Negro Fireman Tells Story Of Casey Jones

Sim, a slim, graying negro, whose home is at 680 East-st., Memphis, this week told the story of the fatal ride of Casey Jones, over a national radio hook-up. Nearly everyone has heard the song that tells of his railroad wreck, which has made his name famous in railroad history.

In Fulton a few years ago, during the celebration of the 80th anniversary of railroading here, Mrs. Casey Jones made her personal appearance here at the throttle of the replica of the first pioneer train to pull into this town. The substance of the story about Casey Jones' final ride:

On the night of April 30, 1900, Casey opened the throttle on the old I. C. No. 638, and with Sim as his fireman, they pulled out of Memphis headed south for Canton, Miss. A rainy, misty fog shrouded the route ahead, and the train was 30 minutes behind schedule. As the renowned engineer gripped the throttle, Sim fed the coal into the hungry engine's firebox. The train swished through the darkness at 50, 55, 60 miles per hour. They were making up some of the lost time. Casey was smiling.

Just this side of Vaughn, Miss., they came to a long, wide curve. Suddenly Casey yelled, "Jump, Sim, jump!" as he reached for the control on the airbrakes. Sim knew that he could not do anything, so he jumped and landed in a clump of bushes as the engine plowed into three boxcars and a caboose. Casey was the only one killed.

Efforts are now being made in Fulton county to erect a memorial at Cayce, Ky., nine miles west of Fulton, in honor of the famous engineer who stood at his post in the face of death.

Bulldogs Close Their Basketball Season

Fulton High School Bulldogs battled the Mayfield quintet here at the Science Hall gym last Friday night, losing 23 to 13. Billy Williams was unable to play in the game, and Thomas participated only in part of it. The score was practically tied until the last quarter.

The Fulton Bulldogs lost a hard fought game fought game 22-27 on the local floor Tuesday night to Sedalia. They held the Sedalia team to 7-3 at the end of the first quarter and during the second quarter both teams forged ahead ending with a 12-12 tie. In the final half, Conner of Sedalia and Parker and Billy Williams of Fulton fouled out which was a loss to both teams.

Hickman comes here Friday night to play the Bulldogs and on next Tuesday night the local aggregation will play Lonoke here. The final game of the season will be played with Bardwell here Friday night, February 25.

Fulton will enter the First District tournament which will be held at Clinton, March 1-5. The Bulldogs first tournament game will be with Columbus, Wednesday, March 2 at 8:00 p. m., passing that Fulton will play the winner of the Arlington-Fulgham game. Farmers attending the seventh annual short course at the Western Kentucky Experiment Substation at Princeton on Wednesday and Thursday of this week heard the 1938 farm program explained by O. M. Farrington, state executive officer of the AAA. He gave complete details of what farmers may expect in the program this year.

Another feature of the meeting was a discussion of the farm outlook for this year, including probable prices of tobacco, strawberries and other fruit, cotton and livestock. Farmers were told about a new kind of corn, known as hybrid, that produces much better than common kinds, and can be grown anywhere in Kentucky.

Other subjects discussed in the two days include cooperative marketing, pastures, the growing and curing of burley and dark tobacco, control of livestock diseases and soil fertility. NEWS BRIEFS

A Chevrolet truck too tall to pass under the viaduct on Lake-st extension, while endeavoring to back up, crashed into a truck driven by George Moore and belonging to the local Coca-Cola plant. Seems rather difficult for some people to decide whether a circus has come to town, or what, when a thundering herd of Shelton ponies invade the business district, with youngsters about town enjoying an afternoon astride. Just as sure as a fair day shows up, so do the children with their ponies—out for their daily dozen. It really is quite a show. Among our famous riders are Barbara Askew, Betty Lou McClellan, Joan Bullock, Jack Adams, Margaret Harpole, Peggy Scott, Junior Johnson, Betty Lou Gore. And do they have fun!

A Knight of the Open Road, or tourist by rail, came into the office Wednesday night and asked if we had any old papers we could give him. We gathered up bundle, then decided we had better keep some of them because, being some of our last edition, we figured someone might call for them.

The jovial fellow of the "road" remarked: "That reminds me of the liveryman back home, who would never rent out his last horse and buggy for fear someone would come in and want to hire it."

Anyway, the joke was well worth the papers we gave him.

An Arkansas woman advertised for a husband. She got one at a cost of $9.00. He enlisted in the army and was killed. She got $3,000 insurance and a widow's pension for the rest of her life. Yet some will tell you that advertising doesn't pay!

Benny Tate, veteran of twenty years in organized baseball, has been named as pilot of the Mayfield Clothiers during the 1938 season. Spring practice for the Clothiers will open just as soon as the rookie school is over.

Mrs. Bard, 98, Lives Through Three Wars

Mrs. Eugenia Paralee Bard, who has lived through three wars, celebrated her 98th birthday Thursday, at her home here on Park-av. Born February 17, 1840 in Weakley County, Tenn., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Roberts, she was left motherless at the age of six years. At the age of 18 she married because she "had so many sweet-hearts she had to get rid of them." After the marriage, she and her husband made their home near Enon church. She is the mother of three children, Lenora Bard Hall, Julia Bard Bryant and Fenley Bard, all now deceased.

Granny Bard has lived through three wars—the Civil, Spanish-American and the World War. Her great grandfather was General Love who fought in the Revolutionary War. She is a Methodist, being a charter member of the Mt. Moriah church established in 1848, and she has always voted a straight Democratic ticket.

She loves to tell of her first trip to see a circus in 1868, and about the first automobile making its appearance in Fulton, which frightened teams and excited the people many of whom were afraid of the contraption. She has never had any desire to ride in an aeroplane and says she will "keep her feet on the ground until God sends his chariot."

Granny believes that people today worship clothes too much. In her day one good dress a season was ample for social occasions. Her father never permitted her to read magazines and trifling stories, and she never used "paint or chalk" on her face to make herself beautiful. But she avers that it is no more harm for a woman to smoke than it is for a man. She has a clay pipe given her five years ago on her anniversary. She learned to smoke with her mother's pipe when she was a small girl, back in the days of hoop skirts.

WILFORD TO TELL WAY TO WORLD PROGRESS

"What Has Christianity To Say?" will be the subject of the sermon to be delivered Sunday by the Rev. J. N. Wilford, pastor of the First Methodist Church here.

"Our world is confused and civilization is staggering like a drunken beast trying to find its way out of the present night of despair," Rev. Wilford declared. "Modern civilization is on trial and along with it the church. Religion, under the banner of many isms, was never more in evidence than at the present. But, we must not confuse religion with Christianity unless it has the genuine mark of Christ."

"Humanity is looking for a way out and will try most anything for a season. The various religions of today have their prophets and priests pleading for the allegiance of the world. Yet confusion is added to confusion and the world staggers on. In the flux of it all, we seem to hear a voice saying, 'What Has Christianity To Say?' Does the church have some word of hope?"

"Yes, Christianity has something to say. And thank God it has some word for just such a time as this. The very fact that men are turning to the church with this question is the most encouraging sign of the coming Awakening. Our Holy Christian Religion has that word and it was spoken by The (Continued on Page Two)

Mountain Preacher Guest Local Church

The Rev. R. B. Moyers was a guest speaker at the First Baptist church here Tuesday night, and told of the work in the mountain country by the mountain "boy preachers." He also told of the Clear Creek Encampment, the Baptists' assembly grounds in the mountain where each year gatherings of young people and young preachers, as well as other religious services, are held. He is making a tour of the western district of the state with three of his mountain workers, all natives of the hills, and acquainting the members of the denomination in this section with the work and needs of the mountain mission work.

He gave interesting incidents connected with his work as a preacher "in the hills." He was heard with deep attention by the audience and his message was a revelation to all of the conditions in the mountains.

The party making the tour of West Kentucky is composed of Dr. L. C. Kelly, the Rev. Mr. Thomas and the Revs. R. B. Moyers and Mari Lovitt.

Wilford's Sermon

Word which was made flesh, when He said, 'I am the Way, the Truth and the Life.' Let us publish this good news from pulpit and pew until the last son of Adam has heard it.

"We must have travelers of the Way as well as preachers of the Way to convince the world of the Truth and Life of the Christ-Way. It is hard to direct a Tourist over a route you have never traveled yourself. So, a stranger to the Christ-Way of life will not be able to direct a lost soul who is seeking the Way.

"The Christ-Way is a well defined Way and may be found by any person who will honestly seek it. For Christ is out on this Way seeking the lost. Repentance, faith and obedience will bring us into the Way of Truth and Life. In this Way we will find forgiveness, peace, love and joy as well as opportunity for service. For the Christ of the Way rewards us along the way as well as at the end of the Way. No one has ever traveled this Way without feeling his heart burn within him. "This Way of life was surveyed by the Son of God and every step of the way is familiar to Him. The problems of today find their solution in this Way. Co-operation, peace, good-will and world brotherhood will come to the world when the nations of the earth adopt the Christ-way and walk therein. Is it not time for us to give Christ a chance to redeem and transform the world by trying His Way?"

THE YOUNG DRIVER

In a report just issued by traffic experts of the American Association for the Advancement of Science figures show that the most deadly class of drivers in the U. S. today are those in their teens. In fact, these same figures show that the driver in his teens is causing every year almost double the number of lives taken by average drivers in all other age classifications.

Most accidents, as shown by the report which covers a five-year period and a study of more than 2,000,000 traffic fatalities, are caused by drivers between 16 and 20 years of age. Drivers at the age of 19 get the worst rating of all, while it is shown that if motorists under 25 drove as safely as older operators 8,000 lives would be saved every year.

These are staggering and impressive figures, and should be given careful thought by every Fulton citizen—especially those who have a boy or girl under 20 accustomed to operate a car. Drivers license laws carrying a limitation have helped in some sections, but that is far from being a solution to the problem of what to do to make the teenage drivers less deadly. Safety instruction in schools will bring about a certain measure of relief from the annual toll of death. But the schools, for some unknown reason, do not go in for safety instruction as heartily as they should. So the country goes on gasping at the annual death list, wholly unable to control the teen-age drivers or to invent any way whereby their parents might be made to assume so much of the responsibility that they would hasten to take a hand in the matter. And that, after all, may be where the final solution lies.

TOO MANY PAINS

Ever notice that there appears to be more different kinds of aches and pains and general physical complaints around Fulton than used to be the case. Not that the health of the community isn't as good as in former years, for it is. But more people seem to make public their ailments than in other years.

We've done a lot of wondering about it and have reached the conclusion that changing habits of eating and variety of food has a lot to do with it. This generation isn't eating like the former one. This one goes in more for canned and fancy prepared foods. Housewives don't can the roughage their mothers did—pickles, corn hominy, beans and that type of stuff. Now they can't get jellies, jams and preserves. We are not finding fault with the changed custom—we are merely wondering if back of it doesn't lie the real reason for more minor physical ailments than befell our fathers and mothers in earlier days.

The death rate isn't as high now as formerly, for which everyone is truly thankful. We are more healthy, yet more complaining; we wear fewer clothes, yet we are more comfortable. So it's a funny proposition any way you take it and no one seems to know the answer to it unless it is "stylish" nowadays to brag about your ailments.

VALUE OF THRIFT

We read in an interesting publication known as "Thrift Magazine" that statistics gathered over a long period of years show that 57 per cent of American citizens... more than one-half the population, haven't as much as $2,000 in money or property, or both, when they reach the age of 65 years. In other words, more than one-half of our population is dependent upon someone else for a living, or on charity, when it reaches 65. That is a startling revelation and one certainly worth pondering over. It ought to prove a powerful sermon to Fulton boys who are starting out to earn their way in the world, or to the man in business who has still some years to go before reaching 65. In a land of good wages and banks paying a reasonable rate of interest on deposited money there doesn't seem to be any excuse for such a deplorable condition. But the fact remains that it exists and it probably will exist until more people wake up to the fact that the most valuable habit anyone can acquire is the habit of thrift... saving against the days when they won't be able to earn.

STITCHES IN TIME

No matter how well you may be fixed for accessories on your car, and even though you seldom drive it more than a few miles from home, you still lack a very important requisite for safety if you haven't a "first aid" kit of some sort under the front seat. At a cost of but a few cents any Fulton motorist can buy a roll of medicated gauze bandage, a little package of absorbent cotton, a vial of arnica, a bit of adhesive tape, some vaseline and, to make the kit complete, a bottle of cramp and colic medicine. You may never need any of these safeguards, but they are a wonderful protection in the event of accident or sudden illness, when it may not be easy to get in touch with medical aid. Or it would come in handy if you found someone along the highway who had fallen a victim to misfortune. It doesn't take up much room in the car, just as this suggestion takes up little room in the paper, yet the value of a "first aid" kit, like the value of the suggestion, cannot be measured by the space it occupies.

THINK OF THIS

There was an item in the daily papers the other day to the effect that a big Chicago food manufacturer has announced he will spend a million dollars in advertising his products in 1938. When asked why, he answered: "Because advertising speaks to everybody, and I can only talk to a few. How can I sell them what they want if I don't tell them that I've got it for sale? I can't visit every house in the United States and tell the people living in those houses that if they will buy my products they will save money. But the newspapers and magazines can visit every home, and they do. So I am going to have them carry my message into homes that I cannot get it into in any other way." There's a whole sermon in a few words, and an argument that no one can successfully dispute. There is also an example in it for any other man who has something to sell. "How can you sell someone what they want to buy if you don't let them know you've got it for sale?" There's something for every man in business to think over.

GENTLEMEN OF THE JURY

SHOULD BUSINESS HAVE STRINGENT GOVERNMENT REGULATION?

The future well being of our public should be the desideratum of today. We like to think of the next generation being grateful for the advantages given by this generation. If we want a progressive people in the future we must of necessity sacrifice something of our own temporary luxuries, if lack of government regulation of business will mean such a sacrifice.

The prospect of smassing a fortune was the energizing force behind the rapid strides made in the past fifty years; an era that gave us conveniences faster than history ever before experienced, conveniences now considered necessities. Then were not the sweat shops of yesterday the donors of our luxuries and benefits of today? The premium placed upon an energetic brain gave the ordinary working man, as well as the rich, the exuberance that he at present enjoys. The fact that seven out of ten automobiles (taking automobiles as an example) operated on this earth are owned by the American public is conclusive proof that said public has progressed more rapidly than other publics. One cannot say that our progress was because of vast natural resources, of course this was a contributing factor, but an abundance has never been an impetus to creative ideas. Individual desire for material wealth and the freedom to attain it, if one could so work his brain, was the impetus. Therein you have the potent hidden force which propelled this nation forward in the business world, past those nations who put regulations on their business as a temporary panacea to an immediate problem thus subtracting from the premium of ingenuity; ultimately subtracting from the progress of the nation. Therefore, we must conclude that to so regulate that reward is no longer available to the ingenious is to detract from tomorrow's Utopia.

Modern Etiquette

1. When an invitation is received over the telephone, is it all right for one to say, "I shall let you know this evening or tomorrow?"
2. Should a man remove his hat when in the elevator of a hotel or an office building, when a woman enters?
3. When passing a plate for a second helping, should one leave

- the knife and the fork on the plate?
4. Should a young man, engaged to be married, resent it if the girl's father asks him questions pertaining to his financial affairs, business position and health?
5. Is it discourteous when one is talking with a person, for this person to show a lack of interest in what is being said?
6. When a woman and her escort enter a theatre, and an usher is at the entrance of the aisle, which one should be first to follow the usher?
7. Please mention about six of the most common forms of rudeness for either a husband or a wife to be guilty of, when the other is entertaining friends in the home.
8. Is it poor form to use the expression "Gents"?
9. Should a hostess always rise when a guest is leaving, as well as arriving?
10. Is it all right for a man to give a woman an article of wearing apparel, as a gift?
11. How long should a hostess wait for a guest who is late for dinner?

12. Is it proper to address a wedding invitation to "Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brown and Family?"

Answers

1. Never. This invitation must be accepted or declined without a moment's hesitation. A pause of even two or three seconds is bad form.
2. He should do so in a hotel elevator, but it is not necessary in an office building or shop.
3. Yes. Under no circumstances should silver be placed on the table cover.
4. No. The father has a perfect right to be concerned about everything that might affect the happiness of his daughter.
5. Yes. This is one of the most frequent acts of discourtesy. To be a good listener is one of the surest ways to gain friends, and is just as important as to be a good speaker.
6. The usher goes first, then the woman and last her escort. If there is no usher, the man should go first.

7. Refuse to talk, refuse to smile, appear bored, fall asleep, leave the room abruptly, sit and read.

8. Yes. It is very poor form. It is no more correct than "daes" would be for "ladies."

9. Yes, always, and whether the guest be a man or a woman. It is exceedingly discourteous if she does not.

10. Not unless the woman is his mother, sister or a close relative.

11. No longer than 15 minutes.

12. No. The words "and Family" are no longer used. An invitation should be sent to Mr. and Mrs. Brown, and a separate invitation to each other member of the family.

Laughing Around the World

With IRVIN S. COBB

Cynthia, Cynthia, He's Been Thinking

By IRVIN S. COBB

FROM the farther uplands of their native state a Kentucky couple descended into the Blue Grass. They had just been married and the trip was in the nature of a honeymoon.

Arriving at a Lexington hotel, the bridegroom left his bride near the door, and approaching the desk, asked for accommodation. "How about a nice room with bath for three dollars?" asked the clerk.

"Suits me," said the hillman. "Register, please," said the clerk and the man from the mountains scrawled painfully, "Anderson Smythe." Then he walked back to his new wife and together they started for the elevator.

"Hey there," said the scandalized clerk, "you can't take that woman up to your room."

"Why can't I?" retorted Mr. Smythe. "This here woman is my wife."

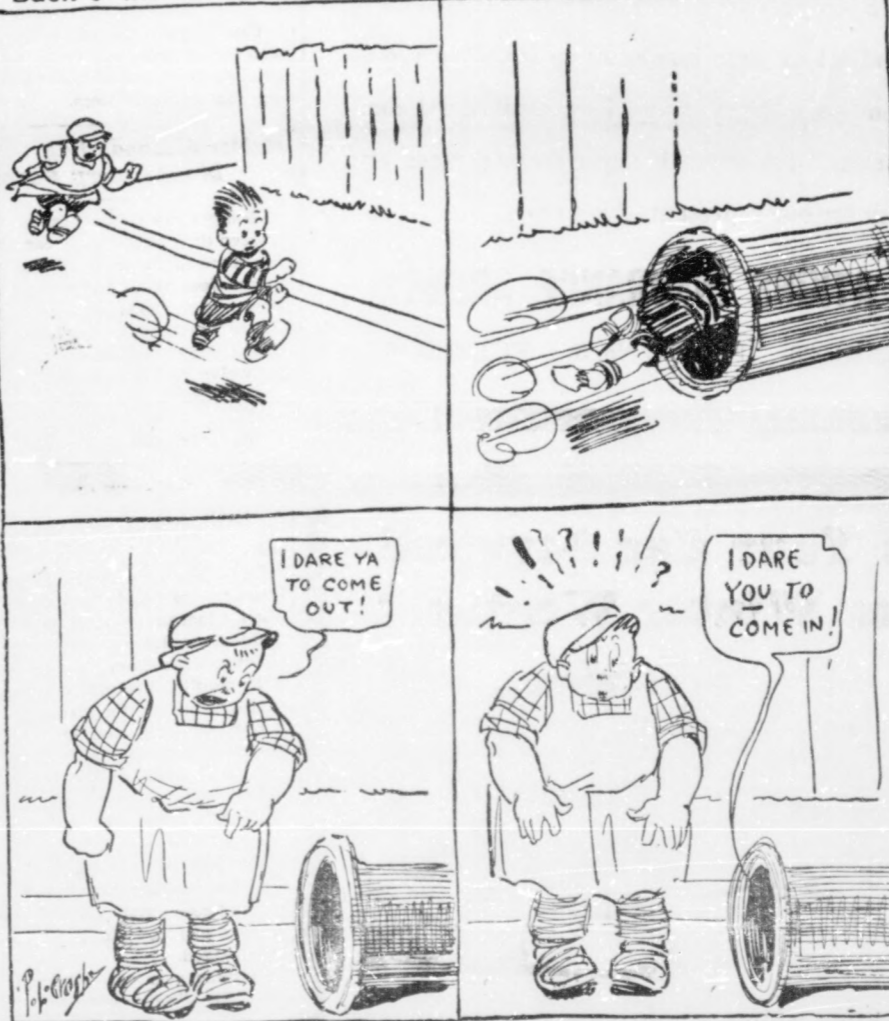

"You'll have to register for her, too, then," the clerk told him.

"Oh, all right," said the husband, and returning to the desk he picked up the pen and added to his previous inscription so that now it read:

"Anderson Smythe—and Cynthia."

APPLE SNOW—2 grated apples; 2 beaten egg whites; 1-2 cups of sugar; combine and beat into a creamy mixture. SAUCE—2 egg yolks; 2 tablespoons cornstarch; 3 tablespoons sugar; pinch of salt; 1-2 cup milk; 1 teaspoon orange juice or orange extract. Cook in double boiler until thick. Allow to cool. Pour the sauce over the apple snow and serve the dish with salted wafers.

ON CLEANING DAY—

To polish silver a simple method is to use one teaspoon common salt and one teaspoon baking soda to every quart of hot water. Use an aluminum pan or one of enamel, resting an aluminum pie plate or cover on the bottom and laying the silver so that it comes in contact with the aluminum or another piece of silver which does touch it. The tarnish is almost instantly removed and the silver may be rinsed and dried. This method should not be used on silver having an oxidized finish.

KITCHEN KINKS

Brushing an unbaked pie with milk or beaten egg will produce an attractive glaze and an even brown. Soak popcorn kernels in cold water 20 minutes, drain off the water and they will pop perfectly. When baking potatoes without jackets rub them with melted butter before putting them in the oven. This keeps the outside from getting crusty and tough.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

In cases of hicough, sit erect and inflate the lungs fully. Then, retaining the breath, bend forward until the chest meets the knees. After slowly rising again to the erect position, slowly exhale the breath. Repeat a second time, and the nerves will be found to have received an excess of energy that will enable them to function properly.

CLOTHES CARE

To clean feathers, cut some soap into small pieces; pour boiling water on the soap and add a little pearlash. When this is dissolved and the mixture is cool enough, plunge the feathers into it and draw them through the hand until the dirt appears to be squeezed out of them. Then place them in a clean lather with some bluing in it. Rinse in cold bluing water to give them a little color; beat them against the hand to shake off the water and dry by shaking them near a fire.

AN INSPIRATION

Better Methods Pay Montgomery Farmers

Montgomery county farmers increased their profits last year by giving more attention to fertility, to better feeding of livestock, and to improved methods generally, according to the annual report of County Agent Floyd McDaniel.

Twelve poultry raisers who kept records made from $1.45 to $1.95 per hen. They found that better feeding and better breeding paid profits.

Beef cattle men who had their cattle ready for market before October did better than those who sold later.

Twenty-three farmers found that limestone or marl and super-phosphate increased hay and grain yields 25 to 100 percent.

Tobacco growers were pleased with results obtained from the use of high-analysis fertilizers.

Farmers who used 20 percent or 43 percent superphosphate on pasture land obtained good results.

The northwestern type of ewe paid better than native ewes.

Even when her mirror shows that her legs are curved like a pair of ice-tongs, you couldn't get a Fulton girl to admit that she is bow-legged.

Nothing ever was achieved without enthusiasm.—Emerson.

●SILO SIMPKINS SAYS

Soil conservation brings crop production in harmony with natural laws.

Because of its favorable climatic conditions Tennessee is an ideal section in which to raise spring lambs for the early market.

When the soil goes down, the homes, the schools and the prosperity of the community go down with it.

New varieties of fruits and vegetables come out every year, but wise planters choose largely from the old established sorts.

Bean beetles, bull weevils and other pests do a lot of damage, but the farmer who does not put all his hope in one crop will suffer least.

Success with sheep means the saving of all lambs, proper feeding of ewes and attention to both lamb and ewe during the lambing season.

A State seed council for Tennessee was organized in Nashville recently for the purpose of encouraging the selection, production and distribution of high quality seed of the best adapted varieties in the State.

The folk songs of the world are less expressive of the people than of the location in which they originate. It is the songs of the mountains, of the desert, of the plains and of the forest that are distinctive. All life goes back to the soil and to the tillers of the soil.

Tennessee farm flock records kept by flock owners during the past eight years show that one of the best ways to increase the poultry income on the average farm in Tennessee is through early hatching, February and March. Early pullets are the best producers of fall eggs and records show there is a close relation between fall egg production and profits for the year.

Sunshine Improves Hatching Quality of Eggs

During the winter months the flock needs all the sunshine it can get, says A. J. Chadwell, U-T Extension poultry specialist.

Of course, the flock must be protected from chill and extreme cold, but before the practice of closing the hen house door before Christmas and not opening it until after Easter as many poultrymen do, reduces the hatchability of the eggs laid in that period.

Thousands of dollars are lost annually by incubating eggs that do not hatch. Many poultry raisers in the past have attributed this loss to the weather and unknown causes or factors over which they have no control. Experiments have been conducted which prove that improper feeding and management of breeding stock has been the principal cause of poor hatches.

The first recommendation for the improvement of hatchability is the greater use of free sunshine and green feed. Mr. Chadwell states. In experiments conducted at the National Agricultural Research Center at Beltsville, Maryland, where the breeding stock was allowed outdoors in the winter sunshine, hatchability increased 14 per cent. This increase was shown despite the fact that the hens had previously received a diet containing two per cent cod-liver oil. Where it is necessary to confine the flock because of extreme weather cod-liver oil is a necessity in securing good hatching eggs.

Poultrymen who cannot secure succulent green feed in the winter may use good grade alfalfa hay and milk products. No winter ration for confined breeding flocks should contain less than five per cent of dried milk products or its equivalent in semisolid or liquid form, unless a meat meal is used and is known to contain enough of dried whole liver to make up at least two per cent of the total ration.

Where Money Goes

Railroads are ready spenders. Every dollar received is immediately put into circulation.

More than one-half of the spending is on payrolls. This gives useful employment to a million workers.

Another large part is spent on purchases. This goes to producers and distributors of some 70,000 different articles.

Then there are taxes. This spending is for such things as schools and highways and police protection.

Interest is another item. This spending goes to a million investors, including insurance companies and endowed institutions.

All this spending helps business, adds to employment, increases the security of American people.
