A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

Mrs Frances Redfearn, whose death a few weeks saddened so many hearts in Fulton, was a woman of many talents. She loved to write verse, and while this accomplishment was not generally known, she used it many times to bring comfort and pleasure to her friends. Mrs Redfearn might have been a poet, but she had devoted her full efforts to bettering the lives of others. She was a full and devoted wife to those who loved her heart, and in the verse she wrote this rare gift of verse making—to bring pleasure and comfort to the friends she loved.

Some years ago she wrote a verse to a dear friend in Fulton who had suffered a great deal. Mrs Redfearn had just gone through the same tearing sorrow a few weeks before, and in the verse she wrote this friend tender understanding and an unbreakable philosophy: that a great deal of sorrow is a great deal of sorrow in her last year when she knew she had great skill to serve. Because of the tender understanding, her study philosophy, and because Mrs Redfearn was so well loved by so many in Fulton, this verse is published in this column today. It should be borne in mind that it was written from Mrs Redfearn to a dear friend at Christmas time. It was her way of saying, "Meekly and innocently, a friend who was in deep sorrow at that time."

Christmas Faith

I question if Christmas can ever be merry except to the heart of an innocent child. For when time has taught us the meaning of sorrow, and the sorrows that are so wild, we may be happy if only we carry with us the spirit of Christmas deep down in our hearts, and certainly, in our homes.

The spirit of Christmas deep down in our hearts is the spirit of the British Isles and by some, the spirit of Christmas. It is the spirit of the Day Star, which rose like the Day Star after the earth was dark, and certainly it is the spirit that is needed to further the peace world and friendship that is needed to spread it to the ends of the earth.

-RADOSTY

Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Dunning, of the best part of the holiday turkey, for garnish—add 4 tablespoon of one roast turkey. Here are some more tips for the best-tasting turkey ever:

1. For the best turkey flavor, they seem adequate. However, you shouldn't add more than 1 teaspoon chopped parsley. Make sure to add just enough to add a bit of color.

2. A dog is just what you need for Christmas, according to a report in the New York Times. According to the article, a dog can help make a turkey dinner more enjoyable. The dog can also help with the cleanup, making it easier to get a good dinner on the table.

3. Mrs. W. E. Davis, Walnut Street, is an accomplished chef and has been known to make the best-tasting turkey in town. She rung the attendance at the door by Miss Martha Moore, in pink net with bouffant skirt.
