DENTIST, DUCHESS AND AN EMPRESS
The story of the duchess and the dentist is taken from the picture pages and enables Louisville's School of Dentistry to shine with reflected glory.

This is a story and a number of years ago another American dentist, not so young nor yet as per-sonal, but the present-day hero, saved the life of an empress. The scene was in the State of Tennessee, after all. The Second rural community in Rowan county has received electricity.

Eugenie, of a sudden stranded by the Tuileries. To escape to England was threatened the very foundations of French society. Eugenie was, to all inteists and purposes, a prisoner in the Tuileries. To escape to England was the problem, to disguised the mod that turned against her with a ferocity as unnatural as the adulation that had been here but a brief season earlier.

At this juncture the hero of this philanthropic tale is introduced by the name of Frank E. Phillips. He proposed to escort her to the scene where a boat would be easily available if no suspicions were aroused. The doctor's story is the record is not quite clear, the lady was given the baths in a fashiable world, crept down a back-staircase, entered a hired carriage, Bedo. Not many years after the Common turned to Tuileries as a gesture of farewell and received to mess up things with an efcient German looters may have learned from them.

The dental, true to his promise, in no way alienated by service charges, placated the empress aboard a boat and returned to his patients. Not many years later he died leaving a neat sum to Philaphia, who is today the former queen of Spain -- Eugenie, languished in exile. Her son.
