THE LISTENING POST

● Talking with a young fellow the other day I received an interesting slant on his mental processes, and on his principal weakness, I think. He was planning to enter his own business in a neighboring town and was talking to me of why he wanted to do this. In a general way, although I do not know the young fellow well, I know that he has never amounted to a great deal. He has held a lot of jobs, some of them which might have amounted to something under proper study and work, and has spent most of his time going from one job to another. Naturally he has never had a great deal, and right now he is greatly pepped up over running his own business.

● "You know," he told me, "I have had so many jobs that I never cared for. Every time I got a job it would not be long before the boss would want me to do something that I could not do. Sometimes I might be able to do some of the things the boss wanted done, but as a rule I had no interest in them. Now I have decided to enter business myself and then I can do exactly as I desire. I won't have to do the things I can't do or don't want to do."

● Well, here was an opportunity for me to preach a sermon to that young fellow and perhaps do him some good. But he seemed utterly happy over his prospects that I did not have the heart to rip him to pieces. He will never see this; therefore, I will never disturb him by upsetting his dreams. Even if he read this column, I doubt if he would recognize himself, for fellows of this type really don't know themselves or humanity. They live in a sort of half world which they have made themselves and refuse to look at the realities of life at all.

● If that fellow had the capacity to learn he might learn some valuable lessons from going into business himself. I doubt if he has this capacity for learning, for if he does have that ability it seems likely that he might have learned better sense long years ago. No, he will go ahead with this new idea of his, will find that it is not pleasant either and will quit it as he has quit many jobs.

● For when a fellow goes into business for himself he really begins to do the things which he does not like to do and which he does not know how to do. A fellow who has never tried it may look at some business man and believe that he has no cares, no worries, no disagreeable duties, but those who have tried the game know better—yes, indeed. When a man enters business for himself he becomes a real slave. He falls heir to burdens which the working man never dreams of. He cannot work a day of seven or eight hours and then dismiss his job from his mind. His mind will be filled with the problems of the business in every waking hour, and many of his sleeping hours are troubled by dreams of lost opportunities and failures during the day.

Americans Urged To Help Erie Get Guns And Food

Dublin, Erie — Prime Minister Eamon de Valera Wednesday night broadcast an appeal to friends of Ireland in America to help Erie obtain more weapons and foodstuffs. De Valera said the government would pay for the weapons and the foodstuffs.

He emphasized there never has been any friction between Erie and the belligerent governments.

Referring to relations with Britain, Italy and Germany, the Prime Minister said "there has been no threat and no bullying."

"We desire," he said, "that this condition of affairs should continue."

223 Die Violently As U. S. Observes Christmas Day

Toll Is Far Below Last Year's Week-end Yuletide Observance

Two hundred twenty-three persons met violent death in the United States since Christmas Eve, an Associated Press survey showed last night.

Traffic accidents claimed more lives than any other cause, leading all other types of violent death by nearly 3 to 1.

The figures were: traffic deaths, 163, other fatalities 61. The total was far below last year's figure of 678 for the holiday, which was spread over the three week-end days.

As it had for the last two days, Ohio led the states with 20 deaths, 16 of them in traffic. Next came Illinois and California with 17 deaths each. Texas and New York had 15 apiece.

Totals by state include: Illinois, 7 traffic, 10 other; Indiana, 4 traffic, 6 other; Kentucky, 1 other; Ohio, 16 traffic, 4 other; Tennessee, 4 traffic.

The worst auto accidents happened in Georgia, where seven persons were killed and four others injured critically in a head-on-crash, and in Nebraska, where the same number were killed and injured as two machines collided after, the police believed, a tire blew out on one of them.

In Florida a girl was the indirect victim of the southern custom of shooting fireworks at Christmas time when she ran into the path of an automobile as she dodged a fire-cracker tossed by a playmate.

Detroit reported a tragic end to the Christmas Eve shopping trip of two teen-age sisters who were killed by a hit-and-run driver.

A stunning airplane crashed near Youngstown, Ohio, killing two persons as the pilot banked sharply and lost control at about 100 feet. At least 14 persons were burned to death, six of them in Maryland as a woman and five children died in the flames of their home.

SON RATES SALUTE FROM DAD IN ARMY

St. Louis, —Sergeant William Schneider, inducted into the Army with the Missouri National Guard, felt a hearty slap on his shoulder and turned to face a second lieutenant. It was his son, William Schneider, Jr., just commissioned in the Army Air Corps at Randolph Field, Texas.

"Dad, you'll have to salute me," he said.

And the father, grinning, raised his hand briskly to the brim of his hat.

Waterways Row Is Seen Brewing As Senators Oppose St. L. Project

Washington, —The 28-year-old proposal to make it possible for Great Lakes shipping to steam through the St. Lawrence River to the sea appears headed toward another controversial reception in Congress.

Little moved by President Roosevelt's fresh presentation of the combined power and navigation project as a national defense necessity, Congressional opponents make it plain that a vigorous fight is likely if the St. Lawrence treaty with Canada should be resubmitted to the Senate without major changes.

The treaty, signed in 1928 after years of agitation for construction of a seaway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic, failed of Senate ratification in 1934 when it received forty-six favorable votes to forty-two negative, falling short of the required two-thirds majority.

President Roosevelt has announced he would press for approval in the new Congress of the $643,000,000 project as a means of providing cheap power to speed up

Britons Enjoy Bombless Christmas

London, —Britons snatched a day of Christmas peace from a winter of death-dealing war today, hearing at the same time a call from King George VI and ministers of the fighting services for renewed efforts on "the path of victory."

Under the taci yuletide truce, no sirens sounded and no bombs fell. The nation, with the shadow lifted for this brief spell, reverted almost to the "Merrie England" of other days.

Thousands flocked to churches to pray for victory and for their loved ones with the army, the navy and the air force.

The people of London, the King and Prime Minister Winston Churchill alike spent the day quietly with their families. Churchill found release from the cares of State in the antics of the baby grandson who bears his name.

'On Path To Victory'

In the longest speech he ever made, King George told his peoples in "sober confidence" that "our feet are planted on the path of victory."

He looked forward to happier days "when everyone will be at home together," but warned that "the future will be hard."

The same serious note was stressed by A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty; Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary of state and air; and Capt. H. D. R. Margesson, newly appointed war minister, in messages to the German-held Netherlands and the Dutch East and West Indies.

Queen Wilhelmina told her subjects she was in a position to say prospects of victory had "improved greatly in recent months."

AT THE MISSION

Last night, The Mission Children gave an appropriate and interesting Christmas entertainment at the Old Methodist Church. A capacity house of friends and adults were in attendance to enjoy the occasion.

If the general public knew of the splendid work being carried on with these children and adults also there would be much more liberal support and facilities of expansion.

At the close of the program about 75 children were given a liberal size bag of candy, nuts, oranges, apples etc and repeated with another of an assortment of Hornbeak delicious assortments of cakes. The head of each family received a big loaf of Hornbeak's cream bread, which was donated by the manager, Mr. AM Hornbeak.

Thank you, Alf. A large number of families had toast for breakfast that night have been short. We express to each and every one, our sincere thanks, who contributed in any way, from the least to the greatest. The blessings of God be upon you every one.

Memphis Chicken Thief Takes Great Pride In His Work

Memphis, Tenn. —The city jail's best customer is Henry Williams, a 67-year-old Negro who cheerfully admits—even boasts—that he is the best chicken thief in Memphis.

The little gray-haired Negro, back in the "coop" after his latest night of henhouse plunder, grinned through the cell bars as he told his story.

"But I really just got three chickens this time," he said. "The other one's dead."

When a desk sergeant asked him his occupation, he said: "Well cap'n, some darkies is shoe thieves, others is coat thieves and others is car thieves. Me, I's a chicken thief. Been one for twenty years. Can't do no good at nothin' else."

Stealing chickens, Henry will tell you, is no job for an amateur. It is an art, for chickens "can stir up mo' fuss than you can imagine."

"You gotta know how to grab 'em quiet like," he said. "And the best way to git 'em is to git hold of their feet gentle-like and firm-like and lift 'em into your sack. If you try to squeeze the squawk in their neck, they're gonna squawk louder."

Plans Complete For "Snow Ball" Monday Night

The Young Men's Business Club has completed arrangements for their annual "Snow Ball" Christmas-New Year Dance, which will be held on the night of December 30th, starting at 10 o'clock at the Woman's Club Building.

Joe Cappel, his Accordion and Orchestra, has been engaged to play for this year's "Snow Ball". Joe Cappel played thru this territory several years ago, when he was just starting on his way up the latter of success, and since that time he has played many spots over the entire U. S. A. He has been featured at Chase Hotel, Kenmore Hotel, Elitiches Gardens and the Million Dollar Pier at Atlantic City, as some of the country's outstanding dance spots.

Joe Cappel brings his segregation to Fulton direct from the Hotel Commonwealth of Kansas City and opens the following night at the Hotel Peabody in Memphis, where he has four weeks or longer engagement.

One of America's most versatile Organizations is the Cappel unit, a pleasing personality combined with superb showmanship and a unique presentation of the MUSIC YOU LIKE—featuring vocal trio, novelty and the Golden Voice of Bill O'Brien.

Washington, —Legislative circles heard Wednesday that President Roosevelt may ask Congress for authority to bring some of the independent, quasi-judicial agencies of the government under the control of the executive branch in a new reorganization plan.

The President's power to reshuffle Federal boards and bureaus expires January 21. Reports have circulated that if and when he asks extension of this authority, he might seek to expand it to include such presently-exempted agencies as the Interstate Commerce, Communications, Power and Trade commissions.

President May Ask New Powers

Washington, —Legislative circles heard Wednesday that President Roosevelt may ask Congress for authority to bring some of the independent, quasi-judicial agencies of the government under the control of the executive branch in a new reorganization plan.

The President's power to reshuffle Federal boards and bureaus expires January 21. Reports have circulated that if and when he asks extension of this authority, he might seek to expand it to include such presently-exempted agencies as the Interstate Commerce, Communications, Power and Trade commissions.

Long Debate Forecast
Senator McCarran (D. Nev.), said he had been informed that such a course might be pursued, and added that it would be sure to provoke lengthy and spirited debate in the Senate.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission and other agencies of that nature were created by Congress to be responsible to Congress," he said. "And reorganization that assumes to destroy this principle will be another step in the direction of taking from the people the right to govern themselves by taking from Congress the power to regulate these agencies."

Drunken Spree Causes Arrest Of Patrolman

Detroit — Police arrested Thomas Urquhart, a uniformed patrolman, and accused him of shooting Alexander Rudy, 53, a dishwasher, during a drunken spree which terrified bystanders Wednesday.

Lieut. Miles Furlong, Urquhart's superior, said the patrolman was on duty at the time of the shooting. Furlong described him as "too drunk to be talked to."

Witnesses told police Urquhart had been threatening passersby with his service revolver and forced one boy to "dance" by pointing the weapon at his feet.

Marvin Hopper, 40, a W. P. A. Worker, said Urquhart opened fire when he attempted to interfere. One bullet struck Rudy near the heart, Hopper said, and another shattered a theatre window a block away.

Physicians at Receiving Hospital said Rudy's condition was critical.

Johnson Soon To Appoint Farm Tenancy Group

Frankfort, Ky. — Governor Johnson is expected soon to appoint the members of a commission to study farm tenancy conditions in Kentucky and make recommendations that might better them.

The commission was authorized by the 1940 General Assembly and is to report to the 1942 assembly.

The act creating it provides for nine commissioners, one from each congressional district. Three are required to be farm owners and three tenants. Of the three others, one must be a landowner former tenant. The Governor is to designate a chairman and vice-chairman.

Names of possible appointees have been before the Governor for several weeks and he has asked advice of Ben Kilgore, executive secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau, federation and other agriculture leaders. Appointments may be made before the end of the year.

Pastor Falls Dead While Conducting Yule Services

La Salle, Ill. —As the bells of his church pealed forth tidings of the holiday, the Rev. Quinter Kephart, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, fell dead on the altar during Christmas services.

Although he had been ailing for some time Mrs. Kephart said her husband had insisted on conducting Wednesday's service personally. He fell dead as he was administering communion.

Hoboes Had Biggest Christmas Party In Past Thirty Years

Cincinnati — On Thursday in a downtown restaurant, the hoboes of America, Inc. will have "the biggest and best" Christmas party in thirty-three years of Yuletide celebrations in the Queen City, "King" Jeff Davis predicts.

The hoboes since Davis progressed to "unused smoke" for participants from the cigar stumps and cigarette butts that adorned their first holiday evergreen. And in addition to the tobacco and food, there'll be free bow ties for all the "boss attending and a presentation dance."

There's a note of pride in Davis' voice when he sums up the organization's 1940 record. "We've 1,511,000 members based on our own membership card and we meet all our dues about $1,000 from each city. News Service—Davis."

English Working Folks "Tear Lid Off" Celebrating

Air Raid Shelters Resound With Lively Music During Spree

London, — The cockney—and cocky—English working folk made this Christmas night one to be remembered, possibly by the proportions of tomorrow's hangovers.

They figuratively "tore the lid off" the deep air raid and subway shelters were costermongers, charwomen, teamsters, shopgirls and factory workers have found safe retreat from German air bombs.

There were no bombs this night and the crowds laughed and sang and danced, always to merry tunes. The only Christmas carol was sung at the request of a stray American, but carols are not dancing tunes and the music soon swung back to the lively side.

Some folks slept peacefully on amid the din, but most joined in the fun.

At one subway station, there was a snappy four-piece "pickup" orchestra which made so much noise that it had to be shushed when the station master announced the trains.

Paper hats were everywhere, even cocked on the heads of snoring oldest men who had partaken enough of barley wine and beer.

Most of the shelters, contained Christmas trees. There were children clutching toys, and one gay foursome was even playing bridge. One old man got up and folded his blankets to make room for the dancers, remarking, "It's that or be trampled to death."

Everywhere there was the spirit of a tipsy nightingale good time.

Londoners did not need to stay in the shelters, but most of them apparently wanted to spend Christmas night at home—and the shelters have been "home" since early September.

YEAR ENDING ON MIXED NOTES

The year of 1940 is ending on a note of hope for England in some respects and a note of apparent despair in other respects. Recent developments in Egypt, the successful offensive of the Greeks against Italy, combine to give England great cheer on this front and the hope that Italy may soon be knocked out of the war. If Italy could be knocked it would, strengthen Britain for the stern test that must be met before victory can be won over Nazi Germany. It must be that England has heard inside news from Italy, for the other day Winston Churchill directed a message to the people of Italy and the royal house to overthrow Mussolini before the Italian empire crumbles under savage English attack. Also it is noteworthy that the Italian commander in the field recently explained his failure against the British by reporting to Mussolini that the English had assembled the best fighters on "four continents" to beat back the Italian columns. This, of course, is not true. England is probably hard pushed for men on the Egyptian front and uses plenty of colonial troops. But what England has is evidently too much for the comic opera troops that Mussolini has trained. So much for the bright side of the Christmas picture.

On the main front, at home and on the Continent, the picture is not so bright. England is still standing up under terrible hammer blows from German bombers, and while some call the present situation a stalemate, it is nothing like that. True, Hitler has not managed to invade England, but there is no doubt that Britain has taken and is continuing to take terrible punishment from these air attacks. Germany is not getting anything in return which can compare with the beating England is taking daily. It is a miracle that a nation can stand what England has taken during recent months, and it would be a greater miracle if such could continue without cracking of public morale. In fact, it may be fairly said that if England does not manage to secure some mastery of the air before next year is far along, serious effects may be felt in the home front. It is not to be expected that a people can stand up under years of such savage air attack. England must find ways to overcome these attacks and pay back with full interest all such attacks.

This is where the picture appears darkest. To secure this added power in the air England must get a large part of it from the United States. The plane industry in England is doing a marvelous job—for better than we are here—but it can never do enough. The big help must come from this nation and every impartial observer in the two countries knows this quite well. To date this nation has hardly stretched its muscles over the job. We have been piddling around for months, and until we open our eyes wide enough to see the entire picture we are not going to do the job that must be done.

To properly arm England for the conflict during the coming year it is going to take an all-out industrial effort on the part of the United States. Merely appropriating billions of dollars will never do the job. Dollars won't fly the skies above Berlin and other German cities, and that is the thing which England must have. If Britain can carry the war to Germany in deadly fashion during 1941 results can be expected favorable to England and favorable to the United States. But we cannot expect the British to cover in

Selected Feature

BLAME FIXED FOR ITALIAN FIASCO

In his lengthy explanation of the Italian debacle in Egypt and Libya, Marshal Rodolfo Graziani indulges in some timely buck-passing. Fascist Italy, he intimates, is as much responsible for his catastrophic defeat as he himself and he will not be made the vociferous Fascists who are now denouncing the generals in the field.

If the armored cars, tanks and mechanized equipment which he had ordered had arrived on schedule, he declares, he could have taken the offensive before the British launched their desert blitzkrieg. Mussolini had prodded him to get started and he had prodded Mussolini to send the needed equipment. The noted Italian fighter was not going to extend his lines over trackless sand until he was prepared. But the supplies didn't come in early December as expected and they have never come. The British blockade of the Libyan coast prevented it. The blustering Mussolini could do nothing but send peremptory orders to his generals while his party henchmen scoffed at those generals.

The slowness of Graziani to get started made possible the British victory. Had he continued his march toward the Suez Canal shortly after he arrived at Sidi Barani last September he might have reached his objective. That was the fear of the small British force at Alexandria at the time. That has been the threat that has hung over the Nile Valley for the last three months. But Graziani's slowness was due to Mussolini's cautious participation in the war and to failure to send the necessary supplies to Libya.

Graziani's account of the Italian retreat is fantastic. His troops fought until their ammunition was exhausted, he says, but the British captured more than 30,000 and lost only 1,000. He blames sandstorms for the failure of the Italian air force to make a showing but the British air force operated throughout the more than two weeks of fighting. He says his men were outnumbered but all estimates place the Italians as more than two to one against the British. Perhaps he had to gloss over a major disaster, but that is unimportant.

What is important is that his report plainly lays the blame where it belongs on the Fascist leaders and this the Italian people cannot fail to see. —Courier-Journal.

their bomb shelters through another bitter year. They must be able to inflict comparable damage to Germany. Defense has never won a war and never will. A powerful offense is the thing which wins—and thus far Germany has been the nation with the offense.

Yes, this nation must find itself in some manner and begin an all-out industrial drive that will really place powerful weapons in British hands. That is the only way in which Britain can win the war.

● I was considerably amused by the way the young fellow talked, for I have been on both sides of the fence in my life and I know the elements both ways. I know which is the easiest—but those who merely look at the business men and never try business themselves will never believe what I say when I say that the working man has by far the easiest job. It is true that the business man may make more money. It is true that he may not appear to work as hard as employees, although even these things are not always true. Many a business man fails to make as much as some of his employees, and he always faces the danger of losing everything he has made. All a working man can lose is his job, and even today new jobs can be found.

REMEMBER BRITON WHO HELD UP 500 ITALIANS?

With the British Forces in Libya, remember that tank officer who said he was surrounded by 500 surrendered Italian blackshirts in the desert near Sidi Barrani and sent out a radio appeal several days ago for somebody to take them off his hands?

Well, here's the rest of the story as told by the officer himself: "We were isolated from the rest of the Hussar Regiment that used to do its riding on horseback when we ran into these 500 Italians. After a few rounds of machine-gun fire from us they threw down their guns and raised their hands. "I wanted to go on to something also but these I was in a bit of dilemma. So I sent that message for somebody to come and round them up.

"I didn't get out of my horse right away because of the casualties we've had, most of them have been caused by men doing just that only to be picked off by snipers.

"But after looking three men over I took that chance and popped out and stood on top of the tank with a revolver. They didn't show much sign of resistance and we just stood looking at each other until our infantry came along.

"Then I shuffled off to some unfinished business."

FARM-OWNED TRUCKS MAY BE GIVEN REDUCED RATES ON BRIDGES

Frankfort, Ky., —The possibility of giving farm-owned trucks reduced rates on all Kentucky's toll bridges is being studied by the State Highway Department.

Commissioner J. Lyter Donaldson said today he had inquired of the Department's consulting engineers whether such trucks might be allowed the passenger car toll rate, instead of the commercial truck rate. He added:

"I'm inclined to think our trust indentures (on the bridge bonds which are being paid off by the tolls) would prohibit it.

"The state Farm Bureau in asking for the reduction said that since the legislature had recognized farm-owned trucks as being in a different class from commercial trucks and allowed them the same license rate as passenger cars, that all departments of the state government should give them similar lower rates."

It was expected to be several weeks before the department's consulting engineers, a New York firm, completed its investigation and advised the commissioner.

FOOD FOR FAMILY OF FIVE COSTS $656.53

A circular of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture called "Make the Farm Feed the Family," estimates the cost of food for a family of five for a year at $656.53. At the head of the list of various foods is milk—1,460 quarts costing $146. Next are lean meat and poultry—450 pounds, valued at $121.50.

Other items and estimated costs are: 130 pounds of butter, $45.50; 156 pounds of cottage cheese, $23.40; 50 pounds of lard, $4; 150 pounds of bacon and salt pork, $32.50; 306 quarts of canned vegetables, $70.38; 234 quarts of canned fruits, $46.80; 150 dozens of eggs, $37.50; 5 bushels of apples, $3.75; 300 pounds of fresh fruit, $28.80; 350 pounds of fresh vegetables, $35; 18 bushels of potatoes, $13.50; 75 pounds of sorghum, honey, jellies and other home sweets, $15; 690 pounds of flour and cereals, $34.50; 28 pounds of dried vegetables, $5.20; 28 quarts of pickles, $5.20.

As the name of the circular suggests, reasons are presented for making the farm produce more of the family food supply. In Kentucky, it is stated, food produced on farms for home consumption is worth an average of $320 per farm a year. This means that a family of five must spend $333.53 in the purchase of food, if there is an adequate supply.

Santa Visits Crew Of Ships Held In U. S.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla. —There's Christmas joy aboard the German freighter Arauca, even though the forty-four crew members have not seen their families for more than a year.

The motorship has been tied up here since last December 19, when she barely made port ahead of a pursuing British warship.

Two truckloads of gifts were delivered for distribution to the men as they gathered around a decorated tree in the salon. Capt. Frederic Stengler said the presents came from all parts of the United States and from Germany. Many, he added, were sent by unknown friends.

"I am overwhelmed, as are my men, at the generous gestures on the part of so many American citizens in sending the presents," the skipper declared.

He distributed an $8 bonus to each member of the crew.

REPUBLICANS ASK STRONG DEFENSES IN CANAL ZONE

House members who have just returned from a trip to Panama called today for immediate strengthening of defenses in the Canal Zone.

Representative Bradley (R., Mich.), said that he didn't see a single modern plane in the zone, and declared military aircraft should be dispatched there "as fast as they come off the production line."

Representative Harness (R., Ind.), a member of the military committee, asserted the average Panamanian employed on construction work on the canal was "incompetent... lazy... practically worthless."

Harness said the United States has been negotiating with the Republic of Panama for defense stations beyond the Canal Zone proper.

Training For Defense

By Rufus T. Strohman

Dean, International Correspondence Schools

SKILLED man power is needed to put national defense plans in operation. New jobs are being created faster than they can be filled. It takes time, much time, for a man to learn the work of a skilled mechanic or technician. You can't educate a man overnight, no matter how great the emergency.

These are facts of the greatest importance to industry. The War Department, under the National Defense Act of 1916, has surveyed 20,000 manufacturing plants to ascertain what equipment they can produce in case of war. More than 10,000 of these have been earmarked as being available for carrying out one or another phase of defense production when needed. The plants cannot be put to work making weapons and equipment overnight. Machine tools must be designed and made, the mechanism of production must, in many instances, be rearranged and adapted to different uses.

The problem of national defense, therefore, is one of men and machines. The men must be highly trained, and the machines must be fashioned for special jobs. The problem is so important and so complicated that we cannot afford to have any illusions about it. We cannot afford to overestimate or to underestimate our ability to do it. The job will be done, but it requires cool, earnest, realistic, and intelligent effort, with a full understanding of what is to be done, and how to do it.

Miss Israel was injured fatally December 13 by an automobile.

The estate, in addition to the farm, includes twenty-five Shetland ponies, other livestock and cash in two banks.

CATTLE RAISING FOR 4-H MEMBERS

Farmers and business men are watching the outcome of the 4-H club cow-and-calf project in Todd county, Kentucky. Thirty-eight boys last May bought 68 purebred Hereford cows with calves at their sides. The calves now weigh 500 to 600 pounds, and will be ready for market in December, when they will weigh 700 to 800 pounds. The cows have been re-bred to purebred bulls for the continuation of the project next year.

A delegation of farmers, business men and County Agent Stuart Brabant went to Texas for the cattle, with a view to encouraging stock raising as a substitute for a part of the dark tobacco production in Todd county.
