Candidates Close As Second Period Closes

The Fulton County News' Trade Extension Campaign offers to the candidates remaining an opportunity unsurpassed in campaigns of this nature. The candidates are running so close that only a few subscriptions from any one candidate would put him in the lead. Usually by this time one or two candidates have taken a definite lead. This is not true here. It is almost unbelievable how most of them seem stay neck and neck.

Saturday, April 16, the second period closes and votes decrease. If any candidate intends to do anything big for herself, she surely should take advantage of this opportunity. Anyone who steps ahead now and takes a good lead is more sure than ever of clinching the beautiful 1938 Plymouth 4-Door Sedan or the $750.00 cash prize. Either one of these prizes are well worth having and the candidate who makes the best of this opportunity will get her choice between the two.

Have you ever seen anything so liberal as this offer? You may be sure that never for a long time will you be able to make so much with so small an investment of time and energy. Those in the running, and there are several, should certainly get out and work. Make the few days remaining in this second period turn this wonderful row 1938 Plymouth sedan towards them.

Candidates, get busy, work and win. Subscribers, get behind your favorite, back her and make her win.

HE IS RISEN!

Life, earth's greatest gift to the human race, has taken on a brighter hue within the past few weeks, for the season of Spring has returned and with it a deeper evidence of this gift, and its meaning to mankind. Again the green gets back into the trees, the flowers put forth their blooms, the song of God's feathered songsters is heard in all the land. It is the season of resurrection.

Who is there to stand among men, amid all this evidence of life, and of a new-born life, and doubt the promise of One who said in ages past, "I will give ye a new heaven and a new earth?" Who can watch the unfolding of His natural blessings to mankind as Easter, the day of resurrection approaches, and question mankind's nativity, his way of salvation or his ultimate fate? Surely, if all other proof failed of a divinity that shapes our ends the Easter season would be sufficient.

Deep down in your heart as the anniversary morn approaches there must be an inspiration of the new life on all sides, the new beauties, the new desire to sing aloud the praise of One who alone knows the plan along which the old world moves, who alone has compass over all living, breathing within it.

And again, as this old world comes to shout the gladdest message that ever fell from human lips—"He is risen!" surely there is not one citizen of this community who finds again joy and gladness and hope and faith in its meaning to mankind.

It is the Eastertide—the day of new life, new inspiration. Take new hope, therefore, all children of all-high God, and let not your heart forget the story of it, for it is the story of the salvation of the world.

"SALVATION THRU THE BLOOD"

Sermon by Rev. Woodrow Fuller, First Baptist Church, Fulton delivered Sunday morning, April 10th.

Text: "Almost all things are by the law purged with blood, and without the shedding of blood there is no remission." Hebrews 9:22.

Interwoven in the scriptures from Genesis to Revelation is a scarlet thread, the blood. Only as we consider the reality of man's sins and the atoning cross of Christ. Listen to the testimony of the scriptures: "Unto Adam and his wife did God make clothes of skin and clothe them." Gen. 3:21. This was the case of an innocent animal shedding his blood for the protection of sinful man. Again: "This is my blood of the new testament which is shed for many for the remission of sins." Matt. 26:28. This blessed truth is no length menu presented for selection or rejection. It is the eternal truth for all men everywhere. Never in any hour in the annals of history has any man received remission of sins except through the blood. Nor will one every receive forgiveness in any other way.

We call your attention to the truth that this is a specific blood. It is not the blood in plagued Egypt, not that of sacrificed oxen and lambs used in temple services, nor that of historical massacres, not of christian patriot who have given their life's blood. But it is the blood of "Him that loved us and loosed us from our sin by his blood." "That cleanseth from all unrighteousness." "Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world." "That flowed from Immanuel's veins." See him sweat drops of blood in Gethsemane, scourged in Pilate's hall, pierced by a crown of thorns, and finally crucified. It is This Blood That Effects Remission of Sins.

Next we call your attention to the fact that the shedding of His blood is the only way to salvation. There are no number of ways from which we may choose one. The Bible specification of one way is the prohibition of all other ways. People

Brother of Fulton Man Dies In Memphis

Elmer Cummings, brother of Roy Cummings, manager of Fry Shoe Store of this city, and Max Cummings, died early Tuesday morning in the St. Joseph Hospital in Memphis. He had been in ill health for some time, having spent about two months in the Illinois Central Hospital at Paducah previously, but had recovered sufficiently to return to his job at Woodstock. Stricken with pneumonia last week he was taken to the Memphis hospital.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon from the Hornbeak Funeral Home by Rev. E. R. Ladd, assisted by Rev. Woodrow Fuller, with interment following at East View cemetery in Union City.

Mr. Cummings was born near Rives, Tenn., the son of N. B. Cummings. After the death of his mother, when he was a child, his father married Miss Mollie Clemons, who survives him. He leaves his two half brothers, Roy and Max Cummings. The deceased had been an employee of the Illinois Central System for many years, and had spent most of that time at Jackson, Tenn.

SERMON

say: If I give myself to cultural development surely I will not be lost, or if I give my goods to the poor, or if I observe the Golden Rule, or if I am baptized or a member of a particular church, surely I am saved. God permits no evasion or quibbling. We might as well contend that a boy can learn to swim without getting into water as to say that one can be saved by any one or all of these ways. The truth is: "The blood of Jesus Christ his son cleanseth us from all unrighteousness."

In the third place we emphasize that the Blood puts all men on the same level. Jesus teaches this: "Lord I believe." God is no respecter of persons. At the cross the minister embryonic and the vilest hobo are equal. They must be saved in exactly the same birth through the application of the blood of Jesus by the Holy Spirit of God. All must have this necessary soul cleansing.

Last, we believe that these scriptures are meaningless unless there is something from which to save men, and something for which to save them. Yes, there is a lake of fire, a hell which cannot be explained away by heretics, where the wrath of God abides eternally. These facts make the scriptures gloriously meaningful.

God through Jesus Christ offers you four realities:

Forgiveness: "In whom we have redemption through the blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace. Eph. 1:7.

Cleansing: "The blood of Jesus Christ His son cleanseth us from all unrighteousness." 1 Jno. 1:7.

Justification: "Much more being justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him." Rom. 5:9.

Peace: "And having made peace through the blood of his cross." Col. 1:20.

Indeed without the shedding of His blood there is no remission of sins in this life or in eternity.

"THE NEWS" WEEKLY SCRAPBOOK

Week's Best Recipe—

ROYAL RICE PUDDING—Mix one cup thoroughly cooked rice with one cup thick sweetened boiled custard. Cool and fold in one-half pint cream whipped stiff and flavored with one teaspoon vanilla, two tablespoons powdered sugar, and a pinch of salt. Freeze until the mixture is nearly stiff, then stir in one cup chopped candied fruit. Freeze until it is firm. Serve with sweetened whipped cream.

The Flower Grower—

Instead of using a wide-mouthed dish, try an old tea kettle for watering house plants. Its narrow spout goes right down to the roots of the plant, and saves possible spilling of water over the edge of the box or jar dripping from the leaves. Then, too, every time you wash the tea kettle you are reminded to water the plants.

A Style Hint—

Buttons are almost as important as the lines of clothes these days, and they appear on garments where they have never been before; studied closely on the waist so that the material underneath cannot be seen; strung on eight-inch wide belts extending to the hips, and sometimes even sewn on hems gleaming with their glitter. Buttons in the shape of anchors, fish hooks, golf sticks and tennis balls now trim sports clothes, giving them an interesting touch.

Kitchen Kinks—

To make baked potatoes dry and mealy, when they are tender put a fork at least twice into each potato to let the steam escape. . . . Cake should be cold before being iced is put on. Uncooked icing may be spread on a slightly warm cake. . . . Never stretch pie crust to fit a plate. Dough shrinks when baking.

On Cleaning Day—

To clean furniture that has become badly soiled, wash it with soap and water to which has been added two or three tablespoons of kerosene or turpentine. Then rub dry with a wet dry cloth wrung out of strong salt water. Sprinkling dampened salt on a rug and then sweeping gives the same result.

An Inspiration—

A gush of bird song, a pattern of dew,
A cloud and a rainbow's warning;
Suddenly sunshine and perfect blue—
An April day in the morning.

MANY SECTIONS NOW REPORTING RETAIL TRADE ON UPGRADE

The retail trade situation of the country showed some improvement during the first few months of April, according to reports to the Department of Commerce from 36 key cities, just received by its Louisville District Office. For the first time in a number of weeks, an impressive group of cities reported a greater trade volume than for the corresponding period last year. The following cities were listed in this category: New Orleans, Wilmington, Milwaukee, Norfolk, Houston, Boston, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Omaha, and Atlanta. Generally, throughout the country, retail trade moved to higher levels. In some instances, the gains were spectacular. The tone of many of the reports was distinctly encouraging. In Cleveland it was stated that many retailers feel that the business recession has reached bottom and from all indications there appeared to be a slight improvement in the undertones in many lines. In Chicago it was stated that not only was there marked improvement in retail trade, which included particularly paints, hardware, household appliances, and Spring apparel, but registrations of new cars during March reached the highest level since last September. Louisville reported that retailers reported little change in conditions. Wholesale houses reported some gains from agricultural districts, especially for hardware and electrical appliances.

Government employment service reported 425 placements during week; 12.4 per cent under preceding week.

Bank clearings were 19 per cent under same period last year.

Streckfus Steamers To Be Active This Year

The Streckfus Fleet of steamers—Captain J. S. Saint Paul and the President, is being groomed for the coming excursion season—one of the questionable evidence that Spring is here.

Captain Roy Streckfus of the Steamer Capitol will open the season on Tuesday, April 19th, making Donaldsonville, La., his first stop, covering the entire Mississippi River, spending the Summer at St. Paul, Minn. A week's stay on the Illinois River has been included in the Capitol schedule this Spring.

Then the big Excursion Queen "St. Paul" will start operating from Paducah on Wednesday, May 4th on the Ohio River, stopping at all ports enroute to Pittsburg, Pa., for the summer.

The Steamer J. S. will follow on Tuesday, May 10th, commanded by Captain Verne Streckfus, and it will operate on the Mississippi river during the coming summer, with a few stops on the Ohio river, taking excursions out of all the principal cities on these two rivers. It is known as the "Garden Steamer" of the Streckfus fleet.

Captain John Streckfus will be the next and last steamer to follow with the S. S. President on May 24th, the big all steel, oil-burning queen of the Fleet, stopping at all of the principal cities from New Orleans to St. Louis for its summer season.

Finer and better than ever, I believe you will find our Fleet of steamers, says Captain Joe Streckfus, President and Manager of the Streckfus steamers as all of our steamers have been redecorated, refurnished, manned with excellent crews, and we are negotiating for excellent dance music.

Prominent organizations in all river cities have sponsored excursions on our steamers, and we have been able to offer them in addition to an enjoyable evening of entertainment, a nice profit for their organization.

"The only difference between a waffle and a pancake," asserts Herschel Grogan "is that the waffle is fixed so it won't skid."

A Seattle man says his wife threw the kitchen stove at him. That's what he gets for annoying the weaker sex.

Eugene DeMyer has it doped out that it would be a fine thing for the world if more men realized that it is better to fall down on the job than to lay down on it.

"Believe it or not," declares Vernon Owen "but an echo is the only thing that can stop some women from having the last word."

If calf's liver is so good for the complexion why don't girls carry a piece of it instead of a lip stick and a powder puff?

"After he has been married a few weeks," asserts Fred Sawyer "the groom realizes that it is easier to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear than it is to make a meal out of a can of beans."

Chas. Newton says no father has yet been able to figure out why his own daughter didn't pick the same kind of husband her mother picked.

FORD'S FORECASTS

Henry Ford returned to his recently from two months spent in the South, and with him he brought the customary bunch of optimistic forecasts that every citizen we know of around Fulton is always glad to read about.

"Nothing that occurred during the past few weeks," said Mr. Ford on his arrival in Detroit, "has occurred to change my belief that a prosperous era is ahead of us. It will come through a greater realization that all wealth comes from the soil and that there must be a greater cultivation of the land. Reports from abroad have not served to make me change my convictions about the futility of wars. Nobody wins in a war but the financial interests that promote it and make preparations for it. If a dictatorship comes here it will be because the people have been asleep and deserve it. But there will be a way to handle or destroy a dictatorship if it springs up in this country. Immigration quotas need not cause alarm. This nation is big enough to absorb any or all of the quotas of those people who cannot find happiness in their own lands."

Whether you agree fully with Henry's opinions or not makes little difference—you've got to admit there is a lot of good philosophy in what he says. And especially when he said, nearing the end of his interview: Deprive the world of the brains of men and women above 50 years of age and everything must come to a standstill. Neither age alone nor youth alone can run a world's affairs. A cross-section of both is needed."

AMERICA'S SHAME

When an important industry reports a shortage of labor these days it is real news. And when, despite such a condition, relief rolls in that same section show a steady increase, there is food for some sober thought. The New York Department of Agriculture recently issued a bulletin in which it said: "Many farmers of New York state are seriously handicapped, and were even in the dull winter season, by a scarcity of labor." The reason as set forth is the unwillingness of city idlers to leave the security and assistance given them by public and private agencies when they become unemployed in industry. They would rather be paid for loafing in the city than take a job for pay on the farm. And this is the kind of reports that making taxpayers around Fulton sick and tired of "relief" as it is now doled out in every section of the nation. It is reports of this kind which are certain to hasten a clean up of the whole mess.

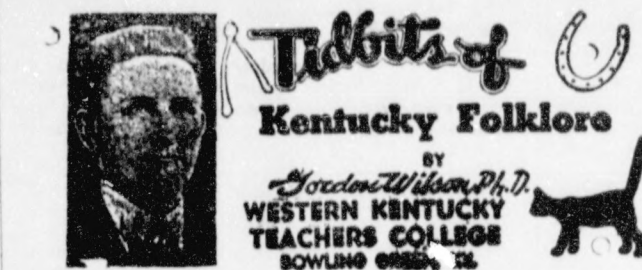

HITCHING POSTS

Dr. Joseph Brown, a forward looking Illinois school teacher recently broke into the Chicago newspapers by declaring in an address to an organization of teachers that the public is not interested in new ideas in education.

"The past is a guide post, but a poor hitching post," he said. "Let a man make a great surgical or medical discovery and he is hailed as a great man. Let a teacher announce a new idea in education and he is not considered as a benefactor of the human race but is criticised as one who would change the good old system."

There is considerable food for thought in Dr. Brown's statements. We've seen it demonstrated right here in Fulton. We've heard the protests that arise when a teacher has tried to inject some new and modern idea into school work, and the protests have always come from those who argue that if the old methods of teaching were good enough for the earlier generations they ought to be good enough for the present one. Yet there are none of us who would go back to the coal oil lamp or ride to town in an old spring wagon if we could help it. We fly around the neighborhood in an automobile and read by electric light. But when it comes to our schools we are too ready to declare that old methods are still best, and that it is of no great concern if children show no advancement over that shown by their parents when they were in school. What our schools really need is not more highly trained teachers but parents who are capable of doing a little more intelligent thinking.

MAKE THE CARELESS PAY
If an auto driver is careless he has to pay for the property he destroys. If railroads are careless they

LIVING ARCHAEOLOGY

It is interesting to probe around in beds of ashes and dust left by a former race, to pick up as if it had just dropped, some spearhead or arrowhead, fashioned by an unknown Indian brave. Archaeology has a fascination for all sorts of people, professional or amateur. Right in our midst, chiefly unregarded because it is common, is an archaeology that is equally interesting. It is not regarded as true archaeology, since it is still partially alive, but hardly a generation hence it will assume an importance equal to that of any other time and place. All archaeology was once living, present reality. The Indian or the cave man who cooked his shellfish or his deer or ground his corn was no more conscious of being queer than you and I are. What he did was traditional, already approved by his immediate ancestors, who had taught him what he knew, practically all that was common knowledge in the tribe. Certain things were holy, others were taboo, still others neutral. Gradually the primitive man built up his customs, customs that meant more to him than anything can mean to you or me. There was a sense of finality about the things that were or were not allowed.

Without knowing it, he saw many of his ways of doing things replaced by other customs that were unfamiliar or repulsive. Into the midst of the Indian's age-old customs came the European, with his different traditions, more dominant and persistent. Almost from the first there was a struggle between the two, with the conclusion always easily foreseen. Sheer numbers and greater adaptability foreordained the whites to ultimate victory. However comfortable we may now feel about this epic struggle, the actual working out of the must face damage suits. If buildings are carelessly put up and cause injury through a collapse, the owner must settle with those injured. But a man can harbor a fire-trap that endangers the property of his neighbor and get away with it.

This is all wrong, and suggests that what is needed in this state is a law that will make every man who is careless pay for his carelessness. If he has a building on his place that is dangerous because of its burning it might destroy a neighboring piece of property, then he should be made to get rid of it or pay for whatever damage may be caused by it. We have a state department that is supposed to condemn and rare all dangerous structures, yet we know there are few, if any, communities in the state that are wholly free of dangerous fire-traps in the shape of antiquated buildings.

Once again Fulton citizens have arrived at the spring clean-up season of the year, and once again they are going at the job in a thorough and whole-hearted manner. Why not make it complete by cleaning up any old structures in the community that are known to be fire hazards or get rid of them altogether? They are not only dangerous but they are unsightly, and in many instances unhealthy to the neighborhood that maintains them. All that is needed to rid the community of such hazards is for just one citizen to start. And right here in the conquest of one type of civilization by another was tragic and bloody. Whenever I see a sad-faced Indian looking away across his tribes' limited lands, I cannot help wondering at the ruthlessness of any system of living, even one that promises a higher type of civilization.

We are so intent on believing that our way is the right way that we fail to see the paths in the passing of institutions right in our own time. Those who are in style feel so superior to those who are behind that it takes many a year to evaluate anything that is not up-to-date. Within our own lifetimes we have readjusted ourselves several times to changes, probably feeling each time that the world was better, though it may have been only different. Thirty years ago it was evident that many things that had lasted for generations were on the verge of change. New methods had come, the railroads had penetrated nearly every part of the country, a fairly good standard of education was being demanded, newspapers were finding their way into even remote places, foods and clothing were rapidly becoming standardized. Thirty years is a brief time as humanity reckons time, but so many things have changed that even in that time living people are literally artifacts of another time and place. Too many of the younger generation these old-timers are as queer as any spearheads or arrowheads dug up in the ashes around old campfires. Before these living specimens of archaeology entirely disappear, it is the province of scholars and antiquarians to put into some permanent record the stamp and image of the past, not that these old customs may be revived or kept from dying but that those who come after us can know accurately what we have been like.

midst of the spring clean-up season is a most appropriate time to start.

MURDER TAKES A LESSON

The land of the rising sun, it was called. A bursting sun is emblazoned on its flag. In view of recent developments in the far east one might wonder if that sun is still rising. A rising sun and a sinking sun look the same on a flag, you know.

Aye! a few months ago there was nothing so cocky nor so self confident as the bantam Japanese diplomat. They had China on the run—they were murdering the Chinese then—men, women, and children. Yea, they were bold and brave men; they were killing defenseless folk—they thought.

The diplomats bluntly told the United States and England the bride was off in the naval building race. They forgot it takes money. The silk export (Japan's chief income) dropped off one-half—one-half of their purchasing world did not like murder. The Chinese offered more assistance than was expected. More supplies were needed for the army. The other side, in the meantime, received guns like theirs. They shot back.

Reports of the lack of progress of the Japanese show vengeance is being had—the Chinese are winning part of the battles. The Japanese diplomats have asked Britain and the United States to place some limit on the naval race—they know they cannot keep up. The diplomats are now meek and are seeking friends. The murderers do not like to be slaughtered themselves. The fatted calf has turned on the butcher; the butcher's knife is not half so sharp and the calf has become a bull with horns—China is a bull now.

The Japanese had wonderful possibilities of contributing something to the world—instead they chose to destroy. By doing so they put themselves in a precarious position. Became so ominous that the nation who destroys them will now be the contributor.

'Tis a lesson in Murder.

"Never ask a man for a pin," advises Paul Jones "Even if he has one he can't give it to you without taking chances on a disaster."

AID IN SIGHT

With figures showing that 3,500 lives were lost and $100,000,000 in property destroyed last year by fires in the farming sections of the country, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce has stepped forward with what appears to be the best plan yet devised for curbing such waste. The Chamber plans a national rural fire prevention movement, with a branch in every town about like Fulton. In its effort there will be enlisted the aid of the Boy Scouts, the Parent-Teachers' associations, farm organizations, the rural press etc. A little study of it shows that it has the earmarks of a worthwhile program, and it should receive the heartiest support of the entire public. With fire-fighting equipment unavailable in rural areas, the only other recourse is to preach and practice fire prevention. Fire losses, as last year's figures reveal, are so great as to demand every possible effort to curb them.

UNSUNG HEROES

There are heroes to be found in all walks of life, and every time we read or hear of their exploits our faith in the finer quality of human nature seems to be bolstered anew. Down one of the steep mountains in western Pennsylvania a Maryland driver was guiding his heavily-laden truck. He discovered that his brakes were not working, and almost at the same time he saw two passenger cars approaching. To avoid the impending collision he risked his own life by taking a chance and turning the big truck into a side road. It crashed into the bank, upset, and he lost his life beneath the wreckage. Unselfishness is always a mark of true heroism. This unheralded truck driver gambled with his own life to save the lives of others. He lost the gamble, and the penalty was death. The great Book of Life cannot record a deed more heroic.

Ever notice that the Fulton man who spends money for hair tonic is still bald and the woman who spends hers for reducing pills is still fat.

seldom does so.

Next to hand-shaking, nothing is as overworked as a woman's promise that she is going to start dieting.

There is a vast difference between offering a Fulton man a suggestion and telling him how to run his business.

Who can remember when buttons would stay on a garment until at least six months after you bought it?

Discretion is something that usually comes to every man when he is too old to benefit by it.

Another thing Fulton citizens will find well worth remembering is that a man doesn't have to be a detective to find trouble.

This is the year you are going to get that tooth pulled that you promised yourself all last year you were going to get pulled.

Give George Washington credit for one thing. It was a hatchet he used instead of a hammer.

No man has ever yet lived long enough to get even with this big old world of ours.

Life as the average woman sees it will be just about complete when someone invents a radio that will also wash the dishes.

In some respects life is speeding up, but it still takes six reels to kill a moving picture bad man where it used to take only two.

Wonder how the average Fulton man who longs for the good old days would go about seating a couple of girls wearing hoopskirts in a rumble seat.

A recent news dispatch told of a Chicago grocer having 11 daughters. Imagine 11 son-in-laws working in the store at the same time.

A peace pact is something that gets picked to pieces and then a little later on gets shot to pieces.

As a usual rule the Fulton man who complains that he never had a chance wouldn't take one if he had.

The seed catalogues are just as promising as ever, but the weeds will thrive best after the garden is planted.

Gray hairs make a man look distinguished—and they make a woman look for a bottle of hair dye.

Who can remember when pink cheeks on a Fulton girl was accepted as a sure sign of good health?

Old-fashioned girls used to ask: "Who's got a pin?" but now they are more apt to ask "Who's got a match?"

Wouldn't Fulton be a paradise to live in if ever yman worked as hard for his religious denomination as he is willing to get out and work for his political party?

DEATHS

MRS. INA VINCENT RUDD

Mrs. Ina Vincent Rudd, wife of Dr. R. T. Rudd, of this city passed away after a lingering illness of several months. Mrs. Rudd has been a resident of Fulton for nearly forty years, and is well known to a wide circle of friends.

She was married to Dr. R. T. Rudd in this city Dec. 22nd, 1897 and to this union one son, Dr. Russell R. Rudd of this city, was born. Besides her husband and son she is survived by her mother, Mrs. W. H. Vincent of Corinth, Miss., and four sisters: Mrs. C. F. Dalton of Jackson, Tenn., Mrs. Walter Cox of Aberdeen, Miss., Mrs. R. O. Burnette of Corinth, Miss., and Mrs. G. W. Counter of Burke-Bennett, Tex., and one brother, W. E. Vincent of Union City, Tenn.; also one grand-daughter, Carolyn Rudd of Fulton.

At the time of her death Mrs. Rudd was the president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the National Eclectic Medical Association. She was prominent in the work of the community singing and by reason of her activities in both of these organizations has a host of friends, who sincerely regret her passing, throughout the mid-south.

Unassuming in disposition, Mrs. Rudd's activities were not attended with any publicity and her many acts of charity, kindness and benevolence, have always only been known to those who received them. Truly a good woman, and one greatly beloved by many, has departed this life, and she will be sorely missed, by all with whom she came in contact, not only in Fulton, but throughout the communities where her activities have brought her in contact with others.

Funeral services will be conducted at the First Baptist church, Fulton on Friday, April 15, Winstead-Jones in charge.

JOHN C. CASHION

John C. Cashion, 79, died Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Dan Frankum, after a few days illness. Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock at the Good Springs Church near Dukedom, by Rev. Arthur Wilkerson of Palmersville. Interment followed in the church cemetery.

He is survived by his widow; two sons, Walter Cashion of Palmersville and Laskow Cashion of Martin; five daughters, Mrs. Lew Hickman of Hickman, Mrs. Florence Cashion of Mayfield, Mrs. Adie Draper of Kenton, Tenn., Mrs. Bertha Span of Jonesboro, Ark., and Mrs. Dan Frankum of Fulton; one brother, Jess Cashion of Dukedom and one sister, Mrs. Veda Rhea of Martin.

A. J. CASHION

A. J. Cashion, who died of heart trouble last Thursday night, was buried Friday afternoon at the Water Valley cemetery, following funeral services conducted by the Rev. A. D. Rudolph, pastor of the Paducah Presbyterian church.

Mr. Cashion was well known in Fulton, having been employed as a barber in the shop of T. B. Neely for a number of years. He moved to Paducah where he continued his profession, but had been engaged as an insurance agent recently.

Miss Lila Hastings of this city is a sister.

Lewis Patrick Best Speller In County

Lewis D. Patrick, 13, eighth grade pupil of the Loggston school represented Fulton county in the State Spelling Bee at Louisville, Thursday, April 14. Second honors in the county contest held by Clyde Lassister, superintendent of county schools, went to Dorothy Bryant, 12, seventh grade pupil of Cayce school.

Young Patrick was accompanied to Louisville by Miss Elizabeth Williamson, teacher in the Loggston school, who attended the Kentucky Educational Association. Expenses of the representative from this county will be paid by the Fulton County school system.

Capacity Crowd Attends "Casey" Jones Banquet

Culminating several weeks of preparation, the banquet for Casey Jones, the memorial banquet for "Casey" Jones, famed railroad engineer was held at the Cayce high school auditorium last Friday night, sponsored by the Hickman and Fulton Lions clubs. A capacity crowd of some 700 people attended and enjoyed the fine hospitality of the Cayce people.

Fred Stokes, president of Hickman Lions Club, acted as toastmaster, introducing the various speakers and announcing numbers on the entertainment program. Yewell Harrison, instructor and bandmaster directed the Fulton high school band which rendered an interesting program. The Hickman Lions quartet gave several enjoyable numbers and pupils of Mrs. Spears enlivened the program with several dancing numbers.

Proceeds totaled $320 according to J. E. Attebery, chairman of the arrangement committee, and plans are being made to unveil the memorial to "Casey" Jones July 4th. A granite locomotive as memorial is planned in memory of the famed engineer whose birthplace was at Cayce.

Mrs. Jones, widow of the engineer was honor guest at the banquet. She told of her courtship with the man who has been known to almost every American since the song "Casey Jones" was first written.

Sim Webb, negro fireman on the fatal night, told of the trip from Memphis on the way to Water Valley, Miss., in which "Casey" Jones was killed. He described how Casey, already tired after one day's run, agreed to take another train out in an emergency, on the night of April 29, 1900. It was a fast passenger already an hour and a half late. They pulled out of Memphis at 12:35 a. m. The lost time was made up in the first 102 miles of travel. It was a dark, foggy night.

Suddenly out of the mist ahead appeared a caboose and three freight cars that had not cleared the main line as they pulled into a siding. "Casey," seeing a crash was inevitable yelled to his fireman: "Jump, Sim Jump." Webb jumped and was saved. Jones stood by his throttle as his engine plowed into the caboose and cars. Not a single passenger was seriously hurt—but "Casey" was dead.

Sid Law, another fireman and safety expert, who was with Jones on a run the night before the fatal wreck, told of his acquaintance with the engineer, and his unswerving devotion to his duty.

The gathering was the largest to assemble in this county in years, and was made even more enjoyable by the unstinted efforts of A. J. Lowe, principal of the Cayce school members of the faculty and the Cayce P. T. A. and other citizens who worked so hard to make it a success.

Thirteen Farmers Visit Experiment Station At Jackson

The annual Field Day at Jackson, Tenn., was attended by thirteen farmers of Fulton County. At this meeting those present were shown winter cover crops that were sown on land that was cultivated to cotton, also where lespedeza hay had been harvested and on bermuda sod. The crimson clover and rye grass showed the best results in almost all cases. The clover and rye grass were sown in the cotton middles, both broadcast and with one row drills after the cotton had been picked over the first time. The growth on this plot was about twelve inches high and furnishing considerable pasture.

Another demonstration that caused much comment was two plots that were sown to rye grass and crimson clover and one that was sown to rye grass alone. The rye grass that was growing with the clover had made much more growth than where sown alone and had a much richer green color. Two herds of dairy cows were inspected, one was being fed grain, corn, silage, alfalfa hay and pasture. The other herd was receiving silage, alfalfa hay and pasture. Only a small difference was observed in the quantity of milk production by the two herds and no difference could be determined in the condition of the animals. Some of these cows had been in the experiment for four years without receiving any grain.

Another interesting demonstration was a flock of sheep that was being fed pasture alone and it was explained that this was the third generation of sheep that had been produced on pasture alone. The sheep were in excellent condition and showed no ill effects whatever from the lack of grain.

One of the officials reported that it had been possible to pasture animals on winter clover crops about 150 days during the year when the crimson clover and barley or rye grass were sown in August.

All of those who attended indicated that they wished to visit the experiments next year and the men in charge invited the group to return at any time.

Suggests Financial Training For Child

Family finances or lack of finances should never be left to a child's imagination in the opinion of Miss Mary Mumford who has charge of the nursery school of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "He or she should know exactly why he can't spend as much as Johnny who lives across the street, for instance, so he won't be imagining that his parents are selfish or cruel," it was suggested.

Children who have money to spend should be taught that learning to spend also implies learning to save. They may save a definite amount every week, so that if something unusual comes up they will be able to take care of it. When they are adults they will find many unexpected expenses to be paid, Miss Mumford points out so why not learn to think of that as children.

Should children be allowed to borrow from their parents, where they are given money regularly? Miss Mumford believes that if they are, then they should be taught to pay the money back in the agreed amount of time. To allow a child to borrow continuously and not pay back develops bad spending habits. Parents often would rather cancel these little debts rather than have their children disappointed over something they want. This is not a good practice, however, the child care expert believes as it is best to plan wisely and then accept the consequences.
