAL men don't risk bringing children into the world they can't take care of, then face it: He's letting his son play baby roulette.

DEAR ABBY: My son has wonderful girlfriend, "Michelle." They live with my ex-husband and visit my husband, "Daryl," and me twice a month and on special occasions. Michelle is sweet, caring, smart and funny. The problem is, she doesn't wear a bra.

Relatives have commented about it to us at family gatherings because she's not flatchested. We already know. It's obvious. Daryl feels a woman should go without a bra only in the privacy of her own home, and I agree. He thinks I should buy Michelle a bra as a "subtle hint." I don't think that's wise, and I don't want to offend her.

Because it doesn't seem to matter to my son, should we continue to keep our opinions to ourselves? -- SEES A NEED FOR SUPPORT

DEAR SEES A NEED: Because people are talking, it would be a kindness to say something to her -- but DEL-ICATELY, so she doesn't think you are criticizing her.

they

Psychopaths just really don't care about the feelings of others. They are extremely egocentric, engaging in immoral and antisocial behavior for short-term gains. Psychopaths are predators, and anyone who they think can feed their need is potential prey.

Psychopaths engage in planned, controlled and purposeful aggression. The primary goal is not necessarily to injure others, but simply to get what they want. They are also more likely to engage in impulsive behavior, to become emotional and aggressive.

Psychopaths are often superficially charming and glib. At first, they capture people's attention easily and even gain their trust. That helps them to take advantage of others because they know that acting friendly and helpful will help them get what they want.

Some, but not all, psychopaths can be violent. But a psychopath is just as willing to use a well-timed compliment to achieve his or her goals.

Fortunately, there are relatively few true psychopaths whom we interact with. But unfortunately, there are a lot of people with some of the same personality features. There's a newly emerging term, an "almost psychopath, coined by researchers at Harvard Medical School. The distinction between a psychopath and an "almost psychopath" is the lesser degree and frequency with which they exhibit psychopathic traits. The evidence is that there are a lot of "almost psychopaths" in the world around us.

Perhaps you suspect you are involved with a psychopath or 'almost psychopath" -- at home, work or elsewhere. Here are some considerations and actions to keep in mind:

-- Accept the possibility that you are in a very bad situation, perhaps with someone to whom you are closely attached.

-- Document, privately and carefully, the behaviors and events that concern you.

-- Reach out to others for help. -- Trust your gut instincts.
-- Say something. The silence of those that psychopaths and "almost psychopaths" betray, manipulate and abuse is perhaps the greatest ally they possess. -- If you find yourself being hurt or otherwise abused, get out as quickly and safely as you can.

I've put a description of an "almost psychopath" on my website: AskDoctorK.com. It's taken from an insightful book by my Harvard colleagues Dr. Ronald Schouten and Dr. James Silver, "Almost a Psychopath." In everyday language, it describes how to recognize "almost psychopaths" and how to protect yourself from them. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Gut the pumpkin while the kids pick out a few metal cookie cutters. Allow them to press the cookie cutter into the pumpkin. Then, using a rubber mallet, tap until it is completely pressed in. Leaving the cookie cutter there, carve around it with a knife, removing the metal and the unwanted piece of pumpkin together. You can continue adding character to your pumpkin until your family is happy. Add a battery-operated tea light and enjoy! — Heloise

Yes, just mix 3 parts cold water with 1 part tomato paste (you will want to make adjustments for your own taste). Place the ingredients in a blender until smooth, then add salt and pepper to taste.

Once you have the base to your liking, try adding other vegetables or your favorite salsa. Be creative. This is very inexpensive to make, but you can get some terrific flavors by adding different ingredients that you enjoy. -Heloise

RECLOSABLE PACKETS

Dear Heloise: I buy dried fruit in the small, sturdy, reclosable packets. Being reclosable, they're great for olives, pickles and carrot sticks, or crackers and cookies in a brown-bag lunch or lunchbox. The bags can be tossed after one use or washed out and reused many times. - Pam R., via email
